

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

P R E F A C E .

As more than twenty years have elapsed, since the first publication of this Grammar, it can scarcely be necessary, in offering to the public a revised edition of the work, to make more than a passing allusion to its original plan or to the circumstances to which it owed its origin.

For some years previous to the date of its publication, the progress of classical learning in Europe, and particularly in Germany, had been such, as plainly to indicate the necessity of a, corresponding advance in the manuals of Latin grammar employed in the schools of this country. Their deficiencies had indeed become so apparent, that various attempts had already been made to furnish a remedy by means of translations of German grammars; but none of these, however excellent in many respects, had seemed to be fully adapted to the purpose for which they were intended.

To unite the acknowledged excellencies of the older English manuals and of the more recent German grammars was the special aim of the authors of this work; and to this end their attention was directed, first to the preparation of more extended rules for the pronunciation of the language, secondly to a clearer exposition of its inflectional changes, thirdly to the proper basis of its syntax, and fourthly to greater precision in its rules and definitions.

The system of rules for the division and accentuation of Latin words, prepared in pursuance of the plan which has just been specified, was accordingly more copious than any previously found in the Latin grammars in common use in this country. For the purpose also of preventing the formation of erroneous habits of pronunciation in the early part of the student's course, the penultimate quantities of all Latin words occurring in the Grammar were carefully marked, unless determinable by some general rule, and the paradigms were divided and accented in such a manner as to indicate their true pronunciation.

In their treatment of Latin etymology, the authors aimed to render its study less a mere exercise of memory, and in a greater degree an efficient aid in the general cultivation of the mental powers. The principal means adopted for this purpose consisted in the practical distinction, every where made in treating inflected words, between the root, or ground-form, and the termination.

The third prominent peculiarity of the original work was its direct derivation of the rules of Syntax from the logical analysis of sentences, and its distinct specification of the particular use of each of the several words of which a sentence is composed. This method of treating syntax—a method previously unknown in the schools of this country—has, since that period, been extensively adopted, and in some instances greatly extended, particularly in a portion of the English grammars recently published in this country, and has probably contributed more to the advancement of grammatical science, than any other innovation of modern times.

The errors noticed in the original work have been corrected, as successive editions have issued from the press, but no opportunity has occurred, until the present, of thoroughly revising it in every part. Two years of continuous labor have now been devoted to its revision, and to the purpose of rendering it conformable in all respects to the advanced position which it originally aspired to occupy.

In all the modifications which have now been made, I have aimed to accomplish these two purposes—to preserve, as far as possible, the identity of the work, and at the same time to bring it as near, as should be practicable, to the present state of philological science. Hence, while I have made no changes either in language or arrangement, but such as appeared to me quite necessary, I have omitted none which logical accuracy or requisite fulness of explanation seemed to demand. In doing even this it soon became evident, that the changes and additions must be more numerous, than would well consist with the convenient use of the old and the new editions in the same classes. Though not insensible of the trouble occasioned to the teacher by alterations in a familiar text-book, I could not but suppose, that such modifications as the progress of the last twenty years had rendered necessary, would still be welcomed by him, notwithstanding the personal inconvenience arising from the disturbance of his previous associations. To his pupils, who will have known no other form of the Grammar, than that in which it now appears, the work, it is believed, will not only be as easy of comprehension in its new, as in its old form, but in its practical application far more satisfactory.

Of the minor changes and additions occurring on almost every page, and even of the occasional rearrangement of small portions of the materials, it is unnecessary to speak particularly. The student familiar with former editions will at once detect these slight modifications, and note them in his memory for future use; and though he may fail to find a rule, exception, or remark on the page where he has been wont to see it, he will still meet with it in the same relative position,—in the same section and subdivision of the section in which it formerly appeared.

In the department of Orthoëpy will now be found some account of the Continental mode of pronouncing Latin; and, by means of the joint exhibition of this and of the English methods, the student will be able to use the Grammar with equal facility, whether choosing to adhere to the usual pronunciation of English and American scholars, or preferring that of the continental schools.

In the Etymology of nouns, no other alteration need be specified, except the introduction, in the third declension, of "Rules for forming the nominative singular from the root." These are copied, in a modified form, from the editor's First Latin Book. In themselves they are of considerable utility in showing the mutual relations between the sounds of certain letters, and they are also closely connected with corresponding changes in some of the verbal roots. In the Etymology of adjectives, besides the minor modifications already alluded to, a few changes in arrangement have been made in those sections which relate to Comparison. To pronouns have been added some remarks on Pronominal Adjectives, which seemed to require a more particular notice, than they had hitherto received, both in their relation to each other and to the Adverbial Correlatives. The Etymology of particles has been treated somewhat more fully than in former editions—a fulness especially observable in relation to adverbs and conjunctions, and which was rendered necessary by the more extended treatment of those particles in the revised Syntax.

In almost every section of the Syntax the student will meet with modifications and especially with additions, which, as in other parts of the work, are introduced in such a manner as seldom to interfere with the references made to former editions in the series based upon this Grammar. The principal exception to the latter remark is to be found in sections 247—251, which relate to certain uses of the ablative.

A comparison of the Prosody in the present and former editions will show, that it has been revised with minute care in every part. Similar attention has also been given to the Appendix, in which will be found some additions relating to Roman Money, Weights and Measures. For the greater convenience of the student the Index in this edition has been much enlarged.

In conclusion, I would briefly indicate the principal sources from which have been derived the various additions and corrections, to which allusion has been made. In preparing the original work, the earlier editions of Zumpt's Grammar were consulted at almost every step, and while frequent use was made of the grammars of Scheller, Grant, Adam, Ruddiman, Hickie and others, the treatises of Zumpt were even then regarded as the most valuable embodiment of the principles of Latin philology. It was therefore natural and almost unavoidable, in revising a work which had in so many points received both its form and its substance from the earlier labors of that distinguished grammarian, to look to his maturer works for many of the materials by means of which our original sketch should be made more complete. Accordingly I have constantly consulted the last edition of his Grammar, translated by Dr. Schmitz, and have freely incorporated in this edition such of its materials, as were suited to my purpose. In most cases his ideas have been either expressed in my own language, or in language so modified as to suit the general plan of my work. In the Etymology, and not unfrequently in the Syntax also, the copious Grammar of Ramshorn has furnished valuable materials; and the Grammars of Key and of Kühner, the latter translated by Prof. Champlin, have been consulted with profit and satisfaction. In the sections comprising conjunctions, and especially in those relating to grammatical analysis, I am happy to acknowledge my indebtedness to Prof. S. S. Greene of Brown University. To the sources already specified I must add the Latin Lexicon of Dr. Freund, in editing a translation of which I had frequent occasion to note such matters as promised to be of utility in the revision of this Grammar. The additions in the Appendix relating to Roman money, etc., are taken principally from Dr. Riddle's translation of Dr. Freund's School Dictionary. To these references I will only add, that such other notes relating to Latin philology, as I have made during the past twenty years, so far as they were adapted to my purpose, have either been used in my former occasional corrections, or are incorporated in the present edition.

In taking a final leave of the earliest of the elementary Latin works with which my name has been associated, and with which, in my own mind, must ever be connected the pleasant memory of my early friend and associate, Prof. Stoddard, I trust I shall be pardoned in commending it once more to the kind indulgence of the teachers of this country, and in expressing the hope that, in its present form, it will be deemed not altogether unworthy of a continuance of the favor which it has so long received. I cannot indeed venture to indulge the hope, that all the imperfections of the work have even now been removed, or that, in my attempts to render it more perfect, I may not sometimes have fallen into new errors; but this I can truly say that since its first publication I have devoted much time to its revision, and have sought to manifest my sense of the kindness with which it has been received, by doing all in my power to render it less unworthy of public favor.

LATIN GRAMMAR.

§ 1. The Latin language is the language spoken by the ancient Romans. Latin Grammar teaches the principles of the Latin language. These relate,

1. To its written characters;
2. To its pronunciation;
3. To the classification and derivation of its words;
4. To the construction of its sentences;
5. To the quantity of its syllables, and its versification.

The first part is called Orthography; the second, Orthoëpy; the third, Etymology; the fourth, Syntax; and the fifth, Prosody.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

§ 2. Orthography treats of the letters, and other characters of written language, and the proper mode of spelling words.

1. The Latin alphabet consists of twenty-five letters. They have the same names as the corresponding characters in English. They are A, a; B, b; C, c; D, d; E, e; F, f; G, g; H, h; I, i; J, j; K, k; L, l; M, m; N, n; O, o; P, p; Q, q; R, r; S, s; T, t; U, u; V, v; X, x; Y, y; Z,

2. The Romans used only the capital letters.
3. I and j were anciently but one character, as were likewise u and v.
4. W is not found in Latin words, and k occurs only at the beginning of a few words before a, and even in these c is commonly used, except in their abbreviated form; as, K or Kal. for Kalends or Calends, the Calends.
5. Y and z are found only in words derived from the Greek.
6. H, though called a letter, only denotes a breathing, or aspiration.

DIVISION OF LETTERS.

§ 3. Letters are divided into vowels and consonants.

1. The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, y
- The consonants are divided into
- | | | | |
|---------------------|--------------------|------------------------------|-----------------------|
| { | Liquids, | l, m, n, r. | |
| | Mutes, { | Labials, | p, b, f, v. |
| | | Palatals, | c, g, k, q, j. |
| | { | Linguals, | t, d. |
| | | Sibilant, | s. |
| | | Double consonants, | x, z. |
| Aspirate, | | h. | |

2. X is equivalent to cs or gs; z to ts or ds; and, except in compound words, the double consonant is always written, instead of the letters which it represents. In some Greek words x is equivalent to chs.

DIPHTHONGS.

§ 4. Two vowels, in immediate succession, in the same syllable, are called a diphthong.

The diphthongs are ae, ai, au, ei, eu, oe, oi, ua, ue, ui, wo, uu, and yi. Ae and oe are frequently written together, æ.

PUNCTUATION.

§ 5. The only mark of punctuation used by the ancients was a point, which denoted pauses of different length, according as it was placed at the top, the middle, or the bottom of the line. The moderns use the same marks of punctuation, in writing and printing Latin, as in their own languages, and assign to them the same power.

Marks of quantity and of accent are sometimes found in Latin authors, especially in elementary works:—

1. There are three marks of quantity, viz. \breve , $-$, \circ ; the first denotes that the vowel over which it stands is short; the second, that it is long; the third, that it is doubtful, that is, sometimes long and sometimes short.

2. There are also three written accents—the acute ($\acute{}$), the grave ($\grave{}$), and the circumflex (\circ). These were used by the old grammarians to denote the rising and sinking of the voice in the Roman mode of pronouncing words. (See §§ 14 and 15.) In modern elementary Latin works, the acute marks the emphatic syllable of a word, (§ 16), the grave distinguishes certain particles from other words spelled in the same manner; as, quòd, because; quòd, which; and the circumflex is placed over certain penultimate and final syllables that are formed by contraction.

The diæresis ($\ddot{}$) denotes that the vowel over which it stands does not form a diphthong with the preceding vowel; as, æër, the air. It is used principally with ae, ai, and oe.

ORTHOËPY.

§ 6. Orthoëpy treats of the right pronunciation of words.

The ancient pronunciation of the Latin language being in a great measure lost, the learned, in modern times, have applied to it those principles which regulate the pronunciation of their own languages; and hence has arisen, in different countries, a great diversity of practice.

The various systems now prevalent in Europe, may, however, be reduced to two—the Continental and the English—the former prevailing, with only slight diversities, in most of the countries of continental Europe, and the latter in England. Their principal difference is found in the pronunciation of the vowels and diphthongs, since, in both methods, the consonants are pronounced in nearly the same manner.

THE CONTINENTAL METHOD.

[According to this system, each of the vowels, when standing at the end of a syllable, is considered as having but one sound, which, however, may be either short or long. Thus,

Short â , as in hat.	Long ô , as in no.
Long â , as in father.	Short û , as in tub.
Short ê , as in met.	Long û , as in full.
Long ê , as in there.	æ or æ , as e in there.
Short i , as in sit.	au , as ou in our.
Long i , as in machine.	eu , as in feudal.
Short ô , as in not.	ei , as i in ice.

REMARK. These sounds are sometimes slightly modified when followed by a consonant in the same syllable.]

THE ENGLISH METHOD.

In the following rules for dividing and pronouncing Latin words, regard has been had both to English analogy and to the laws of Latin accentuation. See § 14 and 15. The basis of this system is that which is exhibited by Walker in his "Pronunciation of Greek and Latin Proper Names." To pronounce correctly, according to this method, a knowledge of the following particulars is requisite:—

1. Of the sounds of the letters in all their combinations.
2. Of the quantities of the penultimate and final syllables.
3. Of the place of the accent, both primary and secondary.
4. Of the mode of dividing words into syllables.

OF THE SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS.

I. OF THE VOWELS.

§ 7. A vowel, when ending an accented syllable, has always its long English-sound; as, pâ-ter, dô-ct, vî-vus, u'-tus, u'-ba, Ty'-rus; in which the accented vowels are pronounced as in fatal, metre, vital, total, tutor igram.

1. A, at the end of an unaccented syllable, has nearly the sound of a in father or in ah, but less distinct or prolonged; as, mu'-sa, e-pis'-tō-la, a-cer'-bus, Pal-a-mē-des; pronounced mu'-zah, etc.

2. E, o, and u, at the end of an unaccented syllable, have nearly the same sound as when accented, but shorter and less distinct; as, re'-te, vo'-lo, u'-su-i.

3. (a.) I final has always its long sound; as, qui, au'-di, le-gē-ti.

REM. 1. The final i of sibi and sibi has its short sound.

(b.) I, at the end of an unaccented syllable not final, has an indistinct sound like short e; as, Fa'-bi-us (fa'-be-us), phi-los'-ō-phus (phe-los'-o-phus).

EXC. I has its long sound in the first syllable of a word the second of which is accented, when it either stands alone before a consonant, as in i-dō-ne-us, or ends a syllable before a vowel, as in fl-ē-dam.

REM. 2. Y is always pronounced like i in the same situation.

§ 8. A vowel has always its short English sound, when followed by a consonant in the same syllable; as, mag'-nus, reg'-num, fin'-go, hoc, fus'-tis, cyg'-nus, in which the vowels are pronounced as in magnet, seldom, finish, copy, lustre, symbol.

EXCEPTION 1. A, when it follows qu before dr and rt, has the sounds of a in quadrant and in quart; as, qua'-dro, quad-ra-gin'-ta, quar'-tus. In other connections a before r has the sound of a in part; as, par-ti-ceps, ar'-ma; except when followed by another r, as in par-ri-ci-da.

EXC. 2. Es, at the end of a word, is pronounced like the English word ease; as, ig'-nes, au'-des.

EXC. 3. Os, at the end of plural cases, is pronounced like ose in dose; as, nos, il'-los, dom'-i-nos.

EXC. 4. Post is pronounced like the same word in English; so also are its compounds; as, post'-quam, post'-e-a; but not its derivatives; as, pos-trē-mus.

EXC. 5. E, i and y before final r, or before r in a syllable not final, when followed in the next syllable by any other consonant, except r, have the sound of e and i in the English words her and fir; as, fer, fert, fer'-ū-tis; hir, hir'-ous, myr'-tus.

II. OF THE DIPHTHONGS.

§ 9. æ and œ are always diphthongs unless separated by disjunctives. They are pronounced as e would be in the same situation; as, æ'-tas, œs'-tas, pæ'-na, œs'-trum.

1. Ai, ei, oi, and yi, usually have the vowels pronounced separately. When they are accented, and followed by another vowel, the i is pronounced like initial y, and the vowel before it has its long sound; as, Maia, Pompeius, Troia, Harpyia; pronounced Mā'-ya, Pom-pe'-yus, Tro'-ya, Har-py'-ya.

REMARK 1. Ei, when a diphthong and not followed by another vowel, is pronounced like i; as in hei, m'-neis.

2. Au, when a diphthong, is pronounced like aw; as, laus, au'-rum, pronounced laws, etc.

REM. 2. In the termination of Greek proper names, the letters au are pronounced separately; as, Men-e-lá-us.

3. Eu, when a diphthong, is pronounced like long u; as, heu, Orpheus (or'-phuse), Eu-phrā-tes.

REM. 3. The letters eu are pronounced separately in the terminations eus and eum of Latin nouns, and of all adjectives, whether Greek or Latin, except noster; as, ur'-ce-us, me'-us, me'-um, e'-um. In other situations they form a diphthong; as, Eu-rō'-pa, Thē'-seus, e'-heu.

4. Ua, ue, ui, uo, uu, when diphthongs, are pronounced like wa, we, etc.; as, lin'-gua, quē'-ror, sua'-de-o, quō'-tus, ē'-guus. They are always diphthongs after q, usually also after g, and often after s.

5. Ui in cui and huic, when monosyllables, is pronounced like ui, and by some like long i.

III. OF THE CONSONANTS.

§ 10. The consonants have, in general, the same power in Latin as in English words.

The following cases, however, require particular attention.

C.

C has the sound of s before e, i, and y, and the diphthongs æ, æ, and eu; as, ce'-do, ci'-bus, Cæ'-sar, cæ'-lum, ceu, Cy'-rus. In other situations, it has the sound of k; as, Ca'-to, cru'-dus, lac.

1. Ch has always the sound of k; as, charta (kar'-tah), machina (mak'-ē-nah).

Exc. C, following or ending an accented syllable, before i followed by a vowel, and also before eu and yo, has the sound of sh; as, socia (so'-she-ah), caduceus (ca-du'she-us), Sicyon (sish'-e-on).

REMARK. In the pronunciation of the ancient Romans, the hard sound of c and g seems to have been retained in all their combinations.

G.

G has its soft sound, like j, before e, i, and y, and the diphthongs æ and æ; as ge'-nus, ag'-i-lis, Gy'-ges, Gæ'-tū'-li. In other situations, it has its hard sound, as in bag, go.

Exc. When g comes before g soft, it coalesces with it in sound; as, agger (aj'-er), exaggeratic (ex-aj-e-ra'-she-o).

S.

§ 11. S has generally its hissing sound, as in so, thus.

Exc. 1. (a.) When si followed by a vowel is immediately preceded by a consonant in an accented syllable, the s has the sound of sh; as, Per'-si-a (per'-she-a).

14 QUANTITIES OF PENULTIMATE AND FINAL SYLLABLES.

(b.) But when si or zi followed by a vowel is immediately preceded by an accented vowel, the s or z has the sound of zh; as, As-pa'-si-a (as-pa'-zhe-ah), Sa-ba'-zi-a (sa-ba'-zhe-ah).

NOTE. In a few proper names, s preceded by a vowel in an accented syllable and followed by i before another vowel, has the sound, not of zh, but of sh; as, A'-si-a (a'-she-a): as Sasia, Theodosia, Lysias.

Exc. 2. S, at the end of a word, after e, a, au, b, m, n, and r, has the sound of z; as, res, ces, laus, trabs, hi'-ems, lens, Mars.

English analogy has also occasioned the s in Os'-sar, co-sa'-ra, mi'-ser, nos'-sa, re-sid'-u-um, cau'-sa, ro'-sa, and their derivatives, and in some other words, to take the sound of z. Oss-a-re'-a, and the oblique cases of Ossar, retain the hissing sound; so likewise the compounds of trans; as, trans'-e-o.

T.

§ 12. 1. T, following or ending an accented syllable before i followed by a vowel, has the sound of sh; as, ratio (ra-she-o), Sulpi-tius (sul-pish'-e-us).

Exc. T, in such case, retains its hard sound (a) after s, t, or x; as, Sal-lus-ti-us, Brut'-ti-i, Sec'-ti-us; (b) in proper names in tion and tyon; as, Eu-ryg'-ty-on, Am-phic'-ty-on; and (c) in old infinitives in er; as, flec'-ti-er, for flec'-ti.

X.

2. X, at the beginning of a syllable, has the sound of z; at the end, that of ks; as, Xenophon (zen'-o-phon); axis (ak'-sis).

Exc. 1. When ex or ux is followed by a vowel in an accented syllable, s has the sound of gs; as, exemplum (eg-zem'-plum), ux-or'-ri-us (ug-zo'-re-us), inexhaustus (in-eg-zaus'-tus).

Exc. 2. X, ending an accented syllable before i followed by a vowel, and before s ending a syllable, has the power of ksh; as, noxius (nok'-she-us), perus (pek'-shu-i).

REMARK. Ck and pk, before th, in the beginning of a word, are silent; as, Chthonia (tho'-ni-a), Phthia (thi'-a). Also in the following combinations of consonants, in the beginning of words of Greek origin, the first letter is not sounded:—mnemon'-i-ca, gnomus, tmé'-sis, Cle'-si-as, Ptol'-e-mæ'-us, psal'-lo.

OF THE QUANTITIES OF THE PENULTIMATE AND FINAL SYLLABLES.

§ 13. 1. The quantity of a syllable is the relative time occupied in pronouncing it.

2. A short syllable requires, in pronunciation, half the time of a long one.

REM. The penultimate syllable, or penult, is the last syllable but one. The antepenult is the last syllable but two.

The quantity of a syllable is generally to be learned from the rules of prosody, §§ 232–251: but for the convenience of the student, the following general rules are here inserted:—

3. A vowel before another vowel or h is short.

4. Diphthongs, not beginning with u, are long.

5. A vowel before x, z, j, or any two consonants, except a mute followed by a liquid, is long by position, as it is called.

6. A vowel naturally short before a mute followed by a liquid is common, i. e. either long or short.

In this Grammar, when the quantity of a penult is determined by one of the preceding rules, it is not marked; in other cases, except in dissyllables, the proper mark is written over its vowel.

To pronounce Latin words correctly, it is necessary to ascertain the quantities of their last two syllables only; and the rules for the quantities of final syllables would, for this purpose, be unnecessary, but for the occasional addition of enclitics. As these are generally monosyllables, and, for the purpose of accentuation, are considered as parts of the words to which they are annexed, they cause the final syllable of the original word to become the penult of the compound. But as the enclitics begin with a consonant, the final vowels of all words ending with a consonant, if previously short, are, by the addition of an enclitic, made long by position. It is necessary, therefore, to learn the quantities of those final syllables only which end with a vowel.

OF ACCENTUATION.

I. OF LATIN ACCENTS.

§ 14. 1. Accent, in Latin, signifies the rising and falling of the voice in pronouncing the syllables of a Latin word. It is a general rule of the Latin language, that every word has its accent. The enclitics, however, have no accent of their own, but they modify the accent of the words to which they are annexed, and prepositions lose their accent, when they precede the cases which they govern.

2. The Latin language has three accents, the acute (´), or rising tone, the grave (`), or falling tone, and the circumflex (˘), composed of the acute and the grave, i. e. of the rising and the falling tone.

3. A monosyllable, when short by nature, takes the acute, when long by nature, the circumflex accent; as, pīz, ēi, pārs; dōs, fūs, spēs.

4. In words of two syllables, the penult is always accented; as, pā'ter, mā'ter, pen'-na.

REM. 1. Words of two syllables have the circumflex accent, when the vowel of the penult is naturally long and that of the last syllable short; as, Rō-mā, mū-sā, tū-cē, jū-ris; otherwise, they have the acute; as, hō'-mō, dē'-as, Rō'-mā (abl.), and ar'-is, in which is long only by position.

5. In words of more than two syllables, if the penult is long, it is accented; but if it is short, the accent is on the antepenult; as, a-mī'-cus, dom'-i-nus.

REM. 2. When the accent of a word of more than two syllables falls upon the penult, it may be either the circumflex or the acute according as the last syllable is short or long. The antepenult can take no accent except the acute, and in no case can the accent be drawn farther back than to the antepenult.

EXC. Vocatives of the second declension in i, instead of ie, from nominatives in ius, and genitives in i, instead of ii, are accented as they would be, if the rejected letters were annexed, i. e. with the acute upon the penult, even when it is short; as, Vir-gil-i; Va-lē-rī, in-gē-ni. So, also, the compounds of faciō with words which are not prepositions; as, cal-e-fā'-ciū, tep-e-fā'-ciū.

§ 15. If the penult is common, the accent, in prose, is upon the antepenult; as, vol'-ū-cris, phar'-ē-tra, ib'-i-que: but genitives in ius, in which i is common, accent their penult in prose; as u-nī'-us, is-ā'-us.

REM. 2. All the syllables of a Latin word, except that on which the acute or circumflex accent falls, are supposed to have the grave accent, and were pronounced with the lower tone.

1. The rules for the accentuation of compound and simple words are the same; as, se'-cum, sub'-e-o.

2. In accentuation, the enclitics que, ne, ve, and also those which are annexed to pronouns,* are accounted constituent parts of the words to which they are subjoined; as, i'-ta, it'-ā-que; vi'-rum, vi-rum'-que.

II. OF ENGLISH ACCENTS.

According to the English method of pronouncing Latin, a word may have two, three, or even four accents. That accent which is nearest to the termination of the word, and which always corresponds in position with the Latin accent, is called the primary or principal accent, and the secondary accent is that which next precedes the primary. The third and fourth accents, in like manner, precede the secondary, and are subject in all respects to the same rules; as, pá-ter, má-ter, ser-mō'-nes, dom'-i-nis; pe-ric'-i-lum, con'-ju-ra'-ti-o, op'-por-tu'-ni-tá-tes, ex-er'''-ci-ta'''-ti-on''-i-bus'-que.

1. If only two syllables precede the primary accent, the secondary accent is on the first; as, mod''-e-rá'-tus, tol''-e-rab'-i-lis.

2. If three or four syllables stand before the primary accent, the secondary accent is placed, sometimes on the first, and sometimes on the second syllable; as, de-mon''-stra-ban'-tur, ad'-o-les-cen'-ti-a.

3. Some words which have only four syllables before the primary accent, and all which have more than four, have three accents; as, mod''-e-ra'-ti-ō'-nis, tol'''-e-ra-bil''-i-ō'-rem, ex-er'''-ci-ta'''-ti-ō'-nis.

DIVISION OF WORDS INTO SYLLABLES.

VOWELS.

§ 17. Every Latin word is to be divided into as many syllables, as it has separate vowels and diphthongs.

REMARK. In the following rules, the term vowel includes not only single vowels, but diphthongs; and when a particular vowel is mentioned, a diphthong, also, ending with that vowel is intended.

CONSONANTS.

SPECIAL RULES.

§ 18. REMARK. The following special rules, relating to particular letters or to particular combinations of letters, are in all cases to be regarded rather than the general rules, §§ 19-23, when the latter are inconsistent with the former.

1. H, when standing alone between two vowels, is always joined to the vowel that follows it.

Thus, mí-hi, tra'-hē-re, co'-hors, co''-hor-ta'-ti-o.

* These are te, me, te, ce cine, and dem; as, tute, egōmet, meapte, hicce, hiccine, idem.

2. Ch, ph, and th, in the division of words into syllables, are considered, not as separate letters, but as single aspirated mutes, and hence are never separated.

Thus, A-chil'-les, Ach'-ra-di'-na, Neph'-s-le, Te'-thys.

3. Gh, ll, and thl, when standing alone between any two vowels, unless the first be u, and bl after u are always separated.

Thus, Æg'-le, Ag-lau'-rus, At'-las, ath-let'-i-cus;—Pub'-li-us, Pub-lic'-o-la, re-pub'-li-ca.

4. In writing syllables, x, when standing alone between two vowels, is united to the vowel before it, but, in pronouncing such syllables, its elementary sounds are separated.

Thus, sax'-um (sak'-sum); ax-il'-la (ak-sil'-lah); ex-em'-plum (eg-zem'-plum); ux-or'-i-us (ug-zo'-re-us).

GENERAL RULES.

I. SIMPLE WORDS.

§ 19. A.—A single Consonant between two Vowels.

1. A single consonant, or a mute with l or r, between the last two vowels of a word, or between the vowels of any two unaccented syllables, must be joined to the latter vowel.

Thus, t in pat'-ter and aut'-tem; th in æ'-ther; cl in Hi-er'-o-cles; q in d'-qua; cr in æ'-cris and vol'-u-cris; chr in æ'-chras; r in tol'-e-ra-bil'-i-us; m in et'-g-mo-lo'-gi-a; l in am'-bu-lā-tō'-ri-us; and gr in per'-e-gri-na'-ti-o. Respecting ch and th cf. § 18, 2.

Exc. Tib'-i and sib'-i are commonly excepted.

§ 20. 2. A single consonant, or a mute with l or r, before the vowel of an accented syllable, must be joined to the accented vowel.

Thus, t in i-tin'-s-ra, d in æ-dē'-to; th in æ-the'-ri-us; cl in Eu-clid'-des and Her'-a-clē'-s; gr in æ-gres'-tis and æ-gric'-o-la; pr in ca-pre'-o-lus; q in æ-quā'-ri-us; and phr in Eu-phrā'-tes.

§ 21. 3. A single consonant after the vowel of any accented syllable, except a penult, must be joined to the accented vowel.

Thus, m in dom'-i-nus and dom'-i-na'-ti-o; t in pat'-s-ra; th in Scyth'-i-a; and q in aq'-ui-la (ak'-we-lah), and Ag'-ui-ta'-ni-a (ak'-we-ta'-ne-ah).

4. When a mute with l or r follows the vowel of any accented syllable, except the penult, the mute is to be joined to the accented vowel.

Thus, cr in æ'-ri-ter, æ'-ri-mo'-ni-a; tr in det'-ri-men'-tum; pr in cap'-ri-pes, cap'-ri-mu'-gus, phl in Paph'-la-go'-ni-a; and phr in Aph'-ro-di'-s-i-a. Respect ag phl and phr cf. § 18, 2.

EXCEPTIONS TO THE 3D AND 4TH RULES.

Exc. 1. A single consonant, or a mute with l or r, after an accented a, e, or o, and before two vowels the first of which is e, i, or y, must be joined to the syllable following the accent.

Thus, d in ra'-dī-us, ta'-dī-um, me''-dī-ā-tor r in ha'-re-o, (x''-ry-ā'-tes ch in bra'-chī-um; q in re'-quies, re''-quies-co tr in pa'-tri-us, (E-no'-tri-a and r and l in ce''-re-ā'-ti-a.

Exc. 2. A single consonant or a mute with l or r, after an accented u, must be joined to the vowel following it.

Thus, r in hu'-ri-dus, au'-re-us; cr in Eu'-cri-tus; gl in ju'-glans; and pl in Nas'-pli-us, du'-pli-co, and du''-pli-ca'-ti-o. Cf. § 18, 3.

§ 22. B.—Two Consonants between two Vowels.

Any two consonants, except a mute followed by l or r in the cases before mentioned, when standing between two vowels, must be separated.

Thus, rp in cor'-pus, rm in for'-ma and ger-mā'-nus; rv in ca-ter'-ea; sc in ad-o-les'-cens; nn in an'-nus; phth in aph'-tha; cch in Bac'-chus and Bac''-cha-na'-ti-a; and thl in ath-lē'-ta.

C.—Three or four Consonants between two Vowels.

1. When three consonants stand between any two vowels, the last, or, if that be l or r after a mute, the two last, are joined to the latter vowel.

Thus, mpt in emp'-tor, ad-emp'-ti-o; str in fe-nes'-tra; mpl in ex-em'-plum; rthr in ar-thri'-tis.

2. When four consonants stand between two vowels, two are joined to each vowel; as, nstr in trans-trum.

II. COMPOUND WORDS.

§ 23. 1. In dividing a compound word into syllables the component parts are to be separated, if the former part ends with a consonant; as, ab-es'-se, in'-ers, cir'-cum-er'-ro, su'-për-est, sub'-i-tus, præ-ter'-e-a, trans'-i-tur, sub'-stru-o. So, also, if a consonant is inserted to prevent hiatus, it is joined to the preceding vowel; as, prod'-e-o, red'-e-o, sed-it'-i-o.

2. But if the former part either ends with a vowel, or has dropped its termination, it is to be divided like a simple word; as, def'-ē-ro, dil'-i-gens, be-nev'-o-lus, præs'-to, eg'-ō-met; — po'-tes, po-tes'-tis, an''-i-mad-ver'-to, ve'-ne-o (from venum, eo), mag-nan'-i-mus, am-bā'-ges, longe'-vus.

ETYMOLOGY.

§ 24. 1. Etymology treats of the different classes of words, their derivation, and their various inflections.

2. The classes, into which words are divided in reference to their significance, are called Parts of Speech.

3. The parts of speech in Latin are eight—Substantive or Noun, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, Adverb, Preposition, Conjunction, and Interjection.

4. The first four are inflected; the last four, which are sometimes called Particles, are not inflected, except that some adverbs change their termination to express comparison.

REM. Substantives, pronouns, and adjectives are often included by grammarians under the general term nouns; but, in this Grammar, the word nouns is used as synonymous with substantive only.

§ 25. 1. To verbs belong Participles, Gérunds, and Supines, which partake of the meaning of the verb, and the inflection of the noun.

2. Inflection, in Latin grammar, signifies a change in the termination of a word. It is of three kinds—declension, conjugation, and comparison.

3. Nouns, adjectives, pronouns, participles, gerunds, and supines, are declined; verbs are conjugated, and adjectives and adverbs are compared.

NOUNS.

§ 26. 1. A substantive or noun is the name of an object.

2. A proper noun is the name of an individual object; as, Cæsar; Rōma, Rome; Tibēris, the Tiber.

3. A common or appellative noun is the name of a class of objects, to each of which it is alike applicable; as, hōmo, man or a man; avis, a bird; quercus, an oak; leo, a lion; mendacium, a falsehood.

4. A collective noun is one which, in the singular number, denotes a collection of individuals; as, exercitus, an army.

REM. 1. The following are examples of nouns used as collectives, viz. exercitus, gens juvenis, multitudo, nobilitas, plebs, populus, turba, vis, and vulgus.

5. An abstract noun is the name of a quality, action, or other attribute; as, bonitas, goodness; gaudium, joy; festinatio, haste.

REM. 2. A concrete, in distinction from an abstract noun, is one which denotes an object that has an actual and independent existence; as, Rōma, hōmo, populus, ferrum.

6. A material noun is the name of a substance considered in the gross; as, lignum, wood; ferrum, iron; cibus, food.

REM. 3. Proper, abstract, and material nouns become common, when employed to denote one or more of a class of objects. A verb in the infinitive mood is often used as an abstract noun.

7. To nouns belong gender, number, and case.

REM. 4. Adjectives and participles have likewise different genders, numbers, and cases, corresponding to those of nouns.

GENDER.

§ 27. 1. The gender of a noun is its distinction in regard to sex.

2. Nouns have three genders—the masculine, the feminine, and the neuter.

3. The gender of Latin nouns is either natural or grammatical.

4. Those nouns are naturally masculine or feminine, which are used to designate the sexes; as, vir, a man; mulier, a woman.

5. Those are grammatically masculine or feminine, which, though denoting objects that are neither male nor female, take adjectives of the form appropriated to nouns denoting the sexes.

Thus, dominus, a lord, is naturally masculine, because it denotes a male; but sermo, speech, is grammatically masculine, because, though not indicative of sex, it takes an adjective of that form which is appropriated to nouns denoting males.

6. The grammatical gender of Latin nouns depends either on their signification, or on their declension and termination. The following are the general rules of gender, in reference to signification. Many exceptions to them, on account of termination, occur: these will be specified under the several declensions.

§ 28. MASCULINES. 1. Names, proper and appellative, of all male beings are masculine; as, Homērus, Homer; pāter, a father; consul, a consul; ēquus, a horse.

As proper names usually follow the gender of the general name under which they are comprehended; hence,

2. Names of rivers, winds, and months, are masculine, because fluvius, ventus, and mensis, are masculine; as, Tibēris, the Tiber; Aquilo, the north wind; Aprilis, April.

Exc. Styx and some names of rivers in a and e are feminine. §§ 62, and 41, 1.

3. Names of mountains are sometimes masculine, because mons is masculine; as, Othrys, a mountain of Thessaly; but they usually follow the gender of their termination; as, hic Atlas*, hæc Ida, hoc Soracte.

§ 29. FEMININES. 1. Names, proper and appellative, of all female beings are feminine; as, Helēna, Helen; māter, a mother; juvenca, a heifer.

2. Names of countries, towns, trees, plants, ships, islands, poems, and gems, are feminine; because terra, urbs, arbor, planta, nāvis, insula, fabūla, and gemma, are feminine; as,

Ægyptus, Egypt; Corinthus, Corinth; pīrus, a pear-tree; nardus, spikenard; Centaurus, the ship Centaur; Sāmos, the name of an island; Eunūchus, the Eunuch, a comedy of Terence; amethystus, an amethyst.

Exc. Names of countries and islands in um, i, and (plur.) a, drum, are neuter.—Names of towns in i, drum; four in o, ōnis, viz. Trusino, Hippo, Narbo, and Sulmo, with Tunes, Tarus, and Canopus, are masculine. Names of towns in um or on, i, and (plur.) a, drum; those in e and ur of the third declension, indeclinable nouns in i and y, and some barbarous names, as Suthul, Hispul and Gadir are neuter.—Names of trees and plants in er of the third declension, (§ 60), with baccar and rōbur are neuter. A few names in us, i, (§ 60), with oleaster, pinaster, Styrax and unedo are masculine.—A few names of gems in us, i, are also masculine.

*To distinguish the gender of Latin nouns, grammarians write hic before the masculine, hæc before the feminine, and hoc before the neuter.

§ 30. COMMON AND DOUBTFUL GENDER. Some words are either masculine or feminine. These, if they denote things animate, are said to be of the common gender; if things inanimate, of the doubtful gender.

Of the former are pārens, a parent; bos, an ox or cow: of the latter, finis, an end.

The following nouns are of the common gender:—

Adolescens, a youth.	Exsul, an exile.	Palumbes, a wood-pigeon.
Affinis, a relative by marriage.	Grus, a crane.	Pārens, a parent.
Ales, a bird.	Hospes, a guest, a host.	Par, a mate.
Antistes, a chief priest.	Hostis, an enemy.	Præses, a president.
Auctor, an author.	Index, an informer.	Præsul, a chief priest.
Augur, an augur.	Infans, an infant.	Princeps, a prince or princess.
Bos, an ox or cow.	Interpres, an interpreter.	Serpens, a serpent.
Cānis, a dog.	Jūdex, a judge.	Sacerdos, a priest or priestess.
Civis, a citizen.	Juvenis, a youth.	Satelles, a life-guard.
Cōmes, a companion.	Martyr, a martyr.	Sus, a swine.
Conjux, a spouse.	Miles, a soldier.	Testis, a witness.
Consorta, a consort.	Municeps, a burgess.	Vātes, a prophet.
Conviva, a guest.	Mus, a mouse.	Verna, a slave.
Custos, a keeper.	Nāmo, nobody.	Vindex, an avenger.
Dux, a leader.	Obses, a hostage.
	Patruelis, a cousin.

The following hexameters contain nearly all the above nouns:—

Conjux, atque pārens, princeps, patruelis, et infans,
 Affinis, vindex, jūdex, dux, miles, et hostis,
 Augūr, et antistes, juvenis, conviva, sacerdos, Muni-que-ceps, vātes, adolescens, civis, et auctor,
 Custōs, nēmo, cōmes, testis, sus, bōs-que, cānis-que,
 Pro consorte lōri par, præsul, verna, sātelles,
 Mus-que obses, consors, interpres, et exsul, et hospes.

§ 31. 1. When nouns of the common gender denote males, they take a masculine adjective; when they denote females, a feminine.

2. The following are either masculine or feminine in sense, but masculine only in grammatical construction:—

Artifex, an artist.	Fur, a thief.	Lātro, a robber.
Auspex, a soothsayer.	Hēres, an heir.	Libēri, children.
Eques, a horseman.	Hōmo, a man or woman.	Pēdes, a footman.

To these may be added personal appellatives of the first declension; as, advēna, a stranger; and some gentile nouns; as, Persa, a Persian.

§ 32. 1. The following, though masculine or feminine in sense, are feminine only in construction:—

Copīæ, troops.	Opēræ, laborers.	Vig' æ, watchmen.
Custodiæ, guards.	Prōles, }
Excubiæ, sentinels.	Subōles }

2. Some nouns, signifying persons, are neuter, both in their termination and construction; as,

Acroāma, a buffoon.	Mancipium, }	Scortum, }
Auxilia, auxiliaries	Servitium, } a slave.	Prostitūlum, } a prostitute.

3. (a.) In some personal appellatives masculines and feminines are distinguished by different terminations affixed to the same root. The masculines end in us, er, o, tor, etc.; the feminines in a or trix, as, cōquus, cōqua; magister, magistra; lēno, lēna; inventor, inventrix; tibicen, tibicēna; āvus, avia; rex, regina; poēta, poētria.

(b.) So also in some names of animals; as, ēquus, ēqua; gallus gallina; leo, lea and lēna. Sometimes the words are wholly different; as, taurus, vacca.

4. Some names of animals are sometimes masculine and sometimes feminine without regard to difference of sex; as, anguis, serpens, dāma, talpa, tigris, colūber and colūbra, etc.

§ 33. EPICENES. Names of animals which include both sexes, but admit of an adjective of one gender only, are called epicene. These commonly follow the gender of their terminations.

Thus, passer, a sparrow, corvus, a raven, are masculine; aquila, an eagle, vulpes, a fox, are feminine; though each of them is used to denote both sexes.

NOTE. This class includes the names of animals, in which the distinction of sex is seldom attended to. When it is necessary to mark the sex, mas or femina is usually added.

§ 34. NEUTERS. Nouns which are neither masculine nor feminine, are said to be of the neuter gender; such are,

1. All indeclinable nouns; as, fas, nefas, nihil, gummi, pondo.

2. Names of letters; as, o longum, long o. But these are sometimes feminine, littera being understood.

3. Words used merely as such, without reference to their meaning, as, pater est dissyllābum; pater is dissyllabic.

4. All infinitives, imperatives, clauses of sentences, adverbs, and other particles, used substantively; as scire tuum, your knowledge; ultimum vale, the last farewell; hoc diu, this (word) diu.

REMARK. 1. Words derived from the Greek retain the gender which they have in that language.

REM. 2. Some nouns have different genders in the singular and plural, and are called heterogeneous nouns. See § 32.

NUMBER.

§ 35. 1. (a.) Number, in nouns, is the form by which they denote whether they represent one object or more than one.

(b.) Latin nouns have two numbers,—the singular and the plural,—which are distinguished by their terminations. The singular number denotes one object; the plural, more than one.

PERSON.

2. The person of a noun or pronoun is the character sustained by the object which it represents, as being the speaker, the person addressed, or the person or thing spoken of.

Hence there are three persons. The speaker is of the first person, the person addressed is of the second person, and the person or thing spoken of is of the third person.

CASES.

§ 36. Many of the relations of objects, which, in English, are denoted by prepositions, are, in Latin, expressed by a change of termination.

Cases are those terminations of nouns, which denote their relations to other words. Latin nouns have six cases; viz. Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative.

REMARK. Though there are six cases in each number, no noun has in each number so many different terminations.

§ 37. 1. The nominative denotes the relation of a subject to a finite verb; as, ego scribo, I write. Caius dicit, Caius says.

2. The genitive denotes origin, possession, and many other relations, which, in English, are expressed by the preposition of or by the possessive case; as, Vita Cæsaris, the life of Cæsar, or Cæsaris life.

3. The dative denotes that to or for which any thing is, or is done; as, Ille mihi librum dedit, He gave the book to me.

4. The accusative is either the object of an active verb, or of certain prepositions, or the subject of an infinitive.

5. The vocative is the form appropriated to the name of any object which is addressed.

6. The ablative denotes privation, and many other relations, especially those expressed in English by the prepositions with, from, in, or by.

REMARK. The nominative and vocative are sometimes called casus recti, i. e. the uninflected cases; and the others, casus obliqui; i. e. the oblique or inflected cases.

DECLENSIONS.

§ 38. The regular forming of the several cases in both numbers, by annexing the appropriate terminations to the root, is called declension.

The Latin language has five declensions or modes of declining nouns, distinguished by the termination of the genitive singular, which, in the first declension, ends in æ, in the second in i, in the third in is, in the fourth in us, and in the fifth in ei.

§ 39. The following table exhibits a comparative view of the terminations or case-endings of the five declensions.

TERMINATIONS.

Singular.
	I.	II.		III.		IV.		V.
		M.	N.	M.	N.	M.	N.

Abl.	is.	is.		ibūs.		ibūs,	(ūbūs).	ēbūs.

Remarks.

§ 40. 1. The terminations of the nominative, in the third declension, are very numerous. See §§ 55, 58, 62, 66.

2. The accusative singular of masculines and feminines, always ends in n.

3. The vocative singular is like the nominative in all Latin nouns, except those in us of the second declension.

4. The nominative and vocative plural always end alike.

5. The genitive plural always ends in um.

6. The dative and ablative plural always end alike;—in the 1st and 2d declensions, in is; in the 3d, 4th, and 5th, in bus.

7. The accusative plural of masculines and feminines, always ends in s.

8. Nouns of the neuter gender have the accusative and vocative like the nominative, in both numbers; and these cases, in the plural, always end in a.

9. The 1st and 5th declensions contain no nouns of the neuter gender, and the 4th and 6th contain no proper names.

10. Every inflected word consists of two parts—a root, and a termination. The root or crude form, is the part which is not changed by inflection. The termination is the part annexed to the root. The root of a declined word may be found by removing the termination of any of its oblique cases. The case commonly selected for this purpose is the genitive singular.

11. The preceding table exhibits terminations only. In the fifth declension, the e of the final syllable, though unchanged, is considered as belonging to the termination.

FIRST DECLENSION.

§ 41. Nouns of the first declension end in ā, ē, ās, ēs. Those in a and e are feminine; those in as and es are masculine.

Latin nouns of the first declension end only in a. They are thus declined:—

Singular.		Plural.
Nom.	mū'-sā, a muse;	Nom.	mū'-sæ, muses;
Gen.	mu'-sæ, of a muse;	Gen.	mu'-sā'-rūm, of muses,
Dat.	mu'-sæ, to a muse;	Dat.	mu'-sis, to muses
Acc.	mu'-sām, a muse;	Acc.	mu'-sās, muses.
Voc.	mu'-sā, O muse;	Voc.	mu'-sæ, O muses,
Abl.	mu'-sā, with a muse.	Abl.	mu'-sis, with muses.

In like manner decline

Au'-la, a hall.	Lit'-ē-ra, a letter.	Sa-git'-ta, an arrow.
Cu'-ra, care.	Lus-cin'-i-a, a nightingale.	Stel'-la, a star.
Ga'-le-a, a helmet.	Mach'-i-na, a machine.	Tō'-ga, a gown.
In-sū'-la, an island.	Pen'-na, a feather, a quill.	Vi'-a, a way.

NOTE. As the Latin language has no article, appellative nouns may be rendered either with or without the English articles a, an, or the, according to their connection.

EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

§ 42. 1. Names proper and appellative of men, as, Sulla, Cinna; poëta, a poet; navita, a sailor; and names of rivers, though ending in a, are masculine: § 28, 1 and 2. But the following names of rivers have been used as feminine: viz. Albula, Albia, Druentia, Garunna, Himera, Matrona, Mosella, Trebia. Lēthe is always feminine.

Ossa and Ēta, names of mountains, are masculine or feminine.

2. Hædris, the Adriatic sea, dæma in Virgil and Statius, and talpa in Virgil, are masculine.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

§ 43. Genitive singular. 1. The poets sometimes formed the genitive singular in āi; as, aula, gen. aulāi.

2. Familia, after pāter, māter, filius, or filia, usually forms its genitive in as; as, mater-familias, the mistress of a family; gen. matris-familias; nom. plur. matres-familias or familiārum. Some other words anciently formed their genitive in the same manner.

Genitive plural. The genitive plural of patronymics in es, of several compounds in cōla and gēna, and of some names of nations, is sometimes, especially in poetry, formed in um instead of ārum; as, Æneādum, Cellicōum, terrigēnum, Lapithum. So amphōrum, drachnum, for amphorārum, drachmārum.

Dative and Ablative plural. The following nouns have sometimes abus instead of is, in the dative and ablative plural, especially when it is necessary to distinguish them from the same cases of masculines in us of the second declension having the same root; as, filiis et filiabus, to sons and daughters.

Dea, a goddess.
Filia, a daughter.

Equa, a mare.
Mula, a she mule.

The use of a similar termination in anima, asina, liberta, nata, conserva, and some other words, rests on inferior authority.

GREEK NOUNS.

§ 44. Nouns of the first declension in ē, ās, and ēs, and some also in ā, are Greek. Greek nouns in ā are declined like musa, except that they sometimes have ān in the accusative singular; as, Ossa; Acc. Ossam, or Ossan.

Greek nouns in e, as, and es, are thus declined in the singular number:—

N. Pe-nel'-ō-pē,	N. Ē-nē'-ās,	N. An-chi'-ēs,
G. Pe-nel'-ō-pēs,	G. Ē-nē'-ēs,	G. An-chi'-ēs,
D. Pe-nel'-ō-pēs,	D. Ē-nē'-ēs,	D. An-chi'-ēs,
Ac. Pe-nel'-ō-pēn,	Ac. Ē-nē'-ām or ān,	Ac. An-chi'-ēn,
V. Pe-nel'-ō-pē,	V. Ē-nē'-ā,	V. An-chi'-ēs or ā,
Ab. Pe-nel'-ō-pē.	Ab. Ē-nē'-ā.	Ab. An-chi'-ēs or ē.

§ 45. In like manner decline

Al'-o-e, aloes .	Ti-ā'-ras, a turban .
E-pit'-ō-me, an abridgment .	Co-mē'-tes, a comet .
This'-be.	Dy-nas'-tes, a ruler .
Bo'-rē-as, the north wind .	Pri-am'-i-des, a son of Priam .
Mi'-das.	Py-ri'-tes, a kind of stone .

1. Most proper names in es, except patronymics, follow the third declension; but in the accusative they often have both em and en, and in the vocative both es and e. See §§ 80, iv, and 81.

2. Greek nouns of the first declension, which admit of a plural, are declined in that number like the plural of musa.

3. The Latins frequently change the terminations of Greek nouns in ēs and ānto ā; as, Atrides, Atrida, a son of Atreus; Perses, Persa, a Persian; geomētres, geomētra, a geometrician; Circe, Circa; epitōme, epitōma; grammatices, grammatica, grammar; rhetorices, rhetorica, oratory.—So also tiāras, tiāra.

SECOND DECLENSION.

§ 46. Nouns of the second declension end in ēr, ir, ūs, ūm, os, on. Those ending in um and on are neuter; the rest are masculine.

Nouns in er, us, and um, are thus declined:—

SINGULAR.

A lord.	A son-in-law.	A field.	A kingdom.
N. dōm'-i-nūs,	gē'-nēr,	ā'-gēr,	reg'-nūm,
G. dom'-i-ni,	gen'-ē-rī,	a'-grī,	reg'-nī,
D. dom'-i-nō,	gen'-ē-rō,	a'-grō,	reg'-nō,
Ac. dom'-i-nūm,	gen'-ē-rūm,	a'-grūm,	reg'-nūm,
V. dom'-i-nē,	ge'-nēr,	a'-gēr,	reg'-nūm,
Ab. dom'-i-nō.	gen'-ērō.	a'-grō.	reg'-nō.

PLURAL.

N. dom'-i-ni,	gen'-ē-ri,	a'-gri,	reg'-nā,
G. dom-i-nō-rūm,	gen-e-rō-rūm,	a-grō-rūm,	reg'-nō-rūm
D. dom'-i-nis,	gen'-ē-ris,	a'-gris,	reg'-nis,
Ac. dom'-i-nōs,	gen'-ē-rōs,	a'-grōs,	reg'-nā,
V. dom'-i-ni,	gen'-ē-ri,	a'-gri,	reg'-nā,
Ab. dom'-i-nis	gen'-ē-ris.	a'-gris.	reg'-nis.

Like dominus decline

An'-i-mus, the mind. Fō'-cus, a hearth. Nu'-mē-rus, a number.
 Clip'-e-us, a shield. Gla'-di-us, a sword. O-ce'-ā-nus, the ocean.
 Cor'-vus, a raven. Lū'-cus, a grove. Trō'-chus, a trundling-hoop.

NOTE. Nouns in us of the second declension are the only Latin nouns, whose nominative and vocative singular differ in form. See § 40, R. 3.

§ 47. A few nouns in er, like gener, add the terminations to the nominative singular, as a root. They are the compounds of gēro and fēro; as, armiger, -ēri, an armor-bearer; Lucifer, -ēri, the morning star; and the following:—

A-dul'-ter, an adulterer. Li'-ber, Bacchus. Pu'-er, a boy.
 Cel'-ti-bēr, a Celtiberian. Lib'-ē-ri, (plur.), children. Sō'-cer, a father-in-law.
 I'-ber, a Spaniard. Pres'-b'y-ter, an elder. Ves'-per, the evening.

Mul'-ci-ber, Vulcan, sometimes has this form.

§ 48. 1. All other nouns in er reject the e in adding the terminations, (§ 322, 4), and are declined like ager; thus,

A'-per, a wild boar. Li'-ber, a book. Al-ex-an'-der.
 Aus'-ter, the south wind. Ma-gis'-ter, a master. Is'-ter.
 Fā'-ber, a workman. On'-ā-ger, a wild ass. Teu'-cer.

2. Vir, a man, with its compounds, and the patritial Trēvir, (the only nouns in ir), are declined like gener.

Like regnum decline

An'-trum, a cave. Ex-em'-plum, an example. Præ-sid'-i-um, a defence
 A'-tri-um, a hall. Ne-go'-ti-um,* a business. Sax'-um, a rock.
 Bel'-lum, war. Ni'-trum, natron. Scep'-trum, a sceptre.

EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

§ 49. 1. The following nouns in us and os are feminine:—

Abyssus, a bottomless pit. Dialectos, a dialect. Miltoe, vermilion.
 Alvus, the belly. Diphthongus, a diphthong. Phārus(os), a light-house.
 Antidōtus, an antidote. Dōmus, a house, home. Plinthus, the base of a column.
 Arctos(us), the Northern Bear. Erēmus, a desert.
 Hūmus, the ground. Vannus, a corn-fan.
 Carbāsus, a sail.

2. Greek nouns in odus (ὁδος), and mētros, are likewise feminine; as, gymēchus, an assembly; diamētros, a diameter.

* Pronounced ne-go'-she-um. See § 12.

§ 50. Names of countries, towns, trees, plants, etc. are feminine. See § 29, 2

Yet the following names of plants are masculine:—

Acanthus , bear's-foot.	Eläulus , an elder.	Räbus , a blackberry-bush.
Amarantus , amaranth .	Hellebörus , hellebore.	Tribäulus , a caltrop.
Asparägus , asparagus .	Intäbus , entive .
Calämus , a reed.	Juncus , a bulrush.	And sometimes
Carduus , a thistle.	Raphänus , a radish.	Amaräcus , marjoram .
Dämus , a bramble.	Rhainnos , buck-thorn.	Cytäsus , snail-clover.

Oleaster and pinaster, names of trees, are also masculine.

The following names of gems are also masculine:—

Beryllus , a beryl.	Chrysopräsus , chrysoprase .	So also,
Carbuncäulus , a carbuncle.	Opäulus , opal .	Pyräpus , gold-bronze .

Chrysoläthus, chrysolite, and smaragdus, an emerald, are doubtful.

Names of females in um are feminine: § 29, 1; as, mea Glycerium, Ter.

Names of trees and plants in um are generally neuter; as, apium, parsley; aconitum, wolf's bane.

Canäpus, Pontus, Hellespontus, Isthmus, and all plural names in i of countries and towns are masculine. Atyädu(s) is doubtful.

Names of countries and towns ending in um, or, if plural, in a, are neuter; as, Ilium or Iliön; Ecbätäna, örum.

§ 51. The following are doubtful, but more frequently masculine:—

Balänus , a date.	Grossus , an unripe fig.	Phasäulus , a light vessel.
Barbitos , a lute.	Pampäinus , a vine-leaf.

Atömus, an atom, and cölus, a distaff, are doubtful, but more frequently feminine.

Pelägus the sea, and virus, poison, are neuter.

Vulgus, the common people, is neuter, and rarely masculine.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

§ 52. Genitive singular. When the genitive singular ends in i, ae poets frequently contract it into i; as, ingēnti, for ingenii.

Vocative singular. The vocative of nouns in us is sometimes like the nominative, especially in poetry; as, stuvius, Latänus, in Virgil. öo, audi tu, popäulus Albänus. Liv.

Proper names in us omit e in the vocative; as, Horätius, Horäti; Virgälius, Virgäli.

Filius, a son, and genius, a guardian angel, make also filä and geni. Other nouns in ius, including patrials and possessives derived from proper names, form their vocative regularly in e; as, Deläus, Deläe; Tiryntäus, Tiryntäie; Laertäus, Laertäe.

§ 53. Genitive plural. The genitive plural of some nouns of the second declension, especially of those which denote money, weight and measure, is commonly formed in um, instead of örum: § 322, 4.

Such are particularly nummum, sestertium, denarium, medimnum, jugärum, modium, talentum. The same form occurs in other words, especially in poetry; as, deum, libärum, Danaum; etc., and sometimes om is found instead of um: as, Ahiä m. Virg. Cf. § 322, 8.

Deūs, a god, is thus declined:—

Singular.

N. de'-us,
G. de'-i,
D. de'-o,
Ac. de'-um,
V. de'-us,
Ab. de'-o.

Plural.

N. di'-i, di, or de'-i,
G. de-ō'-rum,
D. di'-is, dis, or de'-is,
Ac. de'-os,
V. di'-i, di, or de'-i,
Ab. di'-is, dis, or de'-is.

Jēsus, or Iēsus, the name of the Savior, has um in the accusative and u in all the other oblique cases.

GREEK NOUNS.

§ 54. 1. Os and on, in the second declension, are Greek terminations, and are commonly changed, in Latin, into us and um; but sometimes both forms are in use; as, Alphēos, and Alphēus; Ilion and Ilīum. Greek names in ros after a consonant commonly change ros into er; as, Alexandros, Alexander; Teucros, Teucer. In a few words ros is changed to rus; as, Codrus, hydrus, and once in Virgil, Teucrus.

Greek nouns are thus declined in the singular number:—

Singular.		Barbiton, a lyre.
N. Dē'-lōs,	Andrō'-ge-ōs,	N. bar'-bi-tōn,
G. Dē'-lī,	An-dro'-ge-ō, or ī,	G. bar'-bi-tī,
D. Dē'-lō,	An-dro'-ge-ō,	D. bar'-bi-tō,
Ac. Dē'-lōn or ūm,	An-dro'-ge-ō, or ōn,	Ac. bar'-bi-tōn,
V. Dē'-lē,	An-dro'-ge-ōs,	V. bar'-bi-tōn,
Ab. Dē'-lō.	An-dro'-ge-ō.	Ab. bar'-bi-tō.

2. The plurals of Greek nouns in os and on are declined like those of dominus and regnum; but the nominative plural of nouns in os sometimes ends in es, as, canephōrae.

3. In early writers some nouns in os have a genitive in u (ou); as, Menandra. Ter.

4. A genitive plural in ōn, instead of ōrum, occurs in the titles of books and in some names of places; as, Georgicōn; Philōnōn aræ. Sall.

5. Greek proper names in eus (see § 9, R. 8), are declined like dominus, except that the vocative ends in eu; but sometimes in the genitive, dative, and accusative also, they retain the Greek form, viz. gen. ēos, dat. ēi (contracted ēi), acc. ēa or ēd, and are of the third declension. See §§ 86, and 306, (1.) So in Lucretius the neuter pelāgus (Greek πῆλαγος, uos) has an accusative plural pelāgē for pelagea after the third declension. § 88, 1.—See also respecting a genitive in i of some proper nouns in es, § 73, Rem.—Panthū occurs in Virgil, A. 2. 822, as the vocative of Panthūs. Cf. § 81.

THIRD DECLENSION.

§ 55. The number of final letters, in this declension, is twelve. Five are vowels—a, e, i, o, y; and seven are consonants—c, l, n, r, s, t, x. The number of its final syllables exceeds fifty.

REM. The following terminations belong exclusively to Greek nouns; viz. ma i y, ān, in, ōn, ŷn, ēr, ŷr, ŷs, eus, x, iux, yux, and plurals in e.

Mode of declining Nouns of the Third Declension.

To decline a word properly, in this declension, it is necessary to know its gender, its nominative singular, and one of its oblique cases; since the root of the cases is not always found entire and unchanged in the nominative. The case usually selected for this purpose is the genitive singular. The formation of the accusative singular, and of the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural, depends upon the gender: if it is masculine or feminine, these cases have one form; if neuter, another.

§ 56. The student should first fix well in his memory the terminations of one of these forms. He should next learn the nominative and genitive singular of the word which is to be declined. If it be removed from the genitive, the remainder will always be the root of the oblique cases, and by annexing their terminations to this root, the word is declined; thus, rupes, genitive (found in the dictionary) rupis, root rup, dative rupi, etc. so ars, gen. artis, root art, dat. arti, etc.; opus, gen. opëris, root opër, dat. opëri, etc.

RULES FOR FORMING THE NOMINATIVE SINGULAR OF THE THIRD DECLENSION FROM THE ROOT.

I. Roots ending in c, g; b, m, p; u, t, d, and some in r, add s to form the nominative; as, trābis, trabs; hiëmis, hiems; grūis, grus.

REMARK 1. T, d and r before s are dropped; as, nepôtis, nepos; laudis, laus; floris, flus. So ovis, bos, drops v.

REM. 2. C and g before s form x; as, vocis, vox; regis, rex. So us forms x in nitis, nix. Cf. §§ 3, 2, and 171, 1.

REM. 3. Short t in the root before c, b, p, t, is commonly changed to ë; as, pollicis, pollex; caltibis, calebs; principis, princeps; comitis, comes. So ä is changed to ë in aucupis, auceps.

REM. 4. Short ë or ö before r in neuters is changed to ä; as, genëris, genüs; tempëris, tempüs.

REM. 5. Short ë before r is changed to t in the masculines cinëris, cinis; cucumëris, cucumis; pulvëris, pulvis; vomëris, vomis.

REM. 6. A few and those mostly monosyllabic roots of masculines and feminines, not increasing in the genitive, add es or is, instead of s alone; as, gen. rūpis, nom. rūpes; gen. auris, nom. auris.

REM. 7. A few neuters add ë to the root to form the nominative; as, rëtis, rëtë; māris, mārë.

II. To roots ending in l and n, to some in r and s, and to those of most neuters in t, no addition is made in forming the nominative; as, animälis, animal; canönis, cānon; honöris, honor; assis, as.

REMARK 1. Final ön and in in the roots of masculines and feminines, become o in the nominative; as, sermönis, sermo; arundinis, arundo.

REM. 2. Final in in the roots of neuters becomes ën in the nominative; as, fluminis, flumën. So also in the masculines, oscen, pecten, tibicen and tubicen.

REM. 3. Tr and br at the end of a root, take ë between them in the nominative; as, patris, pätter; imbris, imber. Cf. §§ 108, 48, and 106.

REM. 4. Short ö is changed to ä in eböris, ëbär; femöris, fëmär; jecöris, jëcär; and roböris, röbär.

REM. 5. In the roots of neuters at drops t, and üt becomes ut in the nominative; as, poëmätis, poëma; capitis, caput.

REM. 6. Roots of this class ending in repeated consonants drop one of them in the nominative; as, fellis, fel; farris, far; assis, as; bessis, bes.

The following are the two forms of termination in this declension:—

Singular.		Plural
Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
N. *	*	N. ēs,	ā, (iā),

RULES FOR THE GENDER OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION

§ 58. Nouns whose gender is determined by their signification, according to the general rules, § 28—34, are not included in the following rules and exceptions.

MASCULINES.

Nouns ending in o, er, or, es increasing in the genitive, os, and m, are masculine; as, sermo, speech; dolor, pain; flos, a flower; carcer, a prison; pes, a foot; cānon, a rule.

Exceptions in O.

§ 59. 1. Abstract and collective nouns in io are feminine; as, ratio, reason; legio, a legion.

REM. 1. But numerals in io; as, binio, trinio, etc., except unio, unity, are masculine.

2. Nouns in do and go, of more than two syllables, are feminine, as, arundo, a reed; imāgo, an image. So also grando, hail. But comēdo, a glutton; unēdo, the arbute tree; and harpāgo, a grappling-hook, are masculine.

REM. 2. Margo, the brink of a river, is doubtful. Cupido, desire, is often masculine in poetry, but in prose is always feminine.

3. Cīro, flesh, and Greek nouns in o, are feminine; as, ēcho, an echo. Bubo, the owl, is once feminine, Virg. A. 4, 462.

Exceptions in ER.

§ 60. 1. Laver, a water plant, and tūber, the tuber tree, are feminine, but when the latter denotes the fruit, it is masculine. Linter, a boat, is feminine, and once, in Tibullus, masculine. Siser, skirret, is neuter in the singular, but masculine in the plural.

2. The following, in er, are neuter:—

Acer , a maple-tree.	Papāver , a poppy.	Tūber , a swelling.
Cadāver , a dead body.	Piper , pepper.	Uber , a teat.
Cicer , a vetch.	Siler , an osier.	Ver , the spring.
Iter , a journey.	Spinther , a clasp.	Verber , a scourge.
Lāser , assafœtida .	Sūber , a cork-tree.	Zingiber , ginger.

Exceptions in OR.

§ 61. Arbor, a tree, is feminine: ādor, spelt; æquor, the sea; marmor marble; and cor, the heart, are neuter.

Exceptions in ES increasing in the genitive.

1. The following are feminine:—

Compes , a fether.	Quies , and Requies , rest.	l̄ēges , a mat.
Merces , a reward.	Inquies , restlessness.

RULES FOR THE OBLIQUE CASES OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

GENITIVE SINGULAR.

§ 68. 1. The genitive singular of the third declension of Latin nouns always ends in is, in Greek nouns it sometimes ends in os and us.

A.

2. Nouns in a form their genitive in ātis; as, di-a-dē-ma, di-a-dem'-ā-tis, a crown; dog'-ma, dog'-mā-tis, an opinion.

E.

3. Nouns in e change e into is; as, rē-te, rē-tis, a net; se-dī-la, se-dī-lis, a seat.

L.

4. Nouns in i are of Greek origin, and are generally indeclinable; but hydromēli, mead, has hyd-ro-mel'-i-tis in the genitive.

O.

§ 69. Nouns in o form their genitive in ōnis; as, ser-mo, ser-mō-nis, speech; pā-vo, pa-vō-nis, a peacock.

REMARK. Patrials in o have ónis; as, Macédo, -ónis; but some have ónis as, Eburónes, etc. See 8d exception to increments in O, § 287.

Exc. 1. Nouns in do and go form their genitive in tnis; as, a-run' do, a-run'-dē-nis, a reed; i-mā'-go, i-mag'-tē-nis, an image.

But four dissyllables—cūdo, ūdo, ēgo and mango; and three trisyllables—comēdo, unēdo, and harpāgo, have ónis.

Exc. 2. The following nouns, also, have tnis:—Apollō; hōmo, a man; nēmo, nobody; and turbo, a whirlwind.

Cāro, flesh, has, by syncope, carnis. Anio, the name of a river, has Aniēnis; Nerio, the wife of Mars, Neriēnis; from the old nominatives, Anien, and Neriēnes.

Exc. 3. Some Greek nouns in o form their genitive in ūs, and their other cases singular, in o; as, Dido, gen. Didus, dat. Dido, etc.; Argo, -us; but they are sometimes declined regularly; as, Dido, Didōnis.

Y.

Greek nouns in y have their genitive in yos; as, misy, misjos, or, by contraction, misys.

C.

§ 70. The only nouns in c are d'-lec, a-lē'-cis, fish-brine, and lac, lac'-sis, milk.

L. N. R.

Nouns in l, n, and r, form their genitive by adding is; as, con'-sul, con'-sū-lis, a consul; cā-non, can'-ō-nis, a rule; hō-nor, ho-nō-ris, honor.

So, An'-i-mal, an-i-mā'-lis, an animal.
VI'-gil, vig'-i-lis, a watchman.
TY'-tan, Ti-tā'-nis, Titan.
SI'-ren, Si-rē'-nis, a Siren.

Cal'-car, cal-cā'-ris, a spur.
Car'-cer, car'-cē-ris, a prison.
A'-mor, a-mō'-ris, love.
Gut'-tur, gut'-tū-ris, the throat.
Mar'-tyr, mar'-tj-ris, a martyr.

Exceptions in L.

Fel, gall, and mel, honey, double l before is, making fellis and mellis.

Exceptions in N.

§ 71. 1. Neuters in en form their genitive in tnis; as, flū'-men, flū'-mī-nis, a river; glū'-ten, glū'-tē-nis, glue.

The following masculines, also, form their genitive in tnis:—oscen, a bird which fore-ded by its notes; ecten, a comb; tibicen, a piper; and tubicen, a trumpeter.

2. Some Greek nouns in on form their genitive in ontis; as, Laomēdon, Lac-medontis. Some in is and yn add is or os; as, Trāchin, or Trāchyn, Trāchinis or Trāchynos.

Exceptions in R.

1. Nouns in ter drop e in the genitive; as, pā'-ter, pa'-tris, a father. So also rubē-, a shower, and names of months in ber; as, Octōber, Octōbris.

But crâter, a cup; sôter, a savior; and lâter, a brick, retain e in the genitive.

2. Far, a kind of corn, has farris; hêpar, the liver, hêpâtis; Lar or Lars, Lartis; itêr, a journey, has itinêris from the old nominative itêner; Jupiter Jovis; and cor, the heart, cordis.

3. These four in ur have oris in the genitive:—êbur, ivory; fêmur, the thigh; jêcur, the liver; rôbur, strength.

Fêmur has also feminis, and jêcur, jecinôris, and jocinôris.

AS.

§ 72. Nouns in as form their genitive in âtis; as, æ'-tas, æ-tâ'-tis, age; pi'-ê-tas, pi-e-tâ'-tis, piety.

Exc. 1. As has assis; mâs, a male, mâris; vas, a surety, vâdis; and vâs, a vessel, vâsis. Anas, a duck, has anâtis.

Exc. 2. Greek nouns in as form their genitive according to their gender; the masculines in antis, the feminines in âdis or âdos, and the neuters in âtis; as, adâmas, -antis, adamant; lampas, -âdis, a lamp; Pallas, -âdis or -âdos; bucâras, -âtis, a species of herb. Arcas, an Arcadian, and Nômas, a Numidian, which are of the common gender, form their genitive in âdis. Mêlas, the name of a river, has Mêlânis.

ES.

§ 73. 1. Nouns in es form their genitive by changing es into is, tis, êtis, or êtis; as, ru'-pes, ru'-pis, a rock; mi'-les, mi'-t-tis, a soldier; œ'-ges, seg'-ê-tis, growing corn; qui'-es, qui-ê'-tis, rest.

REMARK. A few Greek proper names in es (gen. is) sometimes form their genitive in et, or, by contraction, i, after the second declension; as, Achilles, is, et or i: and a few in æ after the first declension; as, Orestes, is or æ.

2. Those which make tis are,

Ales , a bird.	Gurges , a whirlpool.	Poples , the ham.
Ames , a fowler's staff.	Hospes , a guest.	Satelles , a lifeguard.
Antistes , a priest.	Limes , a limit.	Stipes , the stock of a tree.
Cœspes , a turf.	Merges , a sheaf of corn.	Termes , an olive bough.
Cômes , a companion.	Miles , a soldier.	Trâmes , a by-path.
Eques , a horseman.	Palmes , a vine-branch.	Vêles , a skirmisher.
Fômes , touchwood.	Pêdes , a foot-soldier.

3. The following have êtis:—abies, a fir-tree; aries, a ram; inâges, a man deified; interpretes, an interpreter; paries, a wall; sêges, a corn-field; and têges, a mat.

4. The following have êtis:—Êbes; Cres, a Cretan; lêbes, a caldron; mag-nes, a loadstone; quies and requies, rest; inquietes, restlessness; and têpes (used only in acc. and abl.), tapestry.—Some Greek proper names have either êtis or is in the genitive; as, Chrêmes, -êtis, or -is. Dâres, -êtis, or -is.

Exc. 1. Obeses, a hostage, and præses, a president, have tâdis. Êêres, an heir, and merces, a reward, have êtis; pes, a foot, and its compounds, have êtis.

Exc. 2. Êres has Cerêris; bes, bessis; præses, prædis; and æses, aris.

IS.

§ 74. Nouns in is have their genitive the same as the nominative; as, au'-ris, ai'-ris, the ear; â-vis, â'-vis, a bird.

Exc. 1. The following have the genitive in ēris:—cīnis, ashes; pūis, dust; vōmis or vōmer, a ploughshare. Cūcūmis, a cucumber, has ēris and rarely is.

Exc. 2. The following have īdis:—cāpis, a cup; cassis, a helmet; cuppis, a point; lāpis, a stone; and prōmulis, an antepast.

Exc. 3. Two have īnis:—pollis, fine flour, and sanguis or sanguen, blood.

Exc. 4. Four have itis:—Dis, Pluto; lis, strife; Quiris, a Roman; and Samnis, a Samnite.

Exc. 5. Glīs, a dormouse, has gliris.

GREEK NOUNS.

1. Greek nouns in is, whose genitive ends in ios or tos, (ios or tos), form their genitive in Latin in is; as (a.) verbals in sis; as, basis, mathēsis, etc. (b.) compounds of polis (πόλις); as, metropōlis, Neapōlis, etc.; and (c.) a few other proper names, as Charybdīs, Lachēsīs, Syrīs, etc. In some nouns of this class the Greek genitive is sometimes found; as, Nemēsīs, Nemestios.

2. Greek nouns in is, whose Greek genitive is in idos (ἰδος), form their Latin genitive in īdis; as, agis, aspis, ephēmēris, pyrāmis, tyrannīs, Enēis, Eris, Nertis, etc. Tigris has both is and īdis; and in some other words of this class later writers use is instead of īdis.

3. Chāris has Charitis; Salāmis, Salamēnis, and Simōis, Simoentis.

OS.

§ 75. Nouns in ōs form their genitive in ōris or ōtis; as, flos, flō-ris, a flower; nē-pos, ne-pō-tis, a grandchild.

The following have ōris:—

Flos , a flower.	Lābos or lābor , labor.	Os , the mouth.
Glos , a husband's sister.	Lēpos or lēpor , wit.	Ros , dew.
Hōnos or hōnor , honor.	Mos , a custom.

Arbos or arbor, a tree, has ōris.

The following have ōtis:—

Cos , a whetstone.	Monocēros , a unicorn.	Nēpos , a grandchild.
Dos , a dowry.	Rhinocēros , a rhinoceros.	Sacerdos , a priest.

Exc. 1. Custos, a keeper, has custōdis; bos, an ox, bōvis; and os, a bone, ossis.

Exc. 2. Some Greek nouns in os have ōis in the genitive; as, hēros, a hero; Mīnos; Tros, a Trojan; and some Greek neuters in os are used in the third declension in the nominative and accusative only; as, Argos, cētos, ēpos, mēlos.

US.

§ 76. 1. Nouns in ūs form their genitive in ēris or ōris; as, gē nus, gen'-ē-ris, a kind; tem'-pus, tem'-pō-ris, time.

2. Those which make ēris are, ācus, (chaff), fācus, fānus, gēnus, glōmus, lā tus, mīnus, ōtus, ōnus, ōpus, pondus, rūdus, scēlus, sidus, ulcus, vellus, viscus and vulnus. In early writers pignus has sometimes pignēris.

3. Those which make ōris are, corpus, dēcus, dedēcus, factinus, fēnus, frigus, lēpus, litus, nēmus, pectus, pēcus, pignus, stercus, tempus, and tergus.

Exc. 1. These three in ūs have ūdis:—incūs, an anvil; pālūs, a morass; and subcūs, a dove-tail. Pēcus, a brute animal, has pectūs.

Exc. 2. These five have ātis:—juventūs, youth; salūs, safety; senectūs, old age; servitūs, slavery virtūs, virtue.

Exc. 3. Monosyllables in us have uris; as, crus, the leg; jus, right; jus, broth mus, a mouse; pus, matter; rus, the country; tus, frankincense; except grus and sus, which have gruis, and suis; and rhus, which has rhois or roris. Tellus, the earth, has tellaris; and Ligus or Ligur, a Ligurian, has Ligūris.

Exc. 4. Fraus, fraud, and laus, praise, have fraudis, laudis.

Exc. 5. Greek nouns in pūs (πῦς) have ōdis; as, tripus, tripōdis, a tripod; Edapus, -ōdis; but this is sometimes of the second declension.

Exc. 6. Some Greek names of cities in us have antis; as, Amāthūs, Amathuntis. So Trapēus, Opus, Pessinus, and Selinus.

Exc. 7. Greek nouns ending in eus are all proper names, and have their genitive in eos; as, Orpheus, -eos. But these nouns are found also in the second declension; as, Orpheus, -ei or -i. Cf. § 64, 5.

YS.

§ 77. 1. Nouns in ys are Greek, and make their genitive in ŷis (contracted gs), or, as in Greek, yos (voc); as, Otyis, gen. Otyis or Otyis; Tēthys, -ŷis or ŷos. So Atys, Olyps, Erinyis, Hēlys, Othrys. A few have ŷdis; as, chlāmys, chlāmŷdis.

S preceded by a consonant.

2. Nouns in s, with a consonant before it, form their genitive by changing s into is or tis; as, trabs, trā-bis, a beam; hi-ems, hi-ē-mis, winter; pars, par-tis, a part; frons, fron-tis, the forehead.

(1.) Those in bs, ms, and ps; as, scrobs, hiems, surps, change s into is; except gryps, a griffin, which has grŷphis.

REMARK. Compounds in ceps from cāpo have ipis; as, princeps, principis a prince. But auceps has aucepis.

(2.) Those in ls, ns, and rs, as, puls, gens, ars, change s into tis.

Exc. 1. The following in ns change s into dis:—frons, foliage: glans, an acorn; juglans, a walnut; lens, a nit; and libripens, a weigher.

Exc. 2. Tiryns, a town of Argolis, has Tirynthis in the genitive.

T.

§ 78. 1. Nouns in t form their genitive in tis. They are, cāput, the head, gen. cap-tis; and its compounds, occiput and sinctput.

X.

2. Nouns in x form their genitive by resolving x into is or gs, and inserting i before s; as, vox (vocs) vō-cis, the voice; lex (legs) lē-gis, a law.

(1.) Latin nouns in ax have ācis; as, foŋnaz, foŋnācis, except fax, fācis. Most Greek nouns in ax have ācis; as, thōraz, thōrācis; a few have ācis; as, ōraz, corācis; and Greek names of men in nax have nācis; as, Astyanax, Astyanācis.

(2.) Nouns in ex have icis; as, jūdex, judicis; obex has obcicis or obŷicis; and vibex, vibicis. Nex, prex, (nom. obs.), rēnex and fenitex have ēcis; ālex, marthex, and vervex have ēcis, and foz, fēcis. Lex and rex have ēgis; aquilex and gr ex have igis; rēmex has remigis; sēnex, sēnis; and supellez, supellectilis.

(3.) Nouns in iz have icis; as, cervix, cervicis; and less frequently icis; as, calix, calicis. But nix has nivis; strix, foreign names of men, and gentile nouns in riz have igis; as, Bitūria, Dumōbria, etc.

(4.) Nouns in ox have ōcis; as, vox, vōcis; but Cappadox has Cappadōcis; Allobrox, Allobrogis; and nox, noctis.

(5.) Of nouns in ux, cruux, dux, trādūx, and nuux have ūcis; lux and Pollux, ūcis.—Conjuz has conjūgis, frux (nom. obs.) frūgis, and fauz, faucis.

(6.) Yx, a Greek termination, has ycis, ycis, or ygis, ygis. Onyx and sarōnyx, in which x is equivalent to chs (§ 3, 2) have ychis; as, ōnyx, onychis.

DATIVE SINGULAR.

§ 79. The dative singular ends in i; as, sermo, dat. sermōni.

Anciently it also ended in e; as, morte datus. Varro in Gellius. So ore for ori, Cic. and Liv.; and jūre for jūri. Liv.

ACCUSATIVE SINGULAR.

(a.) The accusative singular of all neuter nouns is like the nominative.

(b.) The accusative singular of masculines and feminines, ends in em. Yet some Latin nouns in is, which do not increase in the genitive, have im, and some Greek nouns have im, in, or a.

1. Many proper names in is, denoting places, rivers, or gods, have the accusative singular in im; as, Hispālis, Tibēris, Anubis; so also Albis, Athēsis, Batis, Arar or Arāris, Bilbilis, Apis, Osiris, Syr̄tis, etc. These sometimes, also, make the accusative in in; as, Albin. Scaldis has in and em, and Liris, im, in, and em. Liger has Ligērim.

2. The following also have the accusative in im :—

Amussis, a mason's rule.	Mephitis, foul air.	Sināpis, mustard.
Būris, a plough-tail.	Pelvis, a basin.	Sitis, thirst.
Cannābis, hemp.	Ravis, hoarseness.	Tussis, a cough.
Cucūmis, (gen. -is), a cucumber.	Secūris, an axe.	Vis, strength.

3. These have im, and sometimes em :—

Febris, a fever. Puppis, the stern. Restis, a rope. Turris, a tower.

But these have em, and rarely im :—

Bipennis, a battle-axe.	Nāvis, a ship.	Sementis, a sowing.
Clāvis, a key.	Præsēpis, a stall.	Strigilis, a flesh-brush.
Messis, a harvest.

4. Lens and pars have rarely lentim and partim; and crātim from crates, as found in Plautus.

5. Early writers formed the accusative of some other nouns in im.

Accusative of Greek Nouns.

§ 80. The accusative singular of masculine and feminine Greek nouns sometimes retains the Greek terminations in and a, but often ends, as in Latin, in em or im.

1. Masculine and feminine Greek nouns, whose genitive increases in is or os, impure, that is, with a consonant going before, have their accusative in em or a; as, lampas, lampadis (Greek -δος) lampāda; chlām̄ya, chlām̄ydis, chlām̄ydem, or -jā; Helicōn, Helicōnis, Helicōna.

42 THIRD DECLENSION.—VOCATIVE AND ABLATIVE. § 81, 82.

REMARK. In like manner these three, which have is pure in the genitive—Trōs, Trōis, Trōem, and Trōa, a Trojan; hēros, a hero; and Mēnos, a king of Crete.—Aēr, the air; aiēthēr, the sky; delphīn, a dolphin; and paean, a hymn, have usually a; as, aēra, aiēthēra, delphīna, paēna. Pan, a god, has only a.

Exc. 1. Masculines in is, whose genitive increases in is or os impure, have their accusative in im or m; sometimes in idem; Pāris, Paridis; Parim, or Paridem.

Exc. 2. Feminines in is, increasing impurely in the genitive, though they usually follow the rule, have sometimes im or in; as, Elis, Elidis; Elin or Elidem. So tigris, gen. is or idis; acc. tigrim or tigrin.

II. Masculine and feminine Greek nouns in is not increasing, and in ys, gen. ys, form their accusative by changing the s of the nominative into m or n; as, Charybdis, (gen. Lat. -is, Gr. -ος), acc. Charybdim or -in; Hālys, -ys or -yos, Halym or -yn. So rhus, gen. rhois, has rhum or rhum.

III. Proper names ending in the diphthong eus, gen. ēi and ēos, have the accusative in ea; as, Thēseus, Thesea; Tydeus, Tydea. See § 54, 5.

IV. Some Greek proper names in es, whose genitive is in is, have in Latin, along with the accusative in em, the termination en, as if of the first declension; as, Achilles, Achillen; Xerxes, Xerzen; Sophōcles, Sophōclen. Cf. § 45, 1. Some also, which have either ēis or is in the genitive, have, besides ētem, ēta, or em, the termination en; as, Chrēmes, Thāles.

VOCATIVE SINGULAR.

§ 81. The vocative is like the nominative.

REMARK. Many Greek nouns, however, particularly proper names, drop s of the nominative to form the vocative; as, Daphnis, Daphni; Tethys, Tethy; Melampus, Melampe; Orpheus, Orpheu. Proper names in es (gen. is) sometimes have a vocative in ē, after the first declension; as, Socrātes, Socrāte. † 45, 1.

ABLATIVE SINGULAR.

§ 82. The ablative singular commonly ends in e.

Exc. 1. (a.) Neuters in e, al, and ar, have the ablative in i; as, sedile, sedili; animal, animāli; calcar, calcāri.

(b.) But names of towns in e, and the following neuters in ar, have e in the ablative; viz. baccar, an herb; far, corn; hēpar, the liver; jūbar, a sunbeam; nectar, nectar; par, a pair; sal, salt. Rēte, a net, has either e or i; and māre, the sea, has sometimes in poetry mare in the ablative.

Exc. 2. (a.) Nouns which have im alone, or both im and in in the accusative, and names of months in er or is, have i in the ablative; as, vis, vim, vi; Tibēris, -im, i; December, Decembri; Aprilis, Aprili.

(b.) But Batīs, cannābis, and sināpis, have e or i. Tygris, the tiger, has tigride; as a river it has both Tygride and Tigri.

Exc. 3. (a.) Nouns which have em or im in the accusative, have their ablative in e or i; as, turris, turre or turri.

(b.) So Elis, acc. Elidem and Elin, has Elide or Elī. But restis, and most Greek nouns with idis in the genitive, have e only; as, Pāris, -idis, -ide.

Exc. 4. (a.) Adjectives in is, used as nouns, have commonly i in the ablative, but sometimes e; as, familiāris, a friend; nātālis, a birthday; sodālis, a companion; trirēmis, a trireme.—Participles in ns, used as nouns, have commonly e in the ablative, but contīnens has i.

(b.) When adjectives in is become proper names, they always have e; as Juvenālis, Juvenāle. Affinis and adilis have generally e; as have always juvenis, a youth; rūdis, a rod; and volūcris, a bird.

Exc. 5. (a.) The following, though they have only em in the accusative have e or i in the ablative, but most of them have oftener e than i :—

Amnis,	Collis,	Ignis,	Pars,	Supellex,
Anguis,	Convallis,	Imber,	Poetis,	Tridens,
Avis,	Corbis,	Mugilis,	Pūgil,	Unguis,
Billis,	Finis,	Orbis,	Sordes,	Vectis,
Civis,	Fustis,	Ovis,	Sors,	Vesper.
Classis,

(b.) Occiput has only i, and rus has either e or i; but rure commonly signifies from the country, and ruri, in the country. Mel has rarely i.

(c.) So also names of towns, when denoting the place where any thing is said to be, or to be done, have the ablative in i; as, Carthagīni, at Carthage; so, Anazūri and Lacedamōni, and, in the most ancient writers, many other nouns occur with this termination in the ablative. Canālis has i, and very rarely e.

Exc. 6. Nouns in ys, which have ym or yn in the accusative, have their ablative in ye or y; as, Atys, Atye, or Aty.

NOMINATIVE PLURAL.

§ 83. I. The nominative plural of masculines and feminines ends in es; as, sermōnes, rūpes :—but neuters have a, and those whose ablative singular ends in i only, or in e and i, have ia; as, caput, capita; sedile, sedilia; rēte, retia. Aplustre has both a and ia.

1. Some Greek neuters in os have ē in the nominative plural; as, mēlos; nom. plural, mele; (in Greek μήλας, by contraction μήλα). So Tempe.

GENITIVE PLURAL.

II. The genitive plural commonly ends in um; sometimes in ium.

1. Nouns which, in the ablative singular, have i only, or both e and i, make the genitive plural in ium; as, sedile, sedili, sedilium; turris, turre or turri, turrium.

2. Nouns in es and is, which do not increase in the genitive singular, have ium; as, nūbes, nubium; hostis, hostium.

Exc. Ōnis, juvōnis, fōris, mugilis, prōles, strues, and vātes, have um; so oftener have apis, strigilis, and volūcris; less frequently mensis, ēdes, and, in the poets only, ambāges, cadēs, clādes, vepres, and caelestis.

3. Monosyllables ending in two consonants have ium in the genitive plural; as, urbs, urbium; gens, gentium; arx, arcium.

Exc. Lynx, sphinx, and ops (nom. obsolete) have um.

Most monosyllables in s and x pure have um, but the following have ium; dos, mas, glis, lis, os (oesis), fauz, (nom. obs.) niz, noz, strix, vix, generally frous and mus; so also fur and ren, and sometimes lar.

4. Nouns of two or more syllables, in ns or rs, and names of nations in as, have commonly ium, but sometimes um; as, cliens, clientium or clientum, Arpinas, Arpinatium.

(1.) Other nouns in is generally have um, but sometimes ium; as, celas, celitum or celatium. Pendēs and optimātes have usually ium.

5. The following have ium:—cardo, compes, linter, imber, ster, venter, Sannius, Quiric, and usually Insiber. Fornax and pilius have sometimes ium.

6. Greek nouns have generally um; as, gigas, gigantium; Arabi, Arabum; Thrac, Thracum;—but a few, used as titles of books, have sometimes on; as, Epigramma, epigrammatōn; Metamorphōsis, -eōn. The patricial Maleōn also is found in Curtius, 4, 18.

REMARK 1. Bos has bovum in the genitive plural.

REM. 2. Nouns which want the singular, form the genitive plural as if they were complete; as, mānes, manium; celites, celitum; ilia, ilium; as if from mānis, celas, and ile. So also names of feasts in alia; as, Saturnalia Saturnaliūm; but these have sometimes orum after the second declension. Ales has sometimes, by epenthesis, alitum. See § 322, 8.

DATIVE AND ABLATIVE PLURAL.

§ 84. The dative and ablative plural end in ibus.

Exc. 1. Bos has bovibus and būbus, by contraction, for bovibus; sus has sūbus by syncope, for sūibus. § 322, 5, and 4.

Exc. 2. Greek nouns in ma have the dative and ablative plural more frequently in is than in ibus; as, poēma, poemātis, or poematibus.

Exc. 3. The poets sometimes form the dative plural of Greek nouns, that increase in the genitive, in is, and, before a vowel, in sin; as, herōis, heroidis; herōin, or herōisin. Ovid. So in Quintilian, Metamorphōseis.

ACCUSATIVE PLURAL.

§ 85. The accusative plural ends, like the nominative, in es, ā, ī.

Exc. 1. The accusative plural of masculines and feminines, whose genitive plural ends in ium, anciently ended in is or ēs, instead of es; as, paries, gen. partium, acc. pariēs or partīe.

Exc. 2. Greek masculines and feminines, whose genitive increases in is or on impure, have their accusative in as; as, lampas, lampādīs, lampādas. So also hēros, herōis, herōas, and some barbarian names of nations have a similar form; as, Brigantias, Allobrogas.

Jupīter, and vis, strength, are thus declined:—

Singular.		Singular.	Plural.
N. Ju'-pi-ter,		N. vis,	vi'-res,
G. Jō'-vis,		G. vis,	vir'-i-um,
D. Jō'-vi,		D. —	vir'-i-bus,
Ac. Jō'-vem,		Ac. vim,	vi'-res,
V. Ju'-pi-ter,		V. vis,	vi'-res,
Ab. Jō'-ve.		Ab. vi	vir'-i-bus.

§ 86. The following table exhibits the principal forms of Greek nouns of the third declension :—

	Nom.	Gen.	Dat.	Acc.	Voc.	Ab.
S.	Lampas,	{ -adis, -ados, }	-adi,	{ -adem, -ada,	-as,	-ade.
Pl.	-ades,	-adum,	-adibus,	{ -ades, -adas,	-ades,	-adibus.
S.	Hēros,	-ōis,	-ōi,	{ -ōem, -ōa,	-os,	-oe.
Pl.	-ōes,	-ōum,	-oibus,	{ -ōes, -ōas,	-ōes,	-oibus.
	Chēlys,	{ -ýis, ýos,	-ýi,	{ -ym, -yn,	-y,	-ýe or y.
	Poēsis,	{ -is, -los, -ēos,	-i,	{ -im, -in,	-i,	-i.
	Achilles,	{ -is, -ei, -i, -ēos,	-i,	{ -em, -ēa, ēn,	-es, -ē,	-e or -i.
	Orpheus,	-ēos,	-ēi,	-ēa,	-eu,	See § 54.
	Aēr,	-ēris,	-ēri,	-ēra,	-er,	-ēre.
	Didō,	-ūs,	-ō,	-ō,	-ō,	-ō.

FOURTH DECLENSION.

§ 87. Nouns of the fourth declension end in us and u. Those in us are masculine; those in u are neuter, and, except in the genitive, are indeclinable in the singular.

Nouns of this declension are thus declined :—

Fructus, a fruit.		Cornu, a horn.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
N. fruc'-tūs,	fruc'-tūs,	N. cor'-nū,	cor'-nu-ā,
G. fruc'-tūs,	fruc'-tu-ūm,	G. cor'-nūs,	cor'-nu-ūm,
D. fruc'-tu-i,	fruc'-tī-būs,	D. cor'-nū,	cor'-nī-būs,
Ac. fruc'-tūm,	fruc'-tūs,	Ac. cor'-nū,	cor'-nu-ā,
V. fruc'-tūs,	fruc'-tūs,	V. cor'-nū,	cor'-nu-ā,
Ab. fruc'-tū.	fruc'-tī-būs.	Ab. cor'-nū.	cor'-nī-būs.

In like manner decline

Can'-tus, a song.	Fluc'-tus, a wave.	Se-nā'-tus, the senate.
Cur'-rus, a chariot.	Luc'-tus, grief.	Gē'-lu, ice. (in sing.)
Ex-er'-el-tus, an army.	Mō'-tus, motion.	Vē'-ru, a spit.

EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

§ 88. 1. The following are feminine :—

Acus, a needle.	Ficus, a fig.	Porticus, a gallery.
Dōnus, a dove.	Mānus, a hand.	Tribus, a tribe.

Obis, a distaff, and the plurals Quinquātrus, a feast of Minerva, and Idus, the Ides, are also feminine. So noctu, by night, found only in the ablative singular. Pénus, a store of provisions, when of the fourth declension, is masculine or feminine. Sécus, sex, is neuter; see § 94. Spécus, a den, is masculine and rarely feminine or neuter.

2. Some personal appellatives, and names of trees, are feminine by signification; as,

Anus, nérus, socrus;—cornus, laurus, and quercus. Myrtus also is feminine and rarely masculine. See § 29, 1 and 2.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

§ 89. Dōmus, a house, is partly of the fourth declension, and partly of the second. It is thus declined:—

Singular.	Plural.
N. do'-mūs ,	do'-mūs ,
G. do'-mūs , or do'-mī ,	dom'-u-ūm , or do-mō'-rūm ,
D. dom'-u-i , or do'-mō ,	dom'-i-būs ,
Ac. do'-mūm ,	do'-mūs , or do'-mōs ,
V. do'-mūs ,	do'-mūs ,
Ab. do'-mō .	dom'-i-būs .

(a.) Domūs, in the genitive, signifies, of a house; domi commonly signifies, at home. The ablative domu is found in Plautus, and in ancient inscriptions. In the genitive and accusative plural the forms of the second declension are more used than those of the fourth.

(b.) Cornus, a cornel-tree; figus, a fig, or a fig-tree; laurus, a laurel; and myrtus, a myrtle, are sometimes of the second declension. Pénus is of the second, third or fourth declension.

(c.) Some nouns in u have also forms in us and um; as, cornu, cornus, or cornum. Adjectives, compounds of manus, are of the first and second declensions.

REMARK 1. Nouns of this declension anciently belonged to the third, and were formed by contraction, thus:—

Singular.	Plural.
N. fructūs ,	fructūs , ūs ,
G. fructūs , - ūs ,	fructūm , - ūm ,
D. fructui , - ū ,	fructuibūs , - ūbūs , or - ībūs ,
Ac. fructuē m, - ūm ,	fructūs , ūs ,
V. fructūs ,	fructūs , - ūs ,
Ab. fructuē , - ū .	fructuibūs , - ūbūs , or - ībūs

2. The genitive singular in is is sometimes found in ancient authors; as, annis, Ter. A genitive in i, after the second declension, also occurs; as, scanditū, scandī; tumultus, tumultī. Sall.

3. The contracted form of the dative in u is not often used; yet it sometimes occurs, especially in Cæsar, and in the poets.

4. The contracted form of the genitive plural in um rarely occurs.

5. The following nouns have ūbus in the dative and ablative plural:—

Acus , a needle.	Artus , a joint.	Partus , a birth.	Spécus , a den.
Arcus , a bow.	Lacus , a lake.	Pecu , a flock.	Tribus , a tribe.

Gēnu, a knee; portus, a harbor; tonitrus, thunder; and seru, a spit, have ībus or ūbus.

FIFTH DECLENSION.

§ 90. Nouns of the fifth declension end in ēs, and are of the feminine gender.

They are thus declined:—

Res, a thing.		Dies, a day.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
N. rēs ,	rēs ,	N. di'-ēs ,	di'-ēs ,
G. rē'-ī ,	rē-rūm ,	G. di-ē'-ī ,	di-ē'-rūm ,
D. rē'-ī ,	rē-būs ,	D. di-ē'-ī ,	di-ē'-būs ,
Ac. rēm ,	rēs ,	Ac. di'-ēm ,	di'-ēs ,
V. rēs ,	rēs ,	V. di'-ēs ,	di'-ēs ,
Ab. rē .	rē-būs .	Ab. di'-ē .	di-ē'-būs .

REMARK. Nouns of this declension, like those of the fourth, seem to have belonged originally to the third declension.

EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.

1. Dies, a day, is masculine or feminine in the singular, and always masculine in the plural; meridies, mid-day, is masculine only.

NOTE. Dies is seldom feminine, in good prose writers, except when it denotes duration of time, or a day fixed and determined.

EXCEPTIONS IN DECLENSION.

2. The genitive and dative singular sometimes end in ē or in i, instead of ei; as, gen. diē for diēi, Virg.; fide for fidei, Hor.; acie for aciēi, Cæs.—gen. plēbi for plēbei, Liv.—dat. fide for fidei, Hor., perniciē, Liv., and pernicii, Nep., for perniciēi. The genitive rabiei contracted for rabieis, after the third declension, is found in Lucretius.

REMARK 1. There are only about eighty nouns of this declension, and of these only two, res and dies, are complete in the plural. Acies, effigies, elmies, facies, glacies, progenies, series, species, spes, want the genitive, dative, and ablative plural, and the rest want the plural altogether.

REM. 2. All nouns of this declension end in ies, except four—fides, faith; res, a thing; spes, hope; and plēbes, the common people;—and all nouns in ies are of this declension, except abies, aries, paries, quies, and requies, which are of the third declension.

DECLENSION OF COMPOUND NOUNS.

§ 91. When a compound noun consists of two nominatives, both parts are declined; but when one part is a nominative, and the other an oblique case, the nominative only is declined. Of the former kind are respublica, a commonwealth, and jusjurandum, an oath; of the latter, mater-familias, a mistress of a family. Cf. § 43, 2.

Singular.	Plural.
N. V. res-pub'-li-ca ,	N. V. res-pub'-li-ca ,
G. D. re-i-pub'-li-cæ ,	G. re-rūm-pub-li-cæ'-rūm ,
Ac. rem-pub'-li-ca-m ,	D. Ab. re-bus-pub'-li-cis ,
Ab. re-pub'-li-cā .	Ac. res-pub'-li-cā .

Singular	Plural	Singular
N. jus-ju-ran'-dum,	ju-ra-ju-ran'-da,	N. ma-ter-fa-mil'-i-as,
G. ju-ris-ju-ran'-di,		G. ma-tris-fa-mil'-i-as,
D. ju-ri-ju-ran'-do,		D. ma-tri-fa-mil'-i-as,
Ac. jus-ju-ran'-dum,	ju-ra-ju-ran'-da,	Ac. ma-trem-fa-mil'-i-as,
V. jus-ju-ran'-dum,	ju-ra-ju-ran'-da.	V. ma-ter-fa-mil'-i-as,
Ab. ju-re-ju-ran'-do.		Ab. ma-tre-fa-mil'-i-as, etc.

NOTE. The preceding compounds are divided and pronounced like the simple words of which they are compounded.

IRREGULAR NOUNS.

§ 92. Irregular nouns are divided into three classes—Variable, Defective, and Redundant.

I. VARIABLE NOUNS.

A noun is variable, which, in some of its parts, changes either its gender or declension or both.

Nouns which vary in gender are called heterogeneous; those which vary in declension are called heteroclites.

Heterogeneous Nouns.

1. Masculine in the singular, and neuter in the plural; as, Avernus, Dindymus, Ismarus, Massicus, Mamilius, Pangæus, Tartarus, Taygetus; plur. Averna, etc.
2. Masculine in the singular, and masculine or neuter in the plural; as, jocus, a jest; plur. joci, or joca;—locus, a place; plur. loci, passages in books, topics, places; loca, places;—sibilus, a hissing; plur. sibila, rarely sibili;—intubus, endive; plur. intubi or intuba.
3. Feminine in the singular, and neuter in the plural; as, carbāsus, a species of flax; plur. carbāsa, very rarely carbāsi, sails, etc., made of it;—Hierosolyma, -a, Jerusalem; plur. Hierosolyma, -orum.
4. Neuter in the singular, and masculine in the plural; as, cælum, heaven; plur. cæli;—Elysium; plur. Elysi;—Argos; plur. Argi. So sister, neut., plur. sistres, masc.
5. Neuter in the singular, and masculine or neuter in the plural; as, frēnum, a bridle; plur. frēni or frēna;—rastrum, a rake; plur. rastri, or, more rarely, rastra;—pugillar, a writing tablet; plur. pugillares or pugillaria.
6. Neuter in the singular, and feminine in the plural; as, epulum, a feast; plur. epulæ;—balneum, a bath; plur. balneæ or balneæ;—nundinium, a market-day; plur. nundinæ, a fair.
7. Feminine or neuter in the singular, and feminine in the plural; as, delicia or delicium, delight; plur. deliciæ.

Heteroclites.

§ 93. 1. Second or third declension in the singular, and third in the plural; as, nom. and acc. jugērum, an acre; gen. jugēri or jugēris; abl. jugēro and jugēre; plur., nom., and acc. jugēra; gen. jugērum; abl. jugēris and jugeribus.

2. Third declension in the singular, and second in the plural; as, vās, a vessel; plur. vāsa, drum. Ancile, a shield, has sometimes anciliōrum, in the genitive plural.

NOTE. Variable nouns seem anciently to have been redundant, and to have retained a part of each of their original forms. Thus, vāsa, -drum, properly comes from vāsum, i, but the latter, together with the plural of vās, vāsis, became obsolete.

II. DEFECTIVE NOUNS.

§ 94. Nouns are defective either in case or in number.

1. Nouns defective in case may want either one or more cases. Some are altogether indeclinable, and are called aplotes.

Such are pondo, a pound; most nouns in i; as, gummi, gum: foreign words; as, Aaron, Jacob: semitis, a half; gil, a kind of plant; the singular of mille, a thousand; words put for nouns; as, velle suum, for sua voluntas, his own inclination; and names of the letters of the alphabet.

A noun which is found in one case only, is called a Monoptote; if found in two cases, a Diptote; if in three, a Triptote; if in four, a Tetraptote; and if in five, a Pentaptote.

The following list contains most nouns defective in case. Those which occur but once in Latin authors are distinguished by an asterisk:—

- Abactus*, acc. pl.; a driving away.
Accitu, abl.; a calling for.

REMARK 1. To these may be added nouns of the fifth declension, which either want the plural, as most of them are abstract nouns, or have in that number only the nominative, accusative, and vocative. Res and dies, however, have the plural entire. Cf. § 90, R. 1.

REM. 2. For the use of the vocative, also, of many nouns, no classical authority can be found.

§ 95. 2. Nouns defective in number, want either the plural or the singular.

(a) Many nouns want the plural from the nature of the things which they express. Such are generally names of persons, most names of places (except those which have only the plural), the names of herbs, of the arts, most material and abstract nouns; but these may have a plural when used as common nouns, (§ 26, R. 3.), and many others.

REM. In Latin the plural of abstract nouns is often used to denote the existence of the quality, attribute, etc. in different objects, or the repetition of an action; and in poetry such plurals are used for the sake of emphasis or metre. See § 98.

The following list contains many of the nouns which want the plural, and also some, marked p, which are included in the above classes, but are sometimes used in the plural.

NOTE. The different forms of most words in the above list are not equally common, and some are rarely used, or only in particular cases.

DERIVATION OF NOUNS.

§ 100. Nouns are derived from other nouns, from adjectives, and from verbs.

I. FROM NOUNS.

From nouns are derived the following classes:—

1. A patronymic is the name of a person, derived from that of his father or other ancestor, or of the founder of his nation.

NOTE 1. Patronymics are properly Greek nouns, and have been borrowed from that language by the Latin poets.

(a.) Masculine patronymics end in ides, ides, ādes, and īdes.

(1.) Nouns in us of the second declension, and those nouns of the third declension, whose root ends in a short syllable, form their patronymics in ides; as, Priāmus, Priāmidēs; Agamemnōn, gen. ōnis, Agamemnōnidēs.

(2.) Nouns in ēs and cles form their patronymics in ides; as, Atrēs, Atridēs; Hēracles (i. e. Hercules,) Heraclidēs.

REM. 1. Enīdes, in Virg. A. 9, 658, is formed in like manner, as if from Enēas, instead of Enēas.

(3.) Nouns in ās and ēs of the first declension form their patronymics in ādes, as Enēās, Enēādēs; Hippōtēs, Hippōtādēs.

(4.) Nouns in ius of the second declension, and those nouns of the third declension, whose root ends in a long vowel, form their patronymics in īdes; as, Thestius, Thestīdēs; Amphitryō (gen. ōnis), Amphitryōnidēs.

REM. 2. A few nouns also of the first declension have patronymics in īdes; as, Anchises, Anchistīdēs.

(b.) Feminine patronymics end in is, ēs, and ias, and correspond in termination to the masculines, viz. is to ides, ēs to ides, and ias to īdes; as, Tyndārus, masc. Tyndarīdēs, fem. Tyndāris; Nēreus, masc. Nereūdes, fem. Nerēs; Thestius, masc. Thestīdēs, fem. Thestias.

REM. 3. A few feminines are found in ine, or ione; as, Nerine, Acrisīone, from Nereus and Acrisius.

NOTE 2. Patronymics in des and ne are of the first declension; those in is and as, of the third.

2. A patrial or gentile noun is derived from the name of a country; and denotes an inhabitant of that country; as,

NOTE 3. Most patrials are properly adjectives, relating to a noun understood; as, hōmo, civis, etc. See § 128, 6.

3. A diminutive signifies a small thing of the kind denoted by the primitive; as, liber, a book; libellus, a little book.

Diminutives generally end in ulus, ula, ulum, or cūlus, cūla, cūlum, according as the primitive is masculine, feminine, or neuter.

A. 1. If the primitive is of the first or second declension, or its root ends in c, g, d, or t after a vowel, the diminutive is formed by annexing ulus, a, um to the root; as, arula, servulus, puerulus, scutulum, cornicula, regulus, capitulum, mercedula; from ara, servus, puer, scutum, cornix, (-icis), rex, (regis), caput, (-itis), merces, (-edis).

2. Primitives of the first or second declension whose root ends in e or i, instead of ulus, a, um, add olus, a, um; as, filiolus, gloriola, horreolum; from filius, gloria, horreum.

3. Primitives of the first or second declension whose root ends in l, n, or r, form diminutives by contraction in ellus, a, um, and some in illus, a, um; as, ocellus, asellus, libellus, lucellum; from oculus, asina, liber, lucrum; and sigillum, from signum, tignum.

B. 1. If the primitive is of the third, fourth, or fifth declension, the diminutive is formed in cūlus, (or icūlus), a, um.

2. Primitives of the third declension whose nominative ends in r, or in os or us from roots ending in r annex cūlus to the nominative; as, fratercūlus, soror- cāla oculūm, corpuscūm; from j-āter, ātor, ōs, (ōris), corpus, (-ōris).—So also primitives in es and is, but these drop the s of the nominative; as, ignicūlus, mabeicūla, diecūla; from ignis, nubes, dies.

3. Primitives of other terminations of the third declension, and those of the fourth, add icūlus to the root; as, ponticūlus, coticūla, ossicūlum, versicūlus, cornicūlum; from pons, cos, ōs, (ossis), versus, cornu.

4. Primitives in o, (inis or ōnis), in adding cūlus, a, um, change the final vowel of the root (i or o) into u; as, homuncūlus, sermuncūlus; from hōmo and sermo; and a few primitives of other terminations form similar diminutives; as, avuncūlus, domuncūla; from avus and dōmus.

C. 1. A few diminutives end in uleus, as, equuleus, aculeus; from ēquus and ācus; and a few also in io; as, homuncio, senecio, from hōmo and senex.

2. Diminutives are sometimes formed from other diminutives; as, asellūlus, from asellus; sometimes two or more diminutives with different terminations are formed from the same primitive, as, homuncūlus, homullus, and homuncio; from hōmo; and sometimes the primitive undergoes euphonic changes; as rumuscūlus, from rāmor.

REM. Some diminutives differ in gender from their primitives; as ranuncūlus, scamillus, from rāna and scammum.

4. (a.) An amplificative is a personal appellation denoting an excess of that which is expressed by its primitive; as,

Cyprio, one who has a large head: so nāsio, labeo, bucco, fronto, mento, one who has a large nose, lips, or cheeks, a broad forehead or long chin; from cāpit, nāsus, labia, bucca, frons, and mentum.

(b.) A few personal appellatives in io denote the trade or profession to which a person belongs; as, lucio, an actor; pellio, a furrier; from lūcus, and pellis.

5. The termination ium added to the root of a noun, indicates the office or condition, and often, derivatively, an assemblage of the individuals denoted by the primitive; as, collegium, collegueship, and thence an assembly of colleagues; servitium, servitude, and collectively the servants; so sacerdotium, and ministerium; from collēga, servus, sacerdos, and minister.

6. The termination imonium is added to the root of a few nouns, denoting something derived from the primitives, or imparting to it its peculiar character; as, testimonium, testimony; so vadimonium, patrimonium, matrimonium; from testis, vās (vādis), pāter, and māter.

7. The termination etum, added to the root of names of plants, denotes a place where they grow in abundance; as, quercetum, laurētum, olivētum, from quercus, laurus, and oliva.

So, also, asculētum, dumētum, myrtētum, and by analogy sacētum. But some drop e; as, carectum, salictum, virgultum, and arbustum.

8. The termination arium, added to the root of a noun, denotes a receptacle of the things signified by the primitive; as, aviarium, an aviary; plantarium, a nursery; from avis, a bird, and planta, a plant.

9. The termination ile, added to the root of names of animals, marks the place where they are kept; as, bovile, a stall for oxen; so caprile, ovile; from bos, an ox, cāper, a goat, and ovis, a sheep.

NOTE 1. This class and the preceding are properly neuter adjectives.

NOTE 2. Abstract nouns are derived either from adjectives or from verbs. See § 28, 5.

II. FROM ADJECTIVES.

§ 101. 1. Abstract nouns are formed by adding the termination itas, itudo, ia, itia or ities, edo, and imōnia to the root of the primitive

2. Abstracts in itas, (equivalent to the English ty or ity), are formed from adjectives of each declension ; as, cupiditas, teneritas, celeritas, crudelitas, felicitas; from cupidus, tener, celer, crudelis, and felix.

(1.) When the root ends in i, the abstract is formed in itas; as, pistitas, from pistus; and when it ends in t, as only is added; as, honestitas from honestus.

(2.) In a few abstracts i before itas is dropped; as, libertas, juventas, from liber, juvénis. In facultas and difficultas, from facilis, difficilis, there is a change also in the root-vowel from i to u.

(3.) A few abstracts are formed in itus or tus, instead of itas; as, servitus, juventus, from servus and juvénis. See § 76, Exc. 2.

3. Abstracts in itudo are formed from adjectives in us, and some from adjectives of the third declension of two or three terminations; as, magnitudo, altitudo, fortitudo, acritudo, from magnus, altus, fortis, acer. Polysyllabic adjectives in tus, generally form their abstracts by adding udo instead of itudo to their root; as, consuetudo, from consuetus.

4. Abstracts in ia (equivalent to the English ce or cy), are for the most part formed from adjectives of one termination; as, clementia, constantia, impudentia, from clemens, constans, impudens. But some adjectives in us and er, including verbals in cundus, likewise form their verbals in ia; as, miseria, angustia, facundia, from miser, angustus, facundus.

5. Abstracts in itia and ities are formed from adjectives in us and is; as, justitia, tristitia, duritia, and durities, segnitia and segnities, from justus, tristis, durus, and segnis.

6. A few abstracts are formed in edo, and a few in imônia; and sometimes two or more abstracts of different terminations are formed from the same adjective; as, acritas, acritudo, acredo, and acrimonia, from acer. In such case those in itudo and imonia seem to be more intensive in signification than those in itas.

REMARK. Adjectives, as distinguished from the abstracts which are formed from them, are called concretes.

III. FROM VERBS.

§ 102. Nouns derived from verbs are called verbal nouns.

The following are the principal classes :—

1. Abstract nouns expressing the action or condition denoted by a verb, especially by a neuter verb, are formed by annexing or to their first root; as, amor, love; favor, favor; mæror, grief; splendor, brightness; from amo, faveo, mæreo, and splendeo.

2. (a.) Abstracts are also formed from many verbs by annexing ium to the first or to the third root; as, colloquium, a conference; gaudium, joy; exordium, a beginning; exitium, destruction; solatium, consolation; from colloquor, gaudeo, exordior, ezeo and solor.

3. Some verbal abstracts are formed by annexing ela, imônia, or imônium, to the first root of the verb; as, querela and querimonia, a complaint; suadela, persuasion; from queror and suadeo.

4. (a.) The terminations men and mentum, added to the first root of the verb, generally with a connecting vowel, denote the thing to which the action belongs, both actively and passively, or a means for the performance of the action; as, fulmen from fulgeo, flumen from fluo, agmen from ago, solâmen from solor, documentum from dóceo, blandimentum from blandior.

(b.) The final consonant of the root is often dropped, and the preceding and connecting vowels contracted into one syllable; as, âgo, (âgmen), âgmen; âdeo, (âdimentum), âdimentum.

(c.) Some words of this class have no primitive verb in use ; as, atrimentum, ink ; but, in this case, the connecting vowel seems to imply its reference to such a verb as atrāre, to blacken.

5. (a.) The terminations ūlum, būlum, cūlum ; brum, crum, trum, annexed to the first root of a verb, denote an instrument for performing the act expressed by the verb, or a place for its performance ; as, cingūlum, opercūlum, venūbūlum, venūlūbrum, fulcrum, spectrum, from cingo, opērio, vēnor, venāto, fulcio, spēcio.

(b.) Sometimes cūlum is contracted into clum ; as, vinclum for vincūlum. Sometimes, also, s is inserted before trum ; as, rostrum, from rōdo, and a connecting vowel is placed before this and some of the other terminations ; as, arātrum, stabūlum, cubicūlum, from āro, sto, and cūbo.

(c.) Some words of this kind are formed from nouns ; as, acetabūlum, a vinegar cruet ; turibūlum, a censer ; from acētum and tus.

6. (a.) Nouns formed by adding or and rix to the third root of the verb, denote respectively the male and female agent of the action expressed by the verb as, adjutor, adjutrix, an assistant ; faulor, fautrix, a favorer ; victor, victrix, a conqueror ; from adjuvō (adjūt-), faveo (faut-), vinco (vict-). They are often likewise used as adjectives. The feminine form is less common than the masculine, and when the third root of the verb ends in s, the feminine is sometimes formed in trix ; as, tondeo (tone-) tonstrix.

(b.) Some nouns in tor are formed immediately from other nouns ; as, viātor, a traveller ; janitor, a door-keeper ; from via and janua. In meretrix from mereo, i of the third root becomes e.

(c.) The agent of a few verbs is denoted by the terminations a and o annexed to the first root ; as, conviva, a guest ; advēna, a stranger ; scriba, a scribe ; erro, a vagrant ; bibo, a drunkard ; comēdo, a glutton, from convivo, advēniō, etc.

7. Many abstract nouns are formed by annexing io and us (gen. ūs) to the third root of a verb ; as, actio, an action ; lectio, reading ; from āgo (act-), lēgo (lect-) ; — cantus, singing ; visus, sight ; usus, use ; from cāno (cant-), videō (vis-), ūtor (ūs-).

REMARK 1. Nouns of both forms, and of like signification, are frequently derived from the same verb ; as, concurso and concursum, a running together ; mōtio and mōtus, etc.

REM. 2. Nouns formed by adding the termination ūra to the third root of a verb, sometimes have the same signification as those in io and us, and sometimes denote the result of an action ; as, positūra, position ; vincitura, a binding together ; from pōno, and vincio ; and the termination ēla has sometimes the same meaning ; as, querēla, complaint ; loquēla, speech, from quēror and loquor.

NOTE. One of these forms is generally used to the exclusion of the others, and when two or more are found, they are usually employed in somewhat different senses.

8. The termination ōrium, added to the third root of a verb, denotes the place where the action of the verb is performed ; as, audīōrium, a lecture-room ; conclavium, a repository ; from audīo and condo.

COMPOSITION OF NOUNS.

§ 103. Compound nouns are formed variously :—

1. Of two nouns ; as, rupicapra, a wild goat, of rūpes and capra. In some words, compounded of two nouns, the former is a genitive ; as, senatusconsultum, a decree of the senate ; jurisconsultus, a lawyer ; in others, both parts are declined ; as, respublica, jusjurandum. See § 91.

2. Of a noun and a verb ; as, artifex, an artist, of ars and fācio ; fidi-ces, a harper of fides and cāno ; agricōla, a husbandman, of āger and cōlo.

8. Of an adjective and a noun; as, æquinotium, the equinox, of æquus and nox; millepæda, a millepede, of mille and pæda.

In duumvir, triumvir, decumvir, centumvir, the numeral adjective is in the genitive plural.

REMARK 1. When the former part of a compound word is a noun or an adjective, it usually ends in i; as, artifex, rupicapra, agricola, etc. If the second word begins with a vowel, an elision takes place; as, quingennium, of quinque and annus; magnanimus, of magnus and animus.

4. Of an adverb and a noun; as, nēfas, wickedness; nēmo, nobody; of nē, fas, and hōmo. So biduum, of bis and dies.

5. Of a preposition and a noun: as, incuria, want of care, of in and cūra. So intervallum, an interval; præcordia, the diaphragm; proverbium, a proverb; subsellium, a low seat; superficies, a surface.

REM. 2. When the former part is a preposition, its final consonant is sometimes changed, to adapt it to that which follows it: as, ignobilis, illepidus, imprudencia, irrumpe, of in and nobilis, lepidus, etc. See § 196.

ADJECTIVES.

§ 104. An adjective is a word which qualifies or limits the meaning of a substantive.

Adjectives may be divided, according to their signification, into various classes; as denoting,

1. Character or quality; as, bōnus, good; albus, white; amicus, friendly.
2. State or condition; as, fēlix, happy; dives, rich.
3. Possession; as, herilis, a master's; patrius, a father's.
4. Quantity; as, magnus, great; tōtus, entire; parvus, small.
5. Number; as, ūnus, one; secundus, second; tot, so many; quot, as many. These are called numerals.
6. Time; as, annuus, yearly; hesternus, of yesterday; biuus, of two years; trimestris, of three months.
7. Place; as, altus, high; vicinus, near; aërius, aerial; terrestris, terrestrial.
8. Material; as, aureus, golden; fagineus, beechen; terrēnus, earthen.
9. Part; as, nullus, no one; aliquis, some one. These are called partitives.
10. Country; as, Romānus, Roman; Arpinas of Arpinum. These are called patrials.
11. Diminution; as, parvulus, from parvus, small; misellus, from miser, miserable. These are called diminutives.
12. Amplification; as, vinōsus and vinolentus, much given to wine; auritus, having long ears. These are called amplificatives.
13. Relation; as, avidus, desirous of; mēmor, mindful of; insuētus. These are called relatives.
14. Interrogation; as, quantus? how great; qualis? of what kind; quot? how many? quotus? of what number? These are called interrogatives; and, when not used interrogatively, they are called correlatives.
15. Specification; as, talis, such; tantus, so great; tot, so many. These are called demonstratives.

DECLENSION OF ADJECTIVES.

§ 105. 1. Adjectives are declined like substantives, and are either of the first and second declensions, or of the third only.

ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS.

2. The masculine of adjectives belonging to the first and second declensions, ends either in us or in er. The feminine and neuter are formed respectively by annexing a and um to the root of the masculine. The masculine in us is declined like dominus; that in er like gener or ager; the feminine always like maia; and the neuter like regnum.

REMARK 1. The masculine of one adjective, stir, stra, strum, full ends in ur, and a declined like gener.

Bönus, good.

Singular.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	bo'-nūs,	bo'-nā,	bo'-nūm,
G.	bo'-nī,	bo'-næ,	bo'-nī,
D.	bo'-nō,	bo'-næ,	bo'-nō,
Ac.	bo'-nūm,	bo'-nām,	bo'-nūm,
V.	bo'-nē,	bo'-nā,	bo'-nūm,
Ab.	bo'-nō.	bo'-nā.	bo'-nō.

Plural.

N.	bo'-nī,	bo'-næ,	bo'-nā,
G.	bo'-nō'-rūm,	bo'-nā'-rūm,	bo'-nō'-rūm,
D.	bo'-nīs,	bo'-nīs,	bo'-nīs,
Ac.	bo'-nōs,	bo'-nās,	bo'-nā,
V.	bo'-nī,	bo'-næ,	bo'-nā,
Ab.	bo'-nīs.	bo'-nīs.	bo'-nīs.

In like manner decline

Al'-tus, high .	Fī'-dus, faithful .	Lon'-gue, long .
A-vā'-rus, covetous .	Im'-prō-bus, wicked .	Plē'-nus, full .
Be-nig'-nus, kind .	In-i'-quus, unjust .	Tac'-i-tus, silent .

REM. 2. Like bönus are also declined all participles in us; as,
A-mā'-tus. Am-a-tū'-rus. A-man'-dus.

Rem. 3. The masculine of the vocative singular of adjectives in us is sometimes like the nominative; as, O vir fortis atque amicus. Hor. Meus has both mi and meus.

REM. 4. The genitive plural of distributive numerals ends commonly in um instead of orum; as, crassitudo binūm digitorum. Plin.

3. Těner, tender.

Singular.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	te'-něr,	ten'-ě-rā,	ten'-ě-rūm,
G.	ten'-ě-ri,	ten'-ě-ræ,	ten'-ě-ri,
D.	ten'-ě-rō,	ten'-ě-ræ,	ten'-ě-rō,
Ac.	ten'-ě-rūm,	ten'-ě-rām,	ten'-ě-rūm,
V.	te'-něr,	ten'-ě-rā,	ten'-ě-rūm,
Ab.	ten'-ě-rō.	ten'-ě-rā.	ten'-ě-rō.

Plural.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	ten'-ě-ri,	ten'-ě-ræ,	ten'-ě-rā,
G.	ten-e-rō-rūm,	ten-e-rā-rūm,	ten-e-rō-rūm,
D.	ten'-ě-ri,	ten'-ě-ri,	ten'-ě-ri,
Ac.	ten'-ě-rōs,	ten'-ě-rās,	ten'-ě-rā,
V.	ten'-ě-ri,	ten'-ě-ræ,	ten'-ě-rā,
Ab.	ten'-ě-ri.	ten'-ě-ri.	ten'-ě-ri.

In like manner are declined

As'-per, rough .	Lă'-cer, torn .	Pros'-per, prosperous .
Ex'-ter, foreign .	Li'-ber, free .	Să'-tur, full .
Gib'-ber, crook-backed .	Mi'-ser, wretched .

So also alter, except in the genitive and dative singular (see § 107), semifer and the compounds of géro and féro; as, laniger, opifer.

NOTE. Prosper is less frequent than prosperus, and exter is scarcely used in the nominative singular masculine.

§ 106. The other adjectives in er drop e in declension; as,

Piger, slothful.

Singular.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	pi'-gěr,	pi'-grā,	pi'-grūm,
G.	pi'-grī,	pi'-græ,	pi'-grī,
D.	pi'-grō,	pi'-græ,	pi'-grō,
Ac.	pi'-grūm,	pi'-grām,	pi'-grūm,
V.	pi'-gěr,	pi'-grā,	pi'-grūm,
Ab.	pi'-grō.	pi'-grā.	pi'-grō.

Plural.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	pi'-grī,	pi'-græ,	pi'-grā,
G.	pi-grō-rūm,	pi-grā-rūm,	pi-grō-rūm,
D.	pi'-gris,	pi'-gris,	pi'-gris,
Ac.	pi'-grōs,	pi'-grās,	pi'-grā,
V.	pi'-grī,	pi'-græ,	pi'-grā,
Ab.	pi'-gris.	pi'-gris.	pi'-gris.

In like manner decline

Æ'-gēr, sick.	Mā'-cer, lean.	Scā'-ber, rough.
A'-ter, black.	Nī'-ger, black.	Si-nis'-ter, left.
Crē'-ber, frequent.	Pul'-cher, fair.	Tē'-ter, foul.
Glā'-ber, smooth.	Rū'-ber, red.	Vā'-fer, crafty.
In'-tē-ger, entire.	Sā'-cer, sacred.

Dexter, right, has -tra, -trum, and less frequently -tera, -terum.

§ 107. Six adjectives in us, and three in er, have their genitive singular in ius, and their dative in i, in all the genders:—

Alius, another.	Tōtus, whole.	Alter, -tēra, -tērum, the other.
Nullus, no one.	Ullus, any.	Uter, -tra, -trum, which of the two.
Sōlus, alone.	Unus, one.	Neuter, -tra, -trum, neither.

To these may be added the other compounds of ūter,—namely, uterque, each of two; uterlibet, and utervis, which of the two you please; gen. utriusque, etc.—also, alterūter, one of two; gen. alterutrius, and sometimes alterius utrius; dat. alterutri. So alteruterque, and unusquisque. See § 183, 4.

Nullus, sōlus, tōtus, ullus, and ūnus are thus declined:—

	Singular.
	Masc.	Fem.
N.	ū'-nūs,	ū'-nā,
G.	u-nī'-ūs,*	u-nī'-ūs,
D.	u'-nī,	u'-nī,
Ac.	u'-nūm,	u'-nām,
V.	u'-nē,	u'-nā,
Ab.	u'-nō.	u'-nā.

The plural is regular, like that of bōnus.

REMARK 1. Alius has aliud in the nominative and accusative singular neuter, and in the genitive alius, contracted for aliūus.

REM. 2. Except in the genitive and dative singular, alter is declined like īter, and ūter and neuter like piger.

REM. 3. Some of these adjectives, in early writers, and occasionally even in Cicero, Cæsar, and Nepos, form their genitive and dative regularly, like bōnus, īter, or piger.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

§ 108. Some adjectives of the third declension have three terminations in the nominative singular; some two; and others only one.

I. Those of three terminations end in er, masc.; is, fem.; and e, neut.; and are thus declined:—

Acer, sharp.

Singular.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	ā'-cēr,	ā'-cris,	ā'-crē,

V.	a'-crēs,	a'-crēs,	a'-cri-ā,
Ab.	ac'-ri-būs.	ac'-ri-būs.	ac'-ri-būs.

In like manner are declined the following;—

A'-ācer, cheerful.	Pa-lus'-ter, marshy.	Sil-ves'-ter, woody.
Cam-pes'-ter, champaign.	Pe-des'-ter, on foot.	Ter-res'-ter, terrestrial.
Cel'-ē-ber, famous.	Pū'-ter, rotten.	Vol'-ū-er, winged.
E-ques'-tor, equestrian.	Sa-lū'-ber, wholesome.

To these add names of months in -ber, used as adjectives; as, October, etc. (cf. § 71), and celer, swift, which has celēris, celēre; gen. celēris, etc.

REMARK 1. The termination er was anciently sometimes feminine; as, volūcer fama. Petr.: and, on the other hand, the masculine often ends in is; as, collis silvestris, Cæs.

REM. 2. Volūcer has um in the genitive plural.

§ 109. II. Adjectives of two terminations end in is for the masculine and feminine, and e for the neuter, except comparatives, which end in or and us.

Those in is, e, are thus declined:—

Mitis mild.

NOTE. A few adjectives of one termination have redundant forms in us, a, um; see § 116.

RULES FOR THE OBLIQUE CASES OF ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

GENITIVE SINGULAR.

§ 112. Most adjectives of the third declension form their genitive singular like nouns of the same termination.

The following may here be specified:—

1. Of those in es (cf. § 73) some have -ētis; as, hēbes, perpes, præpes, and lēres—inques and locuples have -ētis;—some have -itis; as, dives, sospes, and superstes;—some have -idis; as, dēses, and rēses;—bīpes, and trīpes have -pēdis;—pūbes has pubēris, and impūbes, impubēris and impūbis.

* Pronounced fe-lish'-e-um, etc. See § 10, Exe., and § 7, 3, (b.)

† Pronounced præ-sen'-she-a, etc.

2. Compos and impos have -ōtis, and exos, exosis.—Exlex has exlēgis, pernox has pernoxētis (§ 78), præcox, præcōcis, and redux, reducis.—Crucis has calibis (§ 77); intercus, intercūtis, and vētus, vetēris. Those in ceps which are compounds of cāpiō, have -cipitis; as, anceps, præceps (§ 78, 1); but the compounds of ceps from cāpiō have -ipis; as, particeps, participis.—Those in cor, compounds of cor, have -cordis; as, concor, concordis (§ 71, Exc. 2).—Mēmor and immēmor have -ōris.

ABLATIVE SINGULAR.

§ 113. 1. Adjectives which have e in the nominative singular neuter have only i in the ablative.

Exc. 1. The ablatives bimestre, caleste, and perenne are found in Ovid, and eognomine in Virgil.

2. Comparatives and participles in ns, when used as participles, especially in the ablative absolute, have rather e than i; but participial adjectives in ns have rather i than e.

3. Adjectives of one termination have either e or i in the ablative.

Exc. 2. The following adjectives of one termination have only e in the ablative:—

Bicorpor, bīpes, cælebs, compos, dæses, discolor, hospes, impos, impūbes, juvenis, locuples, pauper, princeps, pūber or pūbes, sénex, sospes, superstes, tricorpor, tricuspis, and tripes.

Exc. 3. The following adjectives of one termination have only i in the ablative:—

Anceps, concor, discors, hēbes, immēmor, iners, ingens, inops, mēmor, par, præceps, rérens, rēpens, vīgil, and most adjectives in z, especially those in plex.

REM. 1. Inerte occurs in Ovid, recente in Ovid and Catullus, and præcipe in Ennius.

REM. 2. Præsens, when used of things, makes the ablative in i; when used of persons, it has e.

NOMINATIVE, ACCUSATIVE, AND GENITIVE PLURAL

§ 114. 1. The neuter of the nominative and accusative plural ends in ia, and the genitive plural of all genders in ium; but comparatives in or, with vētus, old, and uber, fertile, have a, and um.

2. The accusative plural of masculine and feminine adjectives, whose genitive plural ends in ium, anciently ended in is or ās, instead of ēs. Cf. § 86, Exc. 1.

Exc. 1. Those adjectives that have only e in the ablative singular, have um in the genitive plural.

Exc. 2. Compounds of fāciō, cāpiō, and of such nouns as make um in their genitive plural, with cēler, compar, cicur, dives, mēmor, immēmor, præces, supplex, and vīgil, make their genitive plural in um.

Exc. 3. Dis, locuples, sons, and insons have either um or ium. The poets and the later prose writers sometimes form the genitive plural of other adjectives and of participles in ns, by syncope, in um, instead of ium; as, calestum, Virg. Ovid, etc.

IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES.

§ 115. Some adjectives are defective, others redundant.

DEFECTIVE ADJECTIVES.

1. (a.) Many adjectives denoting personal qualities or attributes want the neuter gender, unless when occasionally joined to a neuter substantive used figuratively. Such are the following :—

Bicorpor, bipes, cælebs, compos, consors, degēner, dives, impos, impūbes, industrius, inops, insons, invitus, juvenis, locuples, mēmor, pauper, particeps princeps, pūber, or pūbes, rēdux, sēnex, sons, sospes, superstes, supplex, tricorpor, vigil.

(b.) Victrix and ultrix are feminine in the singular, seldom neuter; in the plural, they are feminine and neuter. Such verbals partake of the nature both of substantives and adjectives, and correspond to masculines in tor. See § 102, 6, (a.)

2. The following want the genitive plural, and are rarely used in the neuter gender :—

Concōlor, dēses, hēbes, perpes, rēses, tēses, versicōlor.

3. The names of months, which are properly adjectives, have only the masculine and feminine genders.

4. Some adjectives are wholly indeclinable.

Such are frāgi, temperate; nēquam, worthless; sūt or sūtis, sufficient; the plurals aliqui, idē, quōt, totidem, quotquot; and the cardinal numbers from quatuor to centum inclusive, and also mille. Cf. § 118, 1, and 6, (b.)

5. The following adjectives are used only in certain cases :—

Bilicem, acc.; doubly-tissued. Cetēra, cetērū, the rest, wants the nom. sing. masc. Decempliciem, acc.; tenfold. Exspes, nom.; hopeless. Inquies, nom.; -ētem, acc.; -ēte, abl.; restless. Mactus, and macte, nom.; macte, acc.; honored; -macti, nom. plur. Necesse, and necessum, nom., acc.; necessary. Plus, nom., acc.; plūris, gen.; more; —pl. plūres, -a, nom. acc.; -ium gen.; ibus, dat., abl. Cf. § 110. Postēra, postērū, coming after, wants the nom. sing. masc. Pōtis, nom. sing. and pl., all genders; able. Pōte, nom. sing., for potest; possible. Septempliciis, gen.; -ce, abl.; seven-fold. Siremps, and sirempse, nom. ant. acc., alike. Tantundem, nom. acc.; tantidem, gen.; tantandem, acc.; so much. Trilicem, acc.; trebly-tissued; trilices, nom. and acc. pl.

REDUNDANT ADJECTIVES.

§ 116. The following adjectives are redundant in termination and declension. Those marked r are more rarely used.

Ascivis, and -us, r, ascending.

Auxiliāris, and -ius, auxiliary.

Bijūgis, and -us, yoked two together.

Declivis, and -us, r, descending.

Exanimis, and -us, r, lifeless.

Hilāris, and -us, cheerful.

Imbecillis, r, and -us, weak.

Impūbes, and -is, r, -is or -ēris, not grown up.

Inermis, and -us, r, unarmed.

Infrēnis, and -us, unbridled.

Inquies, and -ētus, restless.

Joculāris, and -ius, r, laughable.

Multijūgis, r, and -us, yoked many to gether.

Opūlens, and -lētus, rich.

Præcox, -cōquis, and -cōquus, early ripe.

Proclivis, and -us, r, sloping.

Quadrijūgis, and -us, yoked four to gether.

Semianimis, and -us, half alive.

Semierais, and -us, half armed.
Semisomnis, and -us, half asleep.
Singularis, and -ius, single.

Sublimis, and -us, r, high.
Unanimis, r, and -us, unanimous.
Violens, r, and -lentus, violent.

To these may be added some adjectives in er and is; as, saxifer and -bris, celler and -bris. Cf. § 108, R. 1.

NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

§ 117. Numeral adjectives are divided into three principal classes—Cardinal, Ordinal, and Distributive.

I. Cardinal numbers are those which simply denote the number of things, in answer to the question Quot? 'How many?' They are,

1. Unus,	one.	I.
2. Duo,	two.	II.
3. Tres,	three.	III.
4. Quatuor,	four.	III. or IV.
5. Quinque,	five.	V.
6. Sex,	six.	VI.
7. Septem,	seven.	VII.
8. Octo,	eight.	VIII.
9. Nōvem,	nine.	VIII. or IX.
10. Dēcem,	ten.	X.
11. Undēcim,	eleven.	XI.
12. Duodēcim,	twelve.	XII.
13. Tredēcim,	thirteen.	XIII.
14. Quatuordēcim,	fourteen.	XIII. or XIV.
15. Quindēcim,	fifteen.	XV.
16. Sedēcim, or sexdēcim,	sixteen.	XVI.
17. Septendēcim,	seventeen.	XVII.
18. Octodēcim,	eighteen.	XVIII.
19. Novendēcim,	nineteen.	XVIII. or XIX.
20. Viginti,	twenty.	XX.
21. Viginti unus, or unus et viginti, }	twenty-one.	XXI.
22. Viginti duo, or duo et viginti, etc., }	twenty-two.	XXII.
30. Trīginta,	thirty.	XXX.
40. Quādrāginta,	forty.	XXXX. or XL.
50. Quinquaginta,	fifty.	L.
60. Sexaginta,	sixty.	LX.
70. Septuaginta,	seventy.	LXX.
80. Octoginta, or octuaginta,	eighty.	LXXX.
90. Nōnāginta,	ninety.	LXXX. or XC.
100. Centum,	a hundred.	C.
101. Centum unus, or centum et unus, etc., }	a hundred and one.	CI.
200. Dūcenti, -ae, a,	two hundred.	CC.
300. Trēcenti, etc.,	three hundred.	CCC.
400. Quadringenti,	four hundred.	CCC. or CD.
500. Quingenti,	five hundred.	ID. or D.
600. Sexcenti,	six hundred.	IDC. or DC.
700. Septingenti,	seven hundred.	IDCC. or DCC.
800. Octingenti,	eight hundred.	IDCCC. or DCCC.
900. Nongenti,	nine hundred.	IDCCCC. or DCCCC.
1000. Mille,	a thousand.	CIJ. or M.
2000. Duo millia, or bis mille, }	two thousand.	CICICJ. or MM.

5000	Quinque millia, or quinquies mille, }	five thousand.	IDD.
10000	Decem millia, or decies mille, }	ten thousand.	CCIDD.
50000	Quinquaginta millia, or quinquagies mille, }	fifty thousand.	IDDD.
100000	Centum millia, or centies mille, }	a hundred thousand.	CCCIDDD.

§ 118. 1. The first three cardinal numbers are declined; from four to a hundred inclusive they are indeclinable; those denoting hundreds are declined like the plural of bōnus.

For the declension of ūnus and tres, see §§ 107 and 109.

Duo is thus declined :—

Plural.
M.	F.	N.
N. dū'-o,	du'-æ,	du'-o,
G. du-ŏ'-rum,	du-ŏ'-rum,	du-ŏ'-rum,
D. du-ŏ'-bus,	du-ŏ'-bus,	du-ŏ'-bus,
Ac. du'-os, or du'-o,	du'-as,	du'-o,
V. du'-o,	du'-æ,	du'-o,
Ab. du-ŏ'-bus.	du-ŏ'-bus.	du-ŏ'-bus.

REMARK 1. Duŏrum, duŏrum, are often contracted into duŏm, especially in compounds; as, duŏmivir, and when joined with millium.—Ambo, both, which partakes of the nature of a numeral and of a pronoun, is declined like duo.

2. The cardinal numbers, except ūnus and mille, are used in the plural only.

REM. 2. The plural of unus is used with nouns which have no singular, or whose singular has a different sense from the plural; as, unæ nuptiæ, one marriage; una castra, one camp. It is used also with nouns denoting several things considered as one whole; as, una vestimenta, one suit of clothes. So also, when it takes the signification of "alone" or "the same"; as, uni Ubii, the Ubians alone; unis moribus vivere,—with the same manners.

3. (a.) Thirteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, and nineteen, are often expressed by two numbers, the greater of which usually precedes, united by et; thus, décem et tres, décem et novem, or, omitting et, décem novem. Octodécim has no good authority. See infra, 4.

(b.) From twenty to a hundred, the smaller number with et is put first, or the greater without et; as, unus et viginti, or viginti unus. Above one hundred, the greater precedes, with or without et; as, centum et unus, or centum unus, trecenti sexaginta sex, or trecenti et sexaginta sex. Et is never twice used, but the poets sometimes take ac, atque, or que, instead of et.

4. For eighteen, twenty-eight, etc., and for nineteen, twenty-nine, etc. (excepting sixty-eight, sixty-nine, and ninety-eight), a subtractive expression is more frequent than the additive form; as, duodeviginti, two from twenty; undeviginti, one from twenty; duodetriginta, undetriginta, etc. Neither un (unus) nor duo can be declined in these combinations. The additive forms for thirty-eight, etc. to ninety-eight, and for forty-nine, etc. to ninety-nine, except those for sixty-nine, seem not to occur.

5. (a.) Thousands are generally expressed by prefixing the smaller cardinal numbers to millia: as, décem millia, ten thousand; ducenta millia, two hundred thousand. As there is in Latin no unit above mille, a thousand, the higher units of modern numeration are expressed by prefixing the numeral adverbs to the combination centēna millia; as, decies centēna millia, a million; centies centēna millia, ten millions. In such combinations centēna millia is sometimes omitted; as, decies, scil. centēna millia.

(b.) The poets sometimes make use of numeral adverbs in expressing smaller numbers; as, bis sex for duodēcim; bis centum for ducenti, etc.

6. Mille is used either as a substantive or as an adjective.

(a.) When taken substantively, it is indeclinable in the singular number, and, in the plural, has milīa, milīum, milībūs, etc.; as, mille homīnum, a thousand men; duo milīa homīnum, two thousand men, etc. When mille is a substantive, the things numbered are put in the genitive, as in the preceding examples, unless a declined numeral comes between; as, habuit tria milīa trecentos milites.

(b.) As an adjective, mille is plural only, and indeclinable: as, mille homines, a thousand men; cum bis mille hominibus, with two thousand men.

7. Capitals were used by the Romans to mark numbers. The letters employed for this purpose were C. I. L. V. X., which are, therefore, called Numerical Letters. I. denotes one; V. five; X. ten; L. fifty; and C. a hundred. By the various combinations of these five letters, all the different numbers are expressed.

(a.) The repetition of a numeral letter repeats its value. Thus, II. signifies two; III. three; XX. twenty; XXX. thirty; CC. two hundred, etc. But V. and L. are never repeated.

(b.) When a letter of a less value is placed before a letter of a greater value, the less takes away its value from the greater; but being placed after, it adds its value to the greater; thus,

IV. Four.	V. Five.	VI. Six.
IX. Nine.	X. Ten.	XI. Eleven.
XL. Forty.	L. Fifty.	LX. Sixty.
XC. Ninety.	C. A hundred.	CX. A hundred and ten.

(c.) A thousand was marked thus, CIO, which, in later times, was contracted into M. Five hundred is marked thus, IO, or, by contraction, D.

(d.) The annexing of the apostrophus or inverted C (∩) to IO makes its value ten times greater; thus, IO∩ marks five thousand; and IO∩∩, fifty thousand.

(e.) The prefixing of C, together with the annexing of ∩, to the number CIO makes its value ten times greater; thus, CCIO∩ denotes ten thousand; and CCCIO∩∩, a hundred thousand. The Romans, according to Pliny, proceeded no further in this method of notation. If they had occasion to express a larger number, they did it by repetition; thus, CCCIO∩∩, CCCIO∩∩, signified two hundred thousand, etc.

(f.) We sometimes find thousands expressed by a straight line drawn over the top of the numeral letters. Thus, IIĪ. denotes three thousand; X̄., ten thousand.

§ 119. II. Ordinal numbers are such as denote order or rank, and answer to the question, Quālus? Which of the numbers? They all end in us, and are declined like bōnus; as, primus, first; secundus, second.

III. Distributive numbers are those which indicate an equal division among several persons or things, and answer to the question, Quotēni? How many apiece? as, singūli, one by one, or, one to each; bini, two by two, or two to each, etc. They are always used in the plural, and are declined like the plural of bōnus, except that they usually have um instead of orum in the genitive plural. Cf. § 105, R. 4.

The following table contains the ordinal and distributive numbers, and the corresponding numeral adverbs, which answer to the question, Quoties? How many times?—

Ordinal.	Distributive.	Numeral Adverbs.
1. Primus, first.	Singŭli, one by one.	Sēm̄el, once.
2. Sēcundus, second.	Bini, two by two.	Bis, twice.
3. Tertius, third.	Terni, or trini.	Ter, thrice.
4. Quartus, fourth.	Quaterni.	Quāter, four times.
5. Quintus, fifth.	Quini.	Quinquies.
6. Sextus, sixth.	Sēni.	Sexies.
7. Septimus, seventh.	Septēni.	Septies.
8. Octāvus, eighth.	Octōni.	Octies.
9. Nōnus, ninth.	Novēni.	Novies.
10. Dēcimus, tenth, etc.	Dēni.	Dēcies.
11. Undecimus.	Undēni.	Undecies.
12. Duodecimus.	Duodēni.	Duodecies.
13. Tertius decimus.	Terni dēni.	Terdecies.
14. Quartus decimus.	Quaterni dēni.	Quatuordecies.
15. Quintus decimus.	Quini dēni.	Quindecies.
16. Sextus decimus.	Sēni dēni.	Sedecies.
17. Septimus decimus.	Septēni dēni.	Dēcies et septies.
18. Octāvus decimus.	Octōni dēni.	Duodevicies.
19. Nōnus decimus.	Novēni dēni.	Undevicies.
20. { Vicēsīmus, or vigesīmus. }	Vicēni.	Vicies.
21. Vicēsīmus primus.	Vicēni singŭli.	Semel et vices.
22. Vicēsīmus secundus.	Vicēni bini, etc.	Bis et vices, etc.
30. { Tricesīmus, or trigesīmus. }	Tricēni.	Tricies.
40. Quadragesīmus.	Quadragēni.	Quadrages.
50. Quinquagesīmus.	Quinquagēni.	Quinquages.
60. Sexagesīmus.	Sexagēni.	Sexages.
70. Septuagesīmus.	Septuagēni.	Septuages.
80. Octogesīmus.	Octogēni.	Octoges.
90. Nonagesīmus.	Nonagēni.	Nonages.
100. Centēsīmus.	Centēni.	Centies.
200. Dūcentēsīmus.	Ducēni.	Ducenties.
300. Trēcentēsīmus.	Trecēni, or trecentēni.	{ Trecenties, or tricenties. }
400. Quadrīngentesīmus	{ Quadrīngēni, or quadrīngentēni. }	Quadrīngenties.
500. Quīngentesīmus.	Quīngēni.	Quīngenties.
600. Sexcentēsīmus.	Sexcēni, or sexcentēni.	Sexcenties.
700. Septīngentesīmus.	Septīngēni.	Septīngenties.
800. Octīngentesīmus.	Octīngēni.	Octīngenties.
900. Nongentesīmus.	Nongēni.	Nongenties.
1000. Millesīmus.	{ Millēni, or singŭla millia. }	Millies.
2000. Bis millesīmus.	{ Bis millēni, or bina millia. }	Bis millies.

§ 120. 1. In the ordinals, instead of primus, prior is used, if only two are spoken of. Alter is often used for secundus.

2. (a. From thirteenth to nineteenth, the smaller number is usually put first, without et; as, tertius decimus, but sometimes the greater with or without et; as, decimus et tertius, or decimus tertius.

(b.) Twenty-first, thirty-first, etc., are often expressed by unus et vicesīmus, unus et tricesīmus, etc., one and twentieth, etc.; and twenty-second, etc., by duo, or alter et vicesīmus, etc., in which duo is not changed. In the other compound numbers, the larger precedes without et, or the smaller with et; as, vicesīmus quartus, or quartus et vicesīmus.

(c.) For eighteenth, etc., to fifty-eighth, and for nineteenth, etc. to fifty-ninth, the subtractive forms, duodevicesimus, etc., and undevicesimus, etc., are often used.

3. In the distributives, eighteen, thirty-eight, forty-eight, and nineteen and twenty-nine, are often expressed by the subtractives duodevicesimī, etc., undevicesimī, etc.

4. (a.) Distributives are sometimes used by the poets for cardinal numbers; as, binā spīcula, two darts. Virg. So likewise in prose, with nouns that want the singular; as, binæ nuptiæ, two weddings.

(b.) The singular of some distributives is used in the sense of multiplicatives; as, binus, twofold. So ternus, quīnus, septēnus.

5. In the numeral adverbs, for the intermediate numbers 21, 22, etc., the larger number also may be put first, either with or without et; and for twenty-nine times and thirty-nine times, duodevicesies and undequadragesies are found.

§ 121. To the preceding classes may be added the following:—

1. Multiplicatives, which denote how many fold, in answer to the question, quotīplex? They all end in plex, and are declined like fēlix; as, Simplex, single.

Dūplex, twofold, or double.

Triplex, threefold.

Quadrūplex, fourfold.

Quīnecūplex, fivefold.

Septēplex, sevenfold.

Decēplex, tenfold.

Centūplex, a hundred fold.

2. Proportionals, which denote how many times one thing is greater than another; as, dūplus, a, um, twice as great; so trīplus, quadrūplus, octūplus, decūplus. They are generally found only in the neuter.

3. Temporals, which denote time; as, binus, a, um, two years old; so trīnus, quadrīnus, etc. Also, biennis, lasting two years, biennial; so quadrīennis, quīnquennis, etc. So also, bimestris, of two months' continuance; trimestris, etc., biduus, etc. To these may be added certain nouns, compounds of annus and dies with the cardinal numbers; as, biennium, triennium, etc., a period of two, etc. years; biduum, triduum, etc., a period of two, etc. days.

4. Adjectives in arius, derived from the distributives, and denoting of how many equal parts or units a thing consists; as, binarius, of two parts; ternarius, etc.

5. Interrogatives; as, quot, how many? quotus, of what number? quotīni, how many each? quoties, how many times? Their correlatives are tot, totidem, so many; aliquot, some; which, with quot, are indeclinable; and the adverbs, toties, so often; aliquoties, several times.

6. Fractional expressions, which denote the parts of a thing. These are expressed in Latin by pars with dimidia, tertia, quarta, etc. Thus, $\frac{1}{2}$, dimidia pars; $\frac{1}{3}$, tertia pars, etc. When the number of parts into which a thing is divided exceeds by one only the parts mentioned, as in $\frac{1}{3}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, etc. the fraction is expressed simply by duæ, tres, etc. partes, denoting two out of three, three out of four, etc.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

§ 122. 1. Adjectives may be divided into two classes—those which denote a variable, and those which denote an invariable, quality or limitation.

Thus, bōnus, good, altus, high, and opācus, dark, denote variable attributes; but ancus, brazen, trīplex, threefold, and diurnus, daily, do not admit of different degrees in their signification.

2. The comparison of an adjective is the expression of its quality in different degrees.

3. There are three degrees of comparison—the positive, the comparative, and the superlative.

4. The positive simply denotes a quality, without reference to other degrees of the same quality; as, altus, high; mitis, mild.

5. The comparative denotes that a quality belongs to one of two objects, or sets of objects, in a greater degree than to the other; as, altior, higher; mitior, milder.

6. The superlative denotes that a quality belongs to one of several objects, or sets of objects, in a greater degree than to any of the rest; as, altissimus, highest; mitissimus, mildest.

REM. 1. Sometimes also the comparative denotes that a quality, at different times or in other circumstances, belongs in different degrees to the same object as, est sapientior quam fuit, he is wiser than he was.

REM. 2. The comparative sometimes expresses the proportion between two qualities of the same object; as, est doctior quam sapientior, he is more learned than wise; that is, his learning is greater than his wisdom.

REM. 3. The comparative is also used elliptically instead of our 'too' or 'rather'; as, vixit liberius, he lives too freely, or, rather freely. Cf. § 256, R. 9

REM. 4. The superlative, like the positive with per, (cf. § 127, 2), often indicates a high degree of a quality without direct comparison with the same quality in other objects; as, amicus carissimus, a very dear friend.

§ 123. 1. Degrees of a quality inferior to the positive may be denoted by the adverbs minus, less; minime, least, prefixed to the positive; as, jucundus, pleasant; minus jucundus, less pleasant; minime jucundus, least pleasant.

2. A small degree of a quality is indicated by sub prefixed to the positive; as, amarus, bitter; subamarus, bitterish, or, somewhat bitter.

3. An equal degree of a quality may be denoted by tam followed by quam aque followed by ac, sic followed by ut, etc.; as, hæbes, aque ac pécus, as stupid as a brute.

§ 124. 1. The comparative and superlative in Latin, as in English, are denoted either by peculiar terminations, or by certain adverbs prefixed to the positive. Cf. § 127, 1.

2. The terminational comparative ends in ior, ior, ius; the terminational superlative in issimus, issima, issimum.

3. These terminations are added to the root of the positive; as, altus, altior, altissimus; high, higher, highest. mitis, mitior, mitissimus; mild, milder, mildest. felix, (gen. felicis), felicior, felicissimus; happy, happier, happiest.

In like manner compare

Ar'-tus, strait.

Crû-dê'-lis, cruel.

Câ'-pax, capacious.

Câ'-tus, dear.

Fer'-ti-lis, fertile.

Clê'-mens, (gen. -tis) merciful.

Doc'-tus, learned.

Lê'-vis, light.

In'-ers, (gen. -tis), sluggish.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

§ 125. 1. Adjectives in er form their superlative by adding rimus to that termination; as, acer, active; gen. acris; comparative, acrior; superlative, acerrimus.

In like manner, pauper, pauperimus. Vetus has a similar superlative, veterinus, from the old collateral form veter.

2. Six adjectives in lis form their superlative by adding issimus to the root:—

Facilis,	facilior,	facillimus,	easy.
Difficilis,	difficilior,	difficillimus,	difficult.
Gracilis,	gracilior,	gracillimus,	slender.
Humilis,	humilior,	humillimus,	low.
Similis,	similior,	simillimus,	like.
Dissimilis,	dissimilior,	dissimillimus,	unlike.

Imbecillus or imbecilis, weak, has two forms, imbecillissimus and imbecillimus.

3. (a.) Five adjectives in ficus (from ficio) derive their comparatives and superlatives from supposed forms in ens:—

Beneficus,	beneficentior,	beneficentissimus,	beneficent.
Honorificus,	honorificentior,	honorificentissimus,	honorable.
Magnificus,	magnificentior,	magnificentissimus,	splendid.
Munificus,	munificentior,	munificentissimus,	liberal.
Maleficus,	maleficentior,	maleficentissimus,	hurtful.

(b.) Adjectives in dicens and volens form their comparatives and superlatives regularly; but instead of those positives, forms in dicus and vólus are more common; as,

Maledicens or dicus, maledicentior, maledicentissimus, slanderous.

Benevolens, or -vólus, benevolentior, benevolentissimus, benevolent.

4. These five have regular comparatives, but irregular superlatives:—

Dexter,	dexterior,	dextimus,	right.
Extēra, (fem.)	exterior,	extrēmus, or extimus,	outward.
Postēra, (fem.)	posterior,	postrēmus, or postūmus,	hind.
Inferus,	inferior,	infimus, or imus,	below.
Supērus,	superior,	suprēmus, or summus,	above.

REMARK 1. The nominative singular of postēra does not occur in the masculine, and that of extēra wants good authority.

5. The following are very irregular in comparison:—

Bonus,	melior,	optimus,	good,	better,	best.
Mālus,	pējor,	peſsimus,	bad,	worse,	worst.
Magnus,	mājor,	maximus,	great,	greater,	greatest.
Parvus,	minor,	minimus,	little,	less,	least.
Multus,	—	plurimus,	much, more, most.
Multa,	—	plurima,
Multum,	plus,*	plurimum,
Nēquam,	nequior,	nequissimus,	worthless, etc.
Frūgi,	frugalior,	frugalissimus,	frugal, etc.

REMARK 2. All these, except magnus, whose regular forms are contracted, either form their comparatives and superlatives from obsolete adjectives, or take them from other words of similar signification.

DEFECTIVE COMPARISON.

§ 126. 1. Seven adjectives want the positive:—

Citorior, citimus, nearer.	Prior, primus, former.
Deterior, deterrimus, worse.	Propior, proximus, nearer.
Interior, intimus, inner.	Uterior, ultimus, farther.
Ocio, ocisarius, swifter.

* See § 110.

2. Eight want the terminational comparative :—

Consultus, consultissimus, skilful.
 Inclutus, inclutissimus, renowned.
 Invictus, invictissimus, invincible.
 Invitus, invitissimus, unwilling.
 Meritus, meritissimus, (very rare,) deserving.

Par, parissimus, (very rare), equus.
 Persuâsus, persuasissimus (neuter) persuaded.
 Sacer, sacrissimus, sacred.

3. Eight have very rarely the terminational comparative :—

Apricus, apricissimus, sunny.
 Bellus, bellissimus, fine.
 Cômis, comissimus, courteous.
 Diversus, diversissimus, different.

Falsus, falsissimus, false.
 Fidus, fidissimus, faithful.
 Nôvus, novissimus, new.
 Vêtus, veterrimus, old.

4. The following want the terminational superlative :—

Adolescens, adolescentior, young.
 Agrestis, agrestior, rustic.
 Alacer, alacrior, active.
 Ater, atrior, black.
 Cæcus, cæcior, blind.
 Dœses, desidior, inactive.
 Diuturnus, diuturnior, lasting.
 Infinitus, infinitior, unlimited.
 Ingens, ingentior, great.
 Jejûnus, jejunior, fasting.
 Juvênis, junior, young.
 Licens, licentior, unrestrained.
 Longinquus, longinquior, distant.
 Optimus, opimior, rich.

Proclivis, proclivior, sloping.
 Prônus, pronior, bending down.
 Protervus, protervior, violent.
 — sequior, worse.
 Propinquus, propinquior, near.
 Salutâris, salutarior, salutary.
 Sâtis, sufficient; satius, preferable.
 Sâtur, saturior, full.
 Sênex, senior, old.
 Silvestris, silvestrior, woody.
 Sinister, sinisterior, left.
 Supinus, supinior, lying on the back.
 Surdus, surdior, deaf.
 Têres, teretior, round.

REMARK 1. The superlative of juvênis and adolescens is supplied by minimus nâtu, youngest; and that of sênex by maximus nâtu, oldest. The comparatives minor nâtu and major nâtu sometimes also occur.

REM. 2. Most adjectives also in ilîs, ilîs, âlis, and bilîs, have no terminational superlative.

5. Many variable adjectives have no terminational comparative or superlative. Such are,

(a.) Adjectives in bundus, imûs, imûs (except divimûs), ôrûs, most in ivûs, and in us pure (except -quûs.) Yet arduûs, assiduûs, egregiuûs, exiguûs, industriuûs, perpetuûs, piûs, strenuûs, and vacuûs, have sometimes a terminational comparison. So, dropping i, noxior, innoziôr, sobrior.

(b.) The following—almûs, calvûs, cânûs, ctur, claudûs, degênêr, delirûs, dispar, egênûs, impar, impiger, invidûs, lâcer, mêmor, mîrus, nûdûs, præcôz, prædûs, rûdis, salvûs, sopes, superstes, vulgâris, and some others.

§ 127. 1. The comparative and superlative may also be formed by prefixing to the positive the adverbs mâgis, more, and maxime, most; as, idoneûs, fit; magis idoneûs, maxime idoneûs.

2. Various degrees of a quality above the positive are expressed by admôdum, aliquanto, apprîme, bête, imprimis, multum, ppido, perquam, and valde, and also by per compounded with the positive; as, difficilis, difficult; perdifficilis, very difficult. To a few adjectives præ is in like manner prefixed; as, prædûrus, very hard.

3. The force of the comparative is increased by prefixing etiam, even, still, or yet; and that of both comparative and superlative, by prefixing longe or multo, much, far; as, longe nobilissimus; longe melior hæc multo facilius; multo maxima pars.

4. Vel, 'even', and quam, with or without possum, 'as much as possible', before the superlative, render it more emphatic; as, Cicero vel optimus oratorum Romanorum. Quam maximum potest militum numerum colligit, quam doctissimus, extremely learned; quam celerrime, as speedily as possible.

NOTE 1. Instead of quam with possum, quantus is sometimes used, in the same case as the superlative; as, Quantis maximis potuit itineribus contendit.

NOTE 2. Unus, with or without omnium, is sometimes added to superlatives to increase their force; as, Hoc ego uno omnium plurimum scior. Cic. Urbeni unam mihi amicissimam declinavi, Id. It is used in like manner with excello.

5. All adjectives whose signification admits of different degrees, if they have no terminational comparison, may be compared by means of adverbs.

6. Instead of the comparative and superlative degrees, the positive with the prepositions pro, ante, præter, or supra, is sometimes used; as, pro nobis beatius, happier than we. Cic. Ante alias pulchritudine insignis, most beautiful. Liv. Sometimes the preposition is used in connection with the superlative; as, Ante alias pulcherrimus omnes. Virg.

7. Among adjectives which denote an invariable quality or limitation, and which, therefore, cannot be compared, are those denoting matter, time, number, possession, country, part, interrogation; also compounds of jugum, somnus, gêro, and fêro, and many others.

DERIVATION OF ADJECTIVES.

§ 128. Derivative adjectives are formed chiefly from nouns, from other adjectives, and from verbs.

I. Those derived from nouns and adjectives are called denominatives. The following are the principal classes:—

1. (a.) The termination ëus, added to the root, denotes the material of which a thing is made, and sometimes similarity; as, aureus, golden; argenteus, of silver; lignëus, wooden; vitreus, of glass; virgineus, maidenly; from aurum, argentum, etc. See § 9, Rem. 8.

(b.) Some adjectives of this kind have a double form in neus and nus; as, eburneus and eburnus, of ivory.

(c.) The termination inus has the same meaning; as, adamantinus, of adamant; cedrinus, of cedar; from adamas and cedrus. So, also, ënus; as, terrënus, of earth, from terra.

(d.) The termination ëus or ius (Greek ιος), and also icius, belong to adjectives formed from Greek names of men, and denote 'of' or 'pertaining to'; as, Achillëus, Sophoclëus, Aristotelius, Platonicus; Pythagorëus and Pythagoricus; Homertius and Homerticus. Names in ias make adjectives in icius; as, Archias, Archicius. Sometimes, though rarely in the purest Latin authors, adjectives in ëus or ius are formed from Latin names; as, Marcellia or -ea, a festival in honor of the Marcelli.

2. (a.) The terminations älis, äris, ärius, ilis, atilis, icius, icius, ius, ëus, and ëus, denote 'belonging' or 'relating to'; as, capitälis, relating to the life; from capo.

So comitiālis, regālis; Apollināris, consulāris, populāris; argentarius; ciuitia, hostilis, iuvēnilis; aquatilis, fluvialilis; tribunicus, patricius; bellicus, cioticus, Germanicus; accusatorius, imperatorius, regius; Hectorēus; caninus, equinus, ferinus, masculinus; from comitia, rex, Apollo, consul, populus, argentum, civis, etc.

(c.) The termination inus belongs especially to derivatives from names of animals, and other living beings.

3. The termination arius, as a substantive, scil. fāber, etc., generally denotes profession or occupation; as, argentarius, a silversmith; from argentum;—coriarius, statuarius; from corium and status. When added to numeral adjectives, it denotes how many equal parts a thing contains. See § 121, 4.

4. The terminations osus and lentus denote abundance, fulness; as, animosus, full of courage; fraudulentus, given to fraud; from animus and fraus. So lapi-dosus, vinosus, portuosus, turbulentus, sanguinolentus, violentus. Before lentus, a connecting vowel is inserted, which is commonly u, but sometimes o.

NOTE.—Adjectives of this class are called amplificatives. See § 104, 12.

5. From adjectives are formed diminutives in ulus, cūlus, etc., in the same manner as from nouns; as, dulcicūlus, sweetish; from dulcis. So lentulus, mis-celulus, parvulus, etc. See § 100, 3, and § 104, 11. Diminutives are sometimes formed from comparatives; as, majorculus, duriusculus, somewhat great, somewhat hard, etc. Double diminutives are formed from paucus, viz pauculus and pauculusculus; and from bonus, (bēnus) are formed bellus and bellulus.

6. (a.) From the names of places, and especially of towns, are derived patrial adjectives in ensis, inus, as, and ānus, denoting of or belonging to such places.

(b.) Thus from Cannæ is formed Cannensis; from Sulmo, Sulmonensis. In like manner, from castra and circus come castrēnsis, circēnsis. But Athēna makes Athēnensis; and some Greek towns in ia and ea drop i and e in their adjectives; as, Antiochen-sis, Nicomeden-sis.

(c.) Those in inus are formed from names of places ending in ia and ium; as, Aricia, Aricinus; Caudium, Caudinus; Capitolium, Capitolinus; Latium, La-tinus. Some names of towns, of Greek origin, with other terminations, also form adjectives in inus; as, Tarentum, Tarentinus.

(d.) Most of those in as are formed from nouns in um; some from nouns in a; as, Arpinum, Arpinas; Capēna, Capēnas.

(e.) Those in ānus are formed from names of towns of the first declension, or from certain common nouns; as, Alba, Albānus; Rōma, Romānus; Cīma, Cūmānus; Thēbe, Thebānus; also from some of the second declension; as, Tusculum, Tusculānus; Fundi, Fundānus:—fons, fontānus; mons, montānus; urbs, urbānus; oppidum, oppidānus.

(f.) Adjectives with the terminations ānus, iānus, and inus are formed from names of men; as, Sulla, Sullānus; Tullius, Tullianus; Jugurtha, Jugurthinus.

(g.) Greek names of towns in pōlis form patrial adjectives in politānus; as, Neapōlis, Neapolitānus.

(h.) Greek names of towns generally form patrials in tus; as, Rhodus, Rho-dus; Lacedæmon, Lacedæmonius;—but those in a form them in æus; as, Larissa, Larissæus; Smyrna, Smyrncæus.

(i.) From many patrials; as, Britannus, Gallus, Afer, Persa, Arabs, etc., adjectives are formed in icus and tus; as, Britannicus, Gallicus, Africus, Persicus, Arabicus; so Syrus, Syrius; Thrax, Thracius.

7. A large class of derivative adjectives, though formed from nouns, have the terminations of perfect participles. They generally signify wearing or furnished with; as, alatus, winged barbatus, bearded; galeatus, helmeted; auritus, long-eared turreted, cornutus, horned; from ala, barba, galea, auris, etc.

8. The termination aneus, annexed to the root of an adjective or participle in us, expresses a resemblance to the quality denoted by the primitive; as, supervacaneus, of a superfluous nature.

§ 129. II. Adjectives derived from verbs are called verbal adjectives. Such are the following classes:—

1. The termination bundus, added to the first root of the verb, with a connecting vowel, which is commonly that of the verb, (see § 150, 5,) has the general meaning of the present participle; as, errabundus, moribundus, from erro, morior, equivalent to errans, moriens.

(a.) In many the meaning is somewhat strengthened; as, gratulābundus, full of congratulations; lacrimābundus, weeping profusely.

(b.) Most verbals in bundus are from verbs of the first conjugation, a few from those of the third, and but one from the second and fourth respectively, viz. puābundus and lascivibundus.

(c.) Some verbal adjectives in cundus have a similar sense; as, rubicundus, verēcundus, from rubeo and vereor.

2. The termination idus, added to the root, especially of neuter verbs, denotes the quality or state expressed by the verb; as, algidus, cold; calidus, warm; madidus, moist; rapidus, rapid; from algeo, caleo, madeo, rapio.

3. The termination uus, also, denotes the quality expressed by the verb; and adjectives in uus derived from active verbs take a passive meaning; as, congruus, agreeing, from congruo; so, assiduus, nocuus, innocuus:—irriguus, well watered; conspiciuus, visible; from irriigo, conspicio.

4. (a.) The terminations ilis and bilis, added to the root of a verb, with its connecting vowel, denote passively, capability, or desert; as, amabilis, worthy to be loved; credibilis, deserving credit; placabilis, easy to be appeased; agilis, active; ductilis, ductile; from amo, credo, placo; ago, duco. They are rarely active; as, horribilis, terribilis, fertilis; aër per cuncta meatilis. Plin.

(b.) In adjectives of these forms, derived from verbs of the third conjugation, the connecting vowel is i; sometimes, also, in those from verbs of the second conjugation, in these and other forms, i is used instead of e; as, horribilis, terribilis, from horreo and terreo.

(c.) These terminations, with the connecting vowel, are sometimes added to the third root; as, flexilis, flexibilis; coctilis, coctibilis, from flecto (flex-), etc.

5. The termination icius or itius, added to the third root of the verb, has a passive sense; as, fictitius, feigned; conductitius, to be hired; from finigo (fict-), etc.

6. The termination ax, added to the root of a verb, denotes an inclination, often one that is faulty; as, audax, audacious; loquax, talkative; rapax rapacious; from audeo, loquor, rapio.

7. The termination ivus, annexed to the third root of a verb, denotes fitness or ability to produce the action expressed by the verb as, disjunctivus, disjunctive, from disjungo.

8. Verbals in -a- and -triz, (see § 102, 6, (a.)), are often used as adjectives, especially in poetry; as, victor exercitus, victrices littæ. In the plural they become adjectives of three terminations; as, victōres, victrices, victricia. So also hospes, especially by the later poets, is used as an adjective, having hospita in the feminine singular and also in the neuter plural.

§ 130. III. Adjectives derived from participles, and retaining their form, are called participial adjectives; as, āmans, fond of; doctus, learned.

IV. Some adjectives are derived from adverbs; as, crastinus, of to-morrow; hodiernus, of this day; from cras and hodie.

V. Some adjectives are derived from prepositions; as, contrarius, contrary, from contra; postērus, subsequent, from post.

COMPOSITION OF ADJECTIVES.

§ 131. Compound adjectives are formed variously:—

1. Of two nouns; as, capripes, goat-footed—of cāper and pes; ignicōmus, having fiery hair—of ignis and cōma.

NOTE.—See, respecting the connecting short i, in case the first part of the compound is a noun or an adjective, § 103, Rem. 1.

2. Of a noun and an adjective; as, noctivāgus, wandering in the night—of nox and vāgus. So lucifūgus, shunning the light—of lux and fūgus.

3. Of a noun and a verb; as, corniger, bearing horns—of cornu and gēro; lētifēr, bringing death—of lētum and fēro. So carnivōrus, causidicus, ignivōmus, lucifūgus, particeps.

4. Of an adjective and a noun; as, æquævus, of the same age—of æquus and vævum; celeripes, swift-footed—of cēler and pes. So centimānus, decennis, magnuminus, misericors, unanimis.

5. Of two adjectives; as, centumgeminus, a hundred-fold; multidōvus, having many cavities; quintusdecimus, the fifteenth.

6. Of an adjective and a verb; as, brevilōquens, speaking briefly—of brēvis and lōquor; magnificus, magnificent—of magnus and fācio.

7. Of an adjective and a termination; as, qualiscumque, quocumque, utergue.

8. Of an adverb and a noun; as, bicorpor, two-bodied—of bis and corpus.

9. Of an adverb and an adjective; as, maledicax, slanderous—of māle and dicax. So antemeridiānus, before mid-day.

10. Of an adverb and a verb; as, beneficus, beneficent—of bēne and fācio; malecōlus, malevolent—of māle and vōlo.

11. Of a preposition and a noun; as, āmens, mad—of a and mens. So conors, declōr, deformis, implūmis, inermis.

12. Of a preposition and an adjective; as, concōvus, concave; infidus, unfaithful. So improvidus, percārus, prædices, subalbidus.

13. Of a preposition and a verb; as, continuus, uninterrupted—of con and teneo; insciens, ignorant—of in and scio. So præcipuus, promiscuus, subtilis, superstes.

REMARK. When the former part is a preposition, its final consonant is sometimes changed, to adapt it to the consonant which follows it, as, imprādens—of in and prādus. See § 126; and cf. § 103, R. 2.

PRONOUNS.

§ 132. 1. A pronoun is a word which supplies the place of a noun.

2. There are eighteen simple pronouns:—

Ego, I .	Hic, this, the latter .	Suus, his, hers, its, etc.
Tu, thou .	Is, that or he .	Cujus? whose?
Sui, of himself, etc.	Quis? who?	Noster, our .
Ille, that, the former .	Qui, who .	Vester, your .
Ipse, himself .	Meus, my .	Nostras, of our country .
Iste, that, that of yours .	Tuus, thy .	Cujas? of what country

3. Ego, tu, and sui, and commonly also quis and its compounds, are substantives: the other pronouns, both simple and compound, are adjectives, but are often by ellipsis used as substantives.

4. Ego, tu, and sui are commonly called personal pronouns. They are a species of appellatives (§ 26, 3,) of general application. Ego is used by a speaker to designate himself; tu, to designate the person whom he addresses. Hence ego is of the first person, tu of the second. (§ 85, 2.) Sui is of the third person, and has always a reflexive signification, referring to the subject of the sentence. The oblique cases of ego and tu are also used reflexively, when the subject of the proposition is of the first or second person.

5. The remaining pronouns, except quis and its compounds, are adjectives, as they serve to limit the meaning of substantives; and they are pronouns, because, like substantive pronouns, they may designate any object in certain situations or circumstances.

6. Meus, tuus, suus, noster, vester, and cujus, have the same extent of signification as the pronouns from which they are derived, and are equivalent to the genitive cases of their primitives.

7. Pronouns, like substantives and adjectives, are declined; but most of them want the vocative. Sui, from the nature of its signification, wants also the nominative in both numbers.

8. The substantive pronouns take the gender of the objects which they denote. The adjective pronouns, like adjectives, have three genders.

SUBSTANTIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 133. The substantive pronouns are thus declined:—

Singular.

N. ẽ-gõ, I .	tũ, thou .
G. me'-i, of me .	tu'-i, of thee .	{ su'-i, of himself, herself, itself.
D. mi'-hĩ, to me .	tĩb'-i,* to thee .
Ac. mē, me .	tē, thee .	si'b'-i,* to himself, etc.
V. ———	tũ, O thou .	sē, himself, etc.
Ab. mē, with me .	tē, with thee .	sē, with himself, etc.

* See § 19, 1, Exc.

Plural.

N.	nōs, we.	vōs, ye or you.
G.	{ nos'-trum } or nos'-tri, } of us	{ ves'-trum or ves'-tri, } of you.	su'-ī, of themselves.
D.	nō'-bis, to us.	vō'-bis, to you.	ei'b'-i, to themselves.
Ac.	nōs, us.	vōs, you.	sē, themselves.
V.		vōs, O ye or you.
Ab.	nō'-bis, with us.	vō'-bis, with you.	sē, with themselves.

REMARK 1. Mē and mī are ancient forms for mīhi. So min' for mīhine, Pers. 1, 2.

REM. 2. The syllable mei is sometimes annexed to the substantive pronouns, in an intensive sense, either with or without ipse; as, egōmet, I myself; mīhi-meī ipsi, for myself. It is not annexed, however, to the genitives plural, nor to tu in the nominative or vocative. In these cases of tu, tūē or tulēmet is used. In the accusative and ablative the reduplicated forms mēmē and tētē in the singular, and sēsē in both numbers, are employed intensively. Mepte, intensive, med and ted, for me and te, and mis and tis for mei and tui, occur in the comic writers.

3. Nostrum and vestrum are contracted from nostrōrūm, nostrārūm, and vestrōrūm, vestrārūm. Respecting the difference in the use of nostrum and nostrī, vestrum and vestrī, see § 212, R. 2, N. 2.

4. The preposition cum is affixed to the ablative of these pronouns in both numbers; as, mēcum, nobiscum, etc. Cf. § 136, R. 1:

ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 134. Adjective pronouns may be divided into the following classes:—demonstrative, intensive, relative, interrogative, indefinite, possessive, and patrial.

NOTE. Some pronouns belong to two of these classes.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

Demonstrative pronouns are such as specify what object is meant.

They are ille, iste, hic, and is, and their compounds, and are thus declined:—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. il'-lē,	il'-lā,	il'-lūd,	il'-li,	il'-læ,	il'-lā,
G. il'-lī'-us,*	il'-lī'-us,	il'-lī'-us,	il'-lō'-rum,	il'-lā'-rum,	il'-lō'-rum,
D. il'-li,	il'-li,	il'-li,	il'-lis,	il'-lis,	il'-lis,
Ac. il'-lum,	il'-lam,	il'-lūd,	il'-lōs,	il'-lās,	il'-lā,
V. il'-lē,	il'-lā,	il'-lūd,	il'-li,	il'-læ,	il'-lā,
Ab. il'-lō.	il'-lā.	il'-lō.	il'-lis.	il'-lis.	il'-lis.

* See § 15, 1.

Iste is declined like ille.

N. is,	e'-ā,	Id,	i'-i,	e'-æ,	e'-ā,
G. ē-jūs,	ē-jūs,	ē-jūs,	e-ō-rum,	e-ā-rum,	e-ō-rum,
D. e'-i,	e'-i,	e'-i,	i'-is or e'-is,	i'-is or e'-is,	i'-is or e'-is,
Ac. e'-um,	e'-am,	Id,	e'-ōs,	e'-ās,	e'-ā,
V. —	—	—	—	—	—
Ab. e'-ō.	e'-ā.	e'-ō.	i'-is or e'-is.	i'-is or e'-is.	i'-is or e'-is.

REMARK 1. Instead of ille, ollus was anciently used; whence olli masc. plur. in Virgil. Ille fem., for illius and illā, is found in Lucretius and Cato, as also in Cato, hæc for huic fem.; hice for hi, and hæc for hæc in Plautus and Terence. Im for eum, is found in the Twelve Tables; ei for ei, and ibus and ibus for is, in Plautus; eæ, fem., for ei, and eabus for is, in Cato.

REM. 2. From ecce, lo! with ille, iste, and is, are formed, in colloquial language, nom., ecca; eccilla, eccillud; acc. sing., eccum, eccam; eccillum (by syncope ellum), eccillam; eccistam; acc. plur., eccos, ecca.

REM. 3. Istic and illic are compounded of iste hic, and ille hic; or, as some say, of iste ce, and ille ce. The former sometimes retains the aspirate, as isthic. They are more emphatic than ille and iste.

Istic is thus declined:—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. is'-tic,	is'-tæc,	is'-tœc, or is'-tūc,	N. —	is'-tæc,	—
Ac. is'-tunc,	is'-tanc,	is'-tœc, or is'-tūc,	Ac. —	—	is'-tæc.
Ab. is'-tœc.	is'-tæc.	is'-tœc.

Illic is declined in the same manner.

REM. 4. Ce, intensive, is sometimes added to the several cases of hic, and rarely to some cases of the other demonstrative pronouns; as, hujusce, huncce, hancce, hucce, hice, hæce or hæc, horumce, harumce, or harumce, hæce, hice; illiusce, illæce, illiusce, illascce, illascce; istæce, istascce; ejusce, isusce. When ne, interrogative, is also annexed, ce becomes ci; as, hæccine, hæccine, hæccine; istuccine, istuccine, istuccine; illiccine, illiccine.

REM. 5. Mōdi, the genitive of mōdus, annexed to the genitive singular of demonstrative and relative pronoun, imparts to them the signification of utjæctives of quality; as, hujusmōdi or hujuscemōdi, like talis, of this sort, such; illiusmōdi and istiusmōdi, of that sort; cujusmōdi, of what sort, like qualis; cu-

* See § 9, 5.

juscemōdī, cujusquēmodī, cujusmodicumque, of what kind soever; cujusclammōdī, of some kind. So also istimōdī, cuimōdī and cuicuiumōdī, instead of istiusmōdī, cujusmōdī, etc.

REM. 6. The suffix dem is annexed to is, forming idem, "the same," which is thus declined:—

Singular.
	M.	F.	N.
N.	ī'-dem,	e'-ā-dem,	ī'-dem,
G.	e-jus'-dem,	e-jus'-dem,	e-jus'-dem,
D.	e-ī'-dem,	e-ī'-dem,	e-ī'-dem,
Ac.	e-un'-dem,	e-an'-dem,	ī'-dem,
V.
Ab.	e-ō'-dem.	e-ā'-dem.	e-ō'-dem.

Plural.
	M.	F.	N.
N.	i-ī'-dem,	e-æ'-dem,	e'-ā-dem,
G.	e-o-run'-dem,	e-a-run'-dem,	e-o-run'-dem,
D.	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem,	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem,	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem,
Ac.	e-os'-dem,	e-as'-dem,	e'-ā-dem,
V.
Ab.	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem.	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem.	e-is'-dem, or i-is'-dem.

NOTE 1. In compound pronouns, n before d is changed into s; as, eundem, eorundem, etc.

NOTE 2. In Sallust isdem, and in Palladius hisdem occur for iudem; and Ennius in Cicero has eademmet for eddem.

INTENSIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 135. Intensive pronouns are such as serve to render an object emphatic.

To this class belong ipse, and the intensive compounds already mentioned. See §§ 133, R. 2, and 134, R. 4.

Ipse is compounded of is and the suffix pse, and is thus declined:—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. ip'-sē,	ip'-sā,	ip'-sum,	ip'-sī,	ip'-sæ,	ip'-sā,
G. ip-sī'-us,	ip-sī'-us,	ip-sī'-us,	ip-sō'-rum,	ip-sā'-rum,	ip-sō'-rum,
D. ip'-sī,	ip'-sī,	ip'-sī,	ip'-sīs,	ip'-sīs,	ip'-sīs,
Ac. ip'-sum,	ip'-sam,	ip'-sum,	ip'-sōs,	ip'-sās,	ip'-sā,
V. ip'-sē,	ip'-sā,	ip'-sum,	ip'-sī,	ip'-sā,	ip'-sā,
Ab. ip'-sō.	ip'-sā.	ip'-sō.	ip'-sīs.	ip'-sīs.	ip'-sīs.

REMARK 1. Ipse is commonly subjoined to nouns or pronouns; as, Jupiter ipse, tu ipse, Jupiter himself, etc.; and hence is sometimes called the adjective pronoun.

REM. 2. A nominative ipseus, occurs in early writers, and a superlative ipsissimus, his very self, is found in Plautus.

REM. 3. In old writers the is of ipse is declined, while pse remains undeclined; as, eapse, (nom. s. d. abl.), eampse, and copse, instead of ipsa, ipsam and ipso. So also reapse, . e. re eapse, "in fact."

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 136. Relative pronouns are such as relate to a preceding noun or pronoun.

1. They are qui, who, and the compounds quicumque and quisquis, whoever. The latter are called general relatives.

2. In a general sense, the demonstrative pronouns are often relatives; but the name is commonly appropriated to those above specified. They serve to introduce a proposition, limiting or explaining a preceding noun or pronoun, to which they relate, and which is called the antecedent.

Qui is thus declined :—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. qui ,	quæ ,	quod ,	qui ,	quæ ,	quæ ,
G. cū-jūs ,	cū-jūs ,	cū-jūs ,	quō-rum ,	quæ-rum ,	quō-rum ,
D. cui ,*	cui ,	cui ,	qui-būs ,	qui-būs ,	qui-būs ,
Ac. quem ,	quam ,	quod ,	quos ,	quas ,	quæ ,
V.
Ab. quō .	quā .	quō .	qui-būs .	qui-būs .	qui-būs .

REMARK 1. Qui is sometimes used for the ablative singular, in all genders and rarely also for the ablative plural. To the ablatives quo, qua, qui, and quibus, cum is commonly annexed, cf. § 133, 4. Cicero uses quicum for quicumque, when an indefinite person is meant.

REM. 2. Quis (monosyllabic, § 9, R. 1), and quis are sometimes used in the dative and ablative plural for quibus. Cujus and cui were anciently written quijus and quoi: and, instead of the genitive cujus, a relative adjective cujus, a, um, very rarely occurs.

3. Quicumque, (or quicunque), is declined like qui.

REM. 3. Qui is sometimes separated from cumque by the interposition of one or more words; as, quis me cumque vocant terras. Virg. A similar separation sometimes occurs in the other compounds of cumque.

4. Quisquis is thus declined :—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.
N. quis'-quis ,	quis'-quis ,†	quid'-quid ,	N. qui'-q ui ,
Ac. quem'-quem ,	quem'-quem ,	quid'-quid ,	D. qui-bus'-qui-bus ,
Ab. quō'-quō .	quā'-quā .	quō'-quō .

REM. 4. Quicquid is sometimes used for quidquid. Quisquis for quisquis occurs in Plautus; and quidquid is used adjectively in Cato R. R. 48.

* See § 9, 5; and cf. § 306. (1.)

† Cf. § 137, R. (1)

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 137. Interrogative pronouns are such as serve to inquire which of a number of objects is intended.

They are

Quis?	} who? what?	Ecquis?	} is any one?	Cūjus? whose?
Quisnam?		Ecquisnam?		Cūjas? of what country?
Qui?	} which? what?	Numquis?
Quinam?		Numquisnam,

1. Quis is commonly used substantively; qui, adjectively. The interrogative qui is declined like qui the relative.

Quis is thus declined:—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
N. quī,	quæ,	quīd,	quī,	quæ,	quæ,
G. cū'-jūs,	cū'-jūs,	cū'-jūs,	quō'-rum,	quæ'-rum,	quō'-rum,
D. cui,	cui,	cui,	quī'-būs,	quī'-būs,	quī'-būs,
Ac. quem,	quam,	quīd,	quōs,	quās,	quæ,
V. —	—	—	—	—	—
Ab. quō.	quā.	quō.	quī'-būs.	quī'-būs.	quī'-būs.

REMARK (1.) Quis is sometimes used by comic writers in the feminine, and even in the neuter. Quisnam, quisque and quisquam also occur as feminine.

REM. (2.) Qui is used for the ablative of quis in all genders, as it is for that of the relative quī. Cf. § 136, R. 1.

REM. (3.) Quis and qui have sometimes the signification of the indefinite pronoun aliquis (some one, any one), especially after the conjunctions ec (for en), si, ne, neu, nisi, num; and after relatives, as quo, quanto, etc. Sometimes quis and qui are used in the sense of quātis? what sort?

2. The compounds quisnam and quinam have respectively the signification and declension of the interrogatives quis and qui. In the poets nam sometimes stands before quis. Virg. G. 4, 445.

3. Ecquis and numquis are declined and used like quis; but are sometimes adjectives. Virg. Ecl. 10, 28: Cic. Att. 13, 8.

REM. (4.) Ecqua is sometimes found in the nominative singular feminine; and the neuter plural of numquis is numqua.

REM. (5.) Ecqui and numqui also occur, declined like the interrogative qui, and, like that, used adjectively.

4. Ecquisnam and numquisnam are declined like ecquis; but are found only in the singular;—the former in the nominative in all genders, and in the ablative masculine; the latter in the nominative masculine and accusative neuter. In the nominative feminine and in the ablative, the former is used adjectively.

5. The interrogative cujus is also defective:—

Singular.			Plural.
M.	F.	N.	F.
N. cū'-jūs,	cū'-jā,	cū'-jum,	N. cū'-jās,
A.c. cū'-jum,	cū'-jam,	_____	Ac. cū'-jās.
Ab. _____	cū'-jā.	_____

6. Cujas is declined like an adjective of one termination; cujas, cujāts. See § 139, 4.

NOTE. The interrogative pronouns are used not only in direct questions but in such dependent clauses also, as contain only an indirect question; as, e. g. in the direct question, quis est? who is he? in the indirect, nescio quis sit, I know not who he is. Qui, in this sense, is found for quis; as, qui sit apertit, he discloses who he is. Cf. § 265, N.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

§ 138. Indefinite pronouns are such as denote an object in a general manner, without indicating a particular individual. They are

Allquis, some one.	Quisquam, any one.	Quidam, a certain one.
Siquis, if any.	Quispiam, some one.	Quilibet, } any one you
Nēquis, lest any.	Unusquisque, each.	Quivis, } please.
Quisque, every one.	Aliquipiam, any, some.	Quis and qui, § 187, R. (3.)

NOTE. Siquis and nequis are commonly written separately, si quis and ne quis: so also unus quisque.

1. Aliquis is thus declined:—

Singular.
M.	F.	N.
N. al'-i-quis,	al'-i-qua,	al'-i-quod, or -quid,
G. al-i-cū'-jus,	al-i-cū'-jus,	al-i-cū'-jus,
D. al'-i-cui,	al'-i-cui,	al'-i-cui,
Ac. al'-i-quem,	al'-i-quam,	al'-i-quod, or -quid,
V. _____	_____	_____
Ab. al'-i-quo.	al'-i-quā.	al'-i-quo.

Plural.
M.	F.	N.
N. al'-i-qui,	al'-i-quæ,	al'-i-qua,
G. al-i-quō'-rum,	al-i-quā'-rum,	al-i-quō'-rum,
D. a-liq'-ui-bus,*	a-liq'-ui-bus,	a-liq'-ui-bus,
Ac. al'-i-quos,	al'-i-quas,	al'-i-qua,
V. _____	_____	_____
Ab. a-liq'-ui-bus.	a-liq'-ui-bus.	a-liq'-ui-bus.

* Pronounced a-liq'-ui-bus. See §§ 9, 4, and 21. 8

2. Siquis and nēquis are declined in the same manner; but they sometimes have quæ in the fem. singular and neut. plural.

(a.) Aliquis, in the nominative singular masculine, is used both as a substantive and as an adjective;—aliqui, as an adjective, but is nearly obsolete. Aliqua in the fem. sing. occurs as an adjective in Lucretius, 4, 2, 64. Siqui, and nēqui, which are properly adjectives, are used also substantively for siquis and nēquis, and in the nominative singular masculine these two forms are equivalent. The ablatives aliqui and siqui also occur.

(b.) Aliquid, siqui, and nēquid, like quid, are used substantively; aliquid, etc., like quod, are used adjectively.

3. Quisque, quisquam, and quispiam, are declined like quis.

(a.) In the neuter singular, however, quisque has quodque, quidque, or quicque; quisquam has quidquam or quicquam; and quispiam has quodpiam, quidpiam, or quicpiam. The forms quidque or quicque, quidpiam or quicpiam are used substantively.

(b.) Quisquam wants the feminine (except quamquam, Plant. Mil. 4, 2, 68), and also the plural, and, with a few exceptions in Plautus, it is always used substantively, its place as an adjective being supplied by ultus. Quispiam is scarcely used in the plural, except in the nominative feminine, quepiam.

4. Unusquisque is compounded of unus and quisque, which are often written separately, and both words are declined.

Thus unusquisque, uniuscujusque, unicuique, unumquemque, etc. The neuter is unumquodque, or unumquidque. It has no plural. Unumquidquid for unumquidque occurs in Plautus and Lucretius.

5. Quidam, quilibet, and quivis, are declined like qui, except that they have both quod and quid in the neuter, the former used adjectively, the latter substantively.

NOTE. Quidam has usually n before d in the accusative singular and genitive plural; as, quendam, quorundam, etc. Cf. § 134, NOTE 1.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

§ 139. 1. The possessive are derived from the genitives of the substantive pronouns, and of quis, and designate something belonging to their primitives.

They are meus, tuus, suus, noster, vester, and cujus. Meus, tuus, and suus, are declined like bōnus; but meus has in the vocative singular masculine mi, and very rarely meus. Cf. § 105, R. 3. In late writers mi occurs also in the feminine and neuter.

2. Cujus also is declined like bōnus; but is defective. See § 137, 5. It occurs only in early Latin and in legal phraseology.

3. Noster and vester are declined like piger. See § 106.

REMARK 1. The terminations pte and met intensive are sometimes annexed to possessive pronouns, especially to the ablative singular; as, suoapte pondere, by its own weight; suoapte manu, by his own hand. So nostrapte culpa; suoapte amicum; meamet culpa. The suffix met is usually followed by ipse; as, Hannibal suamet ipse fraude captus abiit. Liv.; but Sallust has meamet facta scire.

REM. 2. Suus, like its primitive sui, has always a reflexive signification, referring to the subject of the sentence. Meus, tuus, noster, and vester, are also used reflexively, when the subject of the proposition is of the first or second person. See § 132, 4.

PATRIAL PRONOUNS.

4. (a.) These are nostras and cūjas. See §§ 100, 2, and 128, 6. They are declined like adjectives of one termination; as, nostras, nostrātis, but both are defective.

(b.) Nostras is found in the nominative and genitive singular, in the nominative plural, (masc. and fem., nostrātes, neut. nostratia), and in the ablative, (nostratibus). Cūjas or quōjas occurs in the nominative, genitive and accusative (cujātem masc.) singular, and in the nominative plural, masc. (cujātes). Cf. § 137, 6.—Nostrātis and cujātis (or quojātis) also occur in the nominative.

PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES.

5. To the adjective pronouns may be added certain adjectives of so general a meaning, that they partake, in some degree, of the character of pronouns. Of this kind are:—

(1.) (a.) Alius, ullus, nullus, and nonnullus, which answer to the question, who?

(b.) Alter, neuter, alterūter, utervis, and uterlibet, which answer to the question, ūter? which of two?

(2.) Adjectives denoting quality, size, or number, in a general way. These stand in relation to one another, and are hence called correlatives.

REMARK. The relatives and interrogatives of this class begin with qu, and are alike in form. The indefinites are formed from the relatives by prefixing ali. The demonstratives begin with t, and are sometimes strengthened by dem. A general relative, having a meaning more general than the relative, is formed by doubling the simple relative, or by affixing to it the termination cumque. A general indefinite is formed by annexing libet or vis to the relative.

Interrog.	Demonstr.	Relat.	Relat. general.	Indefin.	Indef. general.
quālis?	tālis,	quālis,	{ qualis-qualis, qualiscumque.	_____	qualislibet, quantus?	{ tantus, tantundem,	} quantus,	{ quantus-quantus, quantuscumque,	aliquantus,	quantuslibet
quōt?	tōt, totidem,	quōt,	{ quot-quot, quotecumque,	aliquot,	quotlibet, quōtus?	tōtus,	quōtus,	quotuscumque,	(aliquōtus),	_____.
Diminutives.
quantūlus?	tantūlus.	_____.	quantuluscumque.	aliquantūlum.	_____.

NOTE 1. The suffix cumque, which is used in forming general relatives, is composed of the relative adverb cum (quum) and the suffix que, expressive of universality, as in quaque and in adverbs, (see § 191). Cumque, therefore, originally signified 'whenever.' When attached to a relative, whether a pronoun, adjective, or adverb, it renders the relative meaning more general; as, quis, who; quicumque, whoever; or, every one who.

NOTE 2. Cujusmodi is sometimes used for qualis, and hujusmodi, istiusmodi, eiusmodi and eiusdemmodi for tālis. Cf. § 134, R. 5.

VERBS.

§ 140. A verb is a word by which something is affirmed of a person or thing.

1. That of which any thing is affirmed is called the subject of the verb. (2.) That which is affirmed of the subject is called the predicate. Cf. § 201.

3. A verb either expresses an action or state; as, puer legit, the boy reads; aqua calet, the water is warm;—or it connects an attribute with a subject; as, terra est rotunda, the earth is round.

4. All verbs belong to the former of these classes, except sum, I am, the most common use of which is, to connect an attribute with a subject. When so used, it is called the copula.

§ 141. Verbs are either active or neuter.

NOTE. Active and neuter verbs are sometimes called transitive and intransitive; and verbs of motion are by some grammarians divided into active-transitive and active-intransitive, according as they require, or do not require, an object after them.

I. An active or transitive verb expresses such an action as requires the addition of an object to complete the sense; as, amo te, I love thee; sequitur consulem, he follows the consul.

II. A neuter or intransitive verb expresses such an action or state, as does not require the addition of an object to complete the sense; as, equus currit, the horse runs; gradior, I walk.

REMARK 1. Many verbs, in Latin, are considered as neuter, which are usually translated into English by active verbs. Thus indulgeo, I indulge, noceo, I hurt, pareo, I obey, are reckoned among neuter verbs. In strictness, such Latin verbs denote rather a state than an action, and their sense would be more exactly expressed by the verb to be with an adjective; as, 'I am indulgent, I am hurtful,' etc. Some verbs in Latin, which do not usually take an object after them, are yet active, since the object is omitted by ellipsis. Thus credo properly signifies to intrust, and, in this sense, takes an object; as, credo tibi salutem meam, I intrust my safety to you; but by ellipsis it usually means to believe; as, crede mihi, believe me.

To verbs belong voices, moods, tenses, numbers, and persons.

VOICES.

(a.) Voice, in verbs, is the form by which they denote the relation of the agent to the action of the verb.

(b.) Most active Latin verbs have, for this purpose, two forms which are called the active and passive voices.

1. A verb in the active voice represents the agent as acting upon some person or thing, called the object; as, puer legit librum, the boy is reading a book.

2. A verb in the passive voice represents the object: as actea upon by the agent; as, liber legitur a puëro, a book is read by the boy.

REM. 2. By comparing the two preceding examples, it will be seen that they have the same meaning. The passive voice may thus be substituted at pleasure for the active, by making the object of the active the subject of the passive, and placing the subject of the active in the ablative case, with or without the preposition a or ab, according as it is a voluntary or involuntary agent. The active form is used to direct the attention especially to the agent as acting; the passive, chiefly to exhibit the object as acted upon. In the one case the object, in the other the agent, is frequently omitted, and left indefinite; as, puer legit, the boy is reading, scil. librum, litteras, etc., a book, a letter, etc.; virtus laudatur, virtue is praised, scil. ab hominibus, by men.

The two voices are distinguished from each other by peculiar terminations. Cf. § 152.

§ 142. 1. Neuter verbs have, in general, only the form of the active voice. They are, however, sometimes used impersonally in the passive voice. See § 184, 2.

2. The neuter verbs audeo, I dare, fido, I trust, gaudeo, I rejoice, and soleo, I am wont, have the passive form in the perfect and its cognate tenses; as, ausus sum, I dared. Hence these verbs are called neuter passives, or semi-deponents.

3. The neuter verbs vapulo, I am beaten, and vëneo, I am sold, have an active form, but a passive meaning, and are hence called neutral passives.

4. (a.) Deponent verbs have a transitive or intransitive signification with only the passive form. They are called deponent verbs, from depōno, to lay aside, as having laid aside their active form, and their passive signification; as, sëquor, I follow; mōrior, I die.

(b.) Some deponent verbs have both an active and a passive signification, especially in the perfect participle. These are sometimes called common verbs. Cf. § 162, 17.

MOODS.

§ 143. (a.) Moods (or modes) are forms of the verb, which denote the relation of the action or state, expressed by the verb, to the mind of the speaker or to some other action.

(b.) Latin verbs have four moods—the indicative, the subjunctive, the imperative, and the infinitive.

1. The indicative mood is used in independent and absolute assertions and inquiries; as, amo, I love; audisne? dost thou hear?

2. The subjunctive mood is used to express an action or state simply as conceived by the mind; as, si me obsëcret, redibo; if he entreat me, I will return.

3. The imperative mood is used in commanding, exhorting or entreating; as, ama, love thou; amanto, they shall love.

4. The infinitive mood is used to denote an action or state in definitely, without limiting it to any person or thing as its subject; as, virtus est vitium fugere, to shun vice is a virtue.

TENSES.

§ 144. Tenses are forms of the verb, denoting the time of the action or state expressed by the verb.

1. Time admits of a threefold division, into present, past and future; and, in each of these times, an action may be represented either as going on, or as completed. From these two divisions arise the six tenses of a Latin verb, each of which is distinguished by its peculiar terminations.

2. They are called the present, imperfect, future, perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect tenses.

Present	{ action	amo , I love, or am loving; Present tense .
Past	{ not com-	amābam , I was loving; Imperfect tense .
Future	{ pleted;	amābo , I shall love, or be loving; Future tense .
Present	{ action	amāvi , I have loved; Perfect tense .
Past	{ com-	amāvērā , I had loved; Pluperfect tense .
Future	{ pleted;	amāverō , I shall have loved; Future perfect tense .

3. There is the same number of tenses in the passive voice, in which actions not completed are represented by simple forms of the verb, and those which are completed by compound forms.

Present	{ action	amor , I am loved; Present tense .
Past	{ not com-	amābar , I was loved; Imperfect tense .
Future	{ pleted;	amābor , I shall be loved; Future tense .
Present	{ action	amātus sum , or fui , I have been loved; Perfect tense .
Past	{ com-	amātus eram , or fuēram , I had been loved; Pluperfect .
Future	{ pleted;	amātus ero , or fuēro , I shall have been loved; Future Perfect .

§ 145. I. The present tense represents an action as now going on, and not completed; as, āmo, I love, or am loving.

1. Any existing custom, or general truth, may be expressed by this tense as, apud Parthos, signum datur tympano; among the Parthians, the signal is given by a drum. A general truth is sometimes also expressed by the perfect.

2. The present tense may also denote an action which has existed for some time, and which still exists; as, tot annos bella gero; for so many years I have waged, and am still waging war.

3. The present tense is often in narration used for the perfect indefinite. It is then called the historical present; as, desiliunt ex equis, provocant in primum; they dismount, they fly forward to the front.

II. The imperfect tense represents an action as going on at some past time, but not then completed; as, amābam, I was loving.

1. The imperfect sometimes denotes repeated or customary past action; as, legēbam, I was wont to read.

2. It may also denote an action which had existed for some time, and which was still existing at a certain past time; as, audiebat jamdictum verba; he had long heard, and was still hearing the words.

3. In letters, and with reference not to the time of their being written, but to that of their being read, the imperfect is sometimes used for the present as, expectābam, I was expecting, (i. e. when I wrote).

4. The imperfect also sometimes denotes the intending, preparing, or attempting to act at a definite past time.

III. The future tense denotes that an action will be going on hereafter, but without reference to its completion; as, amābo, I shall love, or shall be loving.

IV. The perfect tense represents an action either as just completed, or as completed in some indefinite past time; as, amāvī, I have loved, or I loved.

REMARK. In the former sense, it is called the perfect definite; in the latter, the perfect indefinite, historical perfect, or aorist.

V. The pluperfect tense represents a past action as completed, at or before the time of some other past action or event; as, litteras scripsēram, quum nuncius vēnit; I had written the letter, when the messenger arrived.

VI. The future perfect tense denotes that an action will be completed, at or before the time of some other future action or event; as, quum cōnavēro, proficiscar; when I shall have supped, I will go.

NOTE 1. This tense is often, but improperly, called the future subjunctive. It has the signification of the indicative mood, and corresponds to the secona future in English.

NOTE 2. The imperfect, historical perfect, and pluperfect tenses are sometimes called preterites or the preterite tenses.

NOTE 3. The present, imperfect, and future tenses passive, in English, do not express the exact sense of those tenses in Latin, as denoting an action which is, was, or will be, going on at a certain time. Thus laudor signifies, not 'I am praised,' but 'I am in the act of being praised, or, if such an expression is admissible, 'I am being praised.'

REMARK 1. The six tenses above enumerated are found only in the indicative mood.

REM. 2. The subjunctive mood, in the regular conjugation, has the present and past, but no future tenses.

NOTE 4. The tenses of the subjunctive mood have less definiteness of meaning, in regard to time, than those of the indicative. Thus the present and perfect, besides their common signs, may or can, may have or can have, must, in certain connections, be translated by might, could, would, or should; might have, could have, etc. The tenses of this mood must often, also, be translated by the corresponding tenses of the indicative. For a more particular account of the signification of each of the tenses of the subjunctive mood, see § 260.

REM. 3. The imperative mood has two tenses—a present and a future; the former for that which is to be done at once, and the latter for that which is to be done in future.

REM. 4. The infinitive mood has three tenses—the present, the perfect, and the future; the first of which denotes an incomplete, the second a completed action, and the last an action to be performed.

NUMBERS.

§ 146. Number, in verbs, is the form by which the unity or plurality of their subject is denoted. Hence verbs, like nouns, have two numbers—the singular and the plural. Cf. § 35, 1.

PERSONS.

§ 147. Person, in verbs, is the form by which they denote the person of their subject. Hence in each number there are three persons—the first, second, and third. Cf. § 35, 2.

1. The imperative present has only the second person in both numbers. The imperative future has in each number the second and third persons, but in the singular they have both the same form, -to in the active, and -tor in the passive voice.

2. As the signification of the infinitive mood is not limited to any subject, it admits no change to express either number or person.

3. The following are the terminations of the different persons of each number, in the indicative and subjunctive moods, in both voices:—

Person.	Active.			Passive.
	1.	2.	3.	1.	2.	3.
Singular.	o, i, or a,	s,	t;	r,	ris,	tur;
Plural.	mus,	tis,	nt.	mur,	mini,	ntur.

These may be called personal terminations.

REMARK 1. The perfect indicative active is irregular in the second person singular and plural, which end in sti and stis, and in one of the forms of the third person plural, which ends in re.

REM. 2. The passive form above given belongs to the simple tenses only.

REM. 3. The pronouns of the first and second persons, ego, nos; tu and vos, are seldom expressed in Latin as subjects of a finite verb, the several persons being sufficiently distinguished by the terminations of the verb.

PARTICIPLES, GERUNDS, AND SUPINES.

§ 148. 1. A participle is a word derived from a verb, and partaking of its meaning, but having the form of an adjective.

(1.) Like a verb, it has different voices and tenses; like an adjective, it has *declension and gender; and like both, it has two numbers.

(2.) Active verbs have usually four participles—two in the active voice, a present and a future; as, amans, loving; amaturus, about to love;—and two in the passive voice, a perfect and a future; as, amatus, loved, or having been loved; amandus, to be loved.

* See §§ 106, R. 2: and 111, R.

(3.) Neuter verbs have usually only the participles of the active voice.

(4.) Deponent verbs, both active and neuter, may have the participles of both voices.

2. (a.) Gerunds are verbal nouns, used only in the oblique cases, and expressing the action or state of the verb; as, amandī, of loving, etc.

(b.) Like other abstract nouns, they are found only in the singular number, and by their cases supply the place of a declinable present infinitive active.

3. Supines also are verbal nouns of the fourth declension in the accusative and ablative singular; as, amātum, to love; amātu, to be loved.

REMARK. These also serve in certain connections to supply the place of the infinitive present both active and passive. The supine in um is called the former supine; that in u, the latter. The former is commonly used in an active, the latter in a passive sense.

CONJUGATION.

§ 149. 1. The conjugation of a verb is the regular formation and arrangement of its several parts, according to their voices, moods, tenses, numbers, and persons.

2. There are four conjugations, which are characterized by the vowel before re in the present of the infinitive active.

In the first conjugation, it is ā long;

In the second, ē long;

In the third, ē short;

In the fourth, i long.

EXCEPTION. Do, dāre, to give, and such of its compounds as are of the first conjugation, have d short before re.

§ 150. A verb, like a noun, consists of two parts—the root, and the termination. Cf. § 40, R. 10.

1. The first or general root of a verb consists of those letters that are found in every part. This root may always be found by removing the termination of the present infinitive.

2. There are also two special roots, the first of which is found in the perfect, and is called the second root; the other, found in the supine or perfect participle, is called the third root.

3. In regular verbs of the first, second, and fourth conjugations, the second root is formed by adding, respectively, āv, u, and iv, to the general root; and the third root by a similar addition of āt, it, and it.

REMARK. Many verbs, in each of the conjugations, form their second and third roots irregularly.

4. In the third conjugation, the second root either is the same as the first, or is formed from it by adding s; the third root is formed by adding t. See § 171.

NOTE. In the second and fourth conjugations, e and i before o are considered as belonging not to the root, but to the termination. In verbs whose second or third roots are formed irregularly, the general root often undergoes some change in the parts derived from them.

5. The vowel which unites the general root with the remaining letters of the verb, is called the connecting vowel. Each conjugation, except the third, is, in a great degree, distinguished by a peculiar connecting vowel, which is the same as characterizes the infinitives. See § 149, 2.

(a.) In the third conjugation, the connecting vowel is generally ē or i. In the second and fourth conjugations, and in verbs in io of the third, a second connecting vowel is sometimes added to that which characterizes the conjugation; as, a in doceant, u in capiant, etc.

(b.) In verbs whose second and third roots are formed irregularly, the connecting vowel often disappears, or is changed in the parts derived from those roots; but it is almost always found in the parts derived from the first root.

§ 151. 1. From the first root are derived, in each voice, the present, imperfect, and future indicative; the present and imperfect subjunctive; the imperative, and the present infinitive. From this root are derived also the present participle, the gerund, and the future participle passive.

2. From the second root are derived, in the active voice, the perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect indicative; the perfect and pluperfect subjunctive, and the perfect infinitive.

3. (a.) From the third root are derived, in the active voice, the supine in um, and the future participle; the latter of which, with the verb esse, constitutes the future infinitive active.

(b.) From this root are derived, in the passive voice, the supine in u, and the perfect participle; from the latter of which, with the verb sum, are formed all the tenses which in the active are derived from the second root. The future infinitive passive is formed from the supine in um, and iri, the present infinitive passive of the verb eo, to go.

4. The present and perfect indicative, the supine in um, and the present infinitive, are called the principal parts of the verb, because from the first three the several roots are ascertained, and from the last, the characteristic vowel of the conjugation. In the passive voice, the principal parts are the present indicative and infinitive, and the perfect participle.

NOTE. As the supine in um is wanting in most verbs, the third root must often be determined from the perfect participle, or the future participle active.

§ 152. The following table exhibits a connected view of the verbal terminations, in all the conjugations. By annexing these to the several roots, all the parts of a verb may be formed.

NOTE. Verbs in io of the third conjugation have two connecting vowels in all the parts in which they occur in verbs of the fourth conjugation, and these vowels are the same in both.

Terminations added to the Second and Third Roots.

The terminations of the tenses which are formed from the second and third roots, are the same in all the conjugations. Thus:—

ACTIVE VOICE.—SECOND ROOT.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

REMARK 1. In analyzing a verb, the voice, person, and number, are ascertained by the personal terminations. See § 147, 3. The conjugation, mood, and tense, are, in general, determined by the letter or letters which intervene between the root of the verb and the personal terminations. Thus in amabamus, mus denotes that the verb is of the active voice, plural number, and first person; ba denotes that it is of the indicative mood, imperfect tense; and the connecting vowel a determines it to be of the first conjugation. So in amur emini, mini denotes the passive voice, plural number, and second person; re, the subjunctive mood, imperfect tense; and a, as before, the first conjugation.

REM. 2. Sometimes, the part between the root of the verb and the personal termination, does not precisely determine the conjugation, mood, and tense, but only within certain limits. In such cases, the conjugation may be learned, by finding the present tense in the dictionary, and if two forms are alike in the same conjugation, they can only be distinguished by the sense. Thus amēmus and docēmus have the same termination; but, as amo is of the first, and doceo of the second conjugation, the former is determined to be the subjunctive, the latter the indicative, present. Regar may be either the future indicative, or the present subjunctive—bibimus either the present or the perfect indicative.

§ 153. SUM, I am, is called an auxiliary verb, because it is used, in conjunction with participles, to supply the want of simple forms in other verbs. From its denoting existence, it is sometimes called the substantive verb.

REMARK. Sum is very irregular in those parts which, in other verbs, are formed from the first root. Its imperfect and future tenses, except in the third person plural of the latter, have the form of a pluperfect and future perfect. It is thus conjugated:—

PARTICIPLE.

Future. fū-tū'-rus, a, um, about to be.

§ 151. REMARK 1. A present participle ens seems to have been anciently in use, and is still found in the compounds absens, præsens, and pôtens.

REM. 2. The perfect fui, and its derivative tenses, are formed from an obsolete fuo, whence come also the participle futūrus, an old subjunctive present fucam, fucas, fucat; —, —, fucant, and the forms fucimus, perf. ind., fucērint, perf. subj., and fucisset, plup. subj.

REM. 3. From fuo appear also to be derived the following:—

Subj. imperf. fō'-rem, fō'-rēs, fō'-rēt; —, — fō'-rent.

Inf. pres. fō'-rē.

These forms seem to have been contracted from fūderem, etc., and fūdere. Fōrem is equivalent in meaning to essem, but the infinitive fōre has, in most cases, acquired a future signification, equivalent to futūrus esse.

REM. 4. Siem, sies, siet, sient, for sim, sis, sit, sint, are found in ancient writers, as are also escit for erit, escunt for erunt, ese, esētis, and esent, for esse, esētis, and esent.

REM. 5. Like sum are conjugated its compounds, absum, adsum, dēsum, insum, intersum, obsum, præsum, subsum, and supersum.

REM. 6. PROSUM, from the old form prōd for prō, and sum, has d after pro, when the simple verb begins with e; as,

Ind. pres. prō'-sum, prōd'-es, prōd'-est, etc.

— imperf. prōd'-ē-ram, prōd'-ē-rās, etc.

REM. 7. (a.) POSSUM is compounded of pōtis, able, and sum. They are sometimes written separately, and then pōtis is the same in all genders and numbers.

(b.) In composition, is is omitted in pōtis, and t, as in other cases, coming before s, is changed into s. In the infinitive, and imperfect subjunctive, es of the simple verb is dropped, as is also f at the beginning of the second root. In every other respect possum is conjugated like sum, wherever it is found; but the imperative, and the parts derived from the third root, are wanting.

§ 151. REMARK 1. A present participle ens seems to have been anciently in use, and is still found in the compounds absens, præsens, and pôtens.

REM. 2. The perfect fui, and its derivative tenses, are formed from an obsolete fuo, whence come also the participle futurus, an old subjunctive present fueam, fueas, fueat; —, —, fueant, and the forms fueimus, perf. ind., fueerint, perf. subj., and fueisset, plup. subj.

REM. 3. From fuo appear also to be derived the following:—

Subj. imperf. fō'-rem, fō'-rēs, fō'-rēt; —, — fō'-rent.
Inf. pres. fō'-rē.

These forms seem to have been contracted from fuerem, etc., and fue-re. Fōrem is equivalent in meaning to essem, but the infinitive fōre has, in most cases, acquired a future signification, equivalent to futurus esse.

REM. 4. Siem, sies, siet, sient, for sim, sie, sit, sint, are found in ancient writers, as are also escit for erit, escunt for erunt, ese, esētis, and esent, for esse, essētis, and essent.

REM. 5. Like sum are conjugated its compounds, absum, adsum, dēsum, insum, intersum, obsum, præsum, subsum, and supersum.

REM. 6. PRŌSUM, from the old form prōd for prō, and sum, has d after pro, when the simple verb begins with e; as,

Ind. pres. prō'-sum, prōd'-es, prōd'-est, etc.
— imperf. prōd'-ē-ram, prōd'-ē-rās, etc.

REM. 7. (a.) POSSUM is compounded of pōtis, able, and sum. They are sometimes written separately, and then pōtis is the same in all genders and numbers.

(b.) In composition, is is omitted in pōtis, and t, as in other cases, coming before s, is changed into s. In the infinitive, and imperfect subjunctive, es of the simple verb is dropped, as is also f at the beginning of the second root. In every other respect possum is conjugated like sum, wherever it is found; but the imperative, and the parts derived from the third root, are wanting.

DEPONENT VERBS.

§ 161. Deponent verbs are conjugated like the passive voice, and have also all the participles and participial formations of the active voice. Neuter deponent verbs, however, want the future passive participle, except that the neuter in dum is sometimes used impersonally. See § 184, 3.

The following is an example of an active deponent verb of the first conjugation :—

REMARKS ON THE CONJUGATIONS.

Of the Tenses formed from the First Root.

§ 162. 1. A few words in the present subjunctive of the first and third conjugations, in the earlier writers and in the poets, end in im, is, it, etc.; as, edim, edis, edī, edimus; comedim, comedis, comedint; for edam, etc. comedam, etc.; duam, duis, dui, duint; and perduim, perduis, perdui, perduint; for dem, etc. perdam, etc. from old forms duo and perduo, for do and perdo: so creduis, creduit, and also creduam, creduas, creduat, for credam, etc. from the old form oreduo, for credo. The form in im, etc. was retained as the regular form in iam and velim, from sum and volo, and in their compounds.

2. The imperfect indicative in the fourth conjugation, sometimes, especially in the more ancient writers, ends in ibam and ibar, for iēbam and iēbar, and the future in ibo and ibor, for iam and iar; as, vestibāt, Virg., largibār, Propert. for vestiēbāt, largiēbār; scibo, opperibor, for sciām, opperiar. Ibam and ibo were retained as the regular forms of eo, queo, and nequeo. Cf. § 182.

3. The termination re, in the second person singular of the passive voice, is rare in the present, but common in the other simple tenses.

4. The imperatives of dico, dūco, fācio, and fēro, are usually written dic, duc, fac, and fer; in like manner their compounds, except those compounds of fācio which change a into i; as, effice, confice; but caſſāce also is found in Cicero; and in old writers dice, edice, addice, indice, dūce, abdūce, reducere, tradice, and fāce. Inger for ingere is rare. Scio has not sci, but its place is supplied by scito, and scilite is preferred to scite.

5. In the imperative future of the passive voice, but especially of deponents, early writers and their imitators sometimes used the active instead of the passive form; as, arbitrāto, amplexāto, utito, nitto; for arbitrātor, etc.; and censento, utunto, tuento, etc. for censor, etc.—In the second and third persons singular occur, also, forms in -mīno; as, hortamīno, veremīno, fruimīno; for hortātor, etc.

6. The syllable er was often added to the present infinitive passive by early writers and especially by the poets; as, amarier for amāri, dacier for dici.

Of the Tenses formed from the Second Root.

7. (a.) When the second root ends in v, a syncopation and contraction often occur in the tenses formed from it, by omitting v, and sinking the first vowel of the termination in the final vowel of the root, when followed, in the fourth conjugation, by s, and in the other conjugations, by s or r; as, audissem for audivissem, amasti for amavisti, implerunt for impleverunt, nōram and noese for novēram and novisse.

(b.) When the second root ends in iv, v is often omitted without contraction; as, audivēro for audivēro; audisſe for audivisse.

(c.) When this root ends in s or x, especially in the third conjugation, the syllables is, iss, and sis, are sometimes omitted in the termination of tenses derived from it; as, evasti for evastis, extinxi for extinxisti, divise for divisissē; extinxem for extinxissem, surrexi for surrexisse; acceſſi for acceſſisſi, juſſi for juſſisſi; dixi for dixisſi. So faxem for (facissem, i. e.) fecissem.

(d.) In the perfect of the first, second, and fourth conjugations, a syncope sometimes occurs in the last syllable of the root and the following syllable of the termination, especially in the third person singular; as, fumāt, audiit, cepit; for fumāvī, audiivī, cepivī. So, also, but rarely, in the first person; as, sepē, enarrāmus; for sepēvī, enarrāvimus.

8. In the third person plural of the perfect indicative active, the form in ēr is less common than that in erunt, especially in prose.

9. Ancient forms of a future perfect in so, a perfect and pluperfect subjunctive in sim and sem, and a perfect infinitive in se sometimes occur. They may, in general, be formed by adding these terminations to the second root of the verb; as, recepto, emissim, ausim from the obsolete perfect, ausi, from audeo, confestim and promissim: divisse and promisse. But when the root ends in x, and frequently when it ends in s, only o, im, em, and e, etc. are added; as, jusso, dixis; intellexes, percepset; surrexe, sum.se. V, at the end of the root, in the first conjugation, is changed into s; as, levasso, locassim. U, at the end of the root, in the second conjugation, is changed into es; as, habesso, licessim. Sometimes the vowel of the present is retained in these forms, though changed in the other parts derived from the second root; as, capso, fazo (facso), faxim (facsim).

NOTE. Fazo expresses determination, 'I will,' or, 'I am resolved, to make, cause,' etc. The subjunctive facit, etc., expresses a solemn wish; as, dñi immortales faxint. Ausim, etc. express doubt or hesitation, 'I might venture,' etc. The perfect in sim is used also in connection with the present subjunctive; as, quæso uti tu calamitates prohibeas, defendas, averruncesque. Cato.

10. In the ancient Latin a few examples occur of a future passive of similar form; as, turbassitur, jussitur, instead of turbatum fuerit, and jussus fuerit.—A future infinitive active in sere is also found, in the first conjugation, which is formed by adding that termination to the second root, changing, as before, v into s; as, expugnassere, impetrassere, for expugnatum esse, etc.

Of the Tenses formed from the Third Root.

11. The supine in um, though called one of the principal parts of the verb, belongs in fact to very few verbs, the whole number which have this supine not amounting to three hundred. The part called in dictionaries the supine in um must therefore, in most cases, be considered as the neuter gender of the perfect participle.

12. In the compound tenses of the indicative and subjunctive moods, the participle is always in the nominative case, but it is used in both numbers, and in all genders, to correspond with the number and gender of the subject of the verb; as, amatus, -a, -um, est; amati, -æ, -a, sunt, etc.

(1.) Fui, fuëram, fuërim, fuisse, and fuisse, are seldom used in the compound tenses of deponent verbs, and not so often as sum, etc., in those of c'her verbs, but when used they have generally the same sense. It is to be remarked, however, that fui with the perfect participle usually denotes that which has been, but which no longer exists. In the pluperfect subjunctive, förem, etc., for essem, etc., are sometimes found.

(2.) But as the perfect participle may be used in the sense of an adjective, expressing a permanent state, (see § 162, 22), if then connected with the tenses of sum its meaning is different from that of the participle in the same connection; epistola scripta est, when scripta is a participle, signifies, the letter has been written, but if scripta is an adjective, the meaning of the expression is, the letter is written, and epistola scripta fuit, in this case, would signify, the letter has been written, or, has existed as a written one, implying that it no longer exists.

13. The participles in the perfect and future infinitive, are used only in the nominative and accusative, but in all genders and in both numbers; as, amatus, -a, -um, esse or fuisse; amatum, -am, -um, esse or fuisse; amati, -æ, -a, esse or fuisse; amatos, -as, -a, esse or fuisse; and so of the others. With the infinitive fuisse, amatus, etc. are generally to be considered as participial adjectives

(1.) These participles in combination with esse are sometimes used as indeclinable; as, cohortes ad me missum facias. Cic. Ad me, mea Terentia, scribis te nunc venditurum. Id.

Periphrastic Conjugations.

14. The participle in rus, joined to the tenses of the verb sum; denotes either intention, or being upon the point of doing something. This form of the verb is called the active periphrastic conjugation.

REMARK 1. As the performance of the act depends either on the will of the subject, on that of others, or upon circumstances, we may say, in English, in the first case, 'I intend,' and in the others, 'I am to,' or 'I am about to' (be or do any thing).

INDICATIVE.

Pres.	amatūrus sum,	I am about to love.
Imperf.	amatūrus eram,	I was about to love.
Fut.	amatūrus ero,	I shall be about to love.
Perf.	amatūrus fui,	I was or have been about to love.
Plup.	amatūrus fuēram,	I had been about to love.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Pres.	amatūrus sim,	I may be about to love.
Imperf.	amatūrus essem,	I would be about to love.
Perf.	amatūrus fuērim,	I may have been about to love.
Plup.	amatūrus fuisset,	I would have been about to love.

INFINITIVE.

Pres.	amatūrus esse,	to be about to love.
Perf.	amatūrus fuisse,	to have been about to love.

REM. 2. Fuero is scarcely used in connection with the participle in rus.

REM. 3. Amatūrus sim and amatūrus essem serve also as subjunctives to the future amabo. The infinitive amatūrus fuisse answers to the English, 'I should have loved,' so that in hypothetical sentences it supplies the place of an infinitive of the pluperfect subjunctive.

REM. 4. In the passive, the fact that an act is about to be performed is expressed by a longer circumlocution: as, in eo est, or fušūrum est, ut epistola scribātur, a letter is about to be written. So in eo erat, etc., through all the tenses.

15. The participle in dus, with the verb sum, expresses necessity or propriety; as, amandus sum, I must be loved, or deserve to be loved. With the various moods and tenses of sum, it forms a passive periphrastic conjugation;—thus :

INDICATIVE.

Pres.	amandus sum,
Imperf.	amandus eram,
Fut.	amandus ero,
Perf.	amandus fui,
Plup.	amandus fuēram,
Fut. Perf.	amandus fuēro.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Pres.	amandus sim,
Imperf.	amandus essem,
Perf.	amandus fuērim,
Plup.	amandus fuisset.

INFINITIVE.

Pres.	amandus esse,
Perf.	amandus fuisse.

REM. 5. The neuter of the participle in dus with est and the dative of a person, expresses the necessity of performing the action on the part of that person as, mihi scribendum est I must write, etc., and so through all the tenses.

Participles.

16. The following perfect participles of neuter verbs, like those of active deponents, are translated by active participles:—canātus, having supped; pōtus, having drunk; pransus, having dined; and sometimes jurātus, having sworn. So also adultus, coactus, conspirātus, interitus, occāsus, obsoletus, and crētus.

For the active meaning of usus and its compounds, see § 188, 1.

17. (a.) The perfect participles of some deponent verbs have both an active and a passive sense; as, adeptus libertātem, having obtained liberty, or adeptā libertate, liberty having been obtained. Cf. § 142, 4, (b.)

So abominātus, comitātus, commentātus, complexus, confessus, contestātus, delectātus, dignātus, dimensus, effātus, emensus, ementitus, emeritus, expertus, exsecrātus, interpretātus, largitus, machinātus, meditātus, mercātus, melātus, oblātus, opinātus, orsus, pactus, partitus, perfunctus, perichitātus, pollicitus, populātus, repopulātus, stipulātus, testātus, ultus, venerātus.

(b.) The participle in dus, of deponent verbs, is commonly passive.

18. The perfect participles of neuter passive verbs have the signification of the active voice; as, gavisus, having rejoiced. But ausus is used both in an active and a passive sense.

19. The genitive plural of participles in rus is seldom used, except that of futūrus. Venturōrum is found in Ovid, exiturārum, transiturārum and periturōrum in Seneca, and moriturōrum in Augustine.

20. In the third and fourth conjugations, the gerund and future passive participle (including deponents) sometimes end in undum and undus, instead of endum and endus, especially when i precedes; as, faciundum, audiundum, scribundus. Potior has usually potiundus.

21. Many present and perfect participles are compounded with in, signifying not, whose verbs do not admit of such composition; they thus become adjectives; as, insciens, ignorant; imparātus, unprepared.

22. Participles, when they do not express distinctions of time, become adjectives, and as such are compared; as, amans, loving; amantior, amantissimus. They sometimes also become substantives; as, praefectus, a commander; assum, an attempt; commissum, an offence.

NOTE. Many words derived from substantives, with the terminations of participles, ātus, ītus, and ūtus, are yet adjectives; as, alātus, winged; turritus, turreted, etc. See § 128, 7.

GENERAL RULES OF CONJUGATION.

§ 163. 1. Verbs which have a in the first root have it also in the third, even when it is changed in the second; as, fācio, factum hābro, hābitum.

2. The connecting vowel is often omitted in the second root, and in such cases, if v follows, it is changed into u. This happens in most verbs of the second conjugation.

REMARK. Some verbs of the first, second, and third conjugations prefix to the second root their initial consonant with the vowel which follows it, or with ē; as, curro, cūcurri; fallo, fēfelli. This prefix is called a reduplication.

NOTE 1. Spondeo and sto lose s in the second syllable, making spōpōndi and stēti. For the verbs that take a reduplication, see §§ 165, R. 2; 168, N. 2; 171, Exc. 1, (b.)

3. Verbs which want the second root commonly want the third root also.

4. Compound verbs form their second and third roots like the simple verbs of which they are compounded; as, audio, audivi, auditum; exaudio, exaudivi, exauditum.

NOTE 2. Some compound verbs, however, are defective, whose simples are complete, and some are complete, whose simples are defective.

Exc. 1. Compound verbs omit the reduplication; but the compounds of do, sto, disco, posco, and some of those of curro, retain it.

Exc. 2. Verbs which, in composition, change a into e in the first root, (see § 189, 1,) retain e in the second and third roots of the compound; as, scando, scandi, scansum; descendo, descendī, descensum.

Exc. 3. (a.) When a, æ, or e, in the first root of the simple verb, is changed in the compound into i, (see § 189, 2,) the same is retained in the second and third roots, in case the third root of the simple verb is a dissyllable; as, habeo, habui, habitum; prohibeo, prohibui, prohibitum.

(b.) But if the third root is a monosyllable, the second root of the compound has usually the same vowel as that of the simple, but sometimes changes a or e into i, and the third root has e; as, facio, feci, factum; conficio, confeci, confectum; teneo, tenui, tentum; retineo, retinui, retentum; rapio, rapui, raptum; abripio, abripui, abreptum.

NOTE 3. The compounds of cado, ago, frango, pango, and tango, retain a in the third root. See § 172.

Exc. 4. The compounds of pārio, (ēre), and some of the compounds of do and cūdo, are of different conjugations from their simple verbs. See do, cūdo and pārio in §§ 165 and 172.

A few other exceptions will be noticed in the following lists.

FORMATION OF SECOND AND THIRD ROOTS.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

§ 164. In regular verbs of this conjugation, the second root ends in āv, and the third in āt; as, amo, amāvi, amātum.

The following list contains such regular verbs of this conjugation as are of most frequent occurrence.

NOTE. In this and subsequent lists, those verbs which are marked * are said to have no perfect participle; those marked † to have no present participle. A dash (—) after the present, denotes that there is no second root. The participles in rus and dus, and the supines in um and u which are in use, are indicated respectively by the letters r., d., m., and u. Abundo, for example, has no perfect participle, no supine, no participle in dus; but it has a present participle, and a participle in rus.

In the lists of irregular verbs, those compounds only are given, whose conjugation differs from that of their simples.

When p. is subjoined to a deponent verb, it denotes that some of the parts which have commonly an active meaning, are used either actively and passively, or passively alone. Such verbs are by some grammarians called common. Cf. § 142, 4, (b.)

§ 165. The following verbs of the first conjugation are either irregular or defective.

*Crêpo, crepui, to make a noise. *discrêpo, -ui, or -âvi. incrêpo, -ui or
 -âvi, -itum or -âtum. *†percrêpo, —.
 *†recrêpo, —.
 *Cûbo, cubui, (perf. subj. cubâris; inf. cubasse), cubitum (sup.), to recline.
 incûbo, -ui or -âvi, d. Those compounds of cubo which take m before b, are of the third conjugation.
 Do, cêdi, dâtum, m. r. d. to give.—
 So circumdâ, pessumde, satîsdo, and venundo; the other compounds of da are of the third conjugation. See § 163, Exc. 1.

 Dômo, domui, domitum, r. d. to tame.
 Fricô, fricui, frictum or fricâtum, d.
to rub. confrico, —, -âtum. So infrico, defricô, —, -âtum or -ctum.
 Jûvo, jûvi, jûtum, r. d., also juvatû-rus, to help. adjûvo, -jûvi, -jûtum,
 m. r. d. also sduvatûrus.
 *Lâbo, labasse, to laze.

Lāvo, lāvi, rar. Ē-āvi, lavātum, lautum or lōtum; (sup.) lautum or lavātum, lavātūrus, d. to wash. Lāvo is also sometimes of the third conjugation.

Mico, micui, d. to glitter. *dimico, -āvi or -ui, -atūrus. *emico, -ui, -atūrus. *internico, —. promico, —, d.

Nēco, necāvi or necui, necātum, r. d. to kill. enēco, -āvi or -ui, -ātum, or -ctum, d. ĩnternēco, —, -ātum.

Nexo, —, to tie.

Plico, —, plicātum, to fold. *duplico, -āvi, -ātum, r. d. multiplico and replico haec -āvi, -ātum. supplico, -āvi, m. r. applico, -āvi or -ui, -ātum or -itum, -itūrus. So implico. —complico, -ui, -itum or -ātum. explico, -āvi or -ui, -ātum or -itum, -atūrus or -itūrus.

Pōto, potāvi, potātum or pōtum, r. r. m. m. d. to drink. *ĥepōto, -āvi, -um. —perpōto, -āvi.

Sēco, secui, sectum, secatūrus, d. to *cut. —*circum: ſco, —. *internēco —, d. persēco, -ui. præsēco, -ui -tum or -ātum. So resēco, d.

Sōno, sonui, -atūrus, d. to sound. consōno, -ui. So ex-, in-, per-, præsōno. *resōno, -āvi. issōno, —. So circumsōno and dissōno.

Sto, stēti, stātūrus, to stand. an- testo, -stēti. So circumsto, intersto, supersto. —Its compounds with monosyllabic prepositions have stitti; as, *consto, -stitti, -statūrus. So ex- sto, insto, obsto, persto. *præsto, -stitti, -stātūrus, d. *adsto or asto, -stitti, -stītūrus. *prosto, -stitti. So resto, restitti: but subj. perf. restāvērit, Propert, 2, 34, 53. disto, —. So substo and supersto.

Tōno, tonui, to thunder. *So circum- tōno. attōno, -ui, -itum. intōno, -ui, -ātum. retōno, —. Vēto, vetui, rarely āvi, vetitum, to forbid.

REMARK 1. The principal irregularity, in verbs of the first and second conjugations, consists in the omission of the connecting vowel in the second root, and the change of the long vowels ā and ē in the third root into i. The v remaining at the end of the second root, when it follows a consonant, is pronounced as u; as, cubo, (cubāvi, by syncope cubui), i. e. cubui; (cubātum, by change of the connecting vowel,) cubitum. Sometimes in the first conjugation, and very frequently in the second, the connecting vowel is omitted in the third root also; as, juvo, (āre) jūvi, jātum; tēneo, (ēre) tēnuī, tēntum. In the second conjugation several verbs whose general root ends in d and g, and a few others of different terminations, form either their second or third root or both, like verbs of the third conjugation, by adding s; as, rideo, risi, risum.

REM. 2. The verbs of the first conjugation whose perfects take a reduplication are do, sto, and their compounds.

REM. 3. The following verbs in eo are of the first conjugation, viz. beo, calceo, creo, cūneo, enucleo, illāqueo, collineo, delineo, meo, nauseo, screo; eo and its compounds are of the fourth.

§ 166. All deponent verbs, of the first conjugation, are regular, and are conjugated like miror, § 161; as,

Abominor, d. to abhor.

Adūlor, d. to flatter.

Ēmulor, d. to rival.

Ancillor, to be a handmaid.

Apricor, to bask in the sun.

Arbitror, r. d. to think.

Aspernor, d. p. to despise.

Aucūpor, r. p. to hunt after.

Auxilior, p. to help.

NOTE. Some deponents of the first conjugation are derived from nouns, and signify being or practising that which the noun denotes; as, ancilläri, to be a handmaid; hariöläri, to practise soothsaying; from ancilla and haris.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

§ 167. Verbs of the second conjugation end in eo, and form their second and third roots in u and it; as, moneo, monui, monitum.

The following list contains most of the regular verbs of this conjugation, and many also which want the second and third roots:—

*Aceo, to be sour.	*Cläreo, —, to be bright.	*†perhibeo, d. to report.
*Ægreo, —, to be sick.	*Clueo, —, to be famous.	†posthabeo, to postpone.
*Albeo, —, to be white.	*Denseo, —, to thicken.	præbeo, (for præhibeo), r. d. to afford.
*Arceo, d. to drive away; part. adj. arctus or artus. The compounds change a into e; as, coerceo, d. to restrain. exerceo, r. d. to exercise.	*Diribeo, —, to sort the voting tablets.	*præhibeo, —. dêbeo, (for dehabeo), r. d. to owe.

§ 168. The following verbs of the second conjugation are irregular in their second or third roots or in both.

NOTE 1. As the proper form of verbs of the first conjugation is, o, āvi, ātum, of the fourth to, tvi, itum, so that of the second would be eo, ēvi, ētum. Very few of the latter conjugation, however, retain this form, but most of them, as noticed in § 165, Rem. 1, drop in the second root the connecting vowel, ē, and those in veo drop vē; as, cāveo, (cāvāvi) cāvi, (cāvētum or cāvītum) cautum. Others, imitating the form of those verbs of the third conjugation whose general root ends in a consonant, add s to form the second and third roots. Cf. § 165, Rem. 1, and § 171.

NOTE 2. Four verbs of the second conjugation take a reduplication in the parts formed from the second root, viz. mordeo, pendeo, spondeo, and tondeo. See § 163, Rem.

Abōleo, —ēvi, —itum, r. d. to efface.	*Fulgeo, fulsi, to shine.	Fulgo, of the third conjugation, is also in use.
*Algeo, alsi, to be cold.	Gaudeo, gavisus sum, r. to rejoice.	§ 142, 2.
Ardeo, arsi, arsum, r. to burn.	*Hæreo, hæsi, hæsus, to stick.	S. ad-, co-, in-, ob- hæreo; but *subhæreo, —.
Audeo, ausus sum, (rarely ausi, whence ausim , § 168, R. 1,) r. d. to dare.	Indulgeo, indulsi, indultum, r. d. to indulge.	Jūbeo, jussi, jussum, r. d. to order.
Augeo, auxi, auctum, r. d. to increase.	*Lūceo, luxi, to shine.	pollūceo, —luxi, —luctum.
*Cāveo, cāvi, cautum, m. d. to beware.	*Lūgeo, luxi, d. to mourn.	*Māneo, mansi, mansum, m. r. d. to remain.
Censeo, censui, censum, d. to think.	Misceo, miscui, mistum or mixtum, d. to mix.	Mordeo, momordi, morsum, d. to bite.
recenseo, —ui, —um or —itum. *per-censeo, —ui. *succenseo, —ui, d.	remordeo, —di, —morsum, r.	Mōveo, mōvi, mōtum, r. d. to move.
Cieo, cīvi, citum, to excite.	Mulceo, mulsi, mulsum, d. to soothe.	permulceo, permulsi, permulsum and pertulcetum, to rub gently.
There is a cognate form, cio , of the fourth conjugation, both of the simple verb and of its compounds. The penult of the participles excitus and concitus is common, and that of accitus is always long.	*Mulgeo, mulsi or mulxi, to milk.	emulgeo, —, emulsum, to milk out.
*Conniveo, —nīvi, to wink at.
Jēleo, —ēvi, —ētum, d. to blot out.
Dōceo, docui, doctum, d. to teach.
*Fāveo, fāvi, fāvītus, to favor.
*Ferveo, ferui, to boil.
Sometimes servo, vi, of the third conjugation.
Fleo, flēvi, flētum, r. d. to weep.
Fōveo, fōvi, fōtum, d. to cherish.

Neo, nēvi, nēcūm, to spin.

*Pāveo, pāvi, d. to fear.

*Pendeo, pependi, to harg. *impendeo, —, propendeo, —, propensum.

Pleo, (plēte). compleo, -ēvi, -ētum, to fill. So the other compounds.

Prandeo, prandi, pransum, r. d. to dine.

Rideo, risi, risum, m. r. d. to laugh.

*Sēdeo, sēdi, sessum, m. r. to sit.

The compounds with monosyllabic prepositions change ē into i, in the first root; as, insideo, insēdi, insessum.

*disideo, -sēdi. So praesideo, and rarely circumsideo.

Sōleo, solitus sum and rarely solui, to be accustomed. § 142, 2.

*Sorbeo, sorbui, to suck in. *So *exsorbeo; but *resorbeo, —, absorbeo, -sorbui or -sorpsi.

Spondeo, sponendi, sponsa m. to promise. See § 163, Rem.

*Strideo, idi, to whiz.

Suādeo, suāsi, suāsum, r. d. to advise.

Tēneo, tēni, tentum, r. d. to hold. *The compounds change ē into i in the first and second roots; as, detineo, detinui, detentum. attineo, -tinui. Sc pertineo.

Tergeo, tersi, tersum, to wipe. Tergo, of the third conjugation, is also in use

Tondeo, tōtondi, tonsuum, to shear. The compounds have the perfect tondi.

Torqueo, torsi, tortum, d. to twist.

Torreo, torrui, tostum, to roast.

*Turgeo, tursi, to swell.

*Urgeo or urgueo, ursi, d. to urge.

Video, vidi, visum, m. u. r. d. to see.

Vōveo, vōvi, vōtum, d. to vow.

§ 169. Impersonal Verbs of the Second Conjugation.

Dēcet, decuit, it becomes.

Libet, libuit or libitum est, it pleases, is agreeable.

Licet, licuit or licitum est, it is lawful, or permitted.

Liquet, liquit, it is clear, evident.

Misēret, miseruit or miseritum est, it moves to pity; misēret me, I pity.

Oportet, oportuit, it behooves.

Piget, piguit or pigitum est, d. it troubles, grieves.

Poenitet, poenituit, poenitūrus, d. it repents; poenitet me, I regret.

Pūdet, puduit or puditum est, d.; it shames; pudet me, I am ashamed.

Tædet, tæduit or tæsum est, it disgusts or wearies. pertædet, pertæsum est.

NOTE. Libet is sometimes written for libet, especially in the comic writers.

§ 170. Deponent Verbs of the Second Conjugation.

Fāteor, fassus, r. d. p. to confess. *The compounds change ā into i in the first root, and into e in the third; as, confiteor, confessus, d. p. to acknowledge. diffiteor, to deny. profiteor, professus, d. p. to declare.

Liceor, licitus, to bid a price.

*Mēdeor, d. to cure.

Mēreor, meritus, to deserve.

Misēreor, miseritus or misertus, to pity.

Polliceor, pollicitus, p. to promise.

Reor, ratus, to think, suppose.

Tueor, tuftus, d. p. to protect.

Vēreor, veritus, d. p. to fear.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

§ 171. In the third conjugation, when the first root ends with a consonant, the second root is regularly formed by adding s; when it ends with a vowel, the first and second roots are the same: the third root is formed by adding t; as, carpo, carpsi, carptum; arguo, argui, argūtum.

In annexing s and t, certain changes occur in the final consonant of the root:—

1. The palatals c, g, qu, and also h, at the end of the first root, form with s the double letter x in the second root; in the third root, c remains, and the others are changed into c before t; as, dico, (dici, i. e.), dixi, dictum; rego (regi, i. e.), rexi, rectum; vōho, vōxi, vectum; cōquo, cūxi, coctum.

NOTE. I'tuo and struo form their second and third roots after the analogy of verbs whose first root ends in a palatal or h.

2. B is changed into p before s and t; as, scribo, scripsi, scriptum.

3. D and t, before s, are either dropped, or changed into s; as, claudio, clausi, cēdo, cessi; mitto, misi. Cf. § 56, I, Rem. 1. After m, p is sometimes inserted before s and t; as, sūmo, sumpsi, sumptum. R is changed to s before s and t in gēro and ūro.

4. Some other consonants are dropped, or changed into s, in certain verbs.

Exc. 1. Many verbs whose first root ends in a consonant, do not add s to form the second root.

(a.) Of these, some have the second root the same as the first, but the vowel of the second root, if a monosyllable, is long; as,

Bibo,	Excūdo,	Ico,	Mando,	Scābo,	Solvo,	Verro,
Edo,	Fōdio,	Lambo,	Prehendo,	Scando,	Strido,	Verto,
Emo,	Fūgio,	Lēgo,	Psallo,	Sido,	Tollo,	Volvo;

to which add the compounds of the obsolete cando, fendo, and nuo.

(b.) Some make a change in the first root. Of these, some change a vowel, some drop a consonant, some prefix a reduplication, others admit two or more of these changes; as,

Ago, ēgi.	Cāpio, cēpi.	Fācio, fēci.
Findo, fīdi.	Frango, frāgi.	Fundo, fūdi.
Jācio, jēci.	Linq̄uo, liqui.	Rumpo, rūpi.
Scindo, scīdi.	Sisto, stīti.	Vinco, vici.

Those which have a reduplication are

Cādo, cēcīdi.	Cēdo, cēcīdi.	Cāno, cēcīni.
Curro, cūcurri.	Disco, didici.	Fallo, fēfelli.
Pāgo, (obs.) pēpigi	Parco, pēperci.	Pario, pēpēri.
and pēgi.	Pēdo, pēpēdi.	Pello, pēpūli.
Pendo, pēpendi.	Posco, pōposci.	Pungo, pūpūgi.
Tango, tētigi.	Tendo, tētēdi.	Tundo, tūtūdi.

Exc. 2. Some, after the analogy of the second conjugation, add u to the first root of the verb; as,

Alo, alui, etc.	Constūlo,	Gēmo,	Rāpio,	Trēmo,
Cōlo,	Depso,	Gēno, (obs.)	Strēpo,	Vōlo,
Compesco,	Frēmo,	Mōlo,	Texo,	Vōmo.

Mēto, messui; and pōno, pōnuī; add su, with a change in the root.

Exc. 3. The following, after the analogy of the fourth conjugation, add iv to the first root:—

Arcesso,	Cūpio,	Lācesso,	Rūdo,	Tēro, dropping ē.
Cāpesso,	Incesso,	Pēto,	Quaro, with a change of r into s.

Exc. 4. The following add v, with a change in the root; those in ro and ico dropping n and sc, and those having er before n changing it to rē or rā:—

Cresco,	Pasco,	Scisco,	Sperno,	Lino,	Sēro,
Nosco,	Quiesco,	Cerno,	Sterno,	Sino,	to sono .

Exc. 5. (a.) The third root of verbs whose first root ends in d or t, and some in g, add s, instead of t, to the root, either dropping the d, t, and g, or changing them into s; as, claudio, clausum; dēfendo, dēfensum; cēdo, cessum; flecto, flexum; figo, fixum. But the compounds of lo add ū; as, perdo, perditum.

(b.) The following, also, add s, with a change of the root —

Excello,	Fallo,	Pello,	Spargo,	Ve ro.
Percello,	Mergo,	Præmo,	Vello,

Exc. 6. The following add t, with a change of the root; those having n, nc, ng, nqu, or mp at the end of the first root dropping n and m in the third:—

Cerno,	Fingo,	Gëro,	Sëro,	Sperno,	Stringo,	Uro,
Côlo,	Frango,	Rumpo,	Sisto,	Sternio,	Tëro,	Vinco;

to which add the compounds of linguo, and verbs in sco with the second root in o; the latter drop sc before t; as, nosco, nôti, nôtum; except pasco, which drops c only.

Exc. 7. (a.) The following have tt:—

Bibo,	Elicio,	Môlo,	Pôno,	with a change of ôn into ôs .
Gëno, (obs. form of gigno,)	Vômo,	Sino,	dropping n .

(b.) The following, like verbs of the fourth conjugation, add u to the first root:—

Arcesso,	Cûpio,	Pëto,	Tëro,	dropping ë .
Fâcesso,	Lâ-esso,	Quëro,	with a change of r into s .

For other irregularities occurring in this conjugation, see § 172-174.

§ 172. The following list contains most of the simple verbs, both regular and irregular, in the third conjugation, with such of their compounds as require particular notice:—

Acno, æni, æcûtum, d. to sharpen.

Ago, ægi, actum, r. d. to drive. So circumago, cogo, and perago. *ambligo, —, to doubt. So satago. The other compounds change â into i, in the first root; as, exigo, exëgi, ex-actum, to drive out. *prôdigo, -ëgi, to squander. See § 189, 2.

Alo, âlui, altum, and later âltum, d. to nourish.

*Ango, auxi, to strangle.

*Bâtuo, bätui, d. to beat.

Bibo, bibi, bibitum, d. to drink.

*Cado, cecidi, cäsûrus, to fall. The compounds change â into i, in the first root, and drop the reduplication; as, occido, -cidi, -cäsûm, r. d. to set.

Cædo, cecidi, cæsûm, r. d. to cut. The compounds change â into i, and drop the reduplication; as, occido, -cidi, -cïsûm.

Cando, (obsolete,) synonymous with candeo of the second conjugation. Hence accendo, -cendi, -censum, d. to kindle. So incendo, succendo.

*Cano, cecini, d. to sing. The compounds change â into i; as, *conciho,

-cînuî. So occino, præcino. *accino, —. So incino, intercino, succino, recino.

*Capesso, -ivi, r. d. to undertake.

Câpio, cêpi, captum, r. d. to take. So antécâpio. The other compounds change â into i, in the first root, and into e in the third; as, decîpio, decêpi, dêceptum.

Carpo, carpsi carptum, d. to pluck. The compounds change â into e; as, dêcerpo, dêcerpsi, dêcerptum.

Cædo, cessi, cessum, r. d. to yield.

Cello, (obsolete,) excello, -cellui, -celsum, to excel. *antécello, —. So præcello, rêcello. percello, -cûli, -culsum, to strike.

Cerno, crêvi, crêtum, d. to decree.

*Cerno, —, to see.

Cingo, cînxî, cinctum, d. to gird.

*Clango, —, to clang.

Claudo, clausi, clausum, r. d. to shut. The compounds change au into û; as, occlûdo, occlûsi, occlûsum, to shut up.

*†Claudo, —, to limp.

*†Clêpo, clepsi, rarely clêpi, to steal.

Côlo, côiui, cultum, d. to till. †occûlo, -cûlui, -cultum, d. to hide.

Côrno, compsi, comptum, to deck.

*Compesco, -pescui, to restrain.

Mutio, -ivi, to mutter.
Nutrio, -ivi or -ii, d. to nourish.
Partio, -ivi or -ii, r. d. to divide.
Polio, -ivi, d. to polish.
Punio, -ivi or -ii, d. to punish.
Rédimio, -ivi, to crown.
Scio, -ivi, u. r. to know.
Servio, -ivi or -ii, m. r. d. to serve.
Sōpio, -ivi or -ii, to lull asleep.
Stābilio, -ivi or -ii, to establish.
Tinnio, -ivi or -ii, r. d. to tinkle.
Vestio, -ivi or -ii, to clothe.

§ 176. The following list contains those verbs of the fourth conjugation which form their second and third roots irregularly, and those which want either or both of them.

REMARK. The principal irregularity in verbs of the fourth conjugation arises from following the analogy of those verbs of the third conjugation whose first root ends in a consonant; as, sēpio, sepsi, septum. A few become irregular by syncope; as, vēnio, vēni, ventum.

Amicio, -ui or -xi, amictum, d. to clothe.
Balbūtio*, —, to stammer.
Bullio, ii, itum, to bubble.
Cæcūtio*, —, to be dim-sighted.
Cambio*, —, to exchange.
Dementio*, —, to be mad.
Effutio, —, to babble.
Eo, ivi or ii, itum, r. d. to go. The compounds have only ii in the perfect, except ōbeo, præeo, and sūbeo, which have ivi or ii. All the compounds want the supine and perfect participles, except ādeo, ambio, ineo, ōbeo, prætereo, sūbeo, circūneo or circueo rēdeo, transeo, and ivēneo*, vēni r. (from vēnum eo), to be sold.
Farcio, farsi, fartum or fartum, to cram. The compounds generally change a to e; as, rēfercio, -fersi, -fertum, but con- and sf-, -farcio and -fercio.
Fastidio, -ii, -itum, d. to loathe.
Ferio*, —, d. to strike.

Fērōcio*, —, to be fierce.
Fulcio, fulsi, fultum, d. to prop up.
Gannio*, —, to yelp, bark.
Glōcio*, —, to cluck as a hen.
Glūtio*, ivi, or glūtii, to swallow.
Grandio, —, to make great.
Grunnio*, grunnii, to grunt.
Haurio, hausi, rar. haurii, haustum, rar. hausitum, haustūrus, haustūrus, u. d. to draw.
Hinnio*, —, to neigh.
Ineptio*, —, to trifle.
Lascivio*, lascivii, to be wanton.
Ligūrio*, ligūrii, to feed delicately.
Lippio*, —, r. to be bleared-eyed.
Obedio*, obēdi, r. to obey.
Pario is of the third conjugation, but its compounds are of the fourth, changing ā to ē; as, āperio, āpēri, āpertum, r. d. to open. So ōpērio, d. compērio compēri, compertum, rarely dep. compērio, to find out. So rēpērio r. d.

Pāvio, —, pāvītum, d. to beat.

Prūrio, —, to itch.

Queo, quīvi or quīl, quītum, to be able.

So nēqueo.

Raucio, —, r. to be hoarse.

Rūgio, —, to roar as a lion.

Sævio, sævīl, ītum, r. to rage.

Sāgio, —, to perceive keenly.

Sālio, sālui or sālīl, to leap. The *compounds change ā into i; as, absāl- *lio, —. So circumsālīo. assālīo, -ui.

*So dissālīo, insālīo. dēsālīo, -ui or -ii.

*So exsālīo, rēsālīo, subsālīo. transāl- īo, -ui or -īvi, d. So prōsālīo.

Sāio, —, ītum, r. d. to salt.

Sancio, sānxi, sāncitum or sanctum, d. to ratify, sanction.

Sarcio, sarsi, sartum, d. to patch.

Sarrīo, -īvi or -ui, sarrītum, d. to weed, hoe.

Scatūrio, —, to gush out.

Sentio, sensi, sensum, r. to feel.

Sēpēlio, sēpēīvi or -ii, rar. sēpēlī, sē- pultum, r. d. to bury.

Sēpio, sepsi, septum, d. to hedge in.

Singultio, —, to sob, hiccup.

Sitio, sitīl, to thirst.

Suffio, -īl, -ītum, d. to fumigate.

Tussio, —, to cough.

Vāgio, vāgīl, to cry.

Vēnio, vēni, ventum, r. to come.

Vincio, vinxi, vinctum, r. d. to bind.

NOTE. Desiderative verbs want both the second and third roots, except these three;—ēsūrio, —, ēsūrītus, r. to desire to eat; nuptūrio, -īvi, to desire to marry; partūrio, -īvi, to be in travail. See § 187, ll. 3.

§ 177. Deponent Verbs of the Fourth Conjugation.

Assentior, assensus, r. d. p. to assent.

Blandior, blandītus, to flatter.

Largior, largītus, p. to give, bestow.

Mentior, mentītus, r. p. to lie.

Mētor, mens or mētītus, d. p. to measure.

Mōlior, mōlītus, d. to strive, toil.

Ordior, orsus, d. p. to begin.

Orior, ortus, ōrītūrus, d. to spring up.

Except in the present infinitive, this verb seems to be of the third conjugation.

Pērior, (obs. whence pēritus.) ex- pērior, expertus, r. d. to try. oppē- rior, oppertus or oppēritus, d. to wait for.

Partior, partītus, d. to divide.

Pōtior, pōtītus, r. d. to obtain, enjoy.

In the poets the present indicative and imperfect subjunctive are sometimes of the third conjugation.

Sortior, sortītus, r. to cast lots.

IRREGULAR VERBS.

§ 178. Irregular verbs are such as deviate from the common forms in some of the parts derived from the first root.

They are sum, vōlo, fēro, ēdo, fīo, eo, queo, and their compounds.

Sum and its compounds have already been conjugated. See § 153. In the conjugation of the rest, the parts which are irregular are fully exhibited, but a synopsis only, of the other parts is, in general, given. Some parts of vōlo and of its compounds are wanting.

1. Vōlo is irregular only in the present of the indicative and infinitive, and in the present and imperfect of the subjunctive.

REMARK. It is made irregular partly by syncope, and partly by a change in the vowel of the root. In the present infinitive also and in the imperfect subjunctive, after ē was dropped, r following l was changed into l; as, velire (velre) velle; velērem (velrem) vallem.

NOTE. Volt and voltis, for vult and vultis, and vin', for vine are found in Plautus and other ancient authors.

2. Nôlo is compounded of the obsolete nê (for non) and vôlo. The v of vôlo after nê is dropped, and the vowels (ê ô) are contracted into ô.

NOTE. In non-vis, non-vult, etc. of the present, non takes the place of ne, but neve and nevult also occur in Plautus.

3. Mālo is compounded of māgis and vōlo. In composition māgis drops its final syllable, and vōlo its v. The vowels (ā ō) are then contracted into ā.

NOTE. Māvlo, māvlunt; māvōlet; māvēlim, māvēlis, māvēlit; and māvellem; for mālo, mālunt, etc., occur in Plautus.

§ 179. Fēro is irregular in two respects:—1. Its second and third roots are not derived from the first, but from otherwise obsolete verbs, viz. tūlo for tollo, and tlao, sup. tlātum, by aphæresis, lātum:—2. In the present infinitive active, in the imperfect subjunctive, and in certain parts of the present indicative and imperative, of both voices, the connecting vowel is omitted. In the present infinitive passive, r is doubled.

NOTE. In the comic writers the following reduplicated forms are found in parts derived from the second root, viz. tetūli, tetulisti, tetūlit, tetulērunt; tetulēro, tetulērūt; etulāssem, and tetulisse.

§ 180. Fio, 'to become,' is properly a neuter verb of the third conjugation, having only the parts derived from the first root; but it is used also as a passive of fācio, from which it takes those parts of the passive which are derived from the third root, together with the participle in dus. The infinitive present has been changed from the regular form fiēre to fiēri.

NOTE. The compounds of facio which retain a, have also fiō in the passive; as, calefacio, to warm; passive, calefiō; but those which change a into i form the passive regularly. (Cf. facio in the list, § 172.) Yet confit, desit, and insit, occur. See § 183, 12, 13, 14.

§ 181. Edo, to eat, is conjugated regularly as a verb of the third conjugation; but in the present of the indicative, imperative, and infinitive moods, and in the imperfect of the subjunctive, it has also forms similar to those of the corresponding tenses of sum:—
Thus.

INDICATIVE.

Present.

Pres. ēd'-i-tūr,	(or es'-tūr).
Imperf. ēd'-ē-rē-tūr,	(or es-sē-tūr).

NOTE. (a.) In the present subjunctive, ēdīm, ēdīs, etc., are found, for ēdam, ēdās, etc.

(b.) In the compounds of ēdo, also, forms resembling those of sum occur. ambēdo has the participles ambens and ambēns; comēdo has comēns, comesūrus and rarely comestus; and adēdo and exēdo have adēns and exēns.

§ 182. Eo is irregular in the parts which, in other verbs are formed from the first root, except the imperfect subjunctive and the present infinitive. In these, and in the parts formed from the second and third roots, it is a regular verb of the fourth conjugation

NOTE. Eo has no first root, and the parts usually derived from that root, consist, in this verb, of terminations only.

REMARK 1. In some of the compounds the forms eam, ies, iet occur, though rarely, in the future; as, redeam, redies, abiet, exiet, prodient. Ivis, insem, and iase, are formed by contraction for ivisis, ivissem, and iavisē. See § 162, 7.

REM. 2. In the passive voice are found the infinitive iri, and the third persons singular itur, ibitur, ibitur, itum est, etc.; cātur, irētur, cunctum est, etc., which are used impersonally. See § 184, 2, (a.)

REM. 3. The compounds of eo, including vēneo, are conjugated like the simple verb, but most of them have i in the perfect rather than iv. See under eo in § 176. Adeo, anteo, in eo, prodeeo, subeo, and transeo, being used actively, are found in the passive voice. Iniētur occurs as a future passive of in eo. Ambio is regular, like audio, but has either ambibit or ambiebat.

NOTE. Queo, I can, and nequeo, I cannot, are conjugated like eo, but they want the imperative mood and the gerund, and their participles rarely occur. They are sometimes found in the passive voice, before an infinitive passive.

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

§ 183. (1.) Defective verbs are those which are not used in certain tenses, numbers, or persons.

REMARK. There are many verbs which are not found in all the tenses, numbers, and persons, exhibited in the paradigms. Some, not originally defective, are accounted so, because they do not occur in the classics now extant. Others are in their nature defective. Thus, the first and second persons of the passive voice must be wanting in me ay verbs, from the nature of their signification.

- | | | |
|-------------------------------|------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. Odi, I hate. | 6. Fari, to speak. | 11. Cedo, tell, or give me |
| 2. Cœpi, I have begun. | 7. Quæso, I pray. | 12. Confit, it is done. |
| 3. Memini, I remember. | 8. Ave, } hail, or | 13. Defit, it is wanting. |
| 4. Aio, } I say. | 9. Solve, } farewell. | 14. Infat, he begins. |
| 5. Inquam, } | 10. Apage, begone. | 15. Ovat, he rejoices. |

1. Odi, cœpi, and memini are used chiefly in the perfect and in the other parts formed from the second root, and are thence called preteritive verbs. Odi has also a deponent form in the perfect:—
Thus,

IND. perf. ôd'-di or ôd'-sus sum; plup. ôd'-ê-ram; fut. perf. ôd'-ê-ro.
SUBJ. perf. ôd'-ê-rim; plup. ô-dis'-sem.
INF. perf. ô-dis'-se; fut. ô-sû'-rum es'-se.
PART. fut. ô-sû'-rus; perf. ô'-sus.

NOTE 1. Ezodus and pérôsus, like ôsus, are used actively. Odivi, for idiv, occurs, M. Anton. in Cic. Phil. 13, 19: and ôdivendi in Appuleius.

2. IND. perf. cœ'-pi; plup. cœp'-ê-ram; fut. perf. cœp'-ê-ro.

NOTE 2. In Plautus are found a present, cœpio, present subjunctive, cœpiam, and infinitive, cœpere. Before an infinitive passive, captus est, etc., rather than cœpi, etc., are commonly used.

3. IND. perf. mêm'-i-ni; plup. mêm'-în'-ê-ram; fut. perf. mêm'-în'-ê-ro.

NOTE 3. Odi and memini have, in the perfect, the sense of the present, and, in the pluperfect and future perfect, the sense of the imperfect and future, as, fugiet atque odêrit. Cic. In this respect, nôvi, I know, the perfect of nosco, to learn, and consuevi, I am wont, the perfect of consuesco, I accustom myself, agree with ôdi and memini.

4. IND. pres. ai'-o, * a'-is, a'-it; —, —, ai'-unt. *

REMARK 1. Among defective verbs are sometimes, also, included the following:—Fōrem, fōres, etc., f-rē, (see § 154, R. 3.) Ausim, ausis, ausit; ausint. Fazō and fazim, fazis, fazit; fazimus, fazitis, fazint. Fazem. The form in o is an old future perfect; that in im a perfect, and that in em a pluperfect subjunctive. See § 182, 7, (c.), and 9.

REM. 2. In the present tense, the first person singular, fīro, to be mad, and dō and der, from dō, to give, are not used. So in the imperative sci, cāpe and polle, from scio, cāpio, and polleo, do not occur.

REM. 3. A few words, sometimes classed with defectives, are formed by contraction from a verb and the conjunction si; as, sis for si vis, sultis for si vultis, ādes for si audes (for audies).

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

§ 184. (a.) Impersonal verbs are those which are used only in the third person singular, and do not admit of a personal subject.

(b.) The subject of an impersonal verb in the active voice is, for the most part, either an infinitive, or an infinitive or subjunctive clause; but in English the neuter pronoun, it, commonly stands before the verb, and represents such clause; as, me delectat scribere, it delights me to write. Sometimes an accusative depending on an impersonal verb takes, in English, the place of a subject; as, me miseret tui, I pity thee.

1. Impersonal verbs in the active voice are conjugated in the several conjugations like delectat, it delights; dēcet, it becomes; contingit, it happens; evenit, it happens; th is:—

	1a Conj.	2d Conj.	3d Conj.	4th Conj.
IND. Pres.	delectat,	dēcet,	ccingit,	venit,
Imp.	delectābat,	decēbat,	ccingēbat,	veniebāt,
Fut.	delectābit,	decēbit,	ccinget,	veniet,
Perf.	delectāvit,	decuit,	ccingit,	evenit,
Plup.	delectāverat,	decuērat,	ccingērat,	evenērat,
Fut. perf.	delectāverit.	decuērit.	ccingērit.	evenērit
BUN. Pres.	delectet,	deceat,	ccingat,	eveniat,
Imp.	delectāret,	decāret,	ccingēret,	eveniret,
Perf.	delectāverit,	decuērit,	ccingērit,	evenērit,
Plup.	delectāvisset.	decuisset.	ccingisset.	evenisset.
INF. Pres.	delectāre,	decēre,	ccingēre,	evenire,
Perf.	delectāvisse.	decuisse.	ccingisse.	evenisse.

2. (a.) Most neuter and many active verbs may be used impersonally in the passive voice, by changing the personal subject of the active voice into an ablative with the preposition a or ab; as,

Illī pugnant; or pugnātur ab illis, they fight. Illī querunt, or queritur ab illis, they ask. Cf. § 141, Rem. 2.

(b.) In the passive form, the subject in English is, commonly, either the agent, expressed or understood, or an abstract noun formed from the verb; as, Pugnātum est, we, they, etc. fought; or, the battle was fought. Concurritur, the people run together; or, there is a concourse.

(c.) Sometimes the English subject in the passive form is, in Latin, an oblique case dependent on the verb; as, favētur tibi, thou art favored.

The following are the forms of impersonal verbs in the several conjugations of the passive voice:—

INDICATIVE MOOD.

Pres.	pugnātur,	favētur,	curritur,	venitur,
Imp.	pugnabātur,	favebātur,	currebātur,	veniebātur,
Fut.	pugnabitur,	favebitur,	currētur,	venietur,
Perf.	pugnātum est or fuit,	fautum est or fuit,	cursum est or fuit,	ventum est or fuit,
Plup.	pugnātum erat or fuērat,	fautum erat or fuērat,	cursum erat or fuērat,	ventum erat or fuērat,
Fut. p.	pugnātum erit or fuērit.	fautum erit or fuērit.	cursum erit or fuērit.	ventum erit or fuērit.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

Pres.	pugnētur,	faveātur,	currātur,	veniātur,
Imp.	pugnārētur,	faverētur,	currerētur,	venirētur,
Perf.	pugnātum sit or fuērit,	fautum sit or fuērit,	cursum sit or fuērit,	ventum sit or fuērit,
Plup.	pugnātum esset or fuisset.	fautum esset or fuisset.	cursum esset or fuisset.	ventum esset or fuisset.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

Pres.	pugnāri	favēri,	curri,	veniri,
Perf.	pugnātum esse or fuisse,	fautum esse or fuisse,	cursum esse or fuisse,	ventum esse or fuisse,
Fut.	pugnātum iri.	fautum iri.	cursum iri.	ventum iri.

3. In like manner, in the periphrastic conjugation, the neuter gender of the participle in dus, both of active and neuter verbs, is used impersonally with est, etc., and the dative of the person; as, mihi scribendum fuit, I have been obliged to write; moriendum est omnibus, all must die. See § 162, 15, R. 5.

REMARK 1. Grammarians usually reckon only ten real impersonal verbs, all of which are of the second conjugation, viz. décet, libet, licet, liquet, misérêt, oportet, piget, pénitet, pūdet, and cadet. (See § 169.) Four of these, décet, libet, licet, and liquet occur also in the third person plural, but without personal subjects. There seems, however, to be no good reason for distinguishing the verbs above enumerated from other impersonal verbs. The following are such other verbs as are most commonly used impersonally:—

(a.) In the first conjugation:—

Constat, it is evident.	Vācat, there is leisure.	Pugnātur, a battle is fought.
Jūvat, it delights.	Certātur, there is a contention.	Stātur, they stand firm.
Præstat, it is better.
Restat, it remains.	Peccātur, a fault is committed.
Stat, it is resolved.

(b.) In the second conjugation:—

Appāret, it appears.	Pertinet, it pertains.	Persuadētur, he, they, etc. are persuaded.
Attinet, it belongs to.	Plācet, it pleases.	Pertæsum est, he, they, etc. are disgusted with.
Displicet, it displeases.	Fletur, we, etc. weep, or, there is weeping.	Silētur, silence is maintained.
Dōlet, it grieves.	Nocētur, injury is inflicted.
Miserētur, it distresses.
Pātet, it is plain.

(c.) In the third conjugation:—

Accidit, it happens.	Miserescit, it distresses.	Desinītur, there is an end.
Conducit, it is useful.	Sufficit, it suffices.	Scribitur, it is written.
Contingit, it happens.	Creditur, it is believed.	Vivitur, we, etc. live.
Fallit, or } it escapes me;	Curritur, people run.
Fūgit me, } I do not know.

(d.) In the fourth conjugation:—

Convēnit, it is agreed upon; it is fit.	Expēdit, it is expedient.	Sciur, it is known.
Evenit, it happens.	Dormitur, we, they, etc. sleep.	Itur, they, etc. go.
		Venitur, they, etc. come.

(e.) Among irregular verbs:—

Fit, it happens.	Præterit me, it is unknown to me.	Rēfert, it concerns.
Intēret, it concerns.	Prōdest, it avails.	Sūbit, it occurs.
Obest, it is hurtful.		Supērest, it remains.

(f.) To these may be added verbs signifying the state of the weather, or the operations of nature. The subject of these may be Jupiter, deus, or cælum, which are sometimes expressed. Of this kind are the following:—

Fulget, } it lightens.	Lapidat, it rains stones.	Tōnat, it thunders.
Fulgurat, }	Lucescit, } it grows light.	Vesperascit, }
Fulminat, }	Illucescit, }	Advesperascit, }
Gelat, it freezes.	Ningit, it snows.	Invesperascit, } approaches.
Grandinat, it hails.	Pluit, it rains.

Lapideat, ningit, and pluit are also used impersonally in the passive voice.

REM. 2. Impersonal verbs, not being used in the imperative, take the subjunctive in its stead; as, delectet, let it delight. In the passive voice, their perfect participles are used only in the neuter.

REM. 3. Most of the impersonal verbs want participles, gerunds, and supines; but puetlet has a present participle, futures in rus and dus, and the gerund. Pudet and piget have also the gerund and future passive participle.

REM. 4. Most of the above verbs are also used personally, but frequently in a somewhat different sense; as, ut Tiberis inter eos et pons interesset, so that the Tiber and bridge were between them.

REDUNDANT VERBS.

§ 185. Redundant verbs are those which have different forms to express the same meaning.

Verbs may be redundant in termination; as, fabrīco and fabrīcor, to frame;—in conjugation; as, lāvo, -āre, and lāvō, -ēre, to wash;—or in certain tenses; as, ōdi and ōsus sum, I hate.

1. The following deponent verbs, besides their passive form, have an active form in o, of the same meaning, but which is, in general, rarely used. A few, however, which are marked r., occur more rarely than the corresponding forms in o.

Abominor, to abhor.	Fabrīcor, to frame.	Oscitor, to gape.
Adūlor, to flutter.	Fenēror, to lend on interest.	Pacifīcor, r. to make a peace.
Altercor, to dispute.	Fluctuor, to fluctuate.	Palpor, to caress.

Dignor, to deem worthy.	Nictor, r. to wink.	Venēror, to reverence.
Depascor, to feed upon.	Nūtrior, r. to nourish.	Vocīfīcor, to bawl.
Elucubror, to elaborate.	Obsōnor, to cater.
	Opīnor, to suppose.

2. The following verbs are redundant in conjugation:—

Boo, -āre, } to roar.	Fulgeo, -ēre, } to shine.	Sōno, -āre, } to sound.
Boo, -ēre, r. }	Fulgo, -ēre, r. }	Sōno, -ēre, }
Bullo, -āre, } to boil.	Lāvo, -āre, } to wash.	Strideo, -ēre, } to creak.
Bullio, -īre, }	Lāvō, -ēre, r. }	Strido, -ēre, }
Cleo, -ēre, } to excite.	Līno, -ēre, } to anoint.	Tergeo, -ēre, } to wipe.
Cio, -īre, r. }	Līnio, -īre, r. }	Tergo, -ēre, }
Denso, -āre, } to thicken.	Nicto, -āre, } to wink.	Tueor, -ēri, } to protect Denseo, -ēre, }	Nictio, -ēre, }	Tuor, -ī, r. }
Ferveo, -ēre, } to boil.	Sālo, -ēre, } to salt.
Fervo, -ēre, }	Sālīo, -īre, }
Fōdio, -ēre, } to dig.	Scāteo, -ēre, } to abound.
Fōdio, -īre, r. }	Scāto, -ēre, r. }

Those marked r. are rarely used.

Mōrior, ōrior, and pōrior, also, are redundant in conjugation in certain parts. See in lists §§ 174 and 177.

Mando, mansum, to chew.	Pando, passum, to extend.	Verro, versum, to brush.
		Verto, versum, to turn.

DERIVATION OF VERBS.

§ 187. Verbs are derived either from nouns, from adjectives, or from other verbs.

I. Verbs derived from nouns or adjectives are called denominatives.

1. (a.) Active denominatives are generally of the first conjugation; those which are neuter, of the second. They are usually formed by adding respectively o and eo to the root; as,

FROM NOUNS.

Actives.	Neuters.
Armo, to arm. (arma.)	Flöreo, to bloom. (flos.)
Fraudo, to defraud. (fraus.)	Frondeo, to produce leaves. (frons.)
Nomino, to name. (nomen.)	Luceo, to shine. (lux.)
Numéro, to number. (numerus.)	Vireo, to flourish. (vis.)

FROM ADJECTIVES.

Albo, to whiten. (albus.)	Albeo, to be white. (albus.)
Celebro, to frequent. (celëber.)	Calveo, to be bald. (calvus.)
Libëro, to free. (liber.)	Fläveo, to be yellow. (flävus.)

(b.) Sometimes a preposition is prefixed in forming the derivative; as,

Coacervo, to heap together. (acervus.)	Exstirpo, to extirpate. (stirps.)
Excävo, & excavate, (cävus.)	Illäqueo, to inshore. (lätqueus.)

2. Many deponents of the first conjugation, derived from nouns, express the exercise of the character, office, etc., denoted by the primitive; as, archilector, to build; comitor, to accompany; färor, to steal; from archilectus, cömes, and für.

3. Such as denote resemblance or imitation are called imitatives; as, cornäcor, to imitate a crow, from cornix; Gräcor, to imitate the Greeks. Some of these end in isso; as, patrisso, to imitate a father.

II. Verbs derived from other verbs are either frequentatives, inceptive, desideratives, diminutives, or intensives.

1. Frequentatives express a repetition, or an increase of the action expressed by the primitive.

(a.) They are all of the first conjugation, and are formed by adding to the third root; as, dōmo, (dōmīt-) dōmīto. So adjūvo, adjūto, dico, dicto; gēro, gesto. In verbs of the first conjugation, āt of the root is often changed into ū; as, clāmo, to cry, (clamāt-) clamīto, to cry frequently.

(b.) A few frequentatives are formed by adding ŭo to the first root of the primitive; as, āgo (āg-) āgīto. So lāteo, lālīto; nosco, nosclīto; quæro, quærlīto.

(c.) Frequentatives, from primitives of the second, third, and fourth conjugations, sometimes serve again as primitives, from which new frequentatives are formed; as, dicō, dicto, dicātō; curro, curso, curātō; venio, vento, venātō. Sometimes the second or intermediate form is not in use.

(d.) Some frequentatives are deponent; as, minitor, from minor (mināt-); versor, from verto (vers-). So amplexor, sector, lōquor, from amplector, sequor, and loquor.

(e.) When verbs of this class express simply an increase of the action denoted by the primitive, they are, by some grammarians, called intensives.

2. Inceptives, or inchoatives mark the beginning of the action or state expressed by the primitive.

(a.) They all end in sco, and are formed by adding that termination to the root of the primitive, with its connecting vowel, which, in the third conjugation, is i; as, cāleo, to be hot; cālesco, to grow hot.

So lūbo, (āre), lūbasco; ingēmo, (ēre), ingēmisco; obdormio, (ire), obdormisco. Hisco is contracted for hiasco, from hio, (āre).

(b.) Most inceptives are formed from verbs of the second conjugation.

(c.) Some inceptives are formed from nouns and adjectives by adding asco or esco to the root; as, puērasco, from puer; jūvenēscō, from jūvenis.

NOTE. Inceptives are all neuter, and of the third conjugation. See § 173.

Some verbs in sco, which are not inceptives, are active; as, disco, posco.

3. Desideratives express a desire of doing the act denoted by the primitive.

(a.) They are formed from the third root, by adding ūrio; as, cæno, to sup, (cænāt-) cænātūrio, to desire to sup.

(b.) Desideratives are all of the fourth conjugation. See § 176, Note.

(c.) Verbs in ūrio, having u long, are not desideratives; as, prūrio, āgūrio.

4. Diminutives denote a feeble or trifling action. They are formed by adding ŭlo to the root of the primitive; as, conscribillo, to scribble, from conscribo.

They are few in number, and are all of the first conjugation.

5. Intensives denote eager action. They are usually formed by adding so, esso, or isso to the root of the primitive; as, fācesso, to act earnestly—from fācio.

So cāpesso, incesso, from cāpio and incēdo. Concupisco, to desire greatly, though in form an inceptive, is, in its signification, an intensive.

NOTE. Verbs of all these classes have sometimes simply the meaning of their primitives.

COMPOSITION OF VERBS.

§ 188. Verbs are compounded variously:—

1. Of a noun and a verb; as, œtífico, belligero, lucrifacio. See § 108, R. 1.
2. Of an adjective and a verb; as, amplifico, multiplico.
3. Of two verbs; as, califico, madefacio, patefacio.

REM. In verbs of this class, the first part, which is a verb of the second conjugation, loses its final o; the second part is always the verb facio.

4. Of an adverb and a verb; as, benefacio, maledico, addigo, nolo, negligo.
5. Of a preposition and a verb; as, adduco, excuso, prado, subrepto, discerno, conjungo.
6. Of a preposition and a noun, as, pernocto, irratio.

§ 189. In composition with particles, the vowels a and e and the diphthong æ in the radical syllable of the simple verb are often changed in the compound.

1. The following simple verbs in composition change a into e:—

Arceo,	Carpo,	Farcio,	Jacto,	Pãrio,	Patro,	Spargo,
Candeo,	Damno,	Fãtiscor,	Lacto,	Partio,	Sacro,	Tracto.
Capto,	Fallo,	Grãdior,	Mando,	Pãtior,	Scando,

Exc. A is retained in amando, præmando, desacro, and retracto; prædamno, and pertracto sometimes also occur. A is also changed into e in occulto from canto, and anhelo from hãlo; comperco also is found.

2. The following, in the first root, change ã and ẽ into ĩ; viz.
ãgo, cãdo, ẽgeo, ẽmo, frango, pango, prẽmo, rẽgo, sẽdeo, spẽcio, tango.
3. These change ã and ẽ, in the first and second roots, into ĩ; viz.
sãlio, to leap, sãpio, tãceo, and tẽneo.
4. These change ã into ĩ, and æ into ĩ, in all the roots; viz.
hãbeo, lãcio, lãteo, plãceo, stãtuo; cædo, lædo, and quæro.
5. The following change ã, in the first root, into ĩ, and in the third root into e; viz.

cãno, cãrio, fãteor, jãcio, rãpio, and ãpiscor.

Exc. (a.) A is retained in circumãgo, perãgo, satãgo; antẽhãbeo, posthãbeo, depango, repango, complãceo, and perplãceo. Occũno and reũcno also sometimes occur. E is retained in coẽmo, circumsẽdeo, and supersẽdeo. Antẽcãpio and anũctio are both used; so also are superjãcio and superjicio.

(b.) Obgo and dẽgo are formed, by contraction, from con, de, and ãgo; dẽmo, prẽmo and sũmo, from de, pro, sub, and ẽmo; prãbeo, and perhaps dẽbeo, from prã, de, and hãbeo; pergo and surgo, from per, sub, and rẽgo.

NOTE 1. Fãcio, compounded with a preposition, changes ã into ĩ in the first root, and into e in the third; as, afficio, affiect, affectum. Some compounds of fãcio with nouns and adjectives, change ã into ĩ, and also drop ĩ before o, and are of the first conjugation; as, significo, letifico, magnifico. Spẽcio forms some compounds in the same manner; as, conspicor and suspicio.

NOTE 2. Lẽgo, compounded with con, de, di, e, inter, nec, and se, changes ẽ into ĩ, in the first root; as, colligo, negligo, etc.; but with ad, pro, per, re, sub, and trans, it retains ẽ; as, allẽgo.

NOTE 3. Calco and sãlio, in composition, change a into u; as, inculco, insulto. Plaudo changes au into o; as, explodo; except applaudo. Audio changes au into ẽ in obẽdo. Curso, claudio, and quãtio, drop a. As, accuso, recludo, percutio. Nero changes ã into ẽ in dẽjã o and pẽjãro, but dẽjãro, also, is in use.

NOTE 4. In the compounds of cāveo, māneo, and trāh. ā remains unchanged, and so also does æ in the compounds of hæreo.

NOTE 5. The simple verbs with which the following are compounded are not used:—

Dēfendo,	Impēdio,	Confūto,	Instigo,	Connīveo,
Offendo,	Imbuo,	Rēfūto,	Impleo,	Percello,
Expērior,	Compello, (-āre,)	Ingruo,	Compleo,	Induo, and some
Expēdio,	Appello, (-āre,)	Congruo,	Rēnīdeo,	Exuo, others.

For the changes produced in prepositions by composition with verbs see § 196.

PARTICLES.

§ 190. 1. Particles are those parts of speech which are neither declined nor conjugated. They are divided into four classes—adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections.

NOTE. A word may sometimes belong to two or more of these classes, according to its connection.

ADVERBS.

2. An adverb is a particle used to modify or limit the meaning of a verb, an adjective, or another adverb; as,

Bēne et sapienter dixit, he spoke well and wisely; Cōnis ēgrēgie fidēlis, a remarkably faithful dog; Nimis valde laudāre, to praise too much. Compare § 277, R. 1.

3. Adverbs, in regard to their signification, are divided into various classes; as, adverbs of place, time, manner, etc., and some belong to either class according to their connection.

4. In regard to their etymology, adverbs are either primitive or derivative.

REMARK. Among primitive adverbs are here classed not only such as cannot be traced to any more remote root, but also all which are not included in the regular classes of derivative adverbs hereafter mentioned.

PRIMITIVE ADVERBS.

§ 191. The primitive adverbs are few in number, when compared with the derivatives, and most of them are contained in the following lists marked I, II, and III

I. Adverbs of Place and Order.

ādeo, so far, as far.	ālicūbi, somewhere.	āliquōversum, toward ād hūc, to this place.	ālicundē, from some	some place.
adversūs,	place.	āliundē, from another
adversum,	place.	place.
exadversūs,—um,	āliū, to another place.

 utrimquē, on both sides.
 utrō? which way?
 utrōbi? in which place?
 utrōbiquē, in both places.
 utrōquē, to both sides.
 utrōquēversum, toward both sides.

REMARK 1. (a.) The interrogative adverbs of place, ubi? where? unde? whence? quō? whither? and quā? in what way? have relation to other adverbs formed in a similar manner, thus constituting a system of adverbial correlatives similar to that of the pronominal adjectives. See § 139, 5, (8.)

(b.) As in the case of the pronominal correlatives, the interrogative and relative forms are alike, beginning with u or qu. The demonstratives are formed from is, which is strengthened by dem, and the indefinite from aliquis. The general relatives and the general indefinites or universals, like those of the pronominal adjectives, are made, the former by doubling the simple relatives or by appending to them the termination cumquē, 'soever,' and the latter by adding quē, vis, or libēt. Thus:

Interrog.	Demonstr.	Relat.	Gen. Relat.	Indefn.	Gen. Indefn
ubi?	ibi, ibidem,	ubi,	ubiūbi, ubicumquē,	allicūbi,	ubiquē, ubivis, ubilibēt.
undē?	indē, indidem,	undē,	undeundē, undēcumquē,	allicundē,	undiquē, undēvis, undēlibēt,
quō?	eō, eōdem,	quō,	quōquō, quōcumquē,	allicquō,	quōvis, quōlibēt,
quā?	eā, eādem.	quā.	quāquā, quācumquē.	allicquā.	quāvis. quālibēt.

(c.) To those answering o ubi? may be added alibi, nullibi, and intibi, the latter being a strengthened form of ibi. In like manner alivnde, utrimque, intrinsecus, and extrinsecus may be added to those answering to unde? and alio to those answering to quo? So also to utro? answer utroque and neutro.

(d.) The demonstratives ibi, inde, and eo are used only in reference to relative sentences which precede; but more definite demonstratives are formed from the pronouns hic, iste, and ille, answering in like manner to ubi? unde? and quo? These together with the preceding correlatives are, in the following table, arranged respectively under their several interrogatives ubi? unde? quo? qui? and quorsum?—Thus:

ubi?	unde?	quo?	quā?	quorsum?
hic ,	hinc ,	hūc ,	hāc ,	horsum ,
istūc ,	istinc ,	istūc ,	istāc ,	istorsum ,
illūc ,	illinc ,	illūc ,	illāc ,	illorsum ,
ibi ,	indē ,	eō ,	eā ,	_____
ibidem ,	indidem ,	eodem ,	eādem ,	_____
alibi ,	alivnde ,	alio ,	aliā ,	alorsum ,
allicubi .	allicundē .	aliquō .	aliquā .	aliquoversum .

(e.) Hic, hinc, huc, refer to the place of the speaker; istūc, istinc, istūc, to the place of the second person or person addressed; and illūc, illinc, illūc, to that of the third person or the person or thing spoken of. Cf. § 207, R. 23, (a.) and (d.)

(f.) The interrogative adverbs ubi, unde, quō, quā, etc. are often used without a question, simply as adverbs of place; as, In eam partem ituros, atque ibi futuros Helveticos, ubi eos Caesar constitueret.

(g.) In consequence of a transfer of their meaning, some of the adverbs of place, as, hic, ibi, illic, hinc, inde, hactenus, etc., become also adverbs of time, and some of them are used also as conjunctions.

II. Adverbs of Time.

actūtum , immediately.	illūc , immediately.	quandū? how long?
abhinc , from this time.	inde , after that, then.	quandō? when?
alio , so long (as).	interdum , sometimes.	quandocumque , when-ever.
allicubi , until now, still.	intērim , meanwhile.	quandocūq̄ , at some time.
aliās , at another time.	iterum , again.	quātē , four times.
aliquandū , for awhile.	jam , now, already.	quōd?

at tūc , formerly.	mōdo , just now.	quum or cum , when.
bis , twice. (see § 119).	mox , soon after.	rursus , again.
circitē , about, near.	nondum , not yet.	sæpē , often.
crās , tomorrow.	nonnumquam , sometimes.	semel , once.
cum or quum , when.	nūdiūs tertius , three days ago.	semper , always.
deinceps , in succession.	nunc , now.	statim , immediately.
deinde or dein , { thereupon.	numquam , never.	sūbindē , immediately, now and then.
exin or exin , { afterward.	nūpēr , lately.	tamdiū , so long.
abhinc , from this time.	olim , formerly.	tandem , for a short time.
semum , at length.	pārumpēr , { for a short time.	tantispēr , for so long.
lūcque , lustily.	paulispēr , {	tēr , thrice.
diū , long.	prēndis , two days hence.	tōtīes , so often.
dūdum , previously.	porrō , hereafter, in future.	tum , tunc, then.
ousque , so long.	post , postea , afterwards.	ubi , when, as soon as.
hērē or hērē , yesterday.	posthāc , hereafter.	umquam , ever.
hic , here, hereupon.	postridie , the day after.	usque , until, ever.
hinc , from this time, since.	pridem , long since.	ut or ūtī , as, as soon as, when.
hōdiē , to-day.	pridie , the day before.
ibi , then, thereupon.	prōtinus , instantly.
dentidē , now and then, repeatedly.

III Adverbs of Manner, Quality, Degree, etc.

adeo , so, to that degree.	n. mls. , } too much.	sânē , truly.
admodum , very much.	nimium , }	sât , }

nimisrum , certainly, so be	ritē , duly.	videlicet , clearly, to wit.
sure.	saltem , at least.	vix , scarcely.

REM. 2. Adverbs denoting quality, manner, etc., are sometimes divided into those of, 1. Quality; as, bênē, mâllē. 2. Certainty; as, certē, plânē. 3. Contingence; as, fortē. 4. Negation; as, haud, nôn, nē, immô. 5. Affirmation; as, næ, quidem, utiquē, nempē. 6. Swearing; as, hercûlē. 7. Explaining; as, videlicet, utpôtē. 8. Separation; as, seorsum. 9. Joining together; as, simûl, unâ. 10. Interrogation; as, cûr? quârē? 11. Quantity or degree; as, sâtis, adēo. 12. Excess; as, perquam, maximē. 13. Defect; as, pôrum, pænē. 14. Preference; as, pôtius, sâtius. 15. Likeness; as, itâ, sic. 16. Unlikeness; as, aliter. 17. Exclusion; as, tantum, solum.

REM. 3. Non is the ordinary Latin negation. Haud signifies either 'not at all,' or 'not exactly.' It is used by the comic and later writers in all combinations, but in the authors of the best age its use is more especially limited to its connection with adjectives and adverbs denoting a measure; as, haud multum, haud magnum, haud parvus, haud mediocris, haud paulo, haud prout, haud longe especially haud sâne in connection with other words; as, haud sâne facile, res haud sâne difficilis, haud sâne intelligo; also haud quisquam, haud unquam, haud quâquam. With verbs haud is scarcely used until Livy and Tacitus, except in the common phrase haud scio an, which is equivalent to nescio an.—Nē, (or nî) is the primitive Latin negative particle, signifying no or not. It is used in this sense and as an adverb, (a) with quidem to make an emphatic negation of the word standing between them as, nē in oppidis quidem, not even in the towns; (b) in composition as in nequis, nequius, neuter etc.; (c) with imperatives and subjunctives used as imperatives; as, Nē puēri, nē tanta animi īssuescēt bella. Virg. So, also, in wishes and asseverations; as, Nē id Jupiter aenēret, may Jupiter forbid it. Liv. Nē vicam, si scio, may I die, if I know. Cic.; and in concessive and restrictive clauses; as, Nē fuērūt, suppose there was not. Cic. Sint misericordes in iuribus cēarii, nē illis sanguinem nostram largiantur, only let them not, etc. Cic. So dum ne, dummodo ne, mōdo ne, dum quidem ne; and in intentional clauses with ut.—Immo, as a negative, substitutes something stronger in the place of the preceding statement, which is denied; as, Causa igitur non bona est? Immo optima, sed, etc. Cic. It may often be translated by 'nay,' or 'nay even.'

REM. 4. Quidem gives particular emphasis to a word or an idea, and then answers to our 'certainly' or 'indeed,' but frequently, especially with a pronoun, it merely adds emphasis. Equidem, which is considered as a compound of ego and quidem, is used exclusively in this sense by Cicero, Virgil, and Horace, but by other and particularly by later writers it is used like quidem.—Nempe, 'surely,' is often used ironically, when we refute a person by concessions which he is obliged to make, or by deductions. In other connections it may be translated 'namely.'

REM. 5. Sic, itā, tam, as also tantopere, and adeo signify 'so.' Sic is more particularly the demonstrative 'so,' or 'thus'; as, sic se res habet. Ita defines or limits more accurately, and is equivalent to our 'in such a manner,' or 'only in so far'; as, ita defendito, ut neminem laedas. Frequently, however, ita has the signification of sic, but sic has not the limiting sense of ita.—Tam, 'so much,' generally stands before adjectives and adverbs, and increases the degree; before vowels tantopere is generally used instead of tam.—Adeo, 'to that degree' or 'point,' increases the expression to a certain end or result. Hence it forms the transition to the conclusion of an argument or to the essential part of a thing; and Cicero employs it to introduce the proofs of what he has previously alleged; as, Id adeo ex ipso senatus consulto cognoscite, and always in such case puts adeo after a pronoun.

REM. 6. Usumquam, 'ever,' and usquam, 'somewhere,' like quasquam, require a negation in the sentence, and thus become equivalent to numquam and nusquam. A negative question, however, may supply the place of a negative proposition; as, num tu eum unquam vidisti?—Uspiam, like quispiam, is not negative, but is the same as aliquis, but strengthened, just as quispiam is the same as aliquis. So, also, quispiam is used affirmatively, and quodquam negatively.—Jam, with a negative, answers to our 'longer'; as, Nihil jam spero, I no longer hope for any thing. When used to connect sentences it signifies 'further,' or 'now':—Usque is commonly accompanied by the prepositions ad, in, ab, or ex. It rarely signifies 'ever and anon'; as, Natūram expellas furca, tamen usque recurret. Hor.—Nuper, mōdo, or mox are relative and indefinite.—Dūdum, 'previously,' or 'before,' in relation to a time which has just passed away, may often be translated 'just before.'—Jamdūdum signifies 'long before,' or 'long since.' With the poets jamdūdum contains the idea of impatience, and signifies 'without delay,' 'forthwith'; as, Jamdūdum sumite penas. Virg.—Tandem, 'at length,' also expresses the impatience with which a question is put.

REM. 7. Tunc is 'then,' 'at that time,' in opposition to nunc, 'now': Tum is 'then,' as the correlative of quum, 'when'; as, quum omnes adessent, tum ille exorsus est dicere, when all were present, then he began to speak. Without a relative sentence tum signifies 'hereupon,' or 'thereupon'; but a relative sentence may always be supplied. The same difference exists between etiam nunc and etiam tum, 'still,' or 'yet'; and between nunc ipsum and tum ipsum; quummaxime and tummaxime, 'just,' or 'even then'; for etiam nunc, nunc ipsum and quum maxime refer to the present; but etiam tum, tum ipsum, and tummaxime, to the past.

DERIVATION OF ADVERBS.

§ 192. Adverbs are derived from nouns, adjectives, pronouns, and participles.

I. From Nouns.

1. Of these a few end in im (generally ātim), and denote manner;

as,

grēgātīm, in herds; membrātīm, limb by limb; vicissātīm, or more frequently, vicissim, by turns; from grex, membrum, and vicis.

2. Some end in itus, and denote origin or manner; as, cœlitus, from heaven; funditus, from the bottom; radicitus, by the roots; from cœlum, fundus, and radix.

3. Some are merely the different cases of nouns used adverbially;

as,

(a.) Some adverbs of time; as, mānē, noctū, diū, tempore or tempōri, initio, principiō, mōdo.—(b.) Adverbs of place; as, fōris, fōrās.—(c.) Adverbs of manner; as, spontē, fortē, grātis or grātū, ingrātū, vulgō, partim.

II. From Adjectives and Participles.

By far the greater number of derivative adverbs come from adjectives and participles (present and perfect), and end in ē and tēr.

1. Adverbs derived from adjectives and participles of the second declension, are formed by adding ē to the root; as, egre, scarcely; altē, high; liberē, freely; longē, far; misere, miserably; plene, fully; docte, learnedly; ornate, elegantly; from ager, altus, liber, longus, miser, plenus, doctus, and ornatus. Bene, well, is from bonus, or an older form benus.

REMARK. A few adverbs in e differ in meaning from their adjectives; as, cane, certainly; valde, very; from sanus, sound, well; and validus, strong.

Exc. 1. A few adverbs derived from adjectives and participles of the second declension, add itēr, itūs, im, or ātim to the root; as, nāritēr, actively; antiquitūs, anciently; divinitūs, divinely; privatim, privately; tuotim, after your manner; singulatim, singillatim, sigillatim, or singulim, severally; cæsim, carptim, sensim, statim, etc. from nāvus, antiquus, divinus, privatus, tuis, singuli cæsus, carptus, etc.

Exc. 2. Some adverbs are formed with two or more of the above terminations with the same meaning; as, dure, duritēr; firmē, firmitēr; nave, navitēr; large, largitēr; luculentē, luculentēr; turbulentē, turbulentēr: so caute and cautim; humane, humanitēr, and humanitus; publēc and publicitūs.

2. Adverbs derived from adjectives and participles of the third declension, are formed by adding itēr to the root, except when it ends in t, in which case ēr only is added; as, acutēr, sharply; felicitēr, happily; turpitēr, basely;—ēlegantēr, elegantly, prudētēr, prudently; amantēr, lovingly; propterantēr, hastily; from acer, felix, turpis, ēlégans, prudens, amans, and propterus. So also from the obsolete ali for alius, and proptis, (neuter proptē), come alitēr and proptēr for proptēr.

Exc. From auidax comes by syncope audactēr; from fortis comes fortitēr from omnis, omnino; from uber, ubertim; and from nēquam, nēquitēr.

3. From the cardinal numerals are formed numeral adverbs in ies; as, quinqüies, decies, from quinqüē and dēcem. So toties and quoties, from tōt and quōt. See § 119.

4. Some adverbs are merely certain cases of adjectives. Such are,

(a.) Ablatives in ō, from adjectives and participles of the second declension as, citō, quickly; continuo, immediately; falsō, falsely; crebrō, frequently; merito, deservedly; inēcōpinātō, unexpectedly; fortuito, by chance; auspiciatō, auspiciously; consultō, designedly; and a few in ā from adjectives of the first declension; as, rectā, straight on; unā, together. In like manner, repēntē, suddenly, from repens; and peregre or peregrī, from peregrer.

(b.) Nominatives or accusatives of the third declension in the neuter singular; as, facilē, difficilē, recens, sublimē, and impūnē; and some also of the second declension; as, ceterum, plerumque, multum, plurimum, potissimum, paulum, nimum, parum, and the numeral adverbs, primum, iterum, tertium, quartum, etc. which have also the termination in ō, and so also postrimum (ō), and ultimum (ō). The neuter plural sometimes occurs also, especially in poetry; as, multa genere; tristia ululare; crebra ferire.

NOTE 1. The forms in ē and ō from adjectives of the second declension have generally the same meaning, but verē and verō have a somewhat different sense. Verē, truly, is the regular adverb of verus, true; but verō is used in answers, in the sense of 'in truth,' or 'certainly.' In this use it is added to the verb used in the question; as, adjuvisti hērī in convivio? The affirmative answer is ego verō adjuvi, or without the verb, ego verō, and negatively, minime verō; and as verō thus merely indicates a reply, it is often untranslatable into English.—Certō, on the other hand, usually takes the meaning of the adjective certus, while certē often signifies 'at least'; as, victi sumus, aut, si dignitas vinci non potest, fracti certē; but certē is frequently used in the sense of 'certainly,' especially in the phrase certē scio.

NOTE 2. Some adjectives, from the nature of their signification, have no corresponding adverbs. Of some others, also, none occur in the classics. Such are amens, dirus, discors, gnarus, rudis, trux, imbellis, immobilis, and similar compounds. In place of the adverbs formed from vetus and fidus, vetus and antiquē are used for the former, and fideliter for the latter, from vetustus, antiquus, and fidelis.

III. From the adjective pronouns are derived adverbs of place, etc. (See § 191, Rem. 1.)

REMARK. The terminations ō and ac denote the place whither, instead of the accusative of the pronoun with a preposition; as, eo for ad eum locum; huc for ad hunc locum; the terminations de and inc denote the place from which; h and ic, the place in which; and ā and ac, the place by or through which; as, ad; viā or parte being understood.

IV. (a.) A few adverbs are derived from prepositions; as, subtus, beneath; from sub; propter, near; from proptē. (b.) Mordicus and versus are derived from the verbs mordeo and verto.

REMARK. Diminutives are formed from a few adverbs; as, clam, clamulum; primum, primulum; celerius, celeriusculē; sapius, sapiusculē; benē, bellē, bellissimē.

COMPOSITION OF ADVERBS.

§ 193. Adverbs are compounded variously :—

1. Of an adjective and a noun; as, postridiē, quōtidīē, magnōpērē, maximōpērē, summōpērē, quantōpērē, tantōpērē, tantummōdo, solummōdo, multimōdis, quōtannis—of postērō diē, magnō opērē, etc.
2. Of a pronoun and a noun; as, hōdiē, quārē, quōmōdō—of hōc diē, quā rē, etc.
3. Of an adverb and a noun; as, nūdiūs, sepēnūmērō—of nunc diēs, etc.
4. Of a preposition and a noun; as, commīnūs, ēmīnūs, illico, obiter, exēmplō, obviā, postmōdo, admōdum, prōpēdiem—of con, e, and mīnūs; in and hōcūs; etc.
5. Of an adjective and a pronoun; as, aliōquā or aliōquin, cēlēroquī or (cēlēroquin—of aliūs and qui, i. e. aliō quō (mōdo), etc.
6. Of a pronoun and an adverb; as, āliquamdiū, ālicubi—of āliquis, diū, and ubi; nēquāquam and nēquicquam—of nē and quisquam.
7. Of two verbs; as, licēt, scilicēt videlicēt of trē, scire, vidērē, and licēt.
8. Of an adverb and a verb; as, quolibēt, ubiuis, undelibēt. So deinceps—from dein and cāpio; duntaxat—from dum and taxo.
9. Of a participle with various parts of speech; as, deorsum, dextrorsum, horisum, retrorsum, sursum—of dē, dextrē, hīc, retro, supēr, and vorsus or versus.
10. Of two adverbs; as, jamdūdum, quamdiū, tamdiū, cummaximē, tummaximē quousquē, sicūt.
11. Of a preposition and an adjective; as, dēnuo, imprimis, cumprimis, apprimē, incassum—of dē novō, in primis, etc.
12. Of a preposition and a pronoun; as, quapropter, postea, intēreā, praeēreā, hactēnūs, quātēnūs, āliquatēnūs, eātēnūs—of propter quā, post ea or eam, etc.
13. Of a preposition and an adverb; as, abhinc, adhuc, dērepentē, intēribi, interdiū, interdum, persepē.
14. Of two or three prepositions; as, insupēr, prōtinūs, indē, dein, deindē, pērinde.
15. Of a conjunction and an adverb; as, nēcūbi, sicūbi—of nē, si, and ālicūbi.
16. Of an adverb and a termination scarcely used except in composition; as, ibidem, pārupēr, quandōcumquē, ubiquē, utcumquē.
17. Of three different parts of speech; as, forstātā—of fors, sit, an, quemadmōdum, quamobrem, etc.
18. Of an adverb and an adjective; as, nīmīrum, utpōtē.
19. Of an adjective and a verb; as, quantumvis, quantumlibēt.

Signification of certain Compound and Derivative Adverbs.

1. The adverbs continuo, prōtinus, statim, confestim, subito, repente and dērepente, actūtim, illico, ilicet, exēmplō, signify in general 'directly' or 'immediately'; but, strictly, continuo means, 'immediately after'; statim, 'without delay'; confestim, 'directly'; subito, 'suddenly, unexpectedly'; prōtinus, 'farther, viz. in the same direction, and hence, 'without interruption'; repente and dērepente, 'at once,' opposed to sensim, 'gradually,' (see Cic. Off. 1, 33); actūtim, 'instantaneously,' i. g. eodem actū; illico, and more rarely ilicet, 'forthwith, the instant,' (Virg. Æn. 2, 424, Cic. Mur. 10); so also exēmplō, (Liv. 41, 1).
2. Præsertim, præcipue, imprimis, cumprimis, apprimē, are generally translated 'principally,' but, properly, præsertim is 'particularly,' and sets forth a particular circumstance with emphasis; præcipue, from præcāpio, has reference to privilege, and signifies 'especially'; imprimis and cumprimis, signify 'principally,' or 'in preference to others'; and apprimē, 'before all,' 'verv.' is used

In pure Latin to qualify and strengthen only adjectives. Admodum properly signifies 'according to measure,' that is, 'in as great a measure as can be,' 'very, exceedingly.' With numerals it denotes approximation, 'about.' Admodum nihil and admodum nullus signify 'nothing at all' and 'no one at all.'

3. Modo is the usual equivalent for 'only.' Solum, 'alone,' 'merely,' points to something higher or greater. Tantum, 'only,' 'merely,' intimates that something else was expected. The significations of solum and tantum are strengthened by modo, forming solummodo and tantummodo. Suntaxat, 'only, solely,' is not joined with verbs. It also signifies 'at least,' denoting a limitation to a particular point. Saltem also signifies 'at least,' but denotes the reduction of a demand to a minimum; as, Eripe mihi hunc dolorem, aut minue saltem.

4. Frustrā implies a disappointed expectation; as in frustra suscipere labores. Nequaquam denotes the absence of success, as in Hor. Carm. 1, 8, 21. Incasum, composed of in and cassum, 'hollow' or 'empty,' signifies 'to no purpose'; as, tela incassum jacere.

COMPARISON OF ADVERBS.

§ 194. 1. Adverbs derived from adjectives with the terminations ē and tēr, and most of those in o, are compared like their primitives.

2. The comparative, like the neuter comparative of the adjective, ends in iūs; the superlative is formed from the superlative of the adjective by changing ūs into e; as, dūrē, duriūs, durissimē; facillē, faciliūs, facillimē; acriter, acriūs, acerrimē; rārō, rariūs, rarissimē; maturē, maturiūs, maturissimē or maturimē.

3. Some adverbs have superlatives in ō or um; as, mēritissimō, plurimū, primō or primū, potissimū.

4. If the comparison of the adjective is irregular or defective, (see §§ 125, 126), that of the adverb is so likewise; as, benē, meliūs, optimē; malē, pejūs, pessimē; parum, minūs, minime; multum, plūs, plurimū; —, priūs, primō or primū; —, citiūs, citissime; —, delēriūs, delērrimē; —, potiūs, potissimē or potissimū; mēritū, —, mēritissimō; satis, satius, —. Magns, maximē, (from magns,) has no positive; nupēr, nuperrimē, has no comparative. Prope, propiūs, proxime: the adjective propiūs has no positive in use. The regular adverb in the positive degree from uber is wanting, its place being supplied by uberim, but uberiūs and uberimē are used. So instead of tristiter, tristē, the neuter of tristis, is used, but the comparative tristiūs is regular; and from socors only socordiūs, the comparative, is in use.

5. Diū and sepe, though not derived from adjectives, are yet compared;—diū, diutiūs, diutissimē; sepe, sepiūs, sepiissimē. A comparative tempēriūs, from tempēri or tempōri, also sometimes occurs. So secūs, seciūs.

6. Adverbs, like adjectives, are sometimes compared by prefixing magis and maximē; as, magis apertē, maximē accommodatē.

PREPOSITIONS.

§ 195. 1. A preposition is a particle which expresses the relation between a noun or pronoun and some preceding word.

2. Prepositions express the relations of persons or things, either to one another, or to actions and conditions; as, amor meus erga te, my love toward thee; eo ut te, I go to thee.

3. Some prepositions have the noun or pronoun which follows them in the accusative, some, in the ablative, and some, in either the accusative or the ablative.

4. Twenty-six prepositions have an accusative after them:—

ad , to, towards, at, for.	extrā , without, beyond.	post , after, since, behind.
adversus , } against.	infrā , under, beneath.	præter , past, before.
adversum , } towards.	inter , between, among,	propē , against, beyond, beside.
antē , before.	during .	propē , near by, nigh.
apud , at, with, near, be-	intrā , within.	proptēr , near, on account
fore , in presence of.	juxtā , near to, next to.	of .
circā , } around, about.	ob , for, on account of,	secundum , after, behind,
circum , }	before .	along , next to, accord-
circiter , about, near.	pēnēs , in the power of,	ing to.
cis , } on this side, within.	with .	suprā , above, over.
citrā , }	pēr , through, throughout,	trans , over, beyond.
contra , against, opposite.	by , during .	ultrā , beyond.
ergā , towards, opposite.	pōnē , behind.

5. Eleven prepositions have after them an ablative:—

ā , }	dē , from, down from, af-	præ , before, for, on ac-
ab , } from, after, by.	ter , of, concerning.	count of, in comparison
abs , }	ē , } out of, from, of, by,	with .
absquē , without, but for.	ex , } after.	prō , before, for, instead
acram , before, in pres-	pālam , before, in pres-	of , according to.
ence of.	ence of.	sine , without.
cum , with.		tēnūs , as far as, up to.

6. Five prepositions take after them sometimes an accusative, and sometimes an ablative:—

clam , without the knowl-	sub , under, about, near.	supēr , above, over; upon
edge of.	subtēr , under, beneath.	concerning .
in , in, on; to, into, against.

REMARK 1. Prepositions are so called, because they are generally placed before the noun or pronoun whose relation they express. They sometimes, however, stand after it. Cf. § 279, 10.

REM. 2. A is used only before consonants; ab before vowels, and frequently before consonants, though rarely before labials: abs is obsolete, except in the phrase abs te.

E is used only before consonants, ex before both vowels and consonants.

REM 3. Versus, which follows its noun, (cf. § 235, R. 3), usquē, and exadversus (um), sometimes take an accusative, simul and præcūl, an ablative, and are then by some called prepositions. Secus, with an accusative, occurs in Pliny and Cato.

REM. 4. Many of the prepositions, especially those which denote place, are also used as adverbs. Cf. § 191.

Signification and Use of certain Prepositions.

REM. 5. (a.) Ad denotes direction, and answers to the questions Whither? and Till when? as, Venio ad te. Sophocles ad summam senectutem tragædians fecit. Cic. It also denotes a fixed time; as, ad hōram, at the hour; ad tempus aliquid facere,—at the right time. But sometimes ad tempus denotes 'for a time.' Sometimes, also, ad denotes the approach of time; as, ad lucem, ad vesperam, ad extrinūm, towards day-break, etc.; and also the actual arrival of a time; as, ad prima signa vērīs profectus at the first sign of Spring.

(4) In answer to the question Where? ad signifies 'near' a place as, ad urbem esse; ad portas urbis; pugna navālis ad Tenedum. It is used like in, 'at,' in such phrases as ad eadem Bellonæ, or, without ad, ad Opis; negotium habere ad portum.—With numerals it may be rendered 'to the amount of' or 'nearly'; as, ad ducentos. It is also used like circtēr without any case; as, Occisus ad hominum millibus quatuor.—The phrase omnes ad unum signifies, 'all without exception,' 'every one.'

(c.) Ad often denotes an object or purpose, and hence comes its signification of 'in respect to'; as, homo ad labores belli impiger. It is also used in figurative relations to denote a model, standard, or object of comparison, where we say 'according to,' or 'in comparison with'; as, ad modum, ad effigiem, ad similitudinem, ad speciem alicujus rei; ad normum, etc. ad voluntatem alicujus facere aliquid. Ad verbum signifies, 'word for word'; nihil ad hanc rem, 'nothing in comparison with this thing.'

REM. 6. Apud expresses nearness to, and was primarily used of persons as ad was applied to things. Apud also denotes rest, and ad direction, motion, etc. Hence it signifies 'with,' both literally and figuratively. With names of places it signifies 'near,' like ad; as, Mile pugnatum est apud Cradium. But in early writers, apud is used for in; as, Augustus apud urbem Nolum extinctus est,—at Nola.—With me, te, se, or the name of a person, it signifies 'at the house' or 'dwelling of'; as, Fuisti apud Læcam illā nocte.—Before appellatives of persons having authority in regard to any matter, it is translated 'before,' 'in the presence of'; as, apud judices, apud prætorem, apud populum.—It is also used with names of authors, instead of in with the name of their works; as, Apud Xenophontem, but we cannot say in Xenophonte.

REM. 7. Adversus, contrā, and ergā signify 'opposite to.' Contrā denotes hostility, like our 'against'; ergā, a friendly disposition, 'towards'; and adversus is used in either sense. But ergā sometimes occurs in a hostile sense.

REM. 8. Intrā signifies 'within,' in regard both to time and place. In regard to place it is used in answer to both questions Where? and Whither? It denotes time either as an entire period, when it is equivalent to 'during,' or as 'unfinished,' when it corresponds with 'under,' or 'before the expiration of.'

REM. 9. Për, denoting place, signifies, 'through,' and also 'in,' in the sense of 'throughout.'—With the accusative of persons it signifies 'through,' 'by the instrumentality of.' It often expresses the manner; as, për literas, by letter; për injuriam, për scelus, with injustice, criminally; për iram, from or in anger; për simulationem, për speciem, për causam, under the pretext; për occasionem, on the occasion; për ridiculum, in a ridiculous manner.—It sometimes signifies 'on account of'; as, për valetudinem, on account of illness.—Për me licet,—so far as I am concerned.

REM. 10. A or ab, denoting time, is used with nouns, both abstract and concrete, with the same general meaning; as, a primā ætate, ab ineunte ætate, ab initio ætatis, ab infantia, a pueritia, ab adolescentiâ; and, a puero, a puërie, ab adolescentulo, ab infante, all of which signify 'from an early age.' So also, a parvis, a parvulo, a tenero, a teneris unguiculis, which expressions are of Greek origin.—Ab initio, a principio, a primo, properly denote the space of time from the beginning down to a certain point; as, Urbem Rōnam a principio reges habuere, i. e. for a certain period after its foundation. But frequently ab initio is equivalent to initio, in the beginning.—The adherents or followers of a school are often named from its head; as, a Platone, ab Aristotèle, etc.—In comic writers ab is sometimes used instead of the genitive; as, ancilla ab Andriā.—In a figurative sense it signifies 'with regard to'; as, ab equitatu firmus.—With names of persons it also denotes relationship, and signifies 'on the side of'; as, Augustus a matre Magnum Pompeium artissimo contingebat gradu,—on his mother's side.—Stātim, confestim, recens ab aliquā re, 'immediately after.'—Ab itinere aliquid facere, to do a thing while on a journey.

REM. 11. Cum is used not only to designate accompanying persons but also accompanying circumstances; as, cum aliquo ire; hostes cum utrinque sunt deputai. It signifies also 'in,' i. e. 'dressed in'; as, cum tunicâ pullâ sedere. With verbs implying hostility, it signifies 'with,' in the sense of 'against'; as, cum aliquo bellum gerere; cum aliquo queri to complain of or against.

REM. 12. Dē commonly signifies 'concerning,' 'about.' Hence traditur dē Homēro is very different from traditur ab Homēro; in the former, Homer is the object, in the latter the agent.—In the epistolary style, when a new subject is touched upon, dē signifies 'in regard to,' 'as respects'; as, dē fratre, confido ita esse, ut semper volui.—It often signifies 'down from'; and also 'of,' in a partitive sense; as, homo dē plēbe, unus dē populo.—From its partitive signification arises its use in denoting time; as, in comitium dē nocte venire, i. e. even by night, or spending a part of the night in coming; hence multa dē nocte, media dē nocte, 'in the depth of night,' 'in the middle of the night.'—In other cases, also, it is used for ex or ab; as, Audivi hoc dē parente meo puer. Cic.; especially in connection with emere, mercari, conducere. Triumphum agere dē Gallis and ex Gallis are used indiscriminately.—Sometimes, like secundum, it signifies 'in accordance with,' 'after'; as, dē consilio meo:—sometimes it denotes the manner of an action; as, denuo, dē integro, afresh; dē improvviso, unexpectedly; dē industriâ, purposely:—quâ dē re, quâ dē causâ, quibus dē causis, for which reason or reasons.

REM. 13. Ex, 'from,' 'out of.' Ex equo pugnare, to fight on horseback; so ex ianere scribere: ex adverso, ē regione, opposite; ex omni parte, in or from all parts.—Ex vino or ex aquâ coquere or bibere, i. e. 'with wine,' etc. are medicinal expressions.—It sometimes denotes manner; as, ex animo laudare, to praise heartily; ex sententiâ and ex voluntate, according to one's wish.—It is also, like dē, used in a partitive sense; as, unus ē plēbe, unus ē multis.

REM. 14. In, with the accusative, signifying 'to' or 'into,' denotes the point towards which motion proceeds; as, in calem ire; or the direction in which a thing extends; as, dēcem pēdes in altitudinem, in height; so, also, it denotes figuratively the object towards which an action is directed, either with a friendly or a hostile design; as, amor in patriam, odium in malos cives, in milites liberâlis; oratio in aliquem, a speech against some one.—It also denotes a purpose; as, pecunia data est in rem militarem. Pax data Philippo in has leges est, on these conditions.—With words denoting time, it expresses a predetermination of that time, like 'for'; as, invitare aliquem in posterum diem, for the following day. In diem vivere, to live only for the day; in futurum, in posterum, in reliquum, for the future; in æternum, in perpetuum, forever; in præsens, for the present: with all these adjectives tempus may be supplied. In with singuli, expressed or understood, denotes a distribution, and may be translated 'to,' 'for,' 'on,' 'over.'—In singulos dies, or simply in dies, with comparatives and verbs denoting increase, signifies 'from day to day.'—In some phrases it denotes the manner of an action; as, servilem in modum, mirum in modum; so in universum, in general; in commune, in common; in vicem, alternately, or, instead of; in alicujus locum aliquid petere, in the place, or, instead of.

REM. 15. In, with the ablative, signifies 'in,' 'on,' 'upon,' and answers to the question, Where? When a number or quantity is indicated, it signifies 'among,' and is equivalent to inter. It may sometimes be translated 'with,' or 'notwithstanding'; as, In summâ copiâ oratōrum, nemo tamen Cicerōnis laudem æquavit.—With nouns which by themselves denote time, such as seculum, annus, mensis, dies, nox, vesper, etc., the time, in answer to the question When? is expressed by the simple ablative; but in is used with words which acquire the signification of time only by such connection; as, in conspectu in principio, in bello; but even with these in is sometimes omitted, but is usually retained in connection with the gerund or gerundive; as, in legendo, in legendis libris. In præsenti, or in præsentiâ, signifies 'at the present moment,' 'for the present.'—Ex in eo, ut aliquid fiat signifies that something is on the point of happening.

PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.

§ 196. Most of the prepositions are used also in forming compound words. In composition, they may be considered either in reference to their form, or their force.

I. (a.) Prepositions in composition sometimes retain their final consonants, and sometimes change them, to adapt them to the sounds of the initial consonants of the words with which they are compounded. In some words, both forms are in use; in others, the final consonant or consonants are omitted.

1. Ab, in composition, is used before m and v; as, âmveo, âvello, and sometimes before f in âfui and âføre, for abfui and abføre. Ab is used before vowels, and before d, f, h, j, l, n, r, and s; as, abjûro, abrôgo, etc. Abs occurs only before c, q, and t; as, abscondo, absque, abstineo. In aspello, aspernor, and asporto, the b of abs is dropped; in aufêro and aufugio, it is changed into u.

2. Ad remains unchanged before vowels and before b, d, h, m, v. It often changes d into c, f, g, l, n, p, r, s, t, before those letters respectively; as, accêdo, affêro, aggrêdior, allêgo, annitor, appôno, arrigo, assêquor, attollo. Its d is usually omitted before s followed by a consonant, and before gn; as, aspêrgo, aspicio, agnosco, agnâtus. Before g, the d is changed into c; as, acquiro.

3. Ante remains unchanged, except in antîcipo and antisto, where it changes e to i; but antesto also occurs.

4. Circum in composition remains unchanged, only in circâmeco and its derivatives the m is often dropped; as, circueo, circuitus, etc.

5. Cum (in composition, com), retains m before b, m, p; as, combibo, commito, compôno: before l, n, r, its m is changed into those letters respectively; as, colligo, conator, corripio: before other consonants, it becomes n; as, condico, conjungo. Before a vowel, gn or h, m is commonly omitted; as, coco, conqto, cognosco, colabito; but it is sometimes retained; as, comêdo, cômes, cômîtor. In côyo and côgto a contraction also takes place; as, côago, côgo, etc. In combûro, b is inserted.

6. Ex is prefixed to vowels, and to c, h, p, q, s, t; as, exêo, exîgo, excurro, exhibeo, expêdo. Before f, x is assimilated, and also rarely becomes ec; as, effêro, or ecfêro. S after x is often omitted; as, exêquor, for exsêquor; in excitum (from excindo), s is regularly dropped. E is prefixed to the other consonants; as, ebibo, edico, except in eclez. Before these however, with the exception of n and r, ex is sometimes used; as, exâmveo. E is sometimes used before p; as, épôto.

7. In remains unchanged before a vowel. Before b, m, p, it changes n into m; as, imbuo, immitto, impôno: before l and r, n is assimilated; as, illigo, irrêno: before gn, n is omitted; as, ignârus. Before the other consonants n is unchanged. In some compounds, n retains d before a vowel, from an ancient form indu; as, indigêna, indigeo, indolesco. So anciently induperator, for imperator.

8. Inter remains unchanged, except in intelligo and its derivatives, in which r before l is assimilated.

9. Ob remains unchanged before vowels and generally before consonants. Its b is assimilated before c, f, g, p; as, occurro, officio, oggannio, oppêto. In omitto, b is dropped. An ancient form obs, analagous to abs for ab, is implied in obsulesco, from the simple verb oleo, and in ostendo, for obstendo.

10. Per is unchanged in composition, except in pellicio and sometimes in pelluceo, in which r is assimilated before l. In pêjêro, r is dropped.

11. Post remains unchanged, except in pômarium and pômêridianus, in which st is dropped.

12. Præ and præter in composition remain unchanged, except that præ is shortened before a vowel. Cf. § 253, II Exc. 1.

13. Prô has sometimes its vowel shortened, (cf. § 285, 2, Exc. 5) and, to avoid hiatus, it sometimes takes d before a vowel; as, prôdeo, prôdesse, prôdigo. Before verbs beginning with r and l, pro sometimes becomes por and pol; as, porrigo, polliceor.

14. Sub in composition remains unchanged before a vowel and before b, d, j, l, n, s, t, v. Before c, f, g, m, p, r, its b is regularly assimilated; as, succêdo, suffêro, suggêro, summôveo, supplicô, surripio. Before c, p, and t, it sometimes takes the form sus from subs, analogous to abs and obs; as, suscipio, suspensio, sustollo: b is omitted before s, followed by a consonant; as, suspicio.

15. Subter and super in composition remain unchanged.

16. Trans remains unchanged before a vowel. It omits s before s; as, transcendo: in trâdo, trâduco, trâpicio, and trâno, ns is commonly omitted.

(b.) The following words are called inseparable prepositions, because they are found only in composition:—

Ambi or amb, (Greek ἀμφί), around, about. Rêd or rê, again, back. Vê, not. Dis or di, apart, aside.

1. Amb is always used before a vowel; as, ambâges, ambarrâlis, ambêdo, ambigo, ambio, ambûro: except ampulla, âmicio, and ânhêlo. Before consonants it has the forms ambi; as, ambidens, ambisârium, ambivium: am; as, amplector, ampulo: or an; as, anceps, anfractus, anquiro.

2. Dis is prefixed to words beginning with c, p, q, s before a vowel, t, and h; as, discutio, dispono, disquiro, distendo, dishiasco: but deserto is formed from disêro; before f, s is changed into f; as, diffêro: in ârtimo, and ârtibeo (from dis habeo), s becomes r. Di is prefixed to the other consonants, and to s when followed by a consonant; as, diduco, dimitto, distingo, disputo. But both dis and di are used before j; as, disjungo, dijudico, and before r in rumpo.

3. Rêd is used before a vowel or h; rê before a consonant; as, rêdimo, rêdeo, rêdibeo, rêdigo, rêdoleo, rêdundo;—rêpicio, rêpono, rêvertor. But rêd is used before da; as, reddo. The connecting vowel i is found in rêdivivus; and in the poetical forms relligio, relliquia, and sometimes in reccido the d is assimilated. In later writers re is sometimes found before a vowel or h.

4. Sê and vê are prefixed without change; as, sêcêdo, sêcurus; vêgrandis, vêcoris.

§ 197. II. Prepositions in composition usually add their own signification to that of the word with which they are united; but sometimes they give to the compound a meaning different from that of its simples. The following are their most common significations:—

1. A, or ab, away, from, down; entirely; un-. With verbs it denotes removal, disappearance, absence; as, aufêro, abûtor, absum. With adjectives it denotes absence, privation; as, âmens, absônus.

2. Ad, to, toward; at, by. In composition with verbs ad denotes (a) motion to, (not into), as, accêdo; (b) addition, as, ascribo; (c) nearness, as, asideo; (d) assent, favor, as, annuo, arrideo; (e) repetition and hence intensity, as, accido; (f) at, in consequence of, as, arrigeo. It is sometimes augmentative, rarely inchoative.

3. Ambi, around, about, on both sides.

4. Circum, around, about, on all sides.

5. Cum or côn, together, entirely. In composition with verbs it denotes (a) union, as, concurro, consûlo; (b) completeness, as, combûro, conficio; (c) with effort, as, conjecto, conclâmo; (d) in harmony, as, consôno, consentio; (e) on or over, like the English be-, as, collino, to be near.

6. Contra, against, opposite.
7. Dē, off, away, through, over, down; entirely; very, extremely. With verbs dē denotes (a) down; as, dēmitto; (b) removal; as, dētondeo; (c) absence; as, dēsum, dēhābeo; (d) prevention; as, dēhortor; (e) unfriendly feeling; as, despicio, dērideo.—With adjectives dē denotes (a) down; as, dēclivis; (b) without; as, dēmens.
8. Dis, asunder, apart, in pieces, in two; dis-, un-; very greatly. With verbs dis denotes (a) division; as, divido, dilābor; (b) difference; as, discrepo, dissentio; (c) the reverse of the simple notion; as, displaceo, diffido; (d) intensity; as, dilaudo.—With adjectives dis denotes difference; as, discolor, discors.
9. E, or ex, out, forth, away, upward, without, -less, un-; utterly, completely, very. With verbs it denotes (a) out; as, exeo, extimo, ēlābōro; (b) removal of something; as, ēdormio; (c) publicity; as, ēdico; (d) ascent; as, existo; (e) completeness; as, ēdisco, exūro; (f) with denominative verbs, change of character; as, expio, effero (āre); (g) removal of what is expressed by the noun whence the verb is derived; as ēnōdo; (h) the reversal of the fundamental idea; as, explico; (i) distance; as, exaudio.—With adjectives formed from substantives it denotes absence; as, exsomnia.
10. In, with verbs, signifies in, on, at; into, against; as, inhābito, induo, ingēmo, ineo, illido. With adjectives, un-, in-, im-, il-, ir-, not; as, ignōtus, inhospitālis, immortālis. Some of its compounds have contrary significations, according as they are participles or adjectives; as, intectus, part, covered, adj, un covered.
11. Inter, between, among, at intervals.
12. Ob, with verbs, signifies to, towards; as, obeo, ostendo; against; as, obliuctor, obstantio; at, before; as, obambulo, obversor; upon; as, occulco; over; as obdūco.
13. Per, with verbs, denotes, through, thoroughly, perfectly, quite; as, perduco, perficio, perdo; with adjectives, through, very; as, pernox, perlevis.
14. Post, after, behind.
15. Præ in composition with verbs denotes (a) before in place; as, præmitto; (b) by or past; as, præfluo; (c) in command; as, præsum, præficio; (d) superiority; as, præsto; (e) before in time; as, prædico, præcerpo; at the extremity; as, præfuro.—With adjectives, (a) before in place or time; as, præceps, præsciū; (b) very; as, præaltus, præclarus.
16. Præter, past, by, beyond, besides.
17. Prō, before, forward, forth, away, down; for; openly; as, prōlūdo, porrigo, prōterreo, prōlēro, prōcūro, prōfiteor.
18. Rē, again, against, back, re-, un-, away; greatly; as, rēflūresco, rēpendo, rēfērio, rēfigo, rēcondo.
19. Sē, without, aside, apart; as, sēcūro, sēpōno, sēcēdo, sēcūrus.
20. Sūb up, from below upwards, under. With verbs sūb also signifies (a) assistance; as, subvenio; (b) succession; as, succino; (c) in place of; as, sufficio; (d) near; as, subsum; (e) secretly, clandestinely; as, surrēpio, subdūco; (f) something, a little; as, subrideo, sūbaccūso.—With adjectives it signifies, slightly, rather; as, sūbobscurus, sūbabsurdus, sūbacidus.
21. Subter, beneath, under, from under, secretly, privately.
22. Sūper, above, over, left over, remaining, super-; as, sūpersēdeo, sūpersum, sūperstes, sūpervicāneus.
23. Trans, over, across, through; beyond; as, trādo, transeo, transfigo, transcupinus.
24. Vē, not, without; very; as, vēgrandis, vēcors; vēpallidus.

REMARK. In composition the preposition seems often to add nothing to the signification of the word with which it is compounded.

CONJUNCTIONS.

§ 198. A conjunction is a particle which connects words or propositions.

The most usual conjunctions are,

Atque, } and, as; than.	nē, lest, that not.	quō, in order that.
Ac, }	-nē, whether.	quōd, as long as, unless

Conjunctions, according to their different uses, are divided into two general classes,—coördinate and subordinate.

I. Coördinate conjunctions, are such as join coördinate or similar constructions; as,

Luna et stellæ fulgebant. The moon and the stars were shining. Concidunt venti, fugiuntque nubes. The winds subside, and the clouds disperse. Difficile actu est, sed conabor tamen. It is difficult to accomplish but still I will try.

Coordinate conjunctions include the following subdivisions, viz. copulative, disjunctive, adversative, illative, and most of the causal conjunctions.

II. Subordinate conjunctions are such as join dissimilar constructions; as,

Edo, ut vivam, I eat that I may live. Pyrrhus rex in itinere incidit in canem, qui interfecti hominis corpus custodiebat. Mergi pullos in aquam jussit, ut bibèrent, quoniam esse nollent.

Subordinate conjunctions include all those connectives which unite subordinate or dependent clauses. These are the concessive, illative, final, conditional, interrogative, and temporal conjunctions, and the causals quod, quum, quoniam, etc. To these may be added also the relatives whether pronouns, adjectives, or adverbs.

The following paragraphs contain a specification of the several conjunctions comprised in each of the preceding subdivisions, and remarks respecting their particular import and use as connectives.

1. COPULATIVE conjunctions connect things that are to be considered jointly; as, et, ac, atque, the enclitic quē, which, combined with the negation belonging to the verb, becomes nēquē or nēc, and, the negation being doubled, nēc nōn or nēquē nōn, it becomes again affirmative and equivalent to et. To these are to be added etiam and quodquē, with the adverbials item and idem.

REMARK. (a.) Et and quē differ in this, et connects things which are conceived as different, and quē adds what belongs to, or naturally flows from them. Et, therefore, is copulative and quē adjunctive. Hence, in an enumeration of words, quē frequently connects the last of the series, and by its means the preceding idea is extended without the addition of any thing which is generically different. In connecting propositions quē denotes a consequence, and is equivalent to 'and therefore.'

(b.) Ac never stands before vowels, atque chiefly before vowels, but also before consonants.—Atque, being formed of ad and quē, properly signifies 'and also,' 'and in addition,' thus putting things on an equality, but giving emphasis to the latter. In the beginning of a proposition, which is explanatory of that which precedes, atque or ac introduces a thing with great weight, and may be rendered 'now'; and in answers; as, Cognoscine hos versus? Ac memoriter, it is rendered 'yes, and that.' Ac being an abridged form of atque loses somewhat of its power in connecting single words, and its use alternates with that of et; it is preferred in subdivisions, whereas the main propositions are connected by et.

(c.) Nēquē, compounded of the ancient nē for nōn and quē, is used for et nōn. Et nōn itself is used, when only one idea or one word of a proposition is to be negated; as, patrior et non moleste fero; and also when our 'and not' is used for 'and not rather' to correct an improper supposition; as, Si quam Rubrius injuriam suo nomine ac non impulsu tuo fecisset. Cic. Et nōn is commonly found also in the second clause of a sentence when et precedes, but nēquē, also, is often used in this case. Nēc nōn or nēquē nōn, in classical prose, is not used like et to connect nouns, but only to join propositions, and the two words are separated. In later writers, however, they are not separated and are equivalent to et.

(d.) Etiam has a wider extent than quodquē, for it contains the idea of our 'even,' and it also adds a new circumstance, whereas quodquē denotes the addition of a thing of a similar kind. Hence etiam is properly used to connect sentences, while quodquē refers to a single word. Etiam signifies 'and further,' quodquē, 'and so,' 'also.' Quodquē always follows the word to which it refers, etiam in similar cases is usually placed before it, but when it connects propositions its place is arbitrary. Et, too, in classical prose, is sometimes used in the sense of 'also.' Sc 3122 is nōn modo—sed et, 'not only—but also,' or 'but even.'

(e.) Copulative conjunctions are often repeated in the sense of 'both—and,' 'as well—as,' 'not only—but also.' Et—et is of common occurrence; so, in later writers, but rarely in Cicero, et—quē; quē—et connect single words, but not in Cicero; quē—quē, occur for the most part only in poetry, or in connection with the relative.—Negative propositions are connected in English by 'neither—nor,' and in Latin by nēquē—nēquē, nēc—nēc, nēquē—nēc, and rarely by nēc—nēquē. Propositions, one of which is negative and the other affirmative 'on the one hand—but not on the other,' or, 'not on the one hand—but on the other,' are connected by et—nēquē or nēc, nēquē or nēc—et, and occasionally by nēc or nēquē—quē.

2. DISJUNCTIVE conjunctions connect things that are to be considered separately; as, aut, vēl, the enclitic vē, and sivē or seu.

REMARK. (a.) Aut and vēl differ in this; aut indicates a difference of the object, vēl, a difference of expression, i. e. aut is objective, vēl, subjective. Vēl is connected with the verb velle, and is generally repeated, vēl—vēl, 'choose this or choose this,' and the single vēl is used by Cicero only to correct a preceding expression, and commonly combined with dicam, pōtius, or etiam.—Hence by ellipsis vēl has acquired the signification of the adverb, 'even,' and so enhances the signification of the word modified by it; as, Quam Sophocles vel optime scripsērit Electram, where bene is to be supplied before vel, and the latter is used for the purpose of correcting the preceding expression. Cf. § 127, 4. By means of its derivation from velle it has, also, the signification of 'for example' or 'to take a case,' for which vēlūt is more frequently used.—(b.) Vē, the apocopated vēl, leaves the choice free between two or more things, and in later but good prose vēl is used in the same manner.

(c.) Sivē commonly retains the meaning of si, and is then the same as vēl si, but sometimes loses it, and is then equivalent to vēl, denoting a difference of name; as, Vocabulum sivē appellatio. Quint. The form seu is rarely used by Cicero except in the combination seu pōtius.—(d.) Aut and vē serve to continue the negation in negative sentences, where we use 'nor'; as, nōn—aut, where nōn—nēquē also may be used. They are used also in negative questions; as, Num leges nostras moresvē novit? Cic.; and after comparatives; as, Doctrina paulo asperior, quam vetulus aut nativa patiatur. Cic. It is only when both ideas are to be united into one that a copulative is used instead of aut and vē.—

(e.) 'Either—or' is expressed in Latin by aut—aut, denoting an opposition between two things, one of which excludes the other, or by vēl—vēl, denoting that the opposition is immaterial in respect to the result, so that the one need not exclude the other; as, Vēl imperatōre vel milite me ulimini. Sall.—Sivē—sivē is the same as vēl si—vēl si, and retains the meaning of vēl—vēl. If nouns only are opposed to each other, an uncertainty is expressed as to how a thing is to be called; as, Crētum leges, quas sive Jupiter sive Minos sancit; i. e. I do not know whether I am to say Jupiter or Minos.

3. COMPARATIVE conjunctions express a comparison. These are, ut or utī, sicūt, vēlūt, proūt, prout, the poetical ceu, quam, tamquam, (with and without si), quāsi, ut si, ac si, with ac and atquē, when they signify 'as.'

REMARK. Ac and atquē signify 'as' or 'than' after adverbs and adjectives which denote similarity or dissimilarity; as, aequē, juxta, par and paritēr, perindē and proindē, prout, similis and similiter, dissimilis, talis, idēdem, alius and aliter, contra, secus, contrarius.—Quam is rarely used after these words, except when a negative particle is joined with alius; as, Virtus nihil aliud est, quam, etc.; and et and quē do not occur in this connection.—Ac is used for quam, after comparatives, in poetry and occasionally by late prose writers; as, Artus atque hedera. Hor. Insanius ac si. Id.

4. CONCESSIVE conjunctions express a concession, with the general signification 'although.' These are etsi, etiāsi, tāmeti, or tāmenetsi, quamquam, quamvis, quantumvis, quamlibet, licet, ut in the sense of 'even if' or 'although,' and quum when it signifies 'although.'

REMARK. Tāmen and other particles signifying 'yet,' 'still,' are the correlates of the concessive conjunctions; as, Ut desint vires, tāmen est laudandū voluntas. Ovid. The adverb quidem becomes a concessive conjunction, when it is used to connect propositions and is followed by sed.—Quamquam in absolute sentences, sometimes refers to something preceding, which it limits and partly nullifies; as, Quamquam quid loquor? Yet why do I speak?

5. CONDITIONAL conjunctions express a condition, their fundamental signification being 'if.' These are si, sin, nisi or ni, si modo, dummodo, 'if only,' 'if but,' (for which dum and modo are also used alone), modo, modo nē, or simply modo nē or dum nē.

REMARK. (a.) In order to indicate the connection with a preceding proposition, the relative quod, which in such case loses its signification as a pronoun, and may be rendered, 'nay,' 'now,' 'and,' or 'then,' is frequently put before si and sometimes before nisi and et, so that quodsi may be regarded as one word, signifying 'now if,' 'but if,' or 'if then.' It serves especially to introduce something assumed as true, from which further inferences may be drawn. It sometimes signifies 'although.' Quodnisi signifies 'if then—not,' and quod et, 'nay, even if.' Quod is found also before quum, ubi, quid, quoniam, nē, ut, nam, and et before the relative pronoun.

(b.) Ni and nisi limit a statement by introducing an exception, and thus differ from si nōn, which introduces a negative case. It is often immaterial whether nisi or si nōn is used, but the difference is still essential. Si nōn is used when single words are opposed to one another, and in this case si minus may be used instead of si nōn.—If after an affirmative proposition its negative opposite is added without a verb, our 'but if not' is commonly expressed in prose by si minus or sin minus or sin aliter; as, Educ tecum etiam omnes tuos; si minus, quam plurimos. Cic.; rarely by si nōn.

6. ILLATIVE conjunctions express an inference or conclusion, with the general signification of 'therefore,' 'consequently.' These are ergo, igitur, id quē, ed, ideo, iccirco, proinde, propterea, and the relative conjunctions, quapropter, quārē, quamobrem, quōcirca, undē, 'wherefore.'

REMARK. Ergo and igitur denote a logical inference.—Id quē, 'and thus,' expresses the relation of cause in facts.—Ideo, iccirco, and propterea, 'on this account,' express the agreement between intention and action.—Ed, 'on this account,' or 'for this purpose,' is more frequently an adverb of place.—Proinde, 'consequently,' implies an exhortation.—Undē, 'whence,' is properly an adverb of place.—Adeo, 'so that,' or simply 'so,' is also properly an adverb. Hinc, 'hence,' and indē, 'thence,' continue to be adverbs.

7. CAUSAL conjunctions express a cause or reason, with the general signification of 'for' and 'because.' These are nam, namquē, enim, etenim, quid, quōd, quōniam, quippe, quum, quando, quandōquidem, siquidem; and the adverbs nimirum, nempē, scilicet, and videlicet.

REMARK. (a.) Nam is used at the beginning of a proposition, enim, after the first or second word. Nam introduces an objective reason, and enim merely a subjective one. There is the same difference between namquē and etenim. Namquē, however, though constantly standing at the beginning of a proposition in Cicero, Cæsar, and Nepos, is in later writers often put after the beginning. Enim in the sense of at enim or sed enim is sometimes, by comic writers, put at the beginning of a proposition.—Nam, enim, and etenim are often used in the sense of 'namely,' or 'to wit,' to introduce an explanation of something going before. Nimirum, videlicet, and scilicet likewise answer to our 'namely' or 'viz.' Nimirum, compounded of ni and nirum, and signifying a wonder if not, is used as a connective in the sense of 'undoubtedly' or 'surely,' and implies strong confidence in the truth of the proposition with which it is connected.—Videlicet and scilicet introduce an explanation, with this difference that videlicet generally indicates the true, and scilicet a wrong explanation. Sometimes, however, nam, enim, etenim, nimirum, and videlicet are used in an ironical sense, and scilicet introduces a true reason.—Nempē scarcely, often assumes a sarcastic meaning when another person's concessor is taken for the purpose of refuting him.—(b.) Quid and quōd indicate a defininite and conclusive reason, quoniam, (i. e. quum jam), a motive.—Ideo, iccirco, propterea quod, and quia, are used without any essential difference, except that quid introduces a more strict and logical reason, whereas quoniam, signifying 'now as,' introduces important circumstances.—Quando, quandoquidem, and siquidem approach nearer to quoniam than to quia, as they introduce only subjective reasons. Quandoquidem denotes a reason implied in a circumstance previously mentioned; siquidem, a reason implied in a concession. In siquidem the meaning of si is generally dropped, but it sometimes remains, and then si and quidem should be written as separate words; as, O fortunatum rempublicam, si quidem hanc sentinam eiecerit. Cic.—Quippe, with the relative pronoun or with quum, introduces a subjective reason. When used elliptically without a verb it signifies 'forsooth' or 'indeed.' Sometimes it is followed by a sentence with enim, and in this way gradually acquires the signification of nam.

8. FINAL conjunctions express a purpose, object, or result, with the signification of 'in order that,' or 'in order that not.' These are ut or utrum, quod, ne or ut ne, neve or neu, quin and quominus.

REMARK. Ut, as a conjunction indicates either a result or a purpose, 'so that,' and 'in order that.' When indicating a result, if a negative is added to it, it becomes ut non; when indicating a purpose, if the negative is added, it, becomes ne or ut ne, but ut non also is very rarely used for ne.—Neve (i. e. vel ne) signifies either 'or in order that not,' or 'and in order that not.' Ut ne is a pleonasm, not differing perceptibly from ne. It is used more frequently by Cicero than by other writers. Quo ne for ne occurs once in Horace.

9. ADVERSATIVE conjunctions, express opposition, with the signification of 'but.' These are sed, autem, verum, vero, at (poetical ast), at enim, atque, tamen, attamen, sedtamen, veruntamen, at vero (enimvero), verumtamen, verum, vero, ceterum.

REMARK. (a.) Sed denotes a direct opposition, and interrupts the narrative or argument; autem marks a transition, and denotes at once a connection and an opposition. Porro, 'further,' denotes progression and transition but not opposition, except in later authors.—Verum has a similar relation to vero as sed to autem. Verum, while it denotes opposition, contains also an explanation. Vero connects things which are different, but denotes the point in favor of which the decision should be. It thus forms the transition to something more important as in the phrase, Illud vero plane non est ferendum, i. e. that which I am about to mention. In affirmative answers vero is often added to the verb; as, Dasne? Do vero. Hence, when the protasis supplies the place of a question, it is sometimes introduced into the apodosis merely to show that it contains an answer. Hence also vero alone signifies 'yes,' like sane, ita, and etiam.—Enimvero, 'yes, truly,' 'in truth,' does not denote opposition. It sometimes, like vero, forms the transition to that which is most important. The compound verumtamen denotes the most emphatic opposition.

(b.) At denotes that that which is opposed is equivalent to that which precedes. It frequently follows si, in the sense of 'yet,' or 'at least'; as, etsi non sapientissimus, at amicissimus. It is especially used to denote objections whether of the speaker himself or of others. At enim introduces a reason for the objection implied in at.—By atque, 'but still,' 'but yet,' or 'nevertheless,' we admit what precedes, but oppose something else to it; as, Magnum naras, viz credibile. Atque sic habet. Hor. So, also, when that which is admitted, is made use of to prove the contrary. Finally, atque is used in syllogisms, when a thing is assumed which had before been left undecided; in this case it does not denote a direct opposition of facts, and may be translated by 'now,' 'but,' 'but now.'—Ceterum, properly 'as for the rest,' is often used by later writers for sed.—Contra ea, in the sense of 'on the other hand,' is used as a conjunction. So adeo with a pronoun, when it may be translated 'just,' 'precisely,' 'even,' 'indeed,' or an intensive 'and.'

10. TEMPORAL conjunctions, express time. These are quum, quum primum, ut, ut primum, ubi, postquam, antequam, and priusquam, quando, simulac or simulatque, or simul alone, cum, quod aum, dōnec, quoad.

REMARK. Ū and ūdi, as particles of time, signify 'when.' Dum, donec, and quand signify either 'as long as,' or 'until.' Dum often precedes interea or interim, and both dum and donec are often preceded by the adverbs usque, usque ad or usque adeo.

11. INTERROGATIVE conjunctions indicate a question. These are, num, utrum, an, and the enclitic ne. This, when attached to the three preceding particles, forming numne, utrumne, and anne, does not affect their meaning. With non it forms a special interrogative particle nonne. To these add ec and en, as they appear in ecquis, ecquando, and enumquam, and numquid and ecquid, when used simply as interrogative particles.

REMARK. (a.) The interrogative particles have no distinct meaning by themselves in direct questions, but only serve to give to a proposition the form of a question. In direct speech the interrogative particles are sometimes omitted, but in indirect questions they are indispensable, except in the case of a double question, where the first particle is sometimes omitted.—Ecquid and numquid, as interrogative particles, have the meaning of num, quid in this case having no meaning, but they must be carefully distinguished from the interrogative pronouns ecquid and numquid. En, or when followed by a q, ec is, like num, ne, and an, an interrogative particle, but is always prefixed to some other interrogative word.

(b.) In direct questions, num and its compounds numne, numnam, numquid, numquidnam, and the compounds with en or ec suppose that the answer will be 'no'; as, Num putas me tam dementem fuisse? But ecquid is sometimes used in an affirmative sense. In general the negative sense of these particles does not appear in indirect questions.

(c.) Ne properly denotes simply a question, but it is used sometimes affirmatively and sometimes negatively. When ne is attached, not to the principal verb but to some other word, a negative sense is produced; as, me ne istud potuisse facere putas? Do you believe that I would have done that? The answer expected is 'no.' When attached to the principal verb ne often gives the affirmative meaning, and the answer expected is 'yes.'—Nonne is the sign of an affirmative question; as, Caris nonne lupo similis est?—Utrum, in accordance with its derivation from uter, which of two, is used only in double questions whether consisting of two or more. It is sometimes accompanied by ut, which is usually separated from it by one or more words; as, Utrum, incedamne an predicem? In later writers, however, utrumne is united into one word. Ne is rarely appended to interrogative adjectives, but examples of such use are sometimes found in poetry; as, uternē; quonē malo; quantanē. In a few passages it is even attached to the relative pronoun.

(d.) An is not used as a sign of an indirect question before the silver age; when so used it answers to 'whether.' It is used by Cicero exclusively in a second or opposite question, where we use 'or'; as, Si satis, nihil interest utrum aqua sit, an vinum; nec refert, utrum sit aureum poculum, an vitreum, an manus concavo. Sen. In direct interrogations, when no interrogative clause precedes, an, anne, an vero are likewise used in the sense of 'or,' that is in such a manner that a preceding interrogation is supplied by the mind; as, Invitus te offendi, an putas me delectari ledendis hominibus? Here we may supply before an putas, etc. the sentence, 'Do you believe this?'—An, after a preceding question, is rendered by 'not,' and it then indicates that the answer cannot be doubtful; as, A rebus gerendis senectus abstrahit. Quibus? An his, quæ geruntur juventute ac viribus? Is it not from those kinds of business, which? etc. Here we may suppose aliisne to be supplied before an his? Is it from other kinds of business, or from those? etc. Such questions may be introduced by nonne, but without allusion to an opposite question, which is implied in an.

(e.) To the rule that an, in indirect questions, is used exclusively to indicate a second or opposite question, there is one great exception, for it is employed in single indirect questions after such expressions as dubito, dubium est, incertum est; delibero, hesito, and especially after nescio or haud scio, all of which denote uncertainty, but with an inclination to the affirmative; as, Si per se virtus sine fortuna ponderanda si dubito hunc primum omnium ponam, If virtue is to be estimated without reference to its success, I am not certain whether I should not prefer this man to all others. Nep. It is not Latin to say dubito annon for dubito an.—Nescio an, or haud scio an are used quite in the sense of 'perhaps,' so that they are followed by the negatives nullus, nemo, numquam, instead of ullus, quisquam and umquam. When the principal verb is omitted, an is often used in the sense of aut; as, Themistocles, quum ei Simonides, an quis alius, artem memoria polliceretur, etc. In such cases incertum est is understood, and in Tacitus is often supplied.—The conjunction si is sometimes used in indirect interrogations instead of num, like the Greek ei, and it is so used by Cicero after the verb experior.

NOTE 1. The conjunctions -ne, -que, -ve, are not used alone, but are always affixed to some other word, and are hence called enclitics.

NOTE 2. Some words here classed with conjunctions are also used as adverbs, and many classed as adverbs are likewise conjunctions; that is, they at the same time qualify verbs, etc., and connect propositions; as, Ceteris in rebus, quum venit calamitas, tum detrimentum accipitur. In other concerns, when misfortune comes, then damage is received.

NOTE 3. Conjunctions, like adverbs, are variously compounded with other parts of speech, and with each other; as, atque, (i. e. adque), icirco or idcirco, (i. e. id-circa), ideo, namque, etc. In some, compounded of an adverb and a conjunction, each of the simple words retains its meaning, and properly belongs to its own class; as, etiam (et jam) and now; idque, and so; neque or nec, and not.

INTERJECTIONS.

§ 199. An interjection is a particle used in exclamation, and expressing some emotion of the mind.

The most usual interjections are,

ah! ah! alas!	hem! oho! indeed! well! hah! alas! ah-ah!
aha! aha! ah! haha!	heu! oh! ah! alas!
apagē! away! begone!	heus! ho! ho there! hark! hallow!
ātāt! or atatte! oh! ah! alas! lo!	hui! hah! ho! oh!
au! or hau! oh! ah!	iō! ho! hurrah! huzzah!
eccē! lo! see! behold!	ō! o! oh! ah!
ēhem! ha! what!	ōh! oh! o! ah!
ēheu! ah! alas!	ōhē! ho! halloo! ho there!
ēho! ehodum! ho! soho!	ōho! oho! aha!
eiā! or heiā! ah! ah ha! indeed!	oi! hey! alas!
ēn! lo! see! behold!	pāpæ! strange! wonderful!
eu! well done! bravo!	phui! foh! fugh!
eugē! well done! good!	phy! fish! tush!
euax! } huzzah! hurrah!	prō! or prōh! oh! ah!
euæ! }	st! hist! whist! hush!
ha! hold! ho!	tatæ! so! strange!
ha! ha! he! ha! ha!	væ! ah! alas! woe!
hei! ah! wo! alas!	vah! vaha! ah! alas! oh!

REMARK 1. An interjection sometimes denotes several different emotions. Thus vah is used to express wonder, grief, joy, and anger.

REM. 2. Other parts of speech may sometimes be regarded as interjections; as, pax, 'be still! So indignum, infandum, malum, misærum, miserabile, nēfas, when used as expressions of astonishment, grief, or horror; and macte and mactæ, as expressions of approbation. In like manner the adverbs næ, profecto, etio, bene, belle; the verbs quæso, præcor, oro, obsecro, amābo, āge, āgite, cædo, obædo, (for si audeo), sis, sultis, (for si vis and si vultis), āgēsīs, āgēdum, and āgite æm, and the interrogative quid? 'what?' used as exclamations.

REM. 8. With the interjections may also be classed the following invocations of the gods : hercûles, hercûle, hercle; or mehercûles, mehercûle, mehercle, medius fidius, mecastor, ecator, ecêre, pol, edepol, equirine, per deum, per deum immortâlem, per deos, per Joveem, prô (or prôh) Jûpter, prô dii immortâles, prô deum fidem, prô deum atque hominûm fidem, prô deum immortâlium (scil. fidem), etc.

SYNTAX.

§ 200. 1. Syntax treats of the construction of sentences.

2. A sentence is a thought expressed in words; as, Cânes latrant, The dogs bark.

3. All sentences are either

(1.) DECLARATIVE; as, Venti spirant, The winds blow:—

(2.) INTERROGATIVE; as, Spirantne venti? Do the winds blow?—

(3.) EXCLAMATORY; as, Quam vehëmenter spirant venti! How fiercely the winds blow!—or (4.) IMPERATIVE; as, Venti, spirâte, Blow, winds.

4. The mood of the verb in the first three classes of sentences is either the indicative or the subjunctive; in imperative sentences it is either the imperative or the subjunctive.

5. A sentence may consist either of one proposition or of two or more propositions connected together.

PROPOSITIONS.

§ 201. 1. A proposition consists of a subject and a predicate.

2. The subject of a proposition is that of which something is affirmed.

3. The predicate is that which is affirmed of the subject.

Thus, in the proposition, Equus currit, The horse runs, equus is the subject and currit is the predicate.

NOTE. The word affirm, as here used, includes all the various significations of the verb, as expressed in the several moods.

4. Propositions are either principal or subordinate.

5. A principal proposition is one which makes complete sense by itself; as,

Phœcion fuit perpëtuo pauper, quum ditissimus esse posset, Phœcion was always poor, though he might have been very rich.

6. A subordinate proposition is one which, by means of a subordinate conjunction, is made to depend upon or limit some part of another proposition; as,

Phœcion fuit perpetuo pauper, quum ditissimus esse posset, Phœcion was all ways poor, though he might have been very rich.

7. Subordinate propositions are used either as substantives, adjectives, or adverbs, and are accordingly called substantive, adjective or adverbial propositions or clauses.

8. Substantive clauses are connected with the propositions on which they depend by means of the final conjunctions ut, ne, quo, quin, etc., sometimes by quod, and, in clauses containing an indirect question, by interrogative pronouns, adjectives, adverbs and conjunctions. See §§ 262 and 265.

REMARK. A dependent substantive clause often takes the form of the accusative with the infinitive and in that case has no connective; as, Gaudeo te valere.

9. Adjective clauses are connected by means of relatives, both pronouns and pronominal adjectives; as, qui, quâlis, quantus, etc. Adverbial clauses are connected either by relative adverbs of place and time, (§ 191, R. 1, (b.)), or by temporal, conditional, concessive, comparative, and sometimes by causal conjunctions.

10. A sentence consisting of one proposition is called a simple sentence; as, Cadunt fôlia, The leaves fall. Semirâmis Babilônem condidit.

11. A sentence consisting of a principal and one or more subordinate propositions is called a complex sentence; as,

Qui fit, ut nemo contentus vivat? How happens it, that no one lives content? Quis ego sim, me rogitas, You ask me, who I am.

12. A sentence consisting of two or more principal propositions, either alone or in connection with one or more subordinate propositions, is called a compound sentence; as,

Spirant venti et cadunt fôlia, The winds blow, and the leaves fall.

13. The propositions composing a complex or a compound sentence are called its members or clauses; the principal proposition is called the leading clause, its subject, the leading subject, and its verb, the leading verb.

SUBJECT.

§ 202. 1. The subject also is either simple, complex, or compound.

2. The simple subject, which is also called the grammatical subject, is either a noun or some word standing for a noun; as,

Aves volant, Birds fly. Tu lêgis, Thou readest. A est v'câlis, A is a vowel. Mentiri est turpe, To lie is base.

3. The complex subject, called also the logical subject, consists of the simple subject with its modifications; as,

Conscientia bene actæ vitæ est jucundissima, The consciousness of a well spent life is very pleasant. Here conscientia is the grammatical, and conscientia bene actæ vitæ the complex, subject.

4. The compound subject consists of two or more simple or complex subjects to which a single predicate belongs; as,

Lūna et stellæ fulgebant, The moon and stars were shining. Grammaticæ ac mūsicæ juncitæ fuerunt, Grammar and music were united. Semper hōnōs nōmenque tuum laudesque manēbunt.

REMARK. Words are said to modify or limit other words, when they serve to explain, describe, define, enlarge, restrict, or otherwise qualify their meaning.

5. Every sentence must contain a subject and a predicate, called its principal or essential parts: any sentence may also receive additions to these, called its subordinate parts.

Complex or Modified Subject.

6. The complex subject is formed by adding other words to the simple subject. All additions to the subject, like the subject itself, are either simple, complex, or compound.

I. Simple additions. The subject may be modified by adding:—

1. A single word:—

(1.) A noun in the same case; as,

Nos consules dēsumus, We consuls are remiss. Mucius augur multa narravit, Mucius the augur related many things.

(2.) A noun or pronoun in an oblique case, modifying or limiting the subject; as,

Amor multitudinis commōvetur, The love of the multitude is excited. Cura mei, Care for me. Viribus usus, Need of strength.

(3.) An adjective, adjective pronoun, or participle; as,

Fūgit invidia ætas, Envious time flies. Mea māter est benigna. Ducit agmina Penthesilæa furens. Littera scripta manet.

2. A phrase consisting of a preposition and its case; as,

Sopor in gramine. Oppida sine præsidio. Receptio ad te.

3. A dependent adjective clause introduced by qui, quālis, quantus, etc.; as,

Læve fit, quod bene fertur, onus, The burden, which is borne well, becomes light. Litteræ, quas scripsisti, acceptæ sunt. Ut, quālis (ille) haberi vellet, nilis esset. Tanta est inter eos, quanta maxima esse potest, morum distantia.

II. Complex additions. The subject may be modified:—

1. By a word to which other words are added.

(1.) When the word to which other words are added is a noun or pronoun, it may be modified in any of the ways above mentioned.

(2.) When it is an adjective it may be modified:—

(a.) By an adverb either simple or modified; as,

Erat expectatio valde magna. Præsidium non nimis firmum.

(b.) By a noun in an oblique case; as,

Major pietate, Superior in piety. Contentionis cupidus, Fond of contention. Patri similis, Like his father. Nudus membra. Juvenes patre digni.

(c.) By an infinitive, a gerund, or a supine; as, Insuperatus vinci, Not accustomed to be conquered. Vēnandi studiōsus, Fond of hunting. Mirābile dictū, Wonderful to tell.

(d.) By a phrase consisting of a preposition and its case; as,
Rūdīs in rēpublicā, Unskilled in civil affairs. Ab equitātē firmus. Celer la pugnam. Prōnus ad fidem.

(e.) By a subordinate clause; as,
Mēlior est certa pax, quam spērāta victōria, A certain peace is better than an expected victory. Diūsus sum, quid faciā.

(3.) When it is a participle, it may be modified like a verb. See § 203.

2. By a phrase consisting of a preposition and its case to which other words are added; as,

De victōriā Cēsaris fama perfertur, A report concerning Caesar's victory is brought.

REMARK 1. As the case following the preposition is that of a noun or pronoun, it may be modified like the subject in any of the foregoing ways.

REM. 2. The preposition itself may be modified by an adverb, or by a noun or adjective in an oblique case; as, Longe ultra, Far beyond. Multo ante noctem, Long before night. Sexennio post Vēios captos, Six years after the capture of Veii.

3. By a subordinate clause, to whose subject or predicate other words are added.

REMARK. These additions may be of the same form as those added to the principal subject or predicate of the sentence.

III. Compound additions. The subject may be modified:—

1. By two or more nouns in the same case as the subject, connected by a coördinate conjunction; as, Consules, Brūtus et Collatinus, The consuls, Brutus and Collatinus.

2. By two or more oblique cases of a noun or pronoun connected coördinately; as, Vitæque necisque potestas. Perculōrum et labōrum incitāmentum.

3. By two or more adjectives, adjective pronouns, or participles, connected coördinately; as,

Græve bellum perditurnumque. Animi tēnēri atque molles.

4. By two or more adjective clauses connected coördinately; as,

Et qui fecēre, et qui facta aliōrum scripsēre, multi laudantur. Sall.

5. By two or more of the preceding modifications connected coördinately; as,

Genus hominū agreste, sine legibus, sine imperio, liberum, atque solūtum.

REM. 1. A modified grammatical subject, considered as one complex idea, may itself be modified; as, Omnia tua consilia, All thy counsels. Here omnia modifies, not consilia, but the complex idea expressed by tua consilia. So Triginta naves longa. Prærogens finitimus rex.

REM. 2. An infinitive, with the words connected with it, may be the logical subject of a proposition; as, Virtus est vitium fugere, To shun vice is a virtue.

REM. 3. A clause, or any member consisting of two or more clauses, may be the logical subject of a proposition; as,

E caelo descendit 'Nosce te ipsum.' Equum est, ut hoc facias.

REM. 4. The noun or pronoun which is the subject of a proposition is put in the nominative, when the verb of the predicate is a finite verb; but when the verb is in the infinitive, the subject is put in the accusative.

NOTE 1. A verb in any mood, except the infinitive, is called a finite verb.

NOTE 2. In the following pages, when the term subject or predicate is used alone, the grammatical subject or predicate is intended.

PREDICATE.

§ 203. 1. The predicate, like the subject, is either simple, complex, or compound.

2. The simple predicate, which is also called the grammatical predicate, is either a single finite verb, or the copula sum with a noun, adjective, and rarely with an adverb; as,

Sol lūcet, The sun shines. Multa animalia rēpunt, Many animals creep. Brevis est vō'uptus, Pleasure is brief. Eurōpa est pēninsula, Europe is a peninsula. Rectissime sunt apud te omnia.

3. The complex predicate, called also the logical predicate, consists of the simple predicate with its modifications; as,

Scipio fudit Annibālis cōpias, Scipio routed the forces of Hannibal. Hare fudit is the grammatical, and fudit Annibālis cōpias the logical predicate.—So, Rōmulus Rōmānæ conditor urbis fuit.

4. The compound predicate consists of two or more simple or complex predicates belonging to the same subject; as,

Prōbitus laudātur et alget, Honesty is praised and neglected. Lēti vis rāpuit, rāpietque gentes. Lucius Cātulina fuit magnā vi et animi et corpōris, sed ingenio malo pravōque.

Complex or Modified Predicate.

5. The complex predicate is formed by adding other words to the simple predicate. All additions to the predicate, like the predicate itself, are either simple, complex, or compound.

I. Simple additions. The predicate may be modified by adding:—

1. A single word;—

(1.) A noun or adjective in the same case as the subject. This occurs after certain neuter verbs and passive verbs of naming, calling, etc. (See § 210, R. 3.); as, Servus fit libertinus, The slave becomes a freedman. Servius Tullius rex est acclārātus. Aristides justus est appellātus. Incēdo regina.

(2.) A noun or pronoun in an oblique case; as,

Spe vivimus, We live by hope. Deus regit mundum, God rules the world.

(3.) An adverb either simple or modified; as,
Sæpe venit. He came often. Festina lente. Hasten slowly. Littera facit dicitur. Chremes nimis graviter cruciatur adolescentulum.

(4.) An infinitive mood; as,
Opto discere. He desires to learn. Audeo dicere. Ver esse cœperat.

2. A phrase consisting of a preposition and its case; as, Venit ad urbem. He came to the city.

3. A dependent substantive or adverbial clause; as,
Vereor ne reprehendar. I fear that I shall be blamed. Zenonem, quum Athenis essem, audiebam frequenter. Fac cogites.

II. Complex additions. The predicate may be modified :—

1. By a word to which other words are added.

REMARK. These words are the same as in the corresponding cases of complex additions to the subject. See § 202, II.

2. By a phrase consisting of a preposition and its case, to which other words are added. See complex additions to the subject, § 202.

3. By a subordinate clause, to whose subject or predicate other words are added. See complex subject, § 202, II, 3.

REM. 2. Each of the words constituting a proposition may be modified by two or more additions not dependent on, nor connected with each other, and consisting either of single words, phrases, or dependent clauses; as, Agamemnonis belli gloria. Paternum odium erga Romanos. Mens sibi conscia recti. Mea maxime interest, te valere. Ago tibi gratias. Meipsum inertia condemno. Eos hoc moneo. In quo te accuso. Monet eum, ut suspiciones vitet.

III. Compound additions. 1. The predicate may be modified by two or more words, phrases, or clauses, joined together by a coordinate conjunction. See Compound additions to the subject, § 202, III

2. The leading verb is usually either in the indicative or imperative mood, but sometimes in the subjunctive or the historical infinitive.

3. The members of a compound sentence are connected by coordinate conjunctions; those of a complex sentence by some relative word, or by a subordinate conjunction.

4. Instead of a dependent clause connected by a conjunction, a noun and participle, or two nouns, sometimes stand as an abridged proposition; as,

Bello confecto discessit, i. e. quum bellum confectum esset, discessit, The war being finished, or when the war was finished, he departed. Nil desperandum, Teucro duce.

5. An infinitive may be modified like the verb of a predicate.

6. Agreement is the correspondence of one word with another in gender, number, case, or person.

7. A word is said to govern another, when it requires it to be put in a certain case or mood.

8. A word is said to depend on another, when its case, gender, number, mood, tense, or person, is determined by that word.

9. A word is said to follow another, when it depends upon it in construction, whatever may be its position in the sentence.

APPOSITION.

§ 204. A noun, annexed to another noun or to a pronoun, and denoting the same person or thing, is put in the same case as,

Urbs Rōma, The city Rome. Nos consules, We consuls. So Ajūd Herodōtum, patrem historiæ, sunt innumerabiles fabulæ, In Herodotus, the father of history, etc. Cic. Lapidēs silices, sint stones. Liv. Ante mē consulem, Before I was consul. Fons cui nōmen Arethūsa est. Cic.

REMARK 1. (a.) A noun, thus annexed to another, is said to be in apposition to it. It is generally added for the sake of explanation, identification, or description; sometimes it denotes character or purpose; as, Ejus fūgos cōmittē me adjunxi, I added myself, as a companion of his flight; and sometimes the time, cause, reason, etc., of an action; as, Alexander puer, Alexander when a boy. Cūto sēnex scribēre historiām instituit. Suet.

(b.) A noun in apposition, like an adjective used as an epithet, (§ 205, N. 2,) assumes the attribute denoted by it as belonging to the noun which it limits, while the predicate-nominative affirms it. Hence both nouns belong to the same part of the sentence, whether subject or predicate. In cases of apposition, there seems to be an ellipsis of the ancient participle ens, being; qui est, who is; qui vocātur, who is called; or the like.

REM. 2. If the annexed noun has a form of the same gender as the other noun, it takes that form; as, Usus magister egrēgius. Plin. Philosophia magistra vitæ. Cic. If the annexed noun is of the common gender, the adjective qualifying it takes the gender of the preceding noun; as, Laurus fidiſsimus custos.

REM. 3. The annexed noun sometimes differs from the other in gender or in number; as, Duo fulmina bellī, Scipiādas, cladem Libyæ. Virg. Mitylēnæ, urbs nobilis. Cic. Tulliolæ, deliciæ nostræ. Id.;—and sometimes in both; as, Natæ, meæ vires. Virg. Nos, aulmæ viles, inhumatæ infestæque turba. Id.

REM. 4. The substantive pronoun is sometimes omitted before the word in apposition to it; as, Consul dixi, scil. ego; (1) the consul said. And instead of the substantive pronoun, a possessive adjective pronoun is sometimes used; as, Tua domus, talis viri. Cic. See § 211, R. 3, (b.)

REM. 5. A noun may be in apposition to two or more nouns, and, in such case, is usually put in the plural; as, M. Antonius, C. Cassius, tribūni plēbis, M. Antonius, C. Cassius, tribunes of the people. Cæs. Publius et Servius Sullæ, Servi filii. Sall. Tib. et Gaius Gracchi. Cic. Oratiōes L. et C. Aureliorum Orestarum. Id. But sometimes in the singular; as, Cn. et L. Domitius. Cic.

(1.) So when the nouns are connected by cum, the annexed noun taking the case of the former; as, Dicaarchum vērō cum Aristozēno, doctos sēne homines, omittāmus. Cic.

(2.) If the nouns are proper names of different genders, a masculine noun is annexed rather than a feminine, when both forms exist; as, Ad Ptolemæum Cleopatramque rēges legatī missi sunt. Liv.

REM. 6. The annexed noun is sometimes in the genitive; as, Urberē Patavī lēvī, The city of Patavium. Virg. Plurimus Eridāni amnis. Id. Arborem Ici numquam vidērat. Cic. In oppido Antiochiæ. Id. Ruplii et Perſi par. Hor.

REM. 7. The name of a town in the genitive occurs with an ablative in apposition to it; as, Corinthi Achaiæ urbe; At Corinth, a city of Achaia. Tac. Antiochiæ, celebri urbe. Cic. See § 221, Note, and § 254, Rem. 3.

REM. 8. (a.) A proper name, after nōmen or cognōmen, with a verb followed by a dative, is put in apposition either to nōmen, etc., or to the dative, the latter by a species of attraction; as, Fons, cui nōmen Arethūsa est. Cic. Stīps virtūe, cui Ascanium parentes dicere nōmen. Liv. Nōmen Arctūro est mihi, I have the name Arcturus. Plant. Cui nunc cognomen Iūlo additur. Virg. Cui Tergio inditum nomen. Liv.—(b.) The name may also be put in the genitive; as, Nomen Mercūrii est mihi. Plaut. Q. Metellus, cui Macedonici nomen inditum erat. Vell. Cf. R. 6.—(c.) In Ilia aetas, cui fecimus Aurea nomen, Ov. Met. 15, 96, Aurea is used as an indeclinable noun, instead of Auream (scil. etātem); or Aureae (scil. etāti.)

REM. 9. A clause may supply the place of one of the nouns; as, Cogitet oratōrem institui—rem arduam. Let him reflect that an orator is training—a difficult thing. Quint.—So also a neuter adjective used substantively; as, Triste lūpus stabūlis. The wolf, a sad thing to the folds. Virg. Vārium et mutabile semper femina. Id.

REM. 10. Sometimes the former noun denotes a whole, and its parts are expressed by nouns in apposition to it; as, Onerārie, pars maxima ad Ægimūrum, —aliæ adversus urbem ipsam delatæ sunt. The ships of burden were carried, the greatest part, to Ægimurus,—others opposite to the city itself. Liv. Pictōres et poētæ suum quisque opus a vulgo considerāri vult. Cic. In the construction of the ablative absolute, quisque remains in the nominative, though the word to which it is in apposition is in the ablative; as, Multis sibi quisque impĕrium petentibus. Sall. J. 18. So also, in Liv. 26, 29, quisque remains in the nominative although the word to which it is in apposition is in the accusative with the infinitive.

To this rule may be subjoined that which relates to the agreement of interrogative and responsive words.

REM. 11. The principal noun or pronoun in the answer to a question, must be in the same case as the corresponding interrogative word; as, Quis hĕrus est tibi? Amphitruo, scil. est. Who is your master? Amphitruo (is.) Plaut. Quid quæris? Librum, scil. quæro. What are you looking for? A book. Quōtā hōrā venisti? Sextā. At what hour did you come? At the sixth.

NOTE 1. Instead of the genitive of a substantive pronoun, the corresponding possessive pronoun is often used, agreeing with its noun; as, Cūjus est liber? Meus, (not Mei.) (See § 211, Rem. 3, (b.)) So cūjum for genitive cūjus? Cājum pĕcus? an Melibœi? Non; vĕrum Ægōnis. Virg.

NOTE 2. Sometimes the rules of syntax require the responsive to be in a different case from that of the interrogative; as, Quanti emisti? Viginti minis Damnatuse es furti? Imo ālio crimine. See §§ 214, R. 1, and 217, R. 2.

ADJECTIVES.

§ 205. Adjectives, adjective pronouns, and participles, agree with their nouns, in gender, number, and case; as,

Bōnus vir, A good man.

Benigna māter, A kind mother.

Triste bellum, A sad war.

Spe amissā, Hope being lost.

Bōnos viros, Good men.

Vānæ lĕges, Useless laws.

Minācia verba, Threatening words

Hæc res, This thing.

So, Mea māter est benigna.

Hæc lĕges vānæ sunt.

NOTE 1. Adjectives, according to their meaning, (§ 104), are divided into two classes—qualifying and limiting—the former denoting some property or quality of a noun; as, a wise man, lead is heavy; the latter defining or restricting its meaning; as, this man, ten cities. To the former class belong such adjectives as denote a property or quality, including all participles and participial adjectives; to the latter, the adjective pronouns, pronominal adjectives, and numerals.

NOTE 2. An adjective, participle, or pronoun, may either be used as an epithet to modify a noun, or, with the copula sum, may constitute a predicate. In the former case the quality is assumed, in the latter it is asserted. In both cases, the rule for their agreement is, in general, the same. See § 210, R. 1.

NOTE 3. Any word or combination of words added to a noun to modify or limit its meaning is of the nature of an adjective.

NOTE 4. In the following remarks, the word adjective is to be considered as including participles, either alone or combined with the auxiliary sum, and also adjective pronouns, unless the contrary is intimated.

REMARK 1. An adjective agrees also with a substantive pronoun, taking its gender from that of the noun for which the pronoun stands; as, Ipse capellus ager ago, scil. ego, Melibæus; Virg. Fortunate puer, tu nunc eris alter ab illo. Id. U' se totum ei traderet. Nep. O me miserum (spoken by a man), miseram me (spoken by a woman). So salvi sumus, salvæ sumus, scil. nos, masculine or feminine.—In general propositions which include both sexes, the pronouns are considered masculine; as, Nos fruges consumere nati. Hor.

REM. 2. An adjective may belong to each of two or more nouns, and in such case is put in the plural. If the nouns are of the same gender, the adjective agrees with them in gender, as well as in number; as,

Lupus et agnus sti compulsi, A wolf and a lamb, constrained by thirst. Phæd. Sicilia Sardinique amissæ. Liv.

When the nouns are of different genders,

(1.) If they denote living things, the adjective is masculine rather than feminine; as,

Pater mihi et mater mortui sunt, My father and mother are dead. Ter. So also uterque in the singular. Procumbit uterque, scil. Deucalion et Pyrrha. Ovid.

(2.) If they denote things without life, the adjective is generally neuter; as,

His genus, ætas, eloquentia præpe æqualia fuere, Their family, age, and eloquence, were nearly equal. Sall. Regna, impéria, nobilitates, honores, divitiæ in casu sita sunt. Cic. Huic bella, rapinæ, discordia civilis, grata fuere. Sall. Animæ atque animus, quævis integra rêcens in corpus eunt. Lucr.

NOTE. When nouns denoting things without life are of the same gender (either masculine or feminine), but of different numbers, the adjective is sometimes neuter; as, Cræso et vita et patrimonii partes, et urbs Barce concessa sunt. Just.; sometimes also when both nouns are in the singular number; as, Plerosque velocitas et regio hostibus ignara tutata sunt. Sall. Nox atque præda remorata sunt. Id.

(3.) If one of the nouns denotes an animate, and another an inanimate thing, the adjective is sometimes neuter, and sometimes takes the gender of that which has life; as,

Numidæ atque signa militaria obscurati sunt, The Numidians and the military standards were concealed. Sall. Romani regem regnumque Macedoniæ sua futura sciunt. Liv. Jâne, fac æternos pacem pacisque ministros. Ovid.

Exc. to REM. 2. The adjective often agrees with the nearest noun, and is understood with the rest; as, Sociis et rege recepto, Our companions and king having been recovered. Virg. Agri omnes et maria. Cic. Cognitum est salutem, liberos, famam, fortunas esse carissimas. Cic.

NOTE. A noun in the singular, followed by an ablative with cum, has sometimes a plural adjective, the gender being the same as if the nouns were connected by et; as, Filiam cum filio accitos. Liv. Ilia cum Lauso de Nuntiorum aiti. Ovid. Filium Alexandri cum matre in arcem custodiendos mittit. Just.

REM. 3. (1.) An adjective qualifying a collective noun is often put in the plural, taking the gender of the individuals which the noun denotes; as,

Pars certare parati, A part, prepared to contend. Virg. Pars per agrum dilapsi. suam quisque spem exsequentes. Liv. Supplex turba erant sine iudice tati. Ovid. This construction always occurs when the collective noun is the subject of a plural verb. See § 209, R. 11.

(2.) Sometimes, though rarely, an adjective in the singular takes the gender of the individuals; as, Pars arduus altis pulverulentus equis furi. Virg. Pars una ducum—fractus morbo. Ovid.

(3.) Sometimes other nouns, which only in a figurative sense denote human beings, have by synæsis an adjective of a different gender from their own, referring to the words which they include; as, Lalium Capuæque agro multatati Latium and Capua were deprived of their land. Liv. Capita conjurationis virgis caesi ac securi percussi sunt. Id. Auxilia irati. Id. So after millia; as, Duo millia Tyrorum, crucibus affixi. Curt. Cf. § 323, 3, (4.)

REM. 4. Two adjectives in the singular are sometimes joined to a plural noun; as, Marta Tyrhenum atque Adriaticum, The Tuscan and Adriatic seas. Liv. Cum legionibus secundâ et tertiâ. Liv. Circa portas Collinam Esquilinamque. Id. But sometimes the noun is in the singular; as, Inter Esquilinam Collinamque portam. Id. Legio Martia et quarta. In comic writers, an adjective or participle in the singular is sometimes used with a plural pronoun; as, Nobis presente. Plaut. Absente nobis. Ter.

REM. 5. A participle which should regularly agree with the subject of a proposition, when placed after the noun of the predicate, (a) sometimes takes the gender and number of the latter; as, Non omnis error stultitia est dicenda. Not every error is to be called folly. Cic. Gens universa Veneti appellati. Liv. (b.) Sometimes also it agrees with a noun following the subject and in apposition to it; as, Corinthum, patres vestri, totius Græciæ lumen, extinctum esse voluerunt. Cic.; or (c) with the noun of a subordinate sentence; as, Illo rum urbem ut propugnaculum oppositum esse barbaris. Nep.

REM. 6. When the subject of an infinitive is omitted after a dative of the same signification, (§ 239, R. 1,) an adjective in the preterite, belonging to that subject, is sometimes put in the dative; as, Mihi negligenti esse non licuit, i. e. me negligentem esse mihi non licuit. Cic. Da mihi justo sanctoque vitari. Hor. A noun is sometimes expressed with the adjective; as, Vobis necesse est fortibus esse vris. Liv. But the adjective often agrees with the omitted subject; as, Expedit bonas esse vobis, scil. vos. Ter. Si civi Romano licet esse Gaudianum. Cic.

REM. 7. (1.) An adjective is often used alone, especially in the plural, the noun, with which it agrees, being understood; as, Boni sunt rari, scil. homines, Good (men) are rare. Cæsar suos misit. scil. milites, Cæsar sent his (soldiers). Dextra, scil. manus, The right (hand). Impletur pinguis ferinæ, scil. carnis. Virg. Hiberna, scil. castra. Altum scil. mare. Quartana, scil. febris. Immortales, scil. Di. Lucr. Anantium, scil. romani. Ter. Illum indignanti similem, similemque minanti aspiceres, scil. hominem. Virg. Tibi primas d'fero, scil. partes. Cic. Respice præteritum, scil. tempus, which is often omitted, as in ex quo, ex eo, and ex illo, scil. tempore. Cognova ex meorum omnium literis, scil. amicorum. Cic. So patricial adjectives; as, Missi ad Parthum Arminiumque legati, scil. regem. In Tusculano, scil. voridæ.

NOTE 1. The noun to be supplied with masculine adjectives is commonly homines, but when they are possessives, it is oftener amici, milites, cives, or pro pinqui.

NOTE 2. The noun to be supplied is often contained in a preceding clause.

(2.) An adjective in the neuter gender, without a noun, is often used substantively, where, in English, the word thing or things is to be supplied; as,

Bonum, a good thing; malum, a bad thing, or, an evil. So honestum, verum, turpe; and in the plural, bona, mala, turpia, levia, caelestia, etc. Labor omnia vincit, Labor overcomes all things. Virg.

NOTE 1. The Latins generally preferred adding res to an adjective, to using its neuter as a substantive. But sometimes, when res is used, an adjective or pronoun referring to it is put in the neuter instead of the feminine; as, Earum rerum utrumque. Cic. Humanarum rerum fortuna plerumque regit. Sall. Illud te rogo, sumptui ne parcas ullam in re, quod ad utilitatem opus sit. Cic. Omnium rerum mora est extremum. Cic.

NOTE 2. Instead of thing or things, other words may sometimes be supplied, as the sense requires. With a preposition, neuter adjectives form adverbial phrases; as, A primo, At first. Plaut. Per mutua, Mutually. Virg. In primis, In the first place. Ad hoc, or Ad haec, Moreover, besides.

(3.) Adjectives used substantively often have other adjectives agreeing with them; as, Alia omnia, All other (things.). Plin. Iniquissimi mei, My greatest enemies. Familiaris meus. Cic. Iniquus noster. Id. Iusta funebria. Liv. Jovis omnia plena. scil. sunt. Virg.

REM. 8. (a.) Imperatives, infinitives, adverbs, clauses, and words considered merely as such, may be used substantively, and take a neuter adjective in the singular number; as, Supremum velle dixit, He pronounced a last farewell. Ovid. Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori. Hor. Velle suum cuique est. Pers. Cras istud quando venit? Mart. J. Redibo actitum. A. Id. actitum diu est. Plaut. Excepto quod non simul esses, cetera letus. Hor. (b.) In the poets and later prose writers the adjective, as in Greek, is sometimes in the neuter plural; as, Uli Aeneas pelagus jactetur—nota tibi. Virg.

REM. 9. (a.) Adjectives and adjective pronouns, instead of agreeing with their nouns, are sometimes put in the neuter gender, with a partitive signification, and their nouns in the genitive: as, Multum temporis, for multum tempus; much time. Id rei, for ea res; that thing. So, plus eloquentia, the other form not being admissible with plus. (See § 110, (b).) Neuter adjectives are used in like manner in the plural; as, Vana rerum, for vana res. Hor. Plerumque humanarum rerum. Sall. Cf. § 212, R. 8, N. 4. But in some such examples, the adjective seems to be used substantively, according to Rem. 7, (2); as, Acuta belli. Hor. Tellaris operata. Virg. Summa pectoris.

NOTE. The adjectives thus used partitively in the singular, for the most part, signify quantity. See § 212, Rem. 3, Note 1.

REM. 10. A neuter adjective is sometimes used adverbially in the nominative or accusative, both singular and plural; as, Dulce ridentem Liliogen amabo, dulce loquentem. Hor. Magnum stridens. Virg. Arma horrendum sonare. Id. Multa deos venerati sunt. Cic. Hodie aut summum cras. Id. See § 192, II. 4, (b.).

REM. 11. (a.) A noun is sometimes used as an adjective; as, Nemo miles Romanus, No Roman soldier. Liv. Nemo fere adolescens. Cic. Vir nemo bonus. Id. Cf. § 207, R. 31, (c.) Tiberim accolis fluvii orbatum. Tac. Incola turba. Ovid. The poets use in this manner the Greek patronymics in as and is; as, Pellias hasta. Ovid. Laurus Parnasis. Id. Ursa Libyatis. Virg. Cf. also § 129, 8.

(b.) An adverb is also sometimes used as an adjective; as, Negue enim ignari sinus ante meliorum i. e. antiquorum or proletariorum. Virg. Nunc hominum mores Plaut.

REM. 12. (a.) An adjective or adjective pronoun, used partitively, stands alone, and commonly takes the gender of the genitive plural, which depends upon it; but when it is preceded by a noun of a different gender, to which it refers, it usually takes that gender, but sometimes that of the genitive; as, Elephanto belluarum nulla est prudentior, No beast is wiser than the elephant. Cic. Inlus, qui est omnium fluminum maximus. Cic. Velocissimum omnium animalium est delphinus. Plin. See § 212, Rem. 2.—(b.) So also with de, ex, in, apud, inter, etc., with the ablative or accusative instead of the partitive genitive. See § 212, R. 2, N. 4.

(c.) When a collective noun follows in the genitive singular, (§ 212, R. 2.) the adjective takes the gender of the individuals which compose it; as, Vir fortissimus nostrus civitatis, The bravest man of our state. Cic. Maximus stirpis. Liv.

REM. 13. (a.) When a possessive pronoun or adjective is used instead of the genitive of its primitive or of its corresponding noun (see § 211, R. 3, (b.) and (c.) and R. 4), an adjective agreeing with that genitive is sometimes joined with such possessive; as, Solius meum peccatum corrigi non potest, The fault of me alone cannot be corrected. Cic. Noster duorum eventus. Liv. Tuum ipsius stultum. Cic. Pugna Romana stabilis suo pondere incumbentium in hostem. Liv.

(b.) Sometimes a noun in the genitive is expressed, in apposition to the substantive pronoun for which the possessive stands; as, Pectus tuum, hominis simplicis. Cic.

REM. 14. An adjective, properly belonging to the genitive, is sometimes made to agree with the noun on which the genitive depends, and vice versa; as, Edificationis tue constium for tuum, Your design of building. Cic. Accusantes violati hospitii fœdus, for violatum. Liv. Ad majora iustia rerum ducentibus fatiis, for majorum. Id. Iis nominibus civitatum, quibus ex civitatibus, etc., for eorum civitatum. Cæs.

REM. 15. (a.) An adjective agreeing with a noun is sometimes used, instead of an adverb qualifying a verb, especially in poetry; as, Ecce venit Telamon propèrus, Lo, Telamon comes in haste. Ovid. Læti pacem agitantibus, for læte. Sall. Æneas se matutinus agebat, for mane. Virg. Nec lūpus grēgibus nocturnus obambulat, i. e. by night. Id.

(b.) So nullus is used for non; as, Mēini tāmetsi nullus mōneas, Though you do not suggest it. Ter. Sextus ab armis nullus discēdit. Cic. Prior, primus, princeps, propior, proximus, solus, unus, ultimus, multus, totus, and some others, are used instead of their neutrals, adverbially; as, Priori Rēmo augūrium vēnisse fertur. Liv. Hispania postrēma omnium prōvinciarum perdomita est. Liv. Scævola sōlos novem menses Asia præsuit, Only nine months. Cic. Unum hoc dico, This only I say. Id. This is sometimes done, for want of an adverb of appropriate meaning; as, Pronus cecidit. Ovid. Frequentes convenerant. Sall.

(c.) In such expressions, tu, in the nominative, sometimes takes an adjective in the vocative, and vice versa; as, Sic venias hodiernē. Tibull. Salve, primus omnium parens patriæ appellāte. Plin.

REM. 16. (a.) A noun is often qualified by two or more adjectives; and sometimes the complex idea, formed by a noun with one or more adjectives, is itself qualified by other adjectives, which agree in gender, etc. with the noun.

(b.) When several adjectives, each independently of the other, qualify a noun, if they precede it, they are almost always connected by one or more conjunctions; as, Multā et variā et copiosā oratione. Cic. If they follow it, the conjunction is sometimes expressed, and sometimes omitted; as, Vir altus et excellens. Cic. Actio, varia, vehemens, plena veritatis. Id.

(c.) But when one of the adjectives qualifies the noun, and another the complex idea formed by the first with the noun, the conjunction is always omitted; as, Periculosisimum civile bellum, A most dangerous civil war. Cic. Mālam domesticam disciplinam. Id. So with three or more adjectives; Externos multos cæcos viros nominārem. Cic. Cf. § 202, III., R. 1.

REM. 17. The first part, last part, middle part, etc., of any place or time are generally expressed in Latin by the adjectives primus, medius, ultimus, extremus, intimus, infimus, imus, summus, supremus, reliquus, and cetera; as, Média nox, The middle of the night. Summa arbor, The top of a tree. Supremos montes, The summits of the mountains. But these adjectives frequently occur without this signification; as, Ab extremo complexu, From the last embrace. Cic. Infimo loco natus, Of the lowest rank. Id.

REM. 18. The participle of the compound tenses of verbs, used impersonally in the passive voice, is neuter; as, Ventum est. Cic. Itum est in viscera terræ. Ovid. Scribendum est mihi. See § 184, 2 and 3.

RELATIVES.

§ 206. REM. 19. (a.) Relatives agree with their antecedents in gender, number, and person, but their case depends on the construction of the clause to which they belong; as,

Puer qui legit, The boy who reads. Edificium quod eastruxit, The house which he built. Litteræ quas dedi, The letter which I gave. Non sum qualls eram, I am not such as I was. Hor. So Deus cujus munere vivimus, cui nullus est similis, quem colimus, a quo facta sunt omnia, est æternus. Addictus Herminippo, et ab hoc ductus est. Aquilæ, quantus frangit lices. Hor.

NOTE 1. This rule includes all adjectives and adjective pronouns which relate to a noun in a preceding clause. Its more common application, however, is to the construction of the demonstrative pronouns and the relative qui.

NOTE 2. When a pronoun refers to the mere words of a sentence, it is said to be used logically. Qui and is are so used, and sometimes also hic and ille.

(b.) The relative may be considered as placed between two cases of the same noun, either expressed or understood, with the former of which it agrees in gender, number, and person, and with the latter in gender, number, and case.

(1.) Sometimes both nouns are expressed; as,

Erant omnino duo itinera, quibus itineribus domo exire possent, There were only two routes, by which routes they could leave home. Cæs. Crudelissimè bello, quäle bellum nulla unquam barbaria gessit. Cic. But it is most frequent with the word dies; as, Fore in armis certo die, qui dies futurus erat, etc. Cic. The repetition of the substantive is necessary, when, for any reason, it becomes doubtful to which of two or more preceding substantives the relative refers.

(2.) Usually the antecedent noun only is expressed; as, Animum rege, qui, nisi paret, imperat, Govern your passions, which rule unless they obey. Hor. Tantæ multitudinis, quantam caput urbs nostra, com curvus est ad me factus. Cic. Quot capitum vivunt, totidem studiorum millia. Hor.

(3.) Sometimes the latter noun only is expressed, especially when the relative clause, as is frequently the case, precedes that of the antecedent; as,

Quibus de rebus ad me scripsisti, coram videbitur; scil. de rebus, In regard to the things of which you wrote to me, we will consider when we meet. Cic. In quem primum egressi sunt locum, Troja vocatur; scil. locus. Liv. Quantâ vi expetunt, tantâ depredantur. Qualesque visus eram videre viros, ex ordine tales aspicio. Ovid.

(a.) The place of the antecedent is sometimes supplied by a demonstrative pronoun; as, Ad quas res apertissimi erimus, in iis potissimum elaborabimus. Cic. But the demonstrative is often omitted when its case is the same as that of the relative, and not unfrequently, also, when the cases are different. When the relative clause precedes that of the antecedent, is is expressed only for the sake of emphasis. Hence we find such sentences as, Maximam ornamentum amicitiae tollit, qui ea tollit verecundia. Cic. Terra quod accipit, nunquam sine assurâ reddit. Id.—The demonstrative adjectives and adverbs are in like manner often omitted before their corresponding relatives; talis before qualis, tantus before quantus, inde before unde, ibi before ubi, etc.

(b.) Sometimes the latter noun only is expressed, even when the relative clause does not precede; as, Quis non nullarum quas amor cûras habet, hæc inter obliiscitur? Hor.

(4.) Sometimes neither noun is expressed; this happens especially when the antecedent is designedly left indefinite, or when it is a substantive pronoun; as,

Qui bene latuit, bene vixit, scil. homo, (He) who has well escaped notice, has lived well. Ovid. Sunt quos curriculo pulcèrem Olympicum collegisse juvat, scil. homines, There are whom it delights, i. e. Some delight. Hor. Non habeo quod te accûsem, scil. id propter quod. Cic. Non solum sapiens videris, qui hinc absis, sed etiam beatus, scil. tu. Cic.

(5.) The relative is sometimes either entirely omitted; as, Urbs antiqua fuit; Tyrii tenuere colôni, scil. quam or eam, There was an ancient city (which) Tyrian colonists possessed, Virg.; or, if once expressed, is afterwards omitted even when, if supplied, its case would be different; as, Bocchus cum peditibus, quos filius ejus adduxerat, nêque in priore pugna cufuerant, Romanos invadunt, for et qui non in priore, etc. Sall.

(6.) (a.) The relative sometimes takes the case of the antecedent, instead of its own proper case; as, Quum scribas et aliquid agis eorum, quorum consuesti, for quæ. Cic. Rupitum quibus quisque poterat elatis, exibunt, for iis, quæ quisque efferre poterat, elatis. Liv.

(b.) The antecedent likewise sometimes takes the case of the relative, the substantive either preceding or following the pronoun; as, Urbe[m] quam scitue vestra est, for urbs. Virg. Eunuchum quem dedisti nobis, quas turbas dedit! for Eunuchus. Ter. Naucratem quem concitare volui, in navi non erat. Plant. Atque alii, quorum comædia prisca virorum est, for atque alii viri, quorum est. Hor. Illi, scriptis quibus comædia prisca viris est, for illi vi-ri, quibus. Id. Quos pueros miseram, epistolam mihi attulerunt. Cic.

These constructions are said to occur by attraction.

(7.) (a.) An adjective, which properly belongs to the antecedent, is sometimes placed in the relative clause, and agrees with the relative; as, Inter jocos, quos inconditos faciunt, for jocos inconditos, quos, etc. Amidst the rude jests which they utter. Liv. Verbis, quæ magna volunt. Virg. Câlôre, quem multum habet. Cic.

(b.) This is the common position of the adjective, when it is a numeral, a comparative or a superlative; as, Nocte quam in terris ultimam egit, The last night which he spent upon earth. Æstulapius, qui primus vulnus obligavisse videtur. Cic. Consiliis pare, quæ nunc pulcherrima Nautes dat senior, Listen to the excellent advice, which, etc. Virg. Some instances occur in which an adjective belonging to the relative clause, is placed in that of the antecedent; as, Quum venissent ad vîda Volaterrana, quæ nominantur, Which are called Volaterran. Cic.

(8.) When to the relative or demonstrative is joined a noun explanatory of its antecedent, but of a different gender or number, the relative or demonstrative usually agrees with that noun; as,

Santones non longe a Tolosatium finibus absunt, quæ civitas est in provincia
 The Santones are not far distant from the borders of the Tolosates, which state is in the province. Cæs. Ante comitia, quod tempus haud longe aberat.
 Sall. Romæ fanum Dianæ populi Latini cum populo Romano fecerunt: ea erat confessio caput rerum Romam esse; i. e. that thing or that act. Liv. Si omnia facienda sunt, quæ amici velint, non amicitie tales, sed conjurationes pugnanda sunt; i. e. such things or such connections. Cic. So, Ista quidem vis, Surely this is force. Ea ipsa causa belli fuit, for id ipsum. Hither also may be referred such explanatory sentences as, Qui meus amor in te est, Such is my love for you. Cic.

(9.) If the relative refers to one of two nouns, denoting the same object, but of different genders, it agrees with either; as,

Flumen est Arar quod in Rhodanum influit. Cæs. Ad flumen Oorum perversum est, qui turbidus semper est. Curt.

(10.) When, in a relative clause containing the verb sum or a verb of naming, esteeming, etc., a predicate-noun occurs of a different gender from the antecedent, the relative commonly agrees with the latter; but when the preceding noun is to be explained and distinguished from another, the relative agrees with the former; as,

Naturæ vultus quem dicere Chaos, The appearance of nature which they called chaos. Ovid. Genus hominum, quod Ilclotes vocatur. Nep. Animal, quem vocamus hominem, The animal whom we call man. Cic. Locus in car- cere, quod Tullianum appellatur. Sall. Pecuniarum conquisitio; eos esse bella civilis nervos dicitur. Mucianus. Tac.

(11.) The relative sometimes agrees with a noun, either equivalent in sense to the antecedent, or only implied in the preceding clause; as,

Abundantia earum rerum, quæ mortales prima putant, An abundance of those things, which mortals esteem most important. Sall. Cf. § 205, R. 7, (2.) N. 1.
 But sometimes when a neuter adjective used substantively has preceded, res with a relative follows; as, Permulta sunt, quæ dici possunt, quâ re intelligatur.
 Cic. Patule monstrum, quæ, etc., scil. Cleopatra. Hor. Cf. § 323, 3, (4.)

(a.) A relative or demonstrative pronoun, referring to a collective noun, or to a noun which only in a figurative sense denotes a human being, sometimes takes the gender and number of the individuals which the noun implies; as, Emittuntur, quos. Sall. Genus, qui premuntur. Cic. Senatus—ii. Sall.

(b.) A pronoun in the plural often follows a noun in the singular, referring not only to the noun but to the class of persons or things to which it belongs, as, Denotatum omittamus; nihil est enim apud istos, quod, etc. i. e. with Deno- critus and his followers. Cic. Dionysius negavit se jure illo nigro quod cæna caput erat, delectatum. Tum is, qui illa coxerat, etc. Id.

(12.) The antecedent is sometimes implied in a possessive pronoun; as, Omnes laudare fortunas meas, qui natum tali ingenio præditum habere; scil.
mei. All were extolling my fortune, who, etc. Ter. Id mea minime refert, qui erat natu meretrices. Id. Nostrum consilium laudandum est, qui noluerim, etc. Cic.; or it is a possessive adjective; as, Servili tumultu, quos, etc. Cæs.

(13.) (a.) Sometimes the antecedent is a proposition; the relative then is commonly neuter; as, Postremo, quod difficillimum inter mortales, gloria in- vidiam vicisti. Finally, you have overcome envy with glory, which, among men, is most difficult. Sall. Equidem expectabam jam tuas literas, idque cum multis.
 Cic.

(b.) In such instances, id is generally placed before the relative pronoun, referring to the idea in the antecedent clause; as, Sive, id quod constat, Platonis studiosus audiendi fuit. Cic. Diem consumi volebant, id quod fecerunt. Id.

(c.) Sometimes is, referring to a clause, agrees with a noun following; as,
Idem velle atque idem nolle, ea demum firma amicitia est Sall

(14.) Quod relating to a preceding statement, and serving the purpose of transition, is often placed at the beginning of a sentence after a period, where it may be translated by 'nay,' 'now,' or 'and.' It is thus used especially before si, etsi, and nisi; as, Quodsi illinc inanis profugisses, tamen ista tua fuga nefaria iudicaretur, i. e. and even if you had fled without taking any thing with you, still, etc. Cic. Verr. 1, 14. Quodsi, 'if then,' is especially used in introducing something assumed as true, from which further inferences may be drawn. Sometimes also it is equivalent to 'although.' Quodnisi signifies 'if then—not'; as, Quodnisi ego meo adventu illius conatus aliquantulum represserim, tamen multos, etc. Quodetsi is 'nay, even if'; as, Quodetsi ingenio magnis preclari quidam dicendi copiam sine ratione consequuntur, ars tamen est dux certior.—Quod is found also before quum, ubi, quia, quoniam, nē and utram, where the conjunction alone would seem to be sufficient; as, Quod utnam illum, cuius impio facinore in hac miserrima projectus sum, eodem hæc simulantem viderem. Sall. It is so used even before a relative in Cic. Phil. 10, 4, fin.—Quod, in such examples, seems to be an accusative, with propter or ad understood.

(15.) (a.) A relative is always plural, when referring to two or more nouns in the singular. If the nouns are of different genders, the gender of the relative is determined by Rem. 2, page 185; as, Ninus et Semiramis, qui Babilonem condiderant, Ninus and Semiramis, who had founded Babylon. Vell. Cæbro funali et libidine, quæ sibi sumpserat. Cic. Ex summa lætitiâ atque lasciviâ, quæ diuturni quies pepererat. Sall. Naves et captivos quæ ad Chium capta erant. Liv.

(b.) If the antecedents are of different persons, the relative follows the first person rather than the second or third, and the second rather than the third; as, Tu et pater, qui in convivio eratis. Ego et tu, qui eramus. Cf. § 209, R. 12, (7.)

(16.) The relative adjectives quod, quantus, qualis, are construed like the relative qui. They have generally, in the antecedent clause, the corresponding demonstrative words, tôt, tantus, tâlis; but these are also often omitted. Frequently also the order of the clauses is reversed, so that the relative clause precedes the demonstrative.

(17.) Qui, at the beginning of a sentence, is often translated like a demonstrative; as, Quæ quum ita sint, Since these (things) are so. Cic.

(18.) The relative qui with sum and either a nominative or the ablative of quality, is used in explanatory clauses, instead of pro, 'in accordance with,' or 'according to'; thus, instead of Tu, pro tuâ prudentiâ, quid optimum factu sit, videbis. Cic., we may say, quæ tua est prudentia, or, quâ prudentiâ es. So, Vitis tantummodo, quæ tua virtus, expugnabis. Hor. Quâ prudentiâ es, nihil te fugiet. Cic.

(19.) A relative clause is sometimes used for the purpose of denoting by circumlocution the person of the agent in a definite but not permanent condition; as, li, qui audiunt, or qui adsunt, i. e. the hearers, the persons present. So also, a relative clause is used for the English expression 'above mentioned'; as, Ex libris quos dixi or quos ante (supra) laudavi: and the English 'so called,' or 'what is called,' is expressed by quem, quam, quod vocant, or by qui, quæ, quod vocatur, dicitur, etc. as, Nec Hermas hos, quos vocant, impij. (Athens) licebat. Cic. Vestra, quæ dicitur, vita, mors est. Id.

(20.) Relative and demonstrative adverbs (see § 191, R. 1), are frequently used instead of relative and demonstrative pronouns with prepositions; as, ad, unde te audisse dicis, i. e. a quo. Cic. Divitiæ apud illos sunt, aut ubi illi volunt, i. e. apud quos. Sall. Illic ab adolescentiâ bella intestina, cædes, rapinæ, discordiæ civilis, grâta fuere, ibique juventutem exercuit, i. e. in iis, in these things. Sall.

(21.) With quam qui and the superlative after tam the verb of the relative clause is sometimes omitted; as, Tam mihi grâtum id erit, quam quod grâtiissimum. Cic. Tum enim sum amicus reipublicæ, quam qui maxime. Id. Tam sum mitis, quam qui lenissimus. Id. So also with ut qui without tam; as, Te semper sic cõtam et tuebor, ut quem diligentissime. Id.

DEMONSTRATIVES.

§ 207. REM. 20. The oblique cases of the personal pronoun of the third person (him, her, etc.) are commonly expressed in prose by the oblique cases of is, ea, id. Hic and ille, however, being more emphatic, take the place of is, ea, id, in lyric poetry, and occasionally in prose also, when particular emphasis is intended. The cases of ipse, ipsa, ipsum, also, are employed for this purpose, when the individuality of the person is to be distinctly expressed. In reflexive sentences, the oblique cases of the pronoun of the third person, are regularly supplied by sui, sibi, se; and it is only when the person of the leading subject is to be referred to with particular emphasis, that ipse is used instead of sui.

REM. 21. The demonstrative pronouns, is and ille, are sometimes used, especially with quidem, where a corresponding word in English is unnecessary; as, Sapientius studium vetus id quidem in nostris, sed tamen, etc. Cic. O hominem semper illum quidem mihi aptum, nunc vero etiam suavem. Id. Quem neque fides, neque iurandum, neque illum misericordia, repressit. Whom neither fidelity, nor an oath, nor pity, has restrained. Ter. Is when used for the sake of emphasis seems sometimes in English to be superfluous; as, Male se res habet, quum, quod virtute effici debet, id tentatur pecunia. Cic.

REM. 22. Sic, ita, id, hoc, illud, are often used redundantly as a preliminary announcement of a subsequent proposition, and are added to the verb on which this proposition depends; as, Sic a maioribus suis accēperant, tanta populi Romini esse beneficiū, ut, etc. Cic. Te illud admoneo, ut quotidie meditare, resistendum esse iracundie. Id. Hoc tibi persuideas vetim, me nihil omisisse. I wish you to be persuaded of this—that I have omitted nothing. These pleonastic additions have generally no influence on the construction of propositions, but in a few instances they are followed by ut; as, De cuius dicendi copā sic accipimus, ut, etc. Cic. Ita enim definiū, ut perturbatio sui, etc. Id. In the phrase luc, illud, or id agere ut, the pronoun is established by custom and is necessary. See § 273, 1, (a.)

REM. 23. (a.) Hic 'this' refers to what is near to the speaker either in place or time, ille 'that' to what is more remote. Hence hic sometimes refers to the speaker himself, and hic homo is then the same as ego. On this account hic is sometimes called the demonstrative of the first person. When reference is made to two things previously mentioned, hic commonly refers to the latter, ille to the former, and the pronouns are arranged in the same order, as the objects to which they relate; as, Ignavia corpus habetut, labor firmat; illa matrem senectatem, hic longum adolescentium relictū. Sloth enervates the body, labor strengthens it; the former produces premature old age, the latter protracted youth. Cels.

(b.) But the order is often reversed, so that hic refers to the object first mentioned, and ille to the one mentioned last; as, Sic deus et virgo est; hic spe ceter, illa timore. Ovid. So when alter...alter, 'the one...the other,' refer to two things mentioned before, the previous order is sometimes observed and sometimes reversed; but wherever there is ambiguity the order is reversed, so that the first ut refers to the last object. Sometimes hic...hic are used instead of hic. ille. Se ille...ille sometimes denote 'the one...the other.'

(c.) Hic and ille have the same relation to time present and past as nunc and tunc, see § 277; and hence whatever, in speaking of present time, is expressed by hic and its derivative adverbs, hic, hinc, huc, and adhuc, is expressed by ille and its derivatives, when it is spoken of as belonging to past time.

REM. 24. Ille, when not in opposition to hic, is often used to denote that which is of general notoriety; as, Magno illi Alexandro simillimus. Very like Alexander the Great. Vell. Medea illa, The celebrated Medea. Cic. Hence ille is sometimes added to other pronouns, to refer to something discussed before; as, Ardebant videre, quis ille tot per annos opes nostras sperasset. Tac. Ille is sometimes translated this; as, Unum illud dico, This only I say. Cic. Ille sometimes marks a change of persons, and may then be translated 'the other' as, Vercingetorix obviam Cæsari profectus est. Ille (scil. Cæsar) oppidum Novesium oppugnare instituerat. Cæs.

REM. 25. Iste properly refers to the person addressed, and for this reason is called the demonstrative of the second person.—Ille refers to the person spoken of, and is hence called the demonstrative of the third person. Thus iste liber is thy book, but ille liber is the book of which we are speaking. Hence, in letters, hic and its derivatives are used of the writer; iste and its derivatives of the person addressed; ille, etc., of some other person or thing. See § 191, R. 1. (e.), iste from its frequent forensic use, and its application to the opponent, often denotes contempt.

LEM. 26. (a.) Is does not, like hic, ille, and iste, denote the place or order of the object to which it relates, but either refers without particular emphasis to something already mentioned or to something which is to be defined by the relative qui. Hic, is, or ille, may be used in this way before the relative, but only hic or is after it; as, Qui docet, is discit, or hic discit, but not ille discit, unless some individual is referred to.

(b.) Is before a relative or ut has sometimes the sense of tālis, such, denoting a class; as, Nique enim tu es, qui quid sis nescis. Nor are you such a person, as not to know what you are. Cic.; sometimes it has the force of idem; as, vos —is. Cic. Manil. 12.

(c.) If the noun to which is refers is to receive some additional predicate, we must use et is, atque is, isque, et is quidem, and with a negative nec is; as, Vincula vērū, et ea sempiterna, etc. Cic. Unā in domo, et ea quidem angusta, etc. Id. Adolescentes aliquot, nec ii tēni loco orti, etc. Liv. Sed is is used when the additional predicate is opposed to the preceding; as, Seruitutem in senectate probō, sed eam, sicut alia, modicam. Cic. The neuter et il, or idque, serves to introduce an addition to the preceding proposition; as, Quinquam te, Marce fili, annum jam audientem Cratippum, idque Athenis, etc.

(d.) Is is not expressed when it would be in the same oblique case as the preceding noun to which it refers; as, Pater amat liberos et tamen castigat. Multos illustrat fortuna, dum vexat.

(e.) When in English 'that' or 'those' is used instead of the repetition of the preceding substantive, is is never used in Latin, and ille only in later authors. In such cases the noun is commonly not repeated in Latin, and no pronoun is used in its place; as, Philippus hostium minus saepe vitāvit, suorum effūgere non vāluit, those of his own subjects. Curt. Sometimes the substantive is repeated; as, Judiciū civitātis cum juliiis principis certant. Vell. Sometimes a possessive adjective is used instead of the genitive depending on the omitted substantive; as, Terentiū fabūlis studiōse lēgo, Plaut. is minus delector: and sometimes instead of the genitive or a possessive adjective the name of the person itself is put in the case which the verb governs; as, Si cum Lycurgo et Dracone et Solone nostras lēges conferre volueritis. Cic.—In Cicero hic and ille, when the preceding substantive is understood, retain their demonstrative signification, and therefore do not merely supply the place of the omitted substantive; as, Nullum enim virtus aliam mercēdem dēdiderat, prater hanc, i. e. the one of which I am speaking. Cic.

REM. 27. (a.) Idem, as denoting a subject which stands in equal relations to two different predicates, often supplies the place of item or etiam, 'also,' 'at the same time,' or of tamen, 'yet' if the things are apparently inconsistent; as, Musici, qui erant quondam iidem poete. Musicians, who formerly were poets also. Cic. Euphrates et Tigris magno aquarum divortio iter percurrunt; iidem (and yet) paulatim in arctius coeunt.

(b.) Et ipse, on the other hand, denotes that the same predicate belongs to two subjects. It is rendered by 'too' or 'also'; as, Antoninus Commodus nihil paternum habuit, nisi quod contra Germanos feliciter et ipse pugnāvit, for itēn or ipse quōque. Eutr.—So, also, nec ipse is used in the sense of 'neither'; as, Primis repulsis Maharbal cum majore robore virorum missus nec ipse eruptionem cohortium sustinuit. Liv.

(c.) Idem is sometimes repeated in the sense of 'at once,' denoting the union of qualities which might be thought incompatible; as, Fuere quidam qui idem ornate idem versute dicebant. There have been some who could speak at once elegantly and artfully. Cic.

(d.) 'The same as' is variously expressed in Latin, by idem with qui, ac or atque, quam, quasi, ut or cum; as, Verrès idem est qui fuit semper, Verrès is the same as he has always been. Cic. Vita est eadem ac fuit. Liv. Disputatōnem expugnāmus iisdem fere verbis ut actum est. Cic. Eandem constitui potestatem quam si, etc. Cic. Eodem loco res est, quasi ea pecunia legata non esset. Id. Hunc ego eodem mecum patre gentium, etc. So also poetically with the dative; as Eodem aliis sopitu quiete est. Lucr. Cf. § 222, R. 7.

IPSE, INTENSIVE OR ADJUNCTIVE.

REM. 28. (a.) Ipse, when used with a substantive pronoun taken reflexively agrees either with such pronoun or with the subject of the proposition, according as either is emphatic; as, Agam per me ipse, I will do it myself. Cic. Non ego medicinā (i. e. ut alii me consolentur); me ipse consoior. Cic. Accusando eum, a cuius crudeltate vosmet ipsi armis vindicastis. Liv.—Cn. Pompeium omnibus, Lentulum mihi ipsi antepōno. Cic. Fac ut te ipsum custodias. Id. Deforme est de se ipsum predicare. Id.—But Cicero often construes ipse as the subject, even where the emphasis belongs to the object; as, Quid est negotii continere eos, quibus prehis, si te ipse contineas?

(b.) When ipse is joined with a possessive pronoun used reflexively, it usually takes the case of the subject; as, Meam ipse legem nēglo; not meam ipsius, according to § 211, R. 3, (a). So, Si ex scriptis cognosci ipsi suis potuissent. Cic. Eam fraudem vestrā ipsi virtute vitastis. Liv. But the genitive is necessary when the possessive does not refer to the subject; as, Tua ipsius causā hoc feci. And it is sometimes found where the case of the subject should be used; as, Conjecturam de tuo ipsius studio cōperts, instead of ipse.—(c.) Ipse is sometimes used as reflexive without aut; as, Omnes boni, quantum in ipsis fuit, Cæsarem occiderunt. Cic.

(d.) Ipse, with nouns denoting time or number, expresses exactness, and may be rendered, 'just,' 'precisely'; or 'very,' 'only'; as, Dyrhachio sum profectus ipso illo die, quo lex est data de nobis, on the very day. Cic. Triginta dies erant ipsi, quum has dabam literas, per quos nullas a vobis acciperem, just thirty days. Id. Et quisquam dubitabit—quum facile imperio atque exercitu socios et vectigalia conservaturus sit, qui ipso nomine ac rumore defenderit, by his very name, or, by his name only. Id.

GENERAL RELATIVES.

REM. 29. Quicumque, quisquis, and the other general relatives (see § 19, 5, R.), are, in classical prose, always connected with a verb, and form the protasis. Quicumque is commonly used as an adjective, and quisquis as a substantive; but the neuter quodcumque is used as a substantive with a following genitive; as, Quodcumque militum; and, on the other hand, quisquis is rarely an adjective; as, Quisquis erit vite color. Hor.; and even the neuter quidquid is used in the same manner; as, Quisquis homines timuli, quidquid solamen humani est. Virg. Quicumque seems sometimes even in Cicero equivalent to omnis or quicquid; as, Quæ sanari poterunt, quicumque ratione sanabo, What can be cured, I will cure by every possible means. Cic. Yet possum is rather to be supplied;—'in whatever way I can.' But in later writers quicumque is frequently used in the absolute sense for quicquid or quilibet; as, Ciceronem quicumque eorum fortiter opposuerim. Quint. Qualiscumque and quancumque are likewise used in an absolute sense by ellipsis; as, Tu non concipisces quancumque ad libertatem pervenire? At any price, be it ever so high. Sen. So quisquis is occasionally used, not as a relative, but as an indefinite pronoun.—Siquis often seems to stand as a relative, like the Greek ὅστις for ὅστις, 'whoever'; but it always contains the idea of 'perhaps'; as, Nūdo fere Alpium cacumina sunt, et si quid est pabuli, obruit nives. Lit.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

REM. 30. (a.) Aliquis and quispiam are particular and affirmative, corresponding to the English some one; as, Hereditas est pecunia, quæ morte altcujus ad quempiam pervenit jure, An inheritance is property which, at the death of some one, falls to some (other) one by law. Cic. Multi sine doctrinâ aliquid omnium generum et artium consequuntur. Id.

(b.) Aliquis is more emphatic than the indefinite pronoun quis. (See § 137, (3.)) Hence aliquis stands by itself, but quis is commonly connected with certain conjunctions or relative words, but these are sometimes separated from it by one or more words. Sometimes, however, quis is used without such conjunctions or relatives; as, Morbus aut egestas aut quid ejusmodi. Cic. Levtrâhere quid de aliquo. Id. Injuriâ cui facere. Id. So, Dixerit quis, Some one might say. But even after those conjunctions which usually require quis, aliquis is used when employed antithetically and of course emphatically; as, Timēbat Pompeius omnia, ne aliquid vos tmerētis. Cic. In English the emphasis of aliquis is sometimes expressed by 'really'; as, Sensus moriendi, si aliquis esse potest, is ad exiguum tempus dârit. Cic.—Quispiam, also, is sometimes used like quis after si, etc., and sometimes stands alone; as, Queret fortasse quispiam.

REM. 31. (a.) Quisquam, 'any one,' and ullus, 'any,' are universal. Like unquam and usquam they are used in propositions which involve a universal negative, or which express an interrogation with a negative force, or a condition (usually with si or quasi); also, after comparatives, after the adverb vix, and the preposition sine; as, Nēque ex castris Cutiline quisquam omnium discesserunt Nor had any one departed from the camp of Cutiline. Sall. Nec ullo casu potest contingere, ut ulla intermissio fiat officii. Cic. An quisquam potest sine perturbatōne mentis irasci? Id. Titrum hic tyrannus tyrannus fuit, quam quisquam superiorem. Id. Vix quidquam spei est. Sen. But after the dependent negative particles ne, nēve, and the negative interrogative particle num, quis and not quisquam is used.

(b.) But quisquam and ullus after si are often used not in a negative sense, but instead of aliquis or quis, serving only to increase the indefiniteness which would be implied in the latter pronouns; as, Aut enim nemo, quod quidem mihi credo, aut, si quisquam, ille sapiens fuit, if any man. Cic. Hence, ultimately, even without si, where the indefiniteness is to be made emphatic, quisquam, ullus, unquam and usquam were used; as, Quandū quisquam erit, qui te defendere audent, rives. Cic. Bellum maxime omnium memorabile, quæ unquam gesta sunt, scripturus sum. Tac.

(c.) Ullus is properly an adjective, but quisquam is commonly used without a noun, except it is a word denoting a person; as, Cuiquam civi, To any citizen. Cujusquam oratoris eloquentiam. Hence quisquam corresponds to the substantive nemo and ullus to the adjective nullus. Nemo is often used with other substantives denoting male persons so as to become equivalent to the adjective nullus; as, nemo pictor, nemo adolescens, and even homo nemo. Cic. Quisquam is sometimes used in a similar manner; as, quisquam homo, quisquam civis. On the other hand nullus and ullus are used as substantives instead of nemo and quisquam, especially the genitive nullius and the ablative nulli.

REM. 32. (a.) Alius, like ullus, though properly an adjective, is sometimes used like a pronoun. It is often repeated, or joined with an adverb derived from it, in the same proposition, which may be translated by two separate propositions, commencing respectively with 'one...another'; as, Aliud aliis videtur optimum, One thing seems best to one, another to another. Cic. Aliud aliunde periculum est, Danger threatens one from one source, another from another; or, Danger threatens different persons from different sources. Ter. Dionsium alter cum aliis de nobis locutum audivam. Cic.—Alter is used in the same manner when only two persons are spoken of, but there are no adverbs derived from it; as, Alter in alterum causam conferunt, They accuse each other.

(b.) Alius, repeated in different propositions, is also translated 'one...another'; as, Aliud agitur, aliud simulatur, One thing is done, another pretended. Cic. Alter loquitur, alter scribit, like alter ac or atque, He speaks otherwise than he writes. So Aliud loquitur, aliud scribit.

(c.) Uterque, 'each of two,' is always used by Cicero in the singular number, when only two individuals are spoken of. Its plural, utrique, is used only when each of two parties consists of several individuals; as, Macedones—Tyrri, utrique. But in other good prose writers the plural utrique is occasionally used in speaking of only two; as, Utrique Dionysii. Nep. Cf. § 209, R. 11, (4.)

REM. 33. (a.) Quidam differs from aliquis by implying that a person or thing, though indefinitely described, is definitely known; as, Quidam de collegis nostris, A certain one of our colleagues. Cic. Scis me quodam tempore Mithridatum venisse tecum. Id.

(b.) Quidam is sometimes used for some, as opposed to the whole, or to others; as, Excesserunt urbe quidam, alii mortem sibi consciverunt, Some departed from the city, others destroyed themselves. Liv. Hence it is used to soften an expression, where in English we say 'so to speak,' etc.; as, Mitro est quoddam bellum naturale cum corvo, A kind of natural warfare. Cic. Fuit enim illud quoddam cœcum tempus servitutis. Id. Et enim omnes artes quæ ad humanitatem pertinent, habent quoddam commune vinculum et quasi cognatione quædam inter se continentur. Id.—Tamquam is used for the same purpose, and also ut ita dicam.

REM. 34. Quivis and quilibet, 'any one,' and unusquisque, 'each,' are universal and absolute; as, Omnia sunt ejusmodi quivis ut perspicere possit, All are of such a nature that any one can perceive. Cic. Hic apud majores nostros adhibebatur peritus, nunc quilibet. Id. Natura unumquemque trahit ad descendum. A negative joined with them denies only the universality which they imply; as, Non cuivis homini contingit adire Cynthum, i. e. not to every man without distinction. Hor. Cuiquam would have made the negation universal.

REM. 35. (a.) Quisque signifies each, every one, distributively or relatively, and generally stands without a noun; as, Quod cuique obligi, id quisque leneat, Let each one keep what has fallen to each. Cic. Hence it is used particularly after relative and interrogative pronouns and adverbs; as, Scipio pollicetur sibi magnæ curæ fore, ut omnia civitatibus, quæ cûjusque fuissent, restituerentur. Cic. Ut prædict posset, quid cuique eventurum, et quo quisque fato natus esset. Id. Cur fiat quicque queris: recte omnino. Id. Quo quisque est solertior, hoc docet laboriosius. Id. Ut quisque optime dicit, ita maxime dicendi difficultatem timet. Id. And hence the expression quôtusquisque in the sense of 'how few among all.' It is also used distributively after numerals; as, Décimus quisque sorte lectus, Every tenth man. Quinto quôque anno, In every fifth year. So also after suus; as, Sui cuique libèri carissîmi: suum cuique placet. (Respecting the order of the words, cf. § 279, 14: and respecting quisque in the nominative in apposition to a noun or pronoun in the ablative absolute or in the accusative with the infinitive, see § 204, R. 10.)

(b.) Quisque with a superlative, either in the singular or the plural, denotes universality, and is generally equivalent to omnes with the positive; as, doctissimus quisque, Every learned man, i. e. all the learned; but often, also, in connection with the verb, it retains the idea of a reciprocal comparison, and is to be rendered by the superlative; as, In omni arte optimum quidque carissimum, The best is the rarest. Cic. Altissima quæque flumina minimo sono labuntur, The deepest rivers flow with the least sound. Curt. With primus, it denotes the first possible; as, Primo quôque tempore, As soon as possible. Cic.

POSSESSIVES.

REM. 36. (a.) The possessive pronouns meus, tuus, suus, noster, and vester, are joined to nouns, to indicate an action or possession of the persons denoted by their primitives; as, Tutus amor meus est tibi, My love is secure to you. Ovid. Tuam vicem dolere soleo. Cic.—These pronouns, as in English, when belonging to two substantives, are generally expressed but once, even when the substantives are of different genders; as, amor tuus ac iudicium de me.

(b.) But these pronouns are sometimes used when the persons to which they refer are the objects of an action, feeling, etc.; as, Nam neque trā negligentia, neque odio id fecit tuo, For he did it neither through neglect nor hatred of you. Ter. See § 211, R. 3.

(c.) The possessive pronouns, especially when used as reflexives, are often omitted; as, Quo rēvertar? in patriam? scil. meam, Whither shall I return? to (my) country? Ovid. Dextrā mīnēra porrexit, scil. suā. Id. But they are expressed when emphasis or contrast is intended, where in English 'own' might be added to the pronoun; as, Ego non dicam, tamen id poteritis cum animis vestris cogitare. Cic.

(d.) When besides the person of the subject, that of a remote object also occurs in the proposition, the possessive pronoun will refer to the latter; as Patris animum mihi reconciliasti, i. e. patriis mei animum rather than tui.

(e.) As reflexives, meus, etc., are translated my, thy, his, her, its, our, your, their; or my own, thy own, his own, etc.

THE REFLEXIVES SUI AND SUUS.

§ 208. REM. 37. (a.) Sui and suus properly refer to the subject of the proposition in which they stand; as, Oppidani faciunt in se ac suos foedum consciscunt, The citizens decide on a foul crime against themselves and their friends. Liv.

(b.) They continue to be used in successive clauses, if the subject remains the same; as,

Ipsē se quisque diligit, non ut aliquam a se ipse mercēdem extyat caritatis suae, sed quod per se sibi quisque carus est. Cic.

(1.) In dependent clauses, in which the subject does not remain the same, the reflexives are commonly used in references to the leading subject, when the thoughts, language, purposes, etc., of that subject are stated; as,

Ariovistus praeclāvit, non sēse Gallis, sed Gallos sibi bellum intulisse, Ariovistus declared that he had not made war upon the Gauls, but the Gauls upon him. Cæs. Hōmērū Colōphōnii cirem esse dicunt suum, The Colophonians say that Homer is their citizen. Cic. Tyrannus petiit ut se ad amicitiam tertium ascriberent. Id. But sometimes, to avoid ambiguity, the cases of is or ille are used in such clauses in references to the leading subject; as, Helvētii sēse Allobroges vi coactiāros existimābant, ut per suos fines eos ire paterentur. Cæs. Here suos refers to the subject of the dependent clause, and eos to Helvētii, the subject of the leading clause. And sometimes, even in the same dependent clause, two reflexive pronouns are used, referring to different persons; as, Scythae petebant ut regis sui filium matrimonio sibi jungeret. Curt.

(2.) If, however, the leading subject, whose thoughts, etc., are expressed, is indefinite, the reflexives relate to the subject of a dependent clause; as,

Mēdēam praeclācant (scil. hōmīnes) in fugā frātis sui membra in iis locis, quā se pārens persēquērētur, dissipāvisse. Cic. Ipsū regē trādunt opēratū his sacris se abdidiisse. Liv.

(3.) (a.) When the leading verb is in the passive voice, the reflexive often refers not to its subject, but to that which would be its subject in the active voice; as,

A Cæsare invitōr ut sim sibi lēgātus, i. e. Cæsar me invitāt, I am invited by Cæsar to become his lieutenant. Cic.

(b.) So when the subject is a thing without life, the reflexive may relate to some other word in the sentence, which denotes a thing having life; as,

Cānum tam fida custōdia quid significat aliud, nisi se ad hōmīnum commoditātes esse gēnerātus? Cic.

(4.) Instead of sui and suus, whether referring to a leading or a subordinate subject, ipse is sometimes used, to avoid ambiguity from the similarity of both numbers of sui, and also to mark more emphatically than suus, the person to whom it relates; as,

Jugurtha legatos misit, qui ipsi liberisque vitam peterent, Jugurtha sent ambassadors to ask life for himself and his children. Sall. Ea molestissime ferro homines debent, quas ipsorum culpa contracta sunt.

(5.) In the plural number, with inter, se only is used, if the person or thing referred to is in the nominative or accusative; se or ipse, if in any other case; as,

Fratres inter se quum formam, tum moribus similes, Brothers resembling each other both in person and character. Cic. Feras inter sese conciliat natura. Cic. Incidunt aliqua a doctis etiam inter ipsos mutuo reprehensa. Quint.

(6.) (a.) When reference is made not to the subject of the proposition, but to some other person or thing, hic, is, or ille, is generally used, except in the cases above specified; as,

Themistocles servum ad Xerxem misit, ut ei nuntiaret, suis verbis, adversarios ejus in fuga esse, Themistocles sent his servant to Xerxes, to inform him (Xerxes), in his (Themistocles') name, that his (Xerxes') enemies were upon the point of flight. Nep.

(b.) But when no ambiguity would arise, and especially when the verb is of the first or second person, sui and suus sometimes take the place of the demonstrative pronouns; as,

Suam rem sibi salvam sistam, I will restore his property entire to him. Tacit.

(c.) On the contrary, the demonstratives are sometimes used for the reflexives; as, Helvetii persuadent Rauracis, ut una cum iis proficiscantur, The Helvetii persuade the Rauraci to go with them. Cæs.—In some instances, a reflexive and a demonstrative are used in reference to the same person; as, Ille se gessit (scil. Ligarius) ut ei pacem esse expediret. Cic. C. Claudii orantis per sui fratris parentisque ejus menses. Liv.—Sometimes the reflexives refer to different subjects in the same sentence; as, Ariovistus respondit, neminem secum sine sua pernicie contendisse (Cæs.); where se refers to Ariovistus, and sua to neminem.

(7.) (a.) Suus often refers to a word in the predicate of a sentence, and is then usually placed after it; as, Hunc civis sui ex urbe ejicerunt, Him his fellow-citizens banished from the city. Cic. Titurius quum procul Ambiorigem, suos cohortantem, conspexisset. Cæs.

(b.) Suus, and not hujus, is used when a noun is omitted; as, Octavius quem sui (scil. amici) Cæsarem salutabant, Octavius, whom his followers saluted as Cæsar.

(c.) Suus is also commonly used when two nouns are coupled by et but not when they are connected by a conjunction; as,

Ptolemæus amicos Demetrii cum suis rebus dimisit, Ptolemy dismissed the friends of Demetrius with their effects. Just.

(8.) Suus sometimes denotes fil, favorable; as,

Sunt et sua dona parenti, There are likewise for my father suitable presents. Virg. Ut liberator ille populi Romani opprimeretur tempora sua. Liv. Alphænus iubebatur populo sane suo. Cic. Sometimes it signifies peculiar; as, Molles sua terra habitant, scil. mittunt, i. e. the frankincense for which their country was famous. Virg. Fessosque sopor suus occupat artus. Id.

NOMINATIVE.

SUBJECT-NOMINATIVE AND VERB.

§ 209. (a.) The noun or pronoun which is the subject of a finite verb is put in the nominative.

NOTE 1. (a.) A verb in any mood except the infinitive is called a finite verb. (b.) In historical writing the nominative is sometimes joined with the present infinitive instead of the imperfect indicative. Cf. R. 5.

(b.) A verb agrees with its subject-nominative, in number and person; as,

Ego lægo, I read.

Tu scribis, Thou writest.

Equus currit, The horse runs.

Nos lægitmus, We read.

Vos scribitis, You write.

Equi currunt, Horses run.

NOTE 2. The imperative singular is sometimes used in addressing several persons; as, Huc nātas adijce septem, scil. ros, Thēbaidēs. Ovid. Met. 6, 182. So Adde dēfectionē Iulīæ, scil. ros, mīlites. Liv. 26, 41.

REMARK 1. (a.) The nominatives ēgo, tu, nos, vos, are seldom expressed, the termination of the verb sufficiently marking the person; as, Cūpio, I desire; visis, thou livest; hābēmus, we have. See § 147, 3.

(b.) But when emphasis or opposition is intended, the nominatives of the first and second persons are expressed; as, Ego rēges ejeci, vos tyrannos intrōdūcitis, I banished kings, you introduce tyrants. Auct. ad Her. Nos, nos, dico aperte, consules dēsumus. Cic. Tu es patrōnus, tu pater. Ter. In indignant questions and addresses tu is expressed; as, Tu in fōrum prōdire, tu lūcem conspīcere, tu in hōrum conspectum vēire cōnāris? Auct. ad Her.

REM. 2. The nominative of the third person is often omitted:—

(1.) When it has been expressed in a preceding proposition:—

(a.) As nominative; as, Mōsa prōfluit ex monte Vōs-go, et in Oceānum inflit. i. e. Cæs.; or (b) in an oblique case; as, Cursōrem miserunt, ut id nuntiāret, scil. cursor. Nep.: or (c) in a possessive adjective; as, Et rēreor quō se Jūnōnia vertant Hospitia; haud tanto cessabit cardine rerum, scil. illa, i. e. Jūnō. Virg. Æn. I. 672.

(2.) When it is a general word for person or thing:—

Thus hōmines is often omitted before aiunt, dicunt, fērunt, etc.; as, Ut xunt As they say. Cic. Maxime admirantur eum, qui pecūniā non mēretur. Id. Sc bene est, bene habet or bene agitur, It is well; as, Si vales, bene est, ego valeo. Cic. Quum melius est, grātūlor dis. Afran. Optūme habet, Nonne can bi Se ter. Plaut. Bene habet: juncta sunt fundāmēta dēfensionis. Cic. Bene agi tui pro noxia. Plaut.

NOTE 3. This omission of the nominative is common in the clause preceding a relative; as, Qui Bāvium non ōlit, amet tua carmina, Mæri, scil. hōmo. Let him who hates not Bavius, love your verses, Mærius. Virg. Vastātur agri quod inter urbem ac Fidēnas est, scil. id spītium. Liv. Sunt quos jūrat, scil. hōmines. There are (those) whom it delights. Hor. Est qui nec veltis pōcula Musici epērit, scil. hōmo. Hor. Here sunt quos and est qui are equivalent to quidam, āliquis, or āliquis. So, Est quod gaudeas, There is (reason) w: y you should rejoice. Cic. Nēque erat cur fallere vellent. Ovid. Est ubi id vāleat. Cic. Est, quum nō est vitius, etc. Auct. ad Her. In the latter cases the adverbs are equivalent to in quo, scil. lūco, tempore.

REM. 3 (1.) The nominative is wanting before verbs denoting the state of the weather, or the operations of nature; as, Fulgurat, It lightens. Plin. Ningit, It snows. Virg. Lucescēbat, It was growing light. Liv. Jam advesperascit. Cic.

(2.) The nominative is also wanting before the third person singular of the passive of neuter verbs, and of active verbs used impersonally; as,

Fāvētur tibi a me, Thou art favored by me. Ejus brātioni vēhēmenter ab omni-bus reclāmātum est. Cic. Proinde ut bene vicitur, diu vicitur. Plaut. Ad exitum ventum est. Sen. Actum est de impērio. See § 184, 2: and cf. § 229, R. 5, (b.)

NOTE 4. A nominative, however, is expressed before the passive of some neuter verbs, which, in the active voice, are followed by an accusative; as, Pugna pugnāta est. Cic. See § 232, (1.)

(3.) It is wanting also before the neuter of the future passive participle with est; as,

Si vis me flere dolendum est primum ipsi tibi, If you wish me to weep, you yourself must first grieve. Hor. Orandum est, ut sit mens sana in corpore sano. Juv. Ad villam revertendum est. Cic.

(4.) The nominative is also wanting before the impersonal verbs miseret, pœnitet, pūdet, tædet, and piget; as,

Eos ineptiarum pœnitet, They repent of their follies. Cic. Miseret te aliorum, tui te nec miseret nec pūdet. Plaut. Me civitatis morum piget tædetque. Sall.—In such examples, the sense will sometimes permit us to supply fortuna, conditio, ménoria, etc. So in the expression, Vēnit in mentem, It came into mind as, In mentem vēnit de specūlo, scil. cōgitatio, etc. Plaut.—An infinitive or a subjunctive clause sometimes forms the subject of these verbs; as, Te id nullo modo pūduit facere, To do that by no means shamed you. Ter. Non pœnitet me, quantum profecerim. Cic.

(5.) The subject of the verb is sometimes an infinitive or a neuter participle (either alone or with other words), one or more propositions, or an adverb. (Cf. § 202, R. 2 and 3: and § 274, R. 5, (b.)) The verb is then in the third person singular; as, Vācāre culpā magnum est solātium, To be free from fault is a great consolation. Nēque est te fallere quidquam, To deceive you in any thing is not (possible.) Virg. Mentiri non est meum. Plaut. Te non istud audivisse mirum est, That you have not heard that is wonderful. Cic. Summum jus, summa injuria, factum est jam tritum sermōne proverbium. Id. Ni degeneratum in aliis tunc quoque decōri officisset. Liv. (Cf. § 274, R. 5, (b.)) Sin est ut vellis manēre illū apud te. Ter. Nec profuit Hydræ crescere per damnum, geminasque recūmēre vires. Ovid. Dic mihi, cras istud, Postūme, quando vēni? Tell me, Postumus, when does that to-morrow come? Mart. Pārūne campis atque Neptūno sup̄er fāsūm est Lātini sanguinis? Hor.

(a.) This construction is especially common with impersonal verbs; as, Orātorem irasci non dēbet, That an orator should be angry, is not becoming. Cic. Hoc fieri et oportet et opus est. Id. Me pēdibus delectat claudere verba, Hor. Intērest omnium recte facere. Cic. Cāsu accidit, ut, id quod Rōmæ audiērat primus nuntiāret. Id. Sometimes a neuter pronoun is interposed between a proposition and its verb; as, Impūne facere quæ libet, id est regem esse. Sall. Cf. § 206, (13.), (a.)

(6.) The nominative is also wanting before pōtest, cœpit or cœptum est, incēpit, dēsinit, dēbet, sōlet, and vidētur, when followed by the infinitive of an impersonal verb; as,

Pigēre eum facti caput, It began to repent him (i. e. he began to repent) of his conduct. Just. Sipientia est una, quā praeceptrice, in tranquillitate vivi potest. Cic. Tedēre solēt āvaros impendūt. Quint.

REM. 4. The verb is sometimes omitted; as,

Di meliōra piis, scil. dent or vētūt, May the gods grant better things to the pious. Virg. Vērūm hāc hactenus, scil. diximus. Cic. Pertineo is understood in such expressions as nihil ad me, nihil ad rem; Quid hoc ad Epicūrum? What does this concern Epicurus? Quorsus hāc? i. e. quorsus hāc pertinet? Of what use is that for?—Pārābo is to be supplied, in Quo mihi hanc rem? Of what use is this to me? and, Unde mihi aliquam rem? Whence am I to get any thing? as, Quo mihi bibliothēcas? Sen. Unde mihi lēptem? Hor. A tense of fācio is often to be supplied, as in Recte ille, melius hi; Bene Chrýsippus, quā docet. Cic. Nihil per vim unquam Clōdius, omnia per vim Milo. Id. Quae quam dixeret Cotta finem. Id. So, also in the phrases nihil aliud quam; quid aliud quam; nihil praequam, which signify 'merely'; as, Tisaphernes nihil aliud quam bellum compārāvīt. Nep. This verb is in like manner omitted with nihil amplius quam; nihil minus quam, and in the phrase si nihil aliud.—Ait or inquit is sometimes omitted in introducing the direct words of another, and more frequently in relating a connected conversation; as, Tum ille; hic ego; huic ego. Dicit is sometimes omitted in quoting a person's words; as, Scite Chrýsippus: ut gladii causā vaginam, sic praefer mundum cētera omnia dīōrum causā esse gēnērāta. Cic.—After per in adjurations ōro, rōgo or prēcor is often omitted; as, Per ego vos deos patrios, vindicāte ab ultimo dedēcōre nōmen gentemque Persarūm; i. e. per deos patrios vos ōro, vindicāte. Curt. This omission is most common with the copula sum; as, Nūm Polydorus ego, scil. sum. For I am Polydorus. Virg. And so est and sunt are often omitted with predicate adjectives, and especially in proverbial phrases; as, Quot hōmīnes tot sententiāe. Ter. Omnia praeclāra rara, scil. sunt. Cic. So also est and sunt are often omitted in the compound tenses of the passive voice; as, Agro multātī, scil. sunt. Liv. Cf. § 270, R. 3.

NOTE 5. In Latin, as in English, a verb is often joined to one of two connected nominatives and understood with the other, and that even when the persons are different; as, magis ego te amo, quam tu me, scil. amas. After a negative verb a corresponding positive verb is sometimes to be supplied; as, after nēgo, dico, after veto, jubeo, and in this case et takes the signification of sed. Cf. § 323, 1, (2.), (b.)

NOTE 6. Sometimes, when the verb of an appended proposition is omitted, its subject is attracted to the case of a noun in the leading proposition with which is joined a participle of the omitted verb; as, Hannibal Minūctum, magistrum equitum, pari ac dictatōrem dōlo prōductum in praeliū, fugāvit, i. e. pari ac dictatōr dōlo prōductus fuērat. Nep. Hann. 5. So Liv. 34, 32.

REM. 5. In the historic style the nominative is sometimes found with the present infinitive; as, Intērīm quōtidie Cēsar Aduos frūmentum flāgtāre, Meanwhile Cēsar was daily demanding corn of the Adui. Cæs. Nos pācidi trēpidāre mētū. Virg. Id horrendum ferri. Id.

NOTE 7. The infinitive in this construction is called the historical infinitive, and is used instead of the imperfect indicative to express in a lively manner a continued or repeated action or condition.

REM. 6. The relative qui may refer to an antecedent either of the first, second, or third person; and its verb takes the person of the antecedent; as, Egō qui lēgo, I who read. Tu qui scribis, Thou who writest. Equus qui currit, The horse which runs. Vos qui quærtis, You who ask.

REM. 7. (a.). Verbs in the first person plural, and the second person singular, are sometimes used to express general truths; as, Quam multa factumus causâ amicorum! How many things we do (i. e. men do) for the sake of friends! Cic. Si vis me flere, dolendum est primum ipsi tibi, Whoever wishes me, etc. Hor.

(b.) Nos is often used for ego, and noster for meus; and even when the pronoun is not expressed, the verb is frequently put in the first person plural instead of the first person singular. The genitive nostrî is used for mei, but nostrum always expresses a real plurality.

REM. 8. The accusative is sometimes used for the nominative by attraction. See § 206, (b.) (b.)

REM. 9. The verb sometimes agrees with the predicate-nominative, especially if it precedes the verb; as, Amantium iræ amoris integratio est, The quarrels of lovers are a renewal of love. Ter. Lôca, quæ proxima Carthaginem, Numidia appellatur. Sall. And sometimes it agrees with the nearest subject of a subordinate sentence; as, Sed et cæcibræ semper omnia, quam decus atque pudicitia fuit. Sall. Cat. 25.

REM. 10. In cases of apposition, the verb commonly agrees with the noun which is to be explained; as, Tulliolæ, deliciæ nostræ, flagitat. Cic. But sometimes the verb agrees, not with the principal nominative, but with a nearer noun in apposition to it; as, Tungri, civitas Gallie, fontem habet insigne, The Tungri, a state of Gaul, has a remarkable fountain. Plin. Corioli oppidum captum (est). Liv.

REM. 11. A collective noun has sometimes, especially in poetry, a plural verb; as, Pars epulis onerant mensas, Part load the tables with food. Virg. Turba ruunt. Ovid. Atria turba tenent; veniunt læve vulgus euntque. Id.

(1.) (a.) A plural verb, joined to a collective noun, usually expresses the action, etc., of the individuals which that noun denotes. In Cicero, Sallust, and Cæsar, this construction scarcely occurs in simple sentences; but it is often used, when the subject of the verb is expressed not in its own, but in a preceding clause; as, Hoc idem generi humano evenit, quod in terrâ collocati sint, because they (scil. homines) live on earth. Cic. In Livy it occurs more frequently; as, Locros omnis multitudo abeunt.

(b.) Abstract nouns are sometimes used collectively, instead of their concrete; as, nobilitas for nobiles, jumentus for jūvenes, vicinia for vicini, servitium for servi, læcis armatura for læciter armati, etc. (c.) Miles, eques, pedites, and similar words are sometimes used collectively for the soldiery, the cavalry, etc.

(2.) When two or more clauses have the same collective noun as their subject, the verb is frequently singular in the former, and plural in the latter; as, Juri ne nocte quidem turba ex eo loco dilabebatur, refracturosque carcere minabantur. Liv. Genus eadem, quæ te crudeli Daunia bello insequitur, nos si pellant, nihil abfore credunt. Virg.

(3.) Tantum, followed by a genitive plural, has sometimes a plural verb, like a collective noun; as, Quid huc tantum hominum incidunt? Why are so many men coming hither? Plaut.

(4.) A plural verb is sometimes used, though not by Cicero, after uterque and quisque, pars...pars, alius...alius, and alter...alterum, on account of the idea of plurality which they involve; as, Uterque eorum ex castris exercitum educunt. Each of them leads his army from the camp. Cæs. Intinus quisque libertorum vincti abreptique (sunt.) Tac. Alius alium, ut prælium incipiant, circumspectant. Liv. Cf. § 207, R. 32, (c.)

NOTE 8. This construction may be explained by passages like the following, in which the plural is placed first, and then the singular, denoting its parts; Ceteri, suo quisque tempore, adierunt. Liv. Decemviri perturbati alius in aliam partem castrorum discurrunt. Id. See § 204, R. 10.

REM. 12. Two or more nominatives singular, not in apposition, generally have a plural verb; as, Fūrō irīque mentem præcipit, Fury and rage hurry (n (my) mind. Virg. Dum cetas, mētus, māgiſter, prohibebant. Ter.

(1.) If the predicate belongs to the several nominatives jointly, the verb is always plural; as, Graminātice quondam ac mūſice junctæ fuerunt. Quint.

(2.) A verb in the singular is often used after several nominatives singular, especially if they denote things without life; as,

Mens enim, et ratio et conſilium in ſenibus est. Cic. Bénéficientia, libértilitas, bōntas, juſtitia funditus tollitur. Id.

NOTE 9. This construction is most common when the several nominatives, as in the preceding examples, constitute, as it were, but one idea. So also the compound subject Senatus populusque Rōmānus has always a predicate in the singular. The same construction sometimes, especially in the poets, occurs with names of persons; as, Gorgias, Thrāsnyāchus, Prōtāgoras, Prōdicus, Hippon in honore fuit. Cic. Quin et Prōmētheus et Pēlōpis pārens dulci laborum deceptus. ſōno. Hor. When the nominatives denote both persons and things, the verb is commonly plural; as, Optio conſulū et Pompeius obſunt. Liv.

(3.) When one of the nouns is plural, the verb is generally so; but sometimes it is singular, when the plural noun does not immediately precede it; as, Dii te pēnates patrique, et patris imāgē, et domus reginā, et in domo regale ſolium, et nomen Tarquiniū creat vocatue regem. Liv.

(4.) When each of the nominatives is preceded by et or tum, the verb agrees with the last; as, Hoc et ratio doctis, et neceſſitas barbaris, et mos gentibus, et fēris natura ipſa præſcripſit, This, reason has dictated to the learned, and necessity to barbarians, and custom to nations, and nature itself to wild beasts. Cic. Et ego, et Cicero meus flagitabit. Id. Tum ætas viresque, tum ætati gloria animū ſtimulabat. Liv. So when the subject consists of two infinitives; as, Et facere, et pati fortia, Rōmānum est. Cic. Unus et alter always takes a singular verb; as, Dicit unus et alter breviter. Cic. Unus et alter assultur panis. Hor.

(5.) When the nominatives are connected by aut, sometimes the plural, but commonly the singular, is used; as,

Si Socrātes aut Antisthēnes diceret, If Socrates or Antisthenes should say. Cic. Ut quosque ſtūdium privātū aut grātia occupāverunt. Liv.

(a.) The plural is necessary with disjunctives, if the subject includes the first or second person; as, Quod in Dēcemviris nēque ego nēque Cæſar hābiti es-sinus. Cic.—(b.) With aut...aut and nec...nec the singular is preferred, but with seu...seu and tam...quam the verb is in the plural.

(6.) A nominative singular, joined to an ablative by the preposition cum sometimes has a singular but more frequently a plural verb; as, Dōmitius cum Meſſallā certus eſſe vidēbatur. Cic. Bocchus, cum peditibus, poſtrēmum Rōmānōrum aciem invādunt, Bocchus, with his foot-soldiers, attacks the rear of the Roman army. Sall. Ipsē dux, cum aliquot principibus, capiuntur. Liv.

(7.) If the nominatives are of different persons, the verb is of the first person rather than the second or third, and of the second rather than the third; as,

Si tu et Tullia vāletis, ego et Cicero vālemus, If you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well. Cic. Ille nēque ego nēque tu fecimus. Ter. Ego populusque Rōmānus bellum iūdicō facioque. Liv.

(a.) Yet sometimes the verb agrees in number and person with the nearest nominative, and is understood with the other; as, Vos ipſi et ſenatus frēquens reſtitit. This is always the case when the action of the verb is qualified with reference to each nominative separately; as, Ego minere tu ſollertius cūm.

REM. 13. The interjections en, ecce, and O, are sometimes followed by the nominative; as, En Priamus! Lo Priam! Virg. En ego, vester Ascœnius. Id. Ecce hœc Catilius! Cic. Ecce tuæ littæ. Id. O vir fortis atque amicus! Ter.

PREDICATE NOMINATIVE.

§ 210. A noun in the predicate, after a verb neuter or passive, is put in the same case as the subject, when it denotes the same person or thing; as,

(a.) When the subject is in the nominative; Ira furor brevis est, Anger is a short madness. Hor. Ego vocor Lyconides, I am called Lyconides. Plaut. Ego incedo regina, I walk a queen. Virg. Caius et Lucius fratres fuerunt. Cic.—So (b.) when the subject is in the accusative with the infinitive; Judicem me esse volo. Cic.

(c.) Sometimes also a dative, denoting the same object, both precedes and follows a verb neuter or passive. See § 227, N.—And (d.) a predicate ablative sometimes follows passive participles of choosing, naming, etc.; as, Consultibus certioribus factis. Liv. See § 257, R. 11.

(e.) If the predicate noun has a form of the same gender as the subject, it takes that form; as, Licentia corruptrix est morum. Cf. § 204, R. 2.—(f.) But if the subject is neuter, the noun of the predicate, if it has both a masculine and a feminine form, takes the former; as, Tempus ritæ magister est.

(g.) An infinitive may supply the place of a predicate nominative. See § 269, R. 4.

REMARK 1. (a.) Adjectives, adjective pronouns, and participles, standing in the predicate, after verbs neuter or passive, and relating to the subject, agree with it in gender, number, and case.

(b.) When the subject consists of two or more nouns, the gender and number of such predicate adjectives are determined by § 205, R. 2.

REM. 2. (a.) The noun in the predicate sometimes differs in gender and number from the subject; as, Sanguis erant lacrimæ, Her tears were blood. Ovid. Captivi militum præda fuerunt. Liv.

(b.) So when a subject in the singular is followed by an ablative with cum, the predicate is plural; as, Exsules esse jubet L. Tarquinius cum conjuge et liberis. Liv.

REM. 3. The verbs which most frequently have a noun, etc., in the predicate agreeing in case, etc., with their subject, are:—

(1.) The copula sum; as, Ego Joris sum filius. Plaut. Disce esse pater. Ter. The predicate with sum may be an adverb of place, manner, etc.; as Quod est longe alter. Cic. Rectissime sunt apud te omnia, Every thing with you is in a very good condition. Id.; or a noun in an oblique case; as, Naves in ætate sunt. Ovid. Sunt nobis multa poma. Virg.

(2.) Certain neuter verbs denoting existence, position, motion, etc.; as, vivo, exsisto, appareo, cado, eo, exado, fugio, incedo, jaceo, nuñeo, sêdeo, sto, vado, etc. Thus, Rex circumbat pedes, The king went round on foot. Plin. Quos judicabat non posse oratores evadere. Cic. Ego huic cause patrinus exstiti. Cic. Qui sit, ut nemo contentus vivat!

(3.) The passive of verbs denoting,

(a.) To name or call; as, appellor, dicor, nominor, nuncior, perhibeor, salutor, scribor, inscribor, vocor. Thus, Cognomine Justus est appellatus, He was called by the surname Just. Nep. Aristeus olim dicitur inventor. Cic.

(c.) To choose, render, appoint, or constitute; as, constituor, cisor, declinor, designor, eligor, fio, reditor, renuncior. Thus, Dux a Romanis electus est Q. Fabius. Postquam ephēbus factus est. Nep. Certior factus sum.

(c.) To esteem or reckon; as, censeor, cognoscor, crēdor, dēprēhendor existimor, dācor, fēror, hābeor, iudicor, mēmōror, mīnūror, pūtor, rēpēror, videor. Thus, Crēdēbar sanguinis auctor ēgo. Ovid. Mālim vidēri timidus quam pārūm prūdēns. Cic.

NOTE 1. With several passives of the last class, when followed by a predicate-nominative, etc., an infinitive of sum is expressed or understood; as, Ainens mihi fuisse videor, I think I was beside myself. Cic. But the dative of the first person is sometimes omitted after videor; as, Satis dōcuisse videor. Id.—Atikus prūdēns esse putābātur. Id. So with dicor (to be said), and perhibeor; as, Vērus patriæ dicēris esse pater. Mart. Hoc ne locūtus sine mercede existimer. Phæc.

NOTE 2. Audīo is sometimes used by the poets like appellor; as, Tu rexque paterque audisti cōrum. Hor.

REM. 4. A predicate-nominative is used after many other verbs to denote a purpose, time, or circumstance of the action; as, Cōmes uulktus Eolides, Eolides was added as a companion. Virg. Lipus obambulat nocturnus. Id. Apparet liquido sublimis in æthère Nixus. Id. So with an active verb; Audiri hoc puer. Cic. Sipiens nil j'acit invitus. Id. Rempublicam dēfendi adolescens. Id. Cf. § 204, R. 1.

NOTE 3. Instead of the predicate-nominative, a dative of the end or purpose sometimes occurs (see § 227); sometimes an ablative with pro; as, audācia pro mūro est; and sometimes the ablatives lōco or in nūmēro with a genitive, as, ille est mihi parentis lōco; in hostium nūmēro hābētur.

REM. 5. The noun ōpus, signifying 'need,' is often used as a predicate after sum. It is, in such cases, translated by the adjectives needful, necessary, etc.; as, Dux nōbis et auctor ōpus est. Cic. Multi ōpus sunt dōves. Varr. (Dixit) aurum et ancillas ōpus esse. Ter. Usus also is occasionally so construed.

REM. 6. When the pronoun, which is the subject of an infinitive, is omitted, the case of the predicate is sometimes, in the poets, attracted into that of the subject of the verb on which the infinitive depends; as, Uxor iuricti Jōvis esse necis, i. e. te esse uxorē. Hor. Rētulit Ajax esse Jōvis pronēpos. Ovid.

GENITIVE.

GENITIVE AFTER NOUNS.

§ 211. A noun which limits the meaning of another noun, denoting a different person or thing, is put in the genitive; as,

Amor glōrie, Love of glory; Arma Achillis, The arms of Achilles; Pāter patriæ, The father of the country; Vitium iræ, The vice of anger; Nenōrum custos, The guardian of the groves; Amor hābēndi, Love of possessing.

NOTE 1. In the first example, amor denotes love in general; glōrie limits the affection to the particular object, glory. Such universally is the effect of the genitive, depending upon a noun. Hence the limitation of a noun by a genitive resembles that which is effected by an adjective. In each the noun limited constitutes with its limitation only a single idea.

REMARK 1. The genitive denotes various relations, the most common of which are those of Source; as, Radii solis, The rays of the sun;—Cause; as, Dolor podagrie, The pain of the gout;—Effect; as, Artifex mundi, The Creator of the world;—Connection; as, Pāter consulis, The father of the consul;—Possession; as, Dōmus Cæsaris, The house of Cæsar;—Object; as, Cōptatio alicujus rei, A thought of something;—Purpose; as, Apparatus triumphi, Preparation for a triumph;—A whole; as, Partes hominum, A part of men; this is called the partitive genitive;—Character or Quality; as, Adolescens summæ audaciæ, A youth of the greatest boldness;—Material or Component Parts; as, Montes auri, Mountains of gold; Acerrus scutôrum, A heap of shields;—Time; as, Frumentum dierum decem, Corn for ten days Sall.

REM. 2. The genitive is called subjective or active, when it denotes either that to which a thing belongs, or the subject of the action, feeling, etc., implied in the noun which it limits. It is called objective or passive, when it denotes the object affected by such action, or towards which such feeling is directed; as,

Subjective.

Facta virôrum, Deeds of men.
Dolor animi, Grief of mind.
Junonis ira, The anger of Juno.

Objective.

Odium vitii, Hatred of vice.
Amor virtutis, Love of virtue.
Desiderium otii, Desire of leisure.

(a.) Whether a genitive is subjective or objective is to be determined by the meaning of the words, and by their connector. Thus, prœvidentia Dei signifies God's providence, or that exercised by him. timor Dei, the fear of God, or that exercised towards him. The same or similar words, in different connections, may express both significations. Thus, metus hostium, fear of the enemy, may mean, either the fear felt by the enemy, or that felt by their opponents. So vulnus Ulixis (Virg. Æn. 2, 436.) denotes the wound which Ulysses had given; vulnus Æneæ, (Id. Æn. 12, 323.) that which Æneas had received.

(b.) The relation expressed by the English possessive case is subjective, while that denoted by of with its case is either subjective or objective.

(c.) The objective genitive is of very extensive use in Latin in the limitation of verbal nouns and adjectives, whatever may be the construction of the verbs from which such nouns and adjectives are derived, whether they take an accusative or some other case or even a preposition.

(d.) When ambiguity would arise from the use of the objective genitive, a preposition with an accusative or ablative is commonly used; as, Amor in rempublicam, for reipublicæ, Love to the state. Cic. Odium erga Rômânos, for Rômânorum. Nep. Cura de salute patriæ, for salutis. Cic. Prædator ex sociis, for sociorum. Sall. Sometimes both constructions are combined; as, Révêrentia adversus homines et optimi cuiusque et reliquorum. Cic. Off. 1, 28.

NOTE. A limiting genitive is sometimes used instead of a noun in apposition, especially with vox, nomen, verbum, etc.; as, vox voluptâtis, the word pleasure; nomen amicitia, the word amicitia; dômini appellatio. This is usual when the genus is defined by the species; as, arbor ficti, a fig-tree; flos violæ, a violet; virtus continentia, the virtue of abstinence; and in geographical names; as, opptidum Antiôchiæ. Cf. § 204, R. 6.—Cicero frequently uses a genitive in this manner with genus and causa; as, Unum genus est eorum, qui, etc. Dux sunt causas, una pudoris, altera sceleris.—So, also, the genitive of gerunds; as, Triste est nomen ipsum cærendi, The very word to want is sad. Cic.

REM. 3. (a.) A substantive pronoun in the genitive, limiting the meaning of a noun, is commonly objective; as, Cura mei, Care for me. Ovid. Pars tui, Part of thee. Id. Vestri curam agite. Curt. This genitive is used especially with verbal substantives in or and io; as, Accusator mei. Cic. Nimia æstimatio sui. Id. Rationem et sui et aliorum habere. Id.

(b.) Instead of the subjective or possessive genitive of a substantive pronoun, the corresponding adjective pronoun is commonly used; as,

Liber meus, not liber mei, my book. Cura mea, My care, i. e. the care exercised by me. Cic. Tuas liberas exspecto. Id. Yet the subjective genitive of a substantive pronoun sometimes occurs; as, Tui unius studio, By the zeal of yourself alone. Cic.

(c) And not unfrequently, also, an adjective pronoun occurs instead of the objective genitive; as, Mea injuria, Injury to me. Sall. So, Invidia tua, Envy of thee. Fiducia tua, Confidence in thee. Plaut. Spes mea, The hope placed in me. With causâ the adjective pronoun, and never the genitive, is used as, Meâ causâ, For my sake. Plaut.

REM. 4. (a.) Instead, also, of the subjective genitive of a noun, a possessive adjective is often used; as, Causa régia, for causa régis. Cic. Hérilis filius, for héri filius. Id. Evandrius ensis, for Evandri. Virg. Herculeus labor, for Her cûlis. Hor. Civilis furor, for civium. Hor. So, also, for the objective genitive Métus hostilis, Fear of the enemy. Sall.

(b.) The genitive of the person implied in the adjective pronoun or possessive adjective, or an adjective agreeing with such genitive, is sometimes added as an apposition; as, Vestrâ ipsorum causâ hoc fêci. In the poets and later prose writers a participle also is found agreeing with such implied genitive; as, Meâ scripta vulgo recitare timentis. Hor. Cf. § 204, R. 4, and § 205, R. 13.

REM. 5. In the predicate after sum, and sometimes after other verbs, the dative is used like the objective genitive; as,

Idem amor exitium pécóri (est), pécôrisque mágistro. Virg. Vitis ut arbóribus dēcóri est, ut vitibus úva—Tu dēcus omne tuis. Virg. In this passage the dative dēcóri and the nominative dēcus are used with no difference of meaning. Cf. § 227, R. 4. Auctor fui sēnátui. Cic. Muræna légatus Lúculo fuit. Id. Erit ille mihi semper deus. Virg. Huic causæ patrónus exstíti. Cic. Huic ég me bello dūcem prófiteor. Id. Se tertium (esse) cui fátum fóret urbis pótri. Id.—Cum P. Africáno sēnátus égit, ut légatus frátri próficiscerétur. Id. Cæsar tégumenta gáleis milites ex viminibus facere jubet. Cæs. Trinóbantibus Cæsar impérat—frámentum exercitui. Id. Quod néque insidiæ consúli procédábant. Sall. Quem exitum tantis mális spérarent? Id. Sanctus vir et ex sententia ambobus, scil. qui fuit. Id. See § 227, R. 4.

NOTE. The dative in the preceding examples has been thought by some grammarians to depend on the nouns connected with it; as, exitum, dēcus, auctor, légatus, deus, patrónus, etc.; by others it has been held to depend on these nouns in connection with the verbs, and not upon either separately; but the better opinion seems to be that, which makes such datives grammatically dependent upon the verbs only, though logically connected also with the nouns.

(1.) Instead, also, of the possessive genitive, a dative of the person may follow a verb, when its act has relation to the body or possessions of such person; as,

Sise omnes flentes Cæsári ad pēdes prójēcerunt, They all, weeping, cast themselves at the feet of Cæsar. Cæs. Cui corpus porrigitur, For whom the body, i. e. whose body, is extended. Virg. Tum vëro exarsit jüveni dólór ossibus ingens. Id. Transfigitur scútum Pulfióni. Cæs.

REM. 6. When the limiting noun denotes a property, character, or quality, it has an adjective agreeing with it, and is put either in the genitive or the ablative; as,

Vir exempli recti, A man of correct example. Liv. Adolescens summe audáciæ, A youth of the greatest boldness. Sall. Fossa pēdum viginti, A ditch of twenty feet, (i. e. in width). Cæs. Hamilcar sēcum duxit filiúm Hannibálem annórum novem. Nep. Athēnienses dēligunt Périclem, spectátæ virtútis vírum. Just. Quinquáginta annórum vrpérium. Id. Iter unius diæi. Cic. Pulchrítudine eximíâ fémína, A woman of exquisite beauty. Cic. Maximo nátu filius, The eldest son. Nep. L. Cúllina fuit magnâ ví et ántmí et corpóris, sed ingénic málo právóque. Sall. Spélunca infínitâ altitúdine. Cic.—Sometimes both constructions occur in the same proposition; as, Lentílum nostrum, eximíâ spe sun næ virtútis ádlescentem. Cic.

(1.) A genitive sometimes supplies the place of the adjective; and the noun denoting the property, etc., is then always put in the ablative; as, Est bos cervi figurâ,...of the form of a stag. Cæs. Uti specie et colore tauri. Id. Fructus palni altitudine. Plin. Clavi digiti pollicis crassitudine. Cæs.

(2.) All the qualities and attributes of persons and things, whether inherent or accidental, may be thus expressed by the genitive and ablative of quality, provided the substantives are immediately connected; as, fossa quindécim pedum; homo antiquâ virtute. It hence follows that such genitives and ablatives, when used to express duration of time or extent of space, are distinguished from the cases in which the accusative is required, since the latter case always follows adjectives or verbs; as, fossa quindécim pedes lata; puer decem annos natus. Cf. § 236.

(3.) Whether the genitive or the ablative of quality is preferable in particular cases, can frequently be determined only by reference to classical authority; but, in general, the genitive is used more frequently to express inherent qualities than such as are merely accidental, while the ablative is used indifferently for either purpose. In speaking of transitory qualities or conditions the ablative is always used; as, Magno timore sum, I am in great fear. Cic. Bono animo sum. Id. Quanto fuërim dolore meministi. Id. Maximo honore Servius Tullius erat. Liv. With plural substantives the genitive is rare; while in expressions of measure it is used rather than the ablative.

(4.) An accusative instead of a genitive of quality is used with seculus (sex), genus and pondo; as, Liberorum capitum virile seculus ad decem millia capti, i. e. of the male sex, instead of seculis virilis. Liv. So genus, when joined with a pronoun, as hoc, id, illud, quod, or with omne, is used for hujus, ejus, omnia, etc., generis; as, Orationes aut aliquid id genus scribere,—of that kind. Cic. Concedere nugas hoc genus. Hor. So pondo is joined as an indeclinable word to the accusatives libram and libras; as, Dictator coronam auream libram pondo in Capitolio Jovi donum posuit,...a pound in weight. Liv. Cf. § 236, R. 7.

(5.) The genitive modi with an adjective pronoun supplies the place of a pronoun of quality; as, cujusmodi libri, the same as quales libri, what kind of books; hujusmodi libri, i. e. tales libri, such books. So, also, generis is used, but less frequently.

(6.) With the genitive of measure are often connected such ablatives as longitudine, latitudine, etc., or in longitudinem, etc.; as, fossa decem pedum latitudine; but the genitive does not depend on these words.

(7.) Sum may be followed by either the genitive or the ablative of quality with an ellipsis of the word limited, which, with the genitive, is homo, res, negotium, proprium or proprius, etc., and with the ablative, præditus, instructus, ornatus, etc. Cf. Rem. 8, and §§ 244, and 249, I..

REM. 7. (1.) The limited noun is sometimes omitted; as, O miseræ sortis! scil. hominis; O (men) of wretched fortune! Lucan. Ad Diæne, scil. ædem. Ter. Hæc tibi Andrômachæ, scil. uxor. Virg. Suspicionis vitandæ, scil. causâ. Tac. So filius or filia; as, Hannibal Gisgonis.

(2.) The omitted noun may sometimes be supplied from the preceding words; as, Cujum pécus? an Mælibæi? Non; verum Ægônis, scil. pécus. Virg. An adjective is often expressed referring to the noun omitted; as, Nullam virtutem illam mercèdem desiderat, præter hanc (scil. mercèdem) laudis. Cic.

REM. 8. The limited noun is often wanting in the predicate of a sentence after sum. This usually happens,

(1.) When it has been previously expressed; as,

Hæc domus est Cæsaris, This house is Cæsar's. Nunc eni aures tam sæpe eductum esse putans Nymphæ. Ovid. Naves onerariæ, quàm minor nulla erat dum multum amphorum, i. e. quarum minor nulla erat quam i avis duum, etc. Cic.

(2.) When it is a general word denoting a person, an animal, etc. as,

Thūgūdes, qui ejusdem ætātis fuit, scil. hōmo, Thucydides, who was of the same age. Nep. Mulum ei detraxit, quod alienæ erat civitātis, scil. hōmo or civis Id. Primum stipendium mēruit annōrum decem septemque, scil. adōlescens. Id. Summi ut sint laboris efficiunt, scil. animālia. Cæs. (Claudius) sonni brevissimū erat. Suet. Mirā sum ālacritāte. Cic. Vulgus ingēnio mōbili erat. Sall. Nom est jūris sui, He is not his own master. Lucan. Pōtestātis suæ esse. Liv. Suārumque rerū erant. Id. Cf. Rem. 6, (7.)

(3.) When it is a general word denoting thing, for which, in English, the words part, property, duty, office, business, characteristic, etc. are commonly supplied; as,

Tēmēritas est florētis ætātis, prūdētia sēnectātis, Rashness is (the characteristic) of youth, prudence of old age. Cic. Est hoc Gallicæ consuetudinis. Cæs. So, stultitiæ est; est lētātis, etc., which are equivalent to stultitia est, lētitas est. Omnia hostium erant. A paucis emi, quod multorum esset. Sall.

(a.) This happens especially when the subject of the verb is an infinitive, or an entire clause, in which case, instead of the genitive of the personal pronouns, mei, tui, etc., the neuters of the possessives, meum, tuum, etc., are used; as, Adōlescentis est majores natū rēvēreri, It is (the duty) of a youth to reverence the aged. Ovid. Cūjusvis hōminis est errāre, nullius nisi insipientis in errōre persēvērāre. Cic. Pauperis est nūmērāre pēcus. Ovid. So especially mōris est; as, Nēgavit mōris esse Græcorū, ut in convivio virōrum accubērent mūliēres, the same as mōrem esse Græcorū. Cic. Nihil tam æquandæ libertātis esse. Liv. So when the verb is omitted; Tāmen officiū durū, exorāre patrem, scil. esse. Suet. Non est mendiri meum. Ter. Tuum est, M. Cato, vidēre quid agātur.

(b.) Instead of the genitive of a substantive, also, the neuter of a possessive adjective derived from it is sometimes used; as, Hūmānum est errāre, To err is human. Ter. Et facere et pati fortia Rōmānum est. Liv.

(4.) The same construction sometimes occurs after facio, and some other verbs mentioned in § 230, esse being understood; as, Asia Rōmānorum facta est, Asia became (a possession) of the Romans. Just. Agrum suæ ditōnis fēcisse. Liv.

(5.) The limited noun is sometimes wanting, when it is a general word, though not in the predicate after sum; as, Magni formica laboris, scil. animal. The ant (an animal) of great labor. Hor. So Ei vēnūt in mentem pōtestātis tuæ scil. mēmōria, or the like. Cic.

NOTE. When the noun which is wanting denotes a thing, grammarians sometimes supply nēgotium, officiū, mānus, opus, res, causa, etc. It is an instance of a construction common in Latin, to omit a noun when a general idea is intended. See § 205 Rem. 7, (2.)

REM. 9. The limiting noun also is sometimes omitted; as,

Tria millia, scil. passuum. In most cases of this kind, an adjective, adverbial pronoun, or participle, is expressed in the genitive.

REM. 10. Two genitives sometimes limit the same noun, one of which is commonly subjective, and the other objective; as, Agamemnonis belli glōria, Agamemnon's glory in war. Nep. Illius ulmāis trātis provincie. Cic. Eōrum diērum consuetudinē Itinēris nostri exercitūs perspectā. Cæs. Orbitas reipūblicæ tālium virōrum. Cic. Pro veltēribus Helvētiōrum injūris pōpuli Rōmāni. Cæs.

REM. 11. Opus and usus are rarely limited by a genitive or accusative, but generally by an ablative, of the thing needed; as, Argenti opus fuit, There was need of money. Liv. Ad consilium pensandum temporis opus esse. Id. Procemii non semper usus est. Quint. Si quo opus abrum usus est. Liv. Puero opus est cibum. Plaut. Unus est hūmānem astūtum. Id. See § 248.

— REM. 12 The relation denoted by the genitive in Latin, is generally expressed, in English, by of, or by the possessive case. Cf. R. 2, (b.) The objective genitive may often be rendered by some other preposition; as,

Rēmēdium dōlōris, A remedy for pain. Injūria patris, Injury to a father. Descensus Averni, The descent to Avernus. Ira belli, Anger on account of the war. Pōtestas rei, Power in or over a thing.

NOTE. Certain limitations of nouns are made by the accusative with a preposition, and by the ablative, either with or without a preposition. Cf. § 202, 6, I. and II.

GENITIVE AFTER PARTITIVES.

§ 212. Nouns, adjectives, adjective pronouns, and adverbs, denoting a part, are followed by a genitive denoting the whole; as,

Pars civitātis, A part of the state. Nulla sōrōrum, No one of the sisters. Aliquis philosophōrum, Some one of the philosophers. Quis mortālium? Who of mortals? Māior iuvenum, The elder of the youths. Doctissimus Rōmānōrum, The most learned of the Romans. Multum pecūniæ, Much (of) money. Sitis eloquentiæ, Enough of eloquence. Ubinam gentium sumus? Where on earth are we?

NOTE. The genitive thus governed denotes either a number, of which the partitive designates one or more individuals; or a whole, of which the partitive designates a portion. In the latter sense, the genitive of common and abstract nouns commonly follows either the neuter of adjectives and adjective pronouns, or adverbs; and that of material nouns depends on substantives signifying quantity, weight or measure; as, mēdium tritici, a bushel of wheat; libra farris; jāgērū agrī; magna vis auri.

REMARK 1. Nouns denoting a part are pars, nemo, nihil, etc., and also nouns denoting measure, weight, etc.; as, mōdius, mēdium, and libra; as, Nemo nostrum, No one of us. Maxima pars hominū. Nihil hūmānārū rerū. Cic. Dimidium militum. Liv. Mēdium tritici. Cic.

REM. 2. Adjectives and adjective pronouns, denoting a part of a number, including partitives and words used partitively, comparatives, superlatives, and numerals, are followed by the genitive plural, or by the genitive singular of a collective noun.

(2.) Words used partitively; as, Expediti militū, The light-armed (of the) soldiers. Liv. Delecti equitū. Id. Vetēres Rōmānōrū dūcū. Vell. Supēri deorū, The gods above. Hor. Sancite deorū. Virg. Degēnēres cānū. Plin. Piscium fēmīnæ. Id.

(3.) Comparatives and superlatives; as, Doctior juvenū. Oratōrū praeantissimū. Eloquentissimū Rōmānōrū. Optimū omnium.

(4.) Numerals, both cardinal and ordinal; also the distributive singuli; as, Equitū centū quinquāginta interfecti, A hundred and fifty of the horsemen were killed. Curt. Sapientū octāvus. Hor. Singulos vestrū. Curt.

(b.) The meaning is often nearly the same, whether the partitive adjective agrees in case and number with a noun, or takes such noun after it as the genitive; as, Doctissimus Rōmānorum, or, doctissimus Rōmānus: Alter consūl m, or alter consul. But the genitive cannot be used, when the adjective includes the same number of things as that of which the whole consists; as, Veniēmus ad viros, qui duo supersunt; not quōrum duo, since these are all, though we say in English, 'of whom two survive.'

NOTE 1. (a.) The comparative with the genitive denotes one of two individuals or classes; the superlative denotes a part of a number greater than two; as, Māior frātrum, The elder of two brothers. Maximus frātrum, The eldest of three or more.

(b.) In like manner, uter, alter, and neuter, generally refer to two; quis, ālius, and nullus, to a whole consisting of more than two; as, Uter nostrum? Which of us (two?) Quis vestrum? Which of you (three or more?)

NOTE 2. Nostrum and vestrum are used as partitive genitives, in preference to nostri and vestri, and are always joined with omnium even when the genitive is a subjective one; as, Patria, quæ communis est omnium nostrum pārens. Cic. But vestrum sometimes occurs in other connections also without a partitive meaning; as, Quis erit tam cupidus vestrum. Cic.

NOTE 3. The partitive word is sometimes omitted; as, Fies nōbīlīum tu quōque fontium, scil. ūnus. Hor. Centies sestertium, scil. centēna mīllia.

NOTE 4. The noun denoting the whole, after a partitive word, is often put in the ablative, with the prepositions de, e, ex, or in, or in the accusative, with apud or intēr; as, Nūmo de iis. Alter ex censoribus. Liv. Unus ex multis. Cic. Acerrimus ex sensibus. Id. Thiles, qui sapientissimus in septem fuit. Id. Primus inter omnes. Virg. Cræsus inter rēges opulētissimus. Sen. Apud Helvētios nōbīlissimus.

NOTE 5. The whole and its parts are frequently placed in apposition, distributively; as, Interfectōres, pars in fōrum, pars Sīracāsas pergit. Liv. See § 204, R. 10.

NOTE 6. Cuncti and omnes, like partitives, are sometimes followed by a genitive plural; as, Attālus Mācedōnū fēre omnibus persuāsit, Attālus persuaded almost all the Macedonians. Liv. Cunctos hōmīnum. Ovid. Cunctas provinciārum. Plin.

NOTE 7. In the following passage, the genitive singular seems to be used like that of a collective noun: Tōtius autem injustitiæ nulla capitālior est, etc. Cic. Off. 1, 13. The phrase Rem nullo mōdo probābilem omnium (Cic. Nat. Deor. 1, 27), seems to be used for Rem nullo omnium mōdōrum probāblem.

REM. 3. The genitive denoting a whole, may depend on a neuter adjective or adjective pronoun. With these the genitive singular is commonly used; as, Plus eloquentiæ, More (of) eloquence. Tantum fidei, So much fidelity. In tempōris, That time. Ad hoc ætātis. Sometimes the genitive plural; as, Ad mīseriārum. Ter. Armōrum quantum. Cæsar.

NOTE 1. (a.) Most neuter adjectives used partitively denote quantity; as, tantum, quantum, āliquantum, plūs, minus, multum, multum, nīlquam, paulum, plūrtimum, reliquam; with the compounds and diminutives, tantulūm, quantulūm, quantulūmque, etc.; to which add mēdium, sumum, ultimum, āliud, etc. The pronouns thus used are hoc, id, illud, istud, idem, quod, and quid, with their compounds, dīquid, quidquid, quippium, quidquam, quocūque.

(b.) Most of these adjectives and pronouns may either agree with their nouns, or take a genitive; but the latter is more common. Tantum, quantum, āliquantum, and plūs, when they denote quantity, are used with a genitive only, as are also quid and its compounds, when they denote a part, sort, etc., and quod in the sense of quantum. Thus, Quantum crērit Nilus, tantum spīri in est. Sen. Quid mūlicris uzōrem hābes? What kind of a woman... Ter Aliquid formæ. Cic. Quia hoc rei est? What does this mean? Ter. Quod auri, quod argenti, quod ornamentorum fuit, id Verres abstulit.

NOTE 2. Neuter adjectives and pronouns, when followed by a genitive, are to be accounted substantives, and in this construction are found only in the nominative and accusative.

NOTE 3. Sometimes the genitive after these adjectives and pronouns is a neuter adjective, of the second declension, without a noun; as, Tantum boni, So much good. Si quid habes novi, If you have any thing new. Cic. Quid reliqui est? Ter. Nihil is also used with such a genitive; as, Nihil sinceri, No sincerity. Cic. This construction occurs very rarely with neuter adjectives in l of the third declension, and only in connection with neuters of the second declension; as, Si quidquam non dico civilis sed humani esset. Liv.

NOTE 4. In the poets and in the prose writers later than Cicero, neuter adjectives in the plural number are sometimes followed by a genitive, either singular or plural, with a partitive signification; as, Extrima imperii, The frontiers of the empire. Tac. Pontes et viarum angusta, The bridges and the narrow parts of the roads. Id. Opæca locorum. Virg. Antiqua fœderum. Liv. Cuncta camporum. Tac. Ezercent colles, atque horum asperissima pascunt. Virg. Cf. § 205, R. 9.

REM. 4. The adverbs satis, satis, parum, nimis, abunde, largiter, affatim, and partim, used partitively, are often followed by a genitive; as,

Sat rationis, Enough of reason. Virg. Satis eloquentiæ, parum sapientiæ, Enough of eloquence, (yet) but little wisdom. Sall. Nimis insidiarum. Cic. Terroris et fraudis abunde est. Virg. Auri et argenti largiter. Plaut. Copiarum affatim. Liv. Quon partim illorum mihi familiarissimi essent. Cic.

NOTE 1. The above words, though generally adverbs, seem, in this use, rather to be nouns or adjectives.

NOTE 2. (a.) The genitives gentium, terrarum, loci, and locorum, with certain adverbs of place, strengthen their meaning; as, Usquam terrarum. Just. Usquam gentium, Any where whatever. Plaut. Ubi terrarum sumus? Where in the world are we? Cic. Abire quo terrarum possent. Liv. Ubi sit loci. Plin. Ex loco, equivalent to eo loco, In that place. Tac. Eodem loci res est. Cic. Nescire quo loci esset. Id. But the last three examples might perhaps more properly be referred to Rem. 3.

(b.) The adverbs of place thus used are ubi, ubinam, ubicumque, ubiubi, ubivis, ubique, unde, usquam, nusquam, quo, quocumque, quorvis, quorquo, aliquo, hic, huc, eo, eodem. Loci also occurs after ibi and ibidem; gentium after longe; as, Ibi loci, In that place. Plin. Abes longe gentium. Cic. So, nuncime gentium, By no means. Ter. Vicinus in the genitive is used by the comic writers after hic and huc; as, Hic proximus vicinus. Plaut. Huc vicinus. Ter. Cf. § 221, R. 3, (4.)

NOTE 3. Huc, eo, quo, when used figuratively to express a degree, are joined also with other genitives; as, Ex insolentiæ furorisque processit, He advanced to such a degree of insolence and madness. Plin. Huc enim malorum ventum est. Curt. Hactene rerum cœtus? Have we come to this? Pers. Eo miseriarum cœnre, To such a pitch of misery. Sall. Quo amentie progressi sitis. Liv.

NOTE 4. The genitives loci, locorum, and temporis, appear to be redundant after the adverbs adhuc, inde, interea, postea, tum, and tunc, in expressions denoting time; as, Adhuc locorum, Till now. Plaut. Inde loci, After that. Lucr. Interea loci, In the mean time. Ter. Postea loci, Afterwards. Sall. Tum temporis, and tunc temporis, At that time. Just. Locorum also occurs after id, denoting time; as, Ad id locorum, Up to that time. Sall. Cf. R. 8.

NOTE 5. When the genitive ejus occurs after quoad, in such connections as the following: Quoad ejus facere poteris. Cic.; or passively, Quoad ejus fieri possit, As far as may be. Cic.; the ejus refers to the preceding clause; literally as much of it as possible.

NOTE 6. Prædie and postridie, though reckoned adverbs, are followed by a genitive, depending on the noun dies contained in them; as, Prædie ejus diæi, lit. On the day before that day, i. e. The day before. Cic. Prædie inidiarum, The day before the ambush. Tac. Postridie ejus diæi, The next day. Cæs. When they are followed by an accusative, ante or post is understood. Cf. § 238, 1, (6.)

NOTE 7. Adverbs in the superlative degree, like their adjectives, are followed by a genitive; as, Optime omnium, Best of all. Cic.

GENITIVE AFTER ADJECTIVES.

§ 213. A noun, limiting the meaning of an adjective, is put in the objective genitive, to denote the relation expressed in English by of, in, or in respect to; as,

Ardens laudis , Desirous of praise.	Plena timoris , Full of fear.
Appetens gloriæ , Eager for glory.	Egēnus aquæ , Destitute of water.
Memor virtutis , Mindful of virtue.	Doctus fandi , Skilful in speaking.

So, Nescia mens fati, The mind ignorant in regard to fate. Virg. Impotens iræ, lit. Powerless in respect to anger, i. e. unable to control it. Liv. Homines expertes veritatis, Men destitute of truth. Cic. Lactis abundans, Abounding in milk. Virg. Terra ferax arborum, Land productive of trees. Plin. Tenax propositi vir, A man tenacious of his purpose. Hor. Æger animi, Sick in mind. Liv. Locus medius juguli summiq; læceri, i. e. between. Ovid. Morum diversus. Tac. Opèrum solutus. Hor. Liber laborum. Id. Intèger vitæ scelerisque purus, Upright in life, and free from wickedness. Hor. Vini pollens Liber. Plaut.

From the above examples, it will be seen that the genitive after an adjective is sometimes translated by other words besides of, in, or in respect to, though the relation which it denotes remains the same. Cf. 211, R. 12.

REMARK 1. The following classes of adjectives, which, as denoting a relation to a thing, are called relative adjectives (§ 104, 13), are frequently limited by a genitive; viz. (1.) Verbals in as; as, cupax, edux, ferax, fugax, pericax, tenax, etc.—(2.) Participials in ns, and a few in us, with their compounds; as, amans, appetens, cupiens, efficiens, patiens, impatiens, stiens:—consultus, doctus, solutus.—(3.) Adjectives denoting desire or aversion; as, drarus, avidus, cupidus, stulidus; fastidiosus:—participation; as, particeps, affinis, consors, exsors, expers, inops:—knowledge, experience, capacity, and their contraries; as, callidus, compos, consci, gnarus, ignarus, pertus, impertus, impos, potens, impotens, prudens, imprudens, expertus, inexpertus, consci, insci, nesci, insolens, insolitus, insuetus, rudis, solers:—memory and forgetfulness; as, memor, immemor, etc.:—certainty and doubt, as, certus, incertus, ambiguus, dubius, suspensus:—care and negligence; as, arxi, solicitus, providus, improvidus, securus:—fear and confidence, as, pavidus, timidus, trepidus, impavidus, fidens, interritus:—guilt and innocence; as, noxius, reus, suspectus, compertus, manifestus, innocens, innocens, inops:—plenty and want; as, abundans, plenus, dices, sotus, largus, inops, egēnus, inani, pauper, parcus, solutus, vacuus.

(a.) In the poets and later prose writers, many other adjectives, particularly those which express mental emotions, are in like manner limited by a genitive, especially by animi, ingenii, mentis, iræ, militiæ, belli, liboris, rerum, ceci, futuri, morum, and fidei.

REM. 2. The limiting genitive, by a Greek construction, sometimes denotes a cause or source, especially in the poets; as, Lassus maris, et viarum, militiæque. Hor. Fessus viæ. Stat. Fessus maris. Hor. Attonitus serpentis. Sil. Mens interrita læti. Ovid.

REM. 3. Participles in ns, when used as such, take after them the same case as the verbs from which they are derived; as, Se amans, Loving himself. Cic. Mare terram appetens. Id.

REM. 4. Instead of the genitive, denoting of, in, or in respect to, a different construction is sometimes used after many of these adjectives; as,

(1.) An infinitive or a subjunctive clause; as, Certus ire, Determined to go. Ovid. Cantare peritū. Virg. Felicior unguere tela. Id. Anxius quid factū opus sit. Sall. Vire mēmor quam sis aevi brēvis. Hor.—So aliēnus, avidus, callidus, cupidus, firmus, frēquens, gnārus, impōtens, inops, letus, largus, liber, pollens, mēmor, dubius, etc.

(2.) An accusative with a preposition; as, Ad rem avidior. Ter. Avidus in direptionē. Liv. Animus cōpar ad praecepta. Ovid. Ad cāsū fortunamque felix. Cic. Ad fraudem callidus. Id. Diligens ad custodiendum. Id. Negligentior in patrem. Just. Vir ad disciplinam peritus. Cic. Ad bella rādīs. Liv. Potens in res bellicas. Id. Alacer ad mālēficia. Cic. Inter bellum et pacem nihil mōdiū est. Id.—So with et, fertilis, firmus, infirmus, potens, stērilis, etc.—with in, cupidus, parvus, potens, prodigius, etc.

(3.) An accusative without a preposition, chiefly in the poets; as, Nudus membra, Bare as to his limbs. Virg. Os, hūmērosque deo similis. Id. Cetera fulvus. Hor. Cuncta pollens. Sen. Ag. See § 234, II.

(4.) An ablative with a preposition; as, Avidus in pecūniis, Eager in regard to money. Cic. Anxius de famā. Quint. Rādīs in iure civili. Cic. Peritus de agriculturā. Varr. Prudens in iure civili. Cic. Reus de vi. Id. Parus ab cultu hūmāno. Liv. Certior factus de re. Cic. Sollicitus in aere. Id. Super scelere suspectus. Sall. Inops ab amicis. Cic. Pauper in aere. Hor. Mōdicus in cultu. Plin. Ab aquis stērilis. Apul. Cōpiōsus a frumento. Cic. Ab equitatu firmus. Id. So with in, immōdicus, parvus, ūber :—with ab, aliēnus, beatus, ex-torris, immūnis, inops, liber, nudus, orbis, vacuus.

(5.) An ablative without a preposition; as, Arte rādīs, Rude in art. Ovid. Requi crimine insons. Liv. Compos mente. Virg. Prudens consilio. Just. Eger pedibus. Sall. Præstans ingenio. Cic. Mōdicus severitate. Tac. Nihil in diis cōcium. Cic. Amor et melle et felle est fecundissimus. Plant. Mēdius Pol-luce et Castore. Ovid. Cf. Rein. 5.

In many instances, the signification of the accusative and ablative after adjectives differs, in a greater or less degree, from that of the genitive.

REM. 5. As many of the adjectives, which are followed by a genitive, admit of other constructions, the most common use of each, with particular nouns, can, in general, be determined only by recourse to the dictionary, or to the classics. Some have,

(1.) The genitive only; as, bēnignus, cōpar, exsors, inops, impōtens, inestābilis, irritus, liberalis, mōdicus, mūnificus, praelargus, and many others.

(2.) The genitive more frequently; as, compos, consors, egēnus, exēres, expers, fertilis, indāgus, inops, parvus, particeps, pauper, prodāgus, prosper, stērilis.

(3.) The genitive or ablative indifferently; as, dives, fecundus, fēraz, im-mūnis, inānis, immōdicus, sejūnus, largus, nimius, opulentus, peritus, plenus, potens, parus, refertus, sētur, ūber, vacuus.

(4.) The ablative more frequently; as, abundans, aliēnus, cassus, cōpiōsus, exterris, firmus, fētus, frēquens, grātidus, grāvis, infirmus, liber, locuples, letus, mactus, nudus, onustus, orbis, pollens, sitiātus, truncus, vālidus, vānus.

(5.) The ablative only; as, beatus, crōber, densus, mūtilus, tūmidus, turgidus.

For the ablative after many of the preceding adjectives, see § 250.

REM. 6. Some adjectives usually limited by a dative, sometimes take a genitive instead of the dative; as, similis, dissimilis, etc. See § 222, R. 2.

REM. 7. Many adjectives in addition to the genitive or ablative denoting of or in respect to, take also another case to express a different relation; as, Mens sibi conscia recti. Cf. § 222, R. 3. Consciū has also sometimes the dative instead of the genitive of the thing; as, consciū huic faciūnōri. Cic.

GENITIVE AFTER VERBS

§ 214. Sum, and verbs of valuing, are followed by a genitive, denoting degree of estimation; as,

A me argentum, quanti est, sūmito, Take of me so much money as (he) is worth. Ter. Magni estimābat pecūniam, He valued money greatly. Cic. Ager nunc plūris est, quam tunc fuit. Id. Tanti est, It is worth so much; and, absolutely, It is worth while. Cic. Hūjus non facio, I don't care that for it.

REMARK 1. (a.) Verbs of valuing are joined with the genitive, when the value is expressed in a general or indefinite manner by:—

(1.) A neuter adjective of quantity; as, tanti, quanti, plūris, minōris, magni, permagni, plurimi, maximī, minimi, parvi, tantidem, quantumque, quantuloque, quantūlibet, but only very rarely multi and multōris.

(2.) The nouns assis, flocci, nauci, nihili, pili, tērucii, and also pensi and hūjus.

(b.) But if the price or value of a thing is a definite sum, or is expressed by a substantive, other than assis, flocci, etc., it is put in the ablative. Cf. § 252.

REM. 2. The verbs of valuing are estimo, existimo, dūco, facio, fio, habeo, pendo, puto, depūto, tūceo. Thus, Ut quanti quisque se ipse faciāt, tanti fiat ab amicis, That as much as each one values himself, so much he should be valued by his friends. Cic. Sed quia parvi id dūceret. Id. Hōnōres si magni non putamus. Id. Nōn assis facis? Catull. Nēque quod dixi, flocci existimat. Plaut.

NOTE 1. (a.) The phrase æqui boni, or æqui bonique facio, or consūlo, I take a thing in good part, am satisfied with it, may be classed with genitives of value; as, Nō æqui bonique factus. Liv. So, Boni consūluit Plin.—(b.) A genitive of price is joined also to ceno, habito, doceo, etc.; as, quanti docet? what rent do you pay for your house or lodging? quanti docet? what are his terms in teaching?

NOTE 2. After estimo, the ablatives magno, permagno, parvo, nihilo, are sometimes used instead of the genitive; as, Dita magno estimas, accepta parvo. Sen. Pro nihilo, also, occurs after dūco, habeo, and puto; and nihil with estimo and mōror. Cf. § 231, R. 5.

NOTE 3. The neuter adjectives above enumerated, and hūjus, may be referred to a noun understood, as pretii, æris, pondēris, mōmenti; and may be considered as limiting a preceding noun, also understood, and denoting some person or thing; as, Estimo te magni, i. e. hōminem magni pretii. Scio ejus ordinis iustitiam semper opad te magni fuisse, i. e. rem magni mōmenti. The words assis, etc., may also be considered as depending on an omitted noun; as, pretio, veri, etc.

REM. 3. Statements of price, also, when general or indefinite, are put in the genitive after verbs of buying, selling, letting, and hiring, as, Mercatōres nō tantidem vendunt, quanti emērent. Cic. Nulla pestis hūmāno gēnēri plūris stetit, quam ira. Sen.

NOTE 1. Verbs of buying, selling, etc., are emo, vendo, the neutral passive, emēo, consto, prōsto, and liceo, to be exposed for sale.

NOTE 2. With verbs of buying, selling, etc., the ablatives magno, permagno, plurimo, parvo, minimo, and nihilo are often used instead of the genitive; as, Nō potest parvo res magni constāre. Sen. Quanti emere possum minimo? What is the lowest price I can buy at? Plaut. Sometimes also the adverbs cōre, bene, and nūle take the place of the genitive or ablative of price.

§ 215. (1.) Misereor, miseresco, and the impersonals misēret, penitet, pūdet, tædet, and piget, are followed by a genitive of the object in respect to which the feeling is exercised; as,

Miserēmini sociōrum. Pity the allies. Cic. Miserescite regis. Pity the king. Virg. Mea māter, tui me misēret, mei piget, I pity you, and am dissatisfied with myself. Acc. Eos ineptiarum penitet. Cic. Frātris me pūdet pigetque. Ter. Me civitātis mōrum piget tædetque. Sall. So the compound discedet; Haud quod tui me, nēque dōmi discedat. Plant.; and the passive; Numquam suscepti nēgotii eum pertaxum est. Nep. Lentitudinis eōrum pertasa. Tac. Misēritum est me tuarum fortunarum. Ter. Cave te frātrum misereatur. Cic. Pūdet (me) deōrum hominumque, I am filled with shame in reference both to gods and men. Liv.

NOTE 1. Miserescit is sometimes used in the same manner as misēret; as, Nunc te miserescat mei. Ter. Misereo, as a personal verb, also, occurs with a genitive; as, Ipse sui misēret. Lucr.

REMARK. The genitive after the above impersonals seems to depend on some general word constituting the grammatical subject of such verbs, and signifying, matter, business, fact, case, circumstances, conduct, character, etc., cf. § 211, R. 8, (3); and § 209, R. 3, (4.) Instead of the genitive with its omitted noun, an infinitive or clause with quod or with an interrogative particle is sometimes used as a subject; as, Non me hoc jam dicere pūdebit. Cic. Non penitet me quantum profēcērim, I am not dissatisfied with my progress. Id. These verbs have also sometimes a nominative; as, Me quidem hæc conditio non penitet. Plaut. Non te hæc pūdent? Ter.

NOTE 2. Misēret occurs with an accusative of the object, instead of a genitive; as, Mēnēdēmi vicem misēret me. Ter. So, also, Pertaxus ignāviam suam. Suet.

NOTE 3. (a.) These impersonals, as active verbs, take also an accusative of the person exercising the feeling which they express. See § 229, R. 6.—(b.) And sometimes also the accusative of the neuter pronouns and of nihil, denoting to what degree the feelings are exercised; as, Sēquitur ut nihil (sapientem,) peniteat. Cic. Cf. § 232, (3.)

(2.) Sātāgo is sometimes followed by a genitive denoting in what respect; as,

Is sātāgūt rērum suarum. He is busily occupied with his own affairs. Ter. This compound is often written separately, and in either case the genitive seems to depend upon sāt. See § 212, R. 4. Agito, with sāt, in like manner, is followed by a genitive; as, Nunc agitas sāt tūte tuarum rerum. Plaut.

§ 216. Rēcorder, mēmīni, rēmīniscor, and obliviscor, are followed by a genitive or accusative of the object remembered or forgotten; as,

Flāgitiorum suorum rēcordābitur. Cic. Omnes grādus vitæ rēcorder tua, I call to mind all the periods of your life. Id. Mēmīni vivorum, I am mindful of the living. Id. Nūmēros mēmīni, I remember the measure. Virg. Rēmīnisci vītæ fāmæ. Nep. Dulces mōriens rēmīniscitur Argos. Virg. Rēmīnisci Amicos. Ovid. Oblitus sui. Virg. Injūriarum obliviscitur. Nep. Obliviscor injūrias. Cic. Obliviscere Graios. Virg.

REMARK 1. (a.) When the thing remembered or forgotten is expressed by a neuter pronoun or adjective, it is always put in the accusative. An accusative of the person with these verbs is unusual, except that mēmīni, when referring to a contemporary always takes an accusative of the person; as, Cinam mēmīni. Cic.

(b.) An infinitive or a dependent clause sometimes follows these verbs; as Memento mihi suppētus ferre. Plaut. Esse quōque in fātis rēvīniscitur, afflō tempus, quo mārē, etc. Ovid. *Oblii quid dēcea Hor. Mēmīni te scribere Cic. Quae sum passūra rēcordor. Ovid.

REM. 2. Rēcordor and mēmīni, to remember, are sometimes followed by an ablative with de; as, Pētūmus ut de suis libēris rēcor dentur. Cic. De pallā memento. Plaut.

REM. 3. Mēmīni, signifying to make mention of, has a genitive, or an ablative with de; as, Nēque hūjus rei mēmīnit, poetā. Quint. Mēmīnisti de exstīl bus. Cic. With vēnit mihi in mentem, the person or thing may be made the subject of rēnit; as, Misēre ubi vēnit in mentem mortis mētus. Plaut. Vēnit hoc mihi in mentem; or an infinitive or subjunctive clause may supply the place of the subject:—for the genitive with this phrase, as in Sōlet mihi in mentem vēnīre illius tempōris, see § 211, R. 8, (5.) The genitive with rēcordor is very rare.

§ 217. Verbs of accusing, convicting, condemning, and acquitting, with the accusative of the person, are followed by a genitive denoting the crime; as,

Arguit me furti, He charges me with theft. Aliērū accusat probri, He accuses another of villainy. Meipsum inertiae condemno. Cic.

REMARK 1. (a.) To this rule belong the verbs of Accusing; accūso, āgo, arcesso, arguo, cito, dēfēro, incrēpo, incūso, insinūlo, postūlo, and more rarely alligo, anquiro, astringo, capto, incrēpto, urgeo, interrogo, reum āgo or fācio, alīcui dāem dico, cum dūquo āgo.—Convicting; convīno, coarguo, prēhendo, tēneor, obstringor, obligor.—Condemning; damno, condemno, infāmo, and more rarely iūdico, nōto, plector.—Acquitting; absolvo, libēro, purgo, and rarely solvō. To the verbs of accusing, etc., may be added the adjectives denoting guilt and innocence, which likewise take a genitive. Cf. § 213, R. 1, (3.)

(b.) The genitives which follow these verbs are, audāciæ, arbitriæ, cæciæ, falsi, furti, ignāviæ, impietātis, injuriarū, lētītātis, mājestātis, mālēficiæ, mentāciæ, particidiæ, peccāti, pēculātis, probri, prōditiōnis, rei capitālīs, rēpētundarū, scēlētis, stultitiæ, tēmēritātis, timōris, vōnitātis, vēnēficii, etc.

REM. 2. (a.) Instead of the genitive, an ablative with de is often used after accūso, dēfēro, anquiro, arguo, postūlo, damno, condemno, absolvo, and purgo; as, Accūsāre de negligentia. Cic. De vi condemnati sunt. Id. De rēpētundis est postulatū. Id. Sometimes with in, after accūso, coarguo, convīno, tēneor, and diprēhendor; as, In quo te accūso (Cic.); and after libēro, with a or ab; as, A scēlētē libērati sūmus. Cic. Accūso and damno with inter occur in the phrases inter sicārius accusāre, etc., to charge with assassination.

(b.) With some of the above verbs, an ablative without a preposition is often used; as, Libērāre culpā. Cic. Crimen quo argui posset. Nep. Prōconsulem postulāverunt rēpētundis. Tac. This happens especially with general words denoting crime; as, scēlus, mālēficium, peccātum, etc.; as, Me peccātō solvo. Liv. The ablatives crimine and nōmine, without a preposition, are often inserted before the genitive; as, Arcessere aliquem crimine ambitus. Liv. Nōmine scēlētis conjurātōnisque damnati. Cic.; and when not so inserted they are to be understood.

(c.) Sometimes a clause takes the place of the genitive; as, Eum accusābant quod societatem fecisset. Nep. So the infinitive with the accusative. Quid? quod me—arguit serum accessisse? Ovid.

REM. 3. (a.) The punishment is commonly expressed by the genitive; as, capitiæ, mortis, mulæ, pēcuniæ, quadupli, octupli; but sometimes by the ablative; as, capite, morte, multā, pēcuniā; and always by this case when a definite sum is mentioned; as, quod est in multibus auri; or the accusative with ad or in, as, ad pomam, ad bestias, ad metalla, in metallum, in expensas;—sometimes though rarely, in the poets, by the dative; as, Damnatus morti. Lucr.—(b.) Voti or votum, and less frequently voto or votis damnari, signifies 'to be condemned to fulfil one's vow,' and is consequently equivalent to 'to obtain what one wishes.' So also in the active voice, Damnabis tu quoque votis. Virg. Perdo is used by Plautus as a verb of accusing, with capitis; Quem ego capitis perdam, will charge with a capital offence. So capite or capitis periclitari, Plaut., signifies 'to be in peril of one's life.' With plecto and plector, caput is used in the ablative only.—(c.) Damni infecti is put in the genitive (depending upon nominis understood) after satisdo, promitto, stipulari, repromitto, and caveo; as, Si quis in pariete demoliendo damni infecti promiserit. Cic.

REM. 4. Accuso, incuso, and instimulo, instead of the genitive, sometimes take the accusative, especially of a neuter pronoun; as, Si id me non accusas. Plant. Quæ me incusaveras. Ter. Sic me instimulare falsum facinus. Plant. See § 231, Rem. 5.

REM. 5. (a.) The following verbs of accusing, etc., are not followed by a genitive of the crime, but, as active verbs, by an accusative:—calumniar, carpo, corripio, criminor, culpo, excuso, multo, pænio, reprehendo, sagillo, tazo, traduco, vitupero; as, Culpæ infœcunditatem agrorum. Colum. Excusare errorem et adolescentiam. Liv.

(b.) This construction also sometimes occurs with accuso, incuso, arguo, and inarguo; as, Ejus avaritiam perfidiamque accusarat. Nep. Culpam arguo. Liv. With multo, the punishment is put in the ablative only, without a preposition; as, Exsiliis, morte multantur. Cic.

§ 218. Verbs of admonishing, with the accusative of the person, are followed by a genitive of the person or thing respecting which the admonition is given; as,

Miles temporis moneat, He admonishes the soldiers of the occasion. Tac. Admonēbat alium egestatis, alium cupiditatis suæ. Sall.

NOTE. The verbs of admonishing are moneo, admoneo, commoneo, and commonefacio.

REMARK 1. Instead of the genitive, verbs of admonishing sometimes have an ablative with de; as, De sede Telluris me admones. Cic.—sometimes an accusative of a pronoun or adjective in the neuter gender; as, Eos hoc moneo. Cic. Illud me admoneo. Id.; and in the passive, Multa admoneamur. Id.—rarely also a noun in the accusative; as, Eam rem nos locus admonuit. Sall.

REM. 2. Instead of the genitive, verbs of admonishing are also often followed by an infinitive or clause; as, Soror alma moneat succedere Lauso Turnum, His sister admonishes Turnus to take the place of Lausus. Virg. Moneat, ut suspiciones vitet. Cæs. Sed eos hoc moneo, desinant furere. Cic. Moneat rationem frumenti esse habendam. Hirt. Immortalia ne speres moneat annus. Hor. Discipulos id unum moneo, ut, etc. Quint. Moneo quid facto opus sit. Ter. See § 273, 2.

§ 219. Refert and interest are followed by a genitive of the person or thing whose concern or interest they denote; as, Humilitatis refert, It concerns human nature. Plin. Refert omnium adverte in malos. Tac. Interest omnium recte facere, It concerns all to do right. Cic.

REMARK 1. Instead of the genitive of the substantive pronouns, the adjective pronouns mea, tua, sua, nostra, and vestra, are used; as,

Mea nihil refert, It does not concern me. Ter. Illud mea magni interest, That greatly concerns me. Cic. Tua et mea maxime interest, te valere. Cic. Magnis reipublicæ interest quam mea. Id. Magni interest Ciceronis, vel mea potius, sei mercede utriusque, me intervenire dicenti. Id.

NOTE. Rêfert rarely occurs with the genitive, but often with the pronouns mea, tua, etc., and most frequently without either such pronoun or a genitive as, quid rêfert? magni or magnopère rêfert.

REM. 2. In regard to the case of these adjective pronouns, grammarians differ. Some suppose that they are in the accusative plural neuter, agreeing with commôda or the like understood; as, Intêrest meâ, i. e. est inter mea, It is among my concerns. Rêfert tua, i. e. rêfert se ad tua, It refers itself to your concerns. Others think that they are in the ablative singular feminine, agreeing with re, causâ, etc., understood, or in the dative. The better opinion seems to be, that they are in the accusative feminine for meam, tuam, suam, etc., that rêfert was originally rem fert, and that hence the e of rêfert is long.

REM. 3. Instead of the genitive, an accusative with ad is sometimes used; as, Ad hônôrem meum intêrest quum primum urbem me venire. Cic. Quid id ad me aut ad meam rem rêfert. Plaut.—sometimes, though rarely, an accusative without a preposition; as, Quid te igitur rêtulit Plaut—or a dative; as, Dic quid rêferat intra nâturæ fines viventibus. Hor.

REM. 4. The subject of these verbs, or the thing which is of interest or importance, is sometimes expressed by a neuter pronoun; as, Id mea minime rêfert. Ter. Hoc vehementer intêrest reipublicæ. Cic.; and sometimes by an infinitive with its accusative, or ut, or an interrogative particle with a subjunctive clause; as, multum mea intêrest te esse diligenter, or ut diligens sis, or utrum diligens sis nec ne. When the infinitive alone is used with rêfert or intêrest, the preceding subject is understood; as, omnium intêrest recte fâcere, scil. se.

REM. 5. The degree of interest or importance is expressed by adverbs or by neuter adjectives, etc., in the accusative or genitive; as, magis, magnopère, vehementer, parum, minime, etc.; multum, plus, plurimum, nihil, aliquid, etc.; tanti, quanti, magni, permagni, pluris. But minimo discriminate rêfert is found in Juv. 5, 123.

§ 220. Many verbs which are usually otherwise construed, are sometimes followed by a genitive. This rule includes

1. Certain verbs denoting an affection of the mind; ango, discrucior, excrucio, fullo, penleo, which are followed by animi; dectipior, dectipio, fallor, fasuchor, videor, miror, vereor; as, Absurde fâcis, qui angas te animi. Plaut. Me animi fallit. Lucr. Dectipitur laborum. Hor. Dectipiebam mentis. Plaut. Justitiæ prius mirer belline laborum. Virg.

2. The following, in imitation of the Greek idiom; abstineo, désino, pu, z. Hor.; désisto. Virg.; laudo, prohibeo. Sil.; lêvo, participo. Plaut.; libero. Liv.; dissolvo. Tibull.; compare liber laborum; opèrum vacuus; purus scélèris. § 213.

3. Some verbs denoting to fill, to abound, to want or need, to free, which are commonly followed by an ablative. Such are abundo, câreo, compleo, expleo, impleo, êgeo, indigeo, satiâro, obsatiâro, scâleo; as, Adôlescentem suæ timêritâtis implet. He fills the youth with his own rashness. Liv. Animum explese flammæ. Virg. Egeo consilii. Cic. Non tam artis indigent quam laboris. Id. See §§ 249 and 250, (2.)

4. Pôtior, which also is usually followed by an ablative; as, Urbis pôtiri, To make oneself master of the city. Sall. Pôtiri regni (Cic.), hostium (Sall.), reum, To make oneself master of the world. Cic. Pôtio (active) occurs in Plautus; as, Eum nunc pôtivit servitûtis, He has made him partaker of slavery. In the same writer, pôtius est hostium signifies, 'he fell into the hands of the enemy.' So, also, Aliquem compôtire prædæ or vôti. App. So, Rêrum adeptus est. Tac. Dûminâtions apisci. Id. Rognâvit popûlorum. Hor.

GENITIVE OF PLACE.

§ 221. 1. The name of a town in which any thing is said to be, or to be done, if of the first or second declension and singular number, is put in the genitive; as,

Habitat Milēti, He lives at Miletus. Ter. Quid Rōmæ faciām? What can I do at Rome? Juv. Hercules Tyri maxime colitur. Cic.

NOTE. For the construction of nouns of the third declension or plural number, see § 254. The following appears to be the best explanation that has been given of this diversity of construction, depending solely on the number or declension of the noun. The name of the town 'where' or 'in which' is probably neither in the genitive nor the ablative, but always, as in Greek, in the dative. Since the genitive and dative are alike in the singular of the first declension and the dative and ablative plural are the same in all declensions, such examples as Rōmæ and Athēnis present no difficulty. In the third declension the dative and ablative singular were anciently alike, and in such ablatives as Anzūri, Carthāgini, Lacedæmōni, the old form remains, see § 82, Exc. 5, (c). In the second declension there was an old dative in oi, as in Greek, which was commonly changed to o, but sometimes to i: and the latter is still found in mulli, uni, etc., see § 107, and in the adjective pronouns; as, illi, etc.

REMARK 1. Names of islands and countries are sometimes put in the genitive, like names of towns; as, Ithacæ victore, To live in Ithaca. Cic. Corcyra fuimus. Id. Cōrum plurimum Cypri vixit, Timotheus Lesbi. Nep. Quum Miltiades dōmum Chersonēsi habuit. Id. Orēta jussit consilēre Apollo. Virg. Rōmæ Nāmidæque faciōra ejus mēmōrat. Sall.

REM. 2. (a.) Instead of the genitive, the ablative of names of towns of the first and second declension and singular number, is sometimes, though rarely, used; as, Rea Tyro decēdit, The king dies at Tyre. Just. Et Cōrintho et Athēnis et Lacedæmōne nunciāta est victōria. Id. Pons quem ille Abydo fecerat. Id. Hujus exemplar Rōmā nullum habemus. Vitruv. Non Libyæ, non ante Tyro. Virg. For the explanation of this apparent anomaly, see the preceding note; in accordance with which it may be remarked, that the adverbs of place, ubi, ibi, ibidem, abibi, alibi, hic, illic, istuc, etc., appear from their form to be ancient datives.—(b.) When the noun is qualified by an adjective, it is put, not in the genitive, but in the ablative with in; as, In ipsā Alexandriā. Cic. And poetically without in, Gēnus Longā nostrum dōminābitur Albā. Virg.—(c.) When urbs, oppidum, locus, etc., follow the genitive of place as appositions, they are put in the ablative either with, or, more rarely, without, in; as, Archias Antiōchiæ nātus est, celebrated quondam urbe. Cic. Cives Rōmānos Neāpōli, in cēleberrimo oppido sæpe vidimus. Id. But when in urbe, etc., precede the name of a town, the latter also is put in the ablative; as, In oppido Citio. Nep.; and but very rarely in the genitive; as, Cassius in oppido Antiōchiæ est,—in the town of Antioch. Cic., where the genitive depends on oppido.

REM. 3. The genitives dōmi, militiæ, belli, and hūmi, are construed like names of towns; as, Tēnuit se dōmi, He staid at home. Cic. Vir dōmi clārus. Liv. Spargit hūm jussos dentes,—on the ground. Ovid. Militia and belli are thus used, especially when opposed to dōmi; as, Una semper militiæ et dōmi fuimus,—both at home and in the camp. Ter. So Dōmi militiæque. Cic. Et dōmi et militiæ. Id. Militiæ dōmique. Liv. Militiæ et dōmæ. Ter. Bellī dōmique, in war and in peace. Hor.

(1.) Dōmi is thus used with the possessives meæ, tuæ, sua, nostræ, vestræ, and aliēnæ; as, Dōmi nostræ vixit, He lived at my house. Cic. Apud eum sic fui tamquam meæ dōmi. Id. Sacrificium, quod aliēnæ dōmi fieret invisere. Id. But with other adjectives, an ablative, generally with a preposition, is used; as, In vicinā dōmo. Ovid. Pāternā dōmo. Id. Sometimes also with the possessives meæ, Mei in dōmo. Hor. In dōmo suā. Nep. So; instead of hūmi, 'upon the ground, hūmo is sometimes used, with or without a preposition; as, In hūmo arēdendū Ovid. Sēdere hūmo nudā. Id.

(2.) When a genitive denoting the possessor follows, either dōmī or in dōmē is used; as, Dyrrhēnus dōmī Cæsāris. Cic. Dōmī illius fuisti. Id. In dōmo Cæsāris. Id. In dōmo ejus. Nep.

(3.) The ablative dōmo for dōmī also occurs, but not in Cicero; as, Ego id nunc capērior dōmo. Plaut. Dōmo se tēnere. Nep. Dōmo abditus. Suet. Bello for bellī is found in Livy—Dōmī bellōque. So, also, hūmo for hūmī; Strātus hūmo. Stat. Figit hūmo plantas. Virg.: and in hūmo lūmen figit. Ovid.

(4.) Terræ is sometimes used like hūmī; as, Sacra terræ celāvimus. Liv. Projectus terræ. Virg. Ignes terræ condit. Luc. So, also, arēnæ; Truncum reliquit arēnæ. Virg.: and viciñiæ; Proximæ viciñiæ hābitat. Plaut.

(5.) The genitive of names of towns, dōmī, militiæ, etc., is supposed by some to depend on a noun understood; as, urbē, oppidō, acēbus, solō, loco, tempore, etc., but see a different explanation above in Note.

GENITIVE AFTER PARTICLES.

II. Certain adverbs are followed by the genitive. See § 212, R. 4.

III. The genitive plural sometimes depends on the preposition tēnus; as, Cūmārum tēnus, As far as Cumæ. Cœl. Crūrū tēnus. Virg. Lātērū tēnus. Id. Urbūm Corcyræ tēnus. Liv.—For the ablative after tēnus, and for the place of the preposition, see § 241, and R. 1.

DATIVE.

§ 222. 1. The dative is the case of reference, as it denotes the object with reference to which the subject acts, or in reference to which it possesses any specified quality; or, in other words, the object for which, to the benefit or loss of which, any thing is or is done. Hence, in distinction from the dative of the end (§ 227) the dative of reference is called dātivus commōdi et incommōdi, the dative of advantage and disadvantage; as,

Scribo vōbis hunc librum, I write this book for you. Prōsum tibi, or Tibi utilis sum, I am useful to you.

2. Hence the dative of advantage and disadvantage may be used (a) with adjectives and particles whose meaning is incomplete unless the object is mentioned in reference to which the quality exists. (b) With verbs both transitive and intransitive. If transitive they take an accusative of the nearer and a dative of the remoter object, if intransitive they take a dative only. (c) With certain verbs compounded with prepositions, after which the dative is used instead of the case which the preposition, if separate, would govern. (d) After a few verbal substantives derived from verbs which govern a dative.

DATIVE AFTER ADJECTIVES.

3. A noun limiting the meaning of an adjective, is put in the dative, to denote the object to which the quality is directed; as,

Utilis agris, Useful to the fields Juv. Jucundus amicis, Agreeable to his friends. Mart. Inimicus quieti, Unfriendly to rest. Id. Charta inutilis scribendo, Paper not useful for writing. Plin.

NOTE. The dative is commonly translated by the prepositions to or for; but sometimes by other prepositions, or without a preposition.

REMARK 1. Adjectives signifying useful, pleasant, friendly, fit, like, inclined, ready, easy, clear, equal, and their opposites, also those signifying near, many compounded with con, and verbals in bilis, are followed by the dative; as,

Felix tuis, Propitious to your friends. Virg. Oratio ingrata Gallis, A speech displeasing to the Gauls. Cæs. Amicus tyrannidi, Friendly to tyranny. Nep. Labori inhâbilis, Unsuitable to labor. Colum. Patri similis, Like his father. Cic. Nihil tam est Lysiae diversum, quam Isocrates. Aptum tempori. Id. Malo pronus. Sen. Promptus seditioni. Tac. Cuivis facile est. Ter. Mihi certum est. Cic. Par fratri tuo. Id. Falsi veris finitima sunt. Id. Oculi concordes corpori. Colum. Multis bonis flêbilis. Liv. Mors est terribilis iis, quorum, etc. Cic.

(a.) The following are some of the adjectives included in Rem. 1, viz. gratus, acceptus, dulcis, jucundus, letus, amicus; ingratus, insuavis, infucundus, molestus, gravis, acerbus, odiosus, tristis;—utilis, inutilis, bonus, saluber, salutaris, fructuosus; calamitosus, damnosus, funestus, nocuus, pestifer, perniciosus, exitiosus;—amicus, benevolus, carus, familiaris, æquus, fidus, fidelis, propitius, secundus; inimicus, adversus, amicus, alienus, contrarius, infestus, infidus, iniquus, iratus;—aptus, accommodatus, oppositus, habilis, idoneus, opportunus; ineptus, inhâbilis, importunus, inconveniens;—æqualis, par, ispar, dispar, similis, dissimilis, assimilis, discolor;—pronus, præclivis, propeneus, promptus, paratus;—facilis, difficilis;—apertus, conspicuus, manifestus, pergrævus, obscurus, certus, compertus, notus, ambiguus, dubius, ignotus, incertus, insâtus;—vicinus, finitimus, confinis, contiguus, propior, proximus, cognatus, concolor, concors, congruus, consanguineus, consentaneus, consonus, conveniens, contiguus, continuus, continens.

(b.) Many adjectives of other significations, including some compounds of ob, sub, and super, as obnoxius, obicius, subiectus, supplex, and superstes, are also followed by a dative of the object.

(c.) After verbals in bilis, the dative is usually rendered by the preposition to; as, Tibi credibilis sermo, A speech credible to you, i. e. worthy to be believed by you. Ovid.

(d.) The expression dicto audiens, signifying obedient, is followed by the dative; as, Syracusani nobis dicto audientes sunt. Cic. Audiens dicto fuit jussu magistratum. Nep. In this phrase, dicto is a dative limiting audiens, and the words dicto audiens seem to form a compound equivalent to obediens, and, like that, followed by a dative; thus, Nec plebs nobis dicto audiens atque obediens sit. Liv. So dicto obediens; as, Futura es dicto obediens, annon, patri? Plaut.

REM. 2. (a.) The adjectives æqualis, affinis, alienus, cognominis, communis, contrarius, finis, insuetus, par, dispar, peculiaris, proprius, propinquus, sacer, similis, assimilis, constans, socius, vicinus, superstes, supplex, and some others, instead of a dative of the object, are sometimes followed by a genitive; as, Par hujus, Equal to him. Lucan. Proprium est oratoris ornate dicere. Cic. But most of these words, when thus used, seem rather to be taken substantively; as, Æqualis ejus, His contemporary. Cic.

(b.) Similis, assimilis, constans, dissimilis, par and dispar, take the genitive, when an internal resemblance, or a resemblance in character or disposition, is to be expressed, and hence we always find mei, tui, sui, nostri, vestri, similis; as, Plures reges Romuli quam Numa similis. Liv.

(c.) Amicus, inimicus, and familiaris, owing to their character as substantives; take a genitive even in the superlative; as, Homo amicissimus nostrorum hominum,—very friendly to our countrymen. Cic. On the other hand, amicus, though a substantive, is sometimes used like an adjective, being modified by an adverb, and taking an object in the dative; as, Expectantibus omnibus quisnam esset tam impius, tam dēmens, tam diis hominibusque hostis, qui, etc. Cf. § 277, R. 1.

REM. 3. Some adjectives with the dative are followed by another case denoting a different relation; as, Mens sibi conscia recti, A mind conscious to itself of rectitude. Virg. See § 213, R. 7.

REM. 4. Many adjectives, instead of the dative of the object, are often followed by an accusative with a preposition.

(1.) Adjectives signifying useful, fit, and the opposite, take an accusative of the thing with ad, but only a dative of the person; as, Homo ad nullam rem utilis. Cic. Locus aptus ad insidias. Id.

(2.) Adjectives denoting motion or tendency, take an accusative with ad more frequently than a dative; as, Piger ad pœnas, ad prœmia velox, Ovid; Ad aliquem morbum proclivior, Cic.; Ad omne facinus paratus, Id.; Prœvus ad fidem, Liv.;—sometimes with in; as, Celer in pugnam. Sil.

(3.) Many adjectives, signifying an affection of the mind, may have an accusative of the object with in, erga, or adversus, instead of the dative; as, Fidelis in filios. Just. Mater acerba in suos partus. Ovid. Gratus erga me. Cic. Gratum adversus te. Id. So Dissimilis in dominum. Tac.

(4.) Adjectives signifying like, equal, common, etc., when plural, are often followed by the accusative with inter; as, Inter se similes. Cic. Hæc sunt inter eos communia. Id. Inter se diversi. Id.

REM. 5. Prœpior and proximus, instead of the dative, have sometimes, like their primitive prœpe, an accusative; as, Quod vitium prœpius virtutem erat. Sall. P. Crassus proximus mære Oceânûm hiemarat. Cæs. Ager, qui proximus finem Mægâlpolitânûm est. Liv. Cf. § 238, 1.

REM. 6. (a.) Some adjectives, instead of the dative, have at times an ablative with a preposition. Thus, par, communis, consentaneus, discors, with cum; as, Quem parem cum liberis fecisti. Sall. Consentaneum cum iis literis. Cic. Civitas sæcum discors. Liv. So alienus and diversus with a or ab; as, Alienus a me, Ter.; A ratione diversus, Cic.; or without a preposition; as, Alienum nostrâ amicitia. Id.—(b.) Frētus, which regularly takes the ablative, is in Livy construed with the dative; as, fortunæ frētus; nulli rei frētus, etc. Cf. § 244.—(c.) The participial adjectives junctus and conjunctus, instead of the dative take sometimes the ablative either with or without cum.

REM. 7. Idem is sometimes followed by the dative, chiefly in the poets, as Jupiter omnibus idem. Virg. Invitum qui servat, idem facit occidenti. Hor. In the first example, omnibus is a dative of the object; in the second, the dative follows idem, in imitation of the Greek construction with αὐτός and is equivalent to quod occidens, or quod facit is, qui occidit. Similis is construed in the same manner in Hor. Sat. 1, 3, 122. Idem is generally followed not by a case, but by qui, ac, atque, ut, quis, or quam; sometimes by the preposition cum. Cf. § 207, R. 27, (d.) Similis and par are sometimes, like idem, followed by ac and atque.

REM. 8. Some verbal substantives are followed by the dative, when derived from verbs governing the dative; as, Justitia est obtemperatio scriptis legibus institutisque populorum. Cic. Traditio amicis rei alteri. Id. Exprobratio cuiquam veteris fortune. Liv.

NOTE. A dative of the object often follows esse and other verbs. In connection with a predicate nominative or accusative, but such dative is dependent, not on the noun, but on the verb. Cf. § 227, R. 4.

DATIVE AFTER VERBS.

§ 223. A noun limiting the meaning of a verb, is put in the dative, to denote the object to or for which any thing is, or is done; as,

Mea domus tibi patet, My house is open to you. Cic. Pars optare locum tecto, A part choose a site for a building. Virg. Tibi seris, tibi metis, You sow for yourself, you reap for yourself. Plaut. Licet nemini contra patriam ducere exercitum, It is not lawful for any one to lead an army against his country. Cic. Hoc tibi promitto, I promise you this. Id. Ikeret lateri letatis arundo. Virg. Surdo fabulum narras. Hor. Mihi responsum dedit. Virg. Sic vos non vobis fertis aratra, boves. Id. Omnibus bonis expedit salvam esse rempublicam. Cic. Aptat habendo ensem. Virg.

NOTE. The dative is thus used after all verbs, whether transitive or intransitive, personal or impersonal, and in both voices, provided their signification admits a reference to a remoter object, for whom or to whose benefit or injury any thing is done. In the passive voice, from their nature, neuter verbs can only be so construed impersonally. Cf. § 142, 1, and § 222, 2.

REMARK 1. The dative after many verbs is rendered not by to or for, but by other prepositions, or without a preposition. Many intransitive Latin verbs are translated into English by verbs transitive, and the dative after them is usually rendered like the object of a transitive verb.—Most verbs after which the signs to and for are not used with the dative, are enumerated in this and the following sections.

REM. 2. Many verbs signifying to favor, please, trust, assist, and their contraries, also to command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, and be angry, take a dative of the object.

NOTE. The neuter verbs comprehended in this rule generally express in the verbal form the meaning of those adjectives, which are followed by the dative, (cf. § 222, R. 1.) Thus, (a.) Illa tibi favet, She favors you, or is favorable to you. Ovid. Mihi placebat Pompeianus, minime displicebat. Cic. Qui sibi fidit. Hor. Non licet sui commodi causâ nocere alteri. Cic. Non invideatur illi ætati sed etiam favetur. Id. Desperat salutis sue. Id. Næque mihi vestra decreta auscultantur. Sall. Insuperat aut servit collecta pecunia cuique. Hor. Obediare ei parere voluntati. Cic. Quoniam factioni inimicorum resistere nequiverit. Sall. Mihi minabatur. Cic. Irasci inimicis. Cæs.

(b.) So Adûlor, assentior, blandior, commôdo, faveo, gratificor, grator, grâtûlor, and its verbal gratûlabundus, ignosco, indulgeo, lândôlor, palpor, parco, plaudo, respondeo, studeo, suppâsitor; amûlor, incommôdo, invideo, nâceo, obsum, off'endo;—arudeo, placeo; displiceo;—credo, fido, confido; despêro, diffido;—amînîcûlor, anxîtor, nêdeor, mêdîtor, opûlûlor, parâctor, prôsum, subvênio, succuro; dêsum, insidior;—impêro, mando, mûdêtor, præcipio, tempêro; ausculto, morigêtor, obêdîto, obsecundo, obsequor, obtemperô, pârto, dicto audiens sum;—ancûlor, famûlor, ministro, servio, inservio, præstôlor;—adversor, refragor, obsto, obtreco, relûctor, rêlîtor, repugno, resisto, and, chiefly in the passive, bello, certo, luctor, pugno;—minor, commînôtor, interminor;—trascor, succersco, stôrâctor.—To these may be added arguo, alarguo, conctor, dëgênêro, exco, nâbo, suppêdîto, pravâctor, rêcipio (cf. promise), rêsûncio, suâdeo, persuâdeo, dissuâdeo, supplicor, vâco, vblecor, and sometimes misceo and lateo;—also the impersonals actûti, convênit, condâcîto, contîngit, dêcet, dôlet, expêdit, licet, libet, or libet, hæret, placet, etc.—(c.) Intransitive verbs governing a dative are often used impersonally in the passive with the same case; as, mîhi mervêtur, I am envied. Mîhi mândîcîtur, I am reviled. Mîhi parctur, I am spared. Hor. Hoc persuâdêtur mîhi, I am persuaded of this.

(1.) (a.) Many of the above verbs, which, as intransitive, take the dative, sometimes become transitive and are followed by an accusative; as, adûlor, ausculto, blandior, dëgênêro, despêro, indulgeo, lateo, mêdeor, mêdîtor, môdêtor, obtreco, præstôlor, prôvideo, etc.; as, Adûlari aliquem. Cic. Hanc causâ dëgênêres. Ovid. Indulgeo me. Ter. Hujus adventum præstolans. Cæs. Prôvidêre rem frûmîntârîam. Id.—Sometimes also by a preposition and the ablative or accusative; as, A Stôlcis dëgênêravît Pârvetius. Cic. De rêpûblîcâ despêrare. Id. Obtreârunt inter se. Nep.—or by a dependent clause; as, Quæ despêra tractâti n. esse posse, relînquît. Hor.

(b.) Others, as transitive verbs, have, with the dative, an accusative, expressed or understood; as, impéro, mando, ministro, minor, comminor, interminor, precipio, récipio, remuncio, etc.; as, Equites imperat civitatibus; where civitas is perhaps to be supplied. He enjoins upon the states the providing of cavalry. Cæs. See § 274, R. 5. Ministrare victum dâci. Varr. Déflagrationem urbi et Italia toti minabatur. Cic.

(c.) Æquo and adæquo are construed with the accusative and either the dative or cum with the ablative.—Invideo takes either a single dative of the person or thing, a dative of the person and an accusative of the thing; as, Hómōrem mihi invidet. Hor.; or, when invidere is used in the sense of privare, a dative of the person and an ablative of the thing; as, Non invidetur laude sua malis. Liv. In Horace, by a Greek construction, the genitive is once used instead of the accusative or ablative of the thing; as, Nêque ille sypôteti cicēris nec longas invidet âvenas.

(d.) Cedo, used transitively, takes a dative of the person and an accusative of the thing; but sometimes the thing is expressed by the ablative; as, cédere dâci possessionē hortorum. So, also, concedo tibi locum, or concedo tibi loco.

(2.) Many verbs which, from their significations, might be included in the above classes, are, as transitive verbs, only followed by an accusative; as, dēlecto, jâvo, adjûvo, adjûto, lEDO, offendo, etc.—Jûbeo is followed by the accusative with an infinitive, and sometimes by the accusative alone, or the dative with the infinitive or subjunctive; as, Jûbeo te bene sperâre. Cic. Lex jûbet ea quæ faciēda sunt. Id. Ubi Britannico jussit exurgere. Tac. Quibus jussorâ, ut instantibus resistērent. Id.—Fido and confido are often followed by the ablative, with or without a preposition; as, Fidere cursu. Ovid. Cf. § 245.

§ 224. Many verbs compounded with these eleven prepositions, ad, antè, cōn, in, intèr, ob, post, præ, prò, sub, and sùpèr, are followed by the dative; as,

Annus ceptis, Be favorable to our undertakings. Virg. Rômânis æquâtibus lîbris affèruntur, Letters are brought to the Roman knights. Cic. Anticellere omnibus, To excel all. Id. Antètulit iræ religionem. Nep. Audetque viris concurrere virgo. Virg. Exercitum exercitui, dâces ducibus comparare. Liv. Imminet his ær. Ovid. Pecori signum impressit. Virg. Nox prælio intervenit. Liv. Interdixit histrionibus scēnam. Suet. Meis commôdis officis et obstas. Cic. Cum se hostium tēlis objēcissent. Id. Posthâbui mea seria ludo. Virg. Certâmini præsedit. Suet. Hibernis Labiēnum præposuit. Cæs. Gēnibus præcumbere. Ovid. Misêris succurrere disco. Virg. Iis subsidia submittebat. Cæs. Timidis sùpervēnit Ægle. Virg.

NOTE 1. This rule implies that the compound retains the meaning of the preposition; and the dative following such compound is then used instead of the case governed by the preposition. When such compounds are transitive they have with the dative an accusative also, like other transitive verbs.

2. Anticedo, anticello, anteeo, antesto, antiçerio, antiçerto;—antiçero, antiçhæreo, antiçpono.

3. Cohæreo, collado, concino, congruo, consentio, consôno, consuesco, convecto, and, chiefly in the poets, coto, concumbo, concuro, contendo;—confè o, conjungo, compère, compôno.

5. Intercedo, intercedo, intercedo, interjaceo, intermico intersum, intervénio;—interdico, interjicio, interpôno.

6. Obavibulo, obero, obsequio, obductor, obmurmuro, obrepro, obsto, obstito, obstrẽpo, obsum, obstricto, obvẽnio, obversor, occumbo, occuro, occurso, officio;—oblico, objicio, offero, offundo, oppono.

7. Postfero, posthabeo, postpono, postpũto, postscribo.

8. Præcedo, præcurro, præeo, præluceo, præmineo, præmitto, præstideo, præsum, prævaleo, prævertor;—præfero, præficio, præpono.

9. Præcumbo, præficio, præpugno, prospicio, prævideo.

10. Succedo, succresco, succumbo, succurro, sufficio, suffragor, subdeleo, subjaceo, subrepro, subsum, subvẽnio;—subdo, subjicio, subjugo, submitto, suppono, subterno.

11. Supercurro, supersto, supersum, supervẽnio, supervivo.

NOTE 2. In some verbs compounded with prepositions the meaning of the preposition is lost. Such compounds are either not followed by a dative, or the case depends, not on the preposition, but on the signification of the verb, according to § 223.

REMARK 1. (a.) Some verbs, compounded with ab, de, ex, circum, and contra, are occasionally followed by the dative; as, absũm, dẽsum, delabor, despẽro, excido, circumdo, circumfundo, circumjaceo, circumjicio, contradico, contrazo; as, Serta capiti delapsa, The garlands having fallen from his head. Virg. Numquid nunni exciderunt tibi? Plaut. Tigris urbi circumfunditur. Plin. Sibi desperans. Cæs.—(b.) Circumdo and circumfundo take either an accusative of the thing with a dative of the person, or an ablative of the thing with an accusative of the person; as, circundo alicui custodias, or circundo aliquem custodiis. Aspergo, inspergo, dono, impertio, exuo, and induo, are construed in the same manner. Cf. § 251, R. 2.

REM. 2. Some verbs of repelling and taking away (most of which are compounds of ab, de, or ex), are sometimes followed by the dative, though more commonly by the ablative; as, abigo, abrogo, abscondo, aufẽro, dũkũu, arceo, defendo, dẽno, depello, derõgo, detrãho, ẽrpio, ẽruo, excutio, ezimo, extorqueo, extrãho, exuo, prohibeo, surripio. Thus, Nec mihi te ẽrpiunt, Nor shall they take you from me. Ovid. Solstitium pecõri defendate. Virg. Hunc arcebis pecõri. Id. So rarely abrumpo, alieno, fũror, and rapio.

REM. 3. Some verbs of differing (compounds of dis or dis) likewise occur with the dative, instead of the ablative with the preposition ab, or postically with the ablative alone; as, diffẽro, discrepro, discordo, dissentio, dissideo, disto; as, Quantum simplex hĩlirisque nẽpoti discrepet, et quantum discordet, parvus avãro. Hor. Distãbit infido scurræ amicus. Hor. Græcis Tuscãnicas statũe diffẽrunt. Quint. Comedia differt sermõni. Hor. So likewise misceo; as, Mista modestiæ gravitas. Cic.

REM. 4. Many verbs compounded with prepositions, especially with ad, con, and in, instead of the dative, either constantly or occasionally take the case of the preposition, which is frequently repeated. Sometimes, also, a preposition of similar signification is used; as, Ad primũ vocẽm timidas advertitis aures. Ovid. Nemo eum antecessit. Nep. Saxa rides silã coalescere calce. Lucr. Infẽrunt omnia in ignem. Cæs. Silex incumbẽbat ad annum. Virg. Incipis moderãmine nũcia. Ovid. In Pansam frãtrem innicius. Plin. Conferre hanc pacẽ cum illo bello. Cic. In this substitution of one preposition for another, ad is used for in, and in for ad; ab for ex; ante, contra, and in, for ob; ad and ante, for pro.

REM. 5. Neuter verbs of motion or of rest in a place, when compounded with the prepositions, ad, ante, con, in, etc., either take the dative, or, acquiring a passive signification, are followed by the accusative; as, Helvẽti reliquos Gallo virtũte præcũdunt, The Helvetii surpass the other Gauls in valor. Cæs. Uterque, Isocrãtem cõtate præcurrit. Cic. So præeo, præsto, præverto, præcello. See § 223, (8.)

§ 225. I. Verbs compounded with sũtis, bene, and male, are followed by the dative; as,

Et naturæ et legibus satisfecit, He satisfied both nature and the laws. Cic. Tibi dii benediciunt omnes, May all the gods bless you. Plaut. But also, Amicum erga bene feci. Id. Milefeci utrique. Hor. So satislo, benedico, malefacio.

NOTE. These compounds are often written separately; and the dative always depends not on satis, bene, and male, but on the simple verb. So, also, bene and male aliam volo: as, Tibi bene ex animo volo. Ter. Illi ego ex omnibus optime volo. Plaut. Non sibi male vult. Petron. In like manner valere dico, and vale dico: as, Augustus discendo as et curia sedentibus singulis valere dicebat. Suet. Tibi valdidere non licet gratis. Sen.—In late writers benedico and malefico sometimes take the accusative.

II. Verbs in the passive voice are sometimes followed by a dative of the agent, chiefly in the poets and the later prose writers; as, Quidquid in hac causa mihi susceptum est. Cic. Næque cernitur ulli, Nor is he seen by any one. Virg. Nulla tuarum audita mihi neque visa sororum. Id. Barbarus hic ego sum, quia non intelligor ulli. Ovid. But the agent after passives is usually in the ablative with a or ab. See § 248, I.

III. The participle in dus is followed by a dative of the agent; as, Unda omnibus enaviganda, The wave over which (we) all must pass. Hor. Nobis, cum sæmel occidit brevis lux, Nox est perpetua una dormienda. Catull. Adhibenda est nobis diligentia, We must use diligence. Cic. Vestigia summorum hominum sibi tuenda esse dicit. Id. Si vis me flere, dolendum est primum ipsi tibi. Hor. Faciendum mihi putavi, ut responderem. Id.

REMARK 1. The dative is sometimes wanting when the agent is indefinite; as, Orandum est, ut sit mens sana in corpore sano. Juv. Hic vincendum aut moriendum, milites, est. Liv. In such examples, tibi, vobis, nobis, hominibus, etc., may be supplied. Cf. § 141, R. 2.

REM. 2. The participle in dus sometimes, though rarely, has, instead of the dative of the agent, an ablative with a or ab; as, Non eos in deorum immortalium numero venerandos a vobis et colendos putatos? Cic. Hæc a me in dicendo prætereunda non sunt. Id.—The dative after participles in dus is by some referred to § 226.

IV. Verbs signifying motion or tendency are followed by an accusative with ad or in; as,

Ad templum Palladis ibant. Virg. Ad prætorem hominem trahit. Cic. Vergit ad septemtriones. Cæs. In conspectum venire. Nep.

So curro, dūco, féro, festino, fugio, inclino, lêgo, mitto, pergo, porto, præcipito, propetere, tendo, tollo, vado, verto.

REMARK 1. So likewise verbs of calling, exciting, etc.; as, Enrum ad se vocat. Virg. Provocasse ad pugnam. Cic. So animus, hortor, incito, invito, licesso, stimulo, suscito; to which may be added attineo, conformo, pertineo, and specto.

REM. 2. But the dative is sometimes used after these verbs; as, Clamor in celo. Virg. Dum tibi literas meæ veniant. Cic. Grægem vtridî compellere hibis. Virg. Sedibus hunc refer ante suis. Id. After venio both constructions are used at the same time; as, Venit mihi in mentem. Cic. Venit mihi in suspicionem. Nep. Eum venisse Germanis in amicitiam cognoverat. Cæs. Properinquo (to approach) takes the dative only.

REM. 3. Sometimes also verbs signifying motion are followed by an accusative of place without a preposition, a supine in um, an infinitive, or an adverb of place; as, Romanus profectus est. Itē domum. Rus ibam. Lavinia venit Italia. Virg. Næque ego te deorsum venio. Plaut. Non nos Libyos populum penates venimus. Virg. Huc venit. Plaut. See §§ 287, 276, II. 271, N. 2.

REM. 4. After do, scribo, or mitto literas, the person for whom they are written or to whom they are sent, is put either in the dative or in the accusative with ad; as, Ex eo loco tibi literas ante dederamus. Cic. Vulturcius literas sibi ad Catilinam dātas esse, dicebat. Id. Cæsar scribit Labiēno cum, etc. Cæs. Ad me Cūrus de te scripsit. Cic. But to give one a letter to deliver is also expressed by dāre lētras ālicui, and also the delivery of the letter by the bearer.

§ 226. Est is followed by a dative denoting a possessor;—the thing possessed being the subject of the verb.

Est thus used may generally be translated by the verb to have with the dative as its subject; as, Est mihi dōmī pāter, I have a father at home. Virg. Sunt nobis mīlia pōna, We have mellow apples. Id. Grātia nobis opus est tuā. We have need of your favor. Cic. Innocentiæ plus periculi quam honoris est. Sall. An nescis longus regibus esse manus? Ovid. So with an infinitive as the subject, Nec tibi sit dāros acuisse in prælia dentes. Tib. 4, 3, 3. The first and second persons of sum are not thus construed.

REMARK 1. Hence mihi est nōmen signifies, I have the name, my name is, or I am called. The proper name is put either in the nominative, the dative, or the genitive. See § 204, R. 8. So also cognōmen, cognōmentum, and, in Tacitus, rogātulum, est mihi.—Sometimes, also, a possessive adjective agreeing with nōmen, etc., supplies the place of the proper name; as, Est mihi nōmen Tarniliūm. Gell. Mercuriale impōsuere mihi cognōmen. Hor.

REM. 2. The dative is used with a similar signification after fore, suppedit, abest, deest, and defit; as, Pauper enim non est, cui rerum suppedit usus. Hor. Si mihi cauda foret, cercopithæcus eram. Mart. Defuit urs vobis. Ovid. Non defore Arsacidis virtutem. Tac. Lac mihi non defit. Virg. Hoc umyn illi abfuit. Cic.

REM. 3. With the dative of the person after est Sallust and Tacitus sometimes join, by a Greek idiom, vōlens, cāpiens, and invitus; as, Quia neque plēbi militiā vōlenti (esse) putābatur, Because the common people were not thought to like the war. Sall. Ut quibusque bellum invitis aut cāpiētibz erat, According as each liked or disliked the war. Tac.

DATIVE OF THE END OR PURPOSE.

§ 227. Sum, and several other verbs, are followed by two datives, one of which denotes the object to which, the other the end for which, any thing is, or is done; as,

Mihi maxime est cūræ, It is a very great care to me. Cic. Spēro nobis hanc conjunctionem voluptati fore, I hope this union will afford us pleasure. Id. Mātri puellam dono dedit. Ter. Fābio laudi datum est. Cic. Vitio id tibi vertunt. Plaut. Id tibi hōrōri habetur. Cic. Mātūrivit collēgæ venire auxilio. Liv. Cui bono fuit? To whom was it an advantage? Cic.

REMARK 1. The verbs after which two datives occur, are sum, fore, fio, do, dāno, dāco, habeo, relinqno, tribuo, verto; also curro, eo, mitto, præfiscor, venio, appōno, assigno, cædo, comparo, pateo, suppedito, emo, and some others.

REM. 2. The dative of the end or purpose is often used after these verbs, without the dative of the object; as, Exemplo est formica, The ant (serves for) an example. Hor. Absentium bona divisiui suire. Liv. Reliquit pignōri pitūmna. Plaut. Quæ esui et potui sunt. Gell. Esse derisui, To be a subject of ridicule. Tac. Rēceptui cōdere, To sound a retreat. Cæs. Aliquid dōti dācare, To set out as dowry. Cic.

REM. 3. (a.) The verb sum, with a dative of the end, may be variously rendered; as by the words brings, affords, serves, does, etc. The sign for is often omitted with this dative, especially after sum instead of it, as, or some other particle, may at times be used; as, Ignominia erit tibi magno dēdēcōri, Cowardice will bring great disgrace to you. Cic. Hæc res est argūmento, This thing is an argument, or serves as an argument. Id. Hoc vitio mihi dant, This they set down as a fault in me. Universas cūræ habui. Suet. Una res erat magno ūsui. was of great use. Lucil. Quod tibi magnopere cordi est, mihi vehēmenter displicet, What is a great pleasure, an object of peculiar interest to you, etc. Id.

(b.) Sometimes the words fit, able, ready, etc., must be supplied, especially before a gerund or a gerundive; as, Quum solvendo ciuitates non essent, not able to pay. Cic. Divites, qui onēri fērendo essent. Liv. Quæ restinguendo igni fōrent. Liv. Rādix ejus est vascendo. Plin.

REM. 4. Instead of the dative of the end, a predicate nominative or accusative is sometimes used; as, Nātūrā tu illi pāter es, By nature you are his father. Amor est exitium pēcōri: or the purpose is expressed by the accusative with ad or in; as, Alcui cōmes est ad bellum. Cic. Se Rēmis in clientēlā ducābant. Cæs.: or by the ablative with pro; as, Innocentia pro mālivolentiā duci cepit. Sall. Alcibus sunt arbōres pro cūbilibus. Cæs.

REM. 5. Instead, also, of the dative of the end or purpose, quo? to what end? for what purpose? why? sometimes occurs, with an accusative, which generally depends on a verb understood, or with an infinitive or a clause; as, Quo mihi fortūnā, si non concēditur ūti? Hor. Quo tibi, Pasphe, pretiosas sumere vestes? Ovid.

REM. 6. After do and other similar active verbs an accusative of the purpose is found in apposition; as, Lātini cōrōnā aureā Jōvi dōnū in Cāptiōhū mittunt. Liv. Alcui cōmitem esse dātum. Cic. Cf. § 204, R. 1; and § 230, R. 2.

NOTE. The dative, instead of the accusative, is sometimes used after the infinitive, when a dative precedes, and the subject of the infinitive is omitted; as, Vobis necesse est fortibus esse viris. Liv. Maximo tibi et civi et duci evadere cōtingit. Val. Max. See §§ 205, R. 6, and 239, R. 1.

DATIVE AFTER PARTICLES.

§ 228. Some particles are followed by the dative of the object; as,

1. Some adverbs derived from adjectives; as,

Prōpius Tibēri quā Thermōpŷlis. Nep. Proxime castris, Very near to the camp. Cæs. Prōpius stābūlis armenta tēnērent. Virg. Amprunter nātūræ, convēnienterque vivēre, Agreeably to nature. Cic. Epīcūrus quā sibi cōstanter convēnienterque dicit, non labōrat. Id. Nēmīni nīmīum bēne est. Afran. Mihi nunquā in vitā fuit mēlius. Hor. Vivēre vitæ hōmīnum amice. Cic. Bēne mihi, bēne vōbis. Plaut. So, Mihi obviam vēnistī. Cic. In certāmina sævo cōminis ire viro. Sil. Quæstōres prōvinciæ mihi præsto fuērunt. Cic. Sāmos est exadversum Milēto. App.

REMARK. Prōpius and proxime, like their primitive prōpe, are sometimes construed with a and the ablative; as, Prōpe a meis ædibus. Cic. Stellas errantes prōpius a terris. Id. A Surā proxime est Philiscum, oppidum Parthorum. Plin.

2. Certain prepositions, especially in comic writers; as, Mihi clam est. It is unknown to me. Plaut. Contra nobis. Id. But in such instances they seem rather to be used like adjectives.

3. Certain interjections; as, Hei mihi! Ah me! Virg. Vae mihi! Wo is me! Ter. Vae rictis esse! Liv. Vae misero mihi. Plaut. Ilem tibi. Id. Ecce tibi. Cic.

NOTE. (a.) The dative of the substantive pronouns seems sometimes nearly redundant, but it always conveys the expression of a lively feeling, and is therefore termed dātivus ethicus; as,

For mihi es in my opinion. Plaut. An ille mihi liber, cui mælier imperat? Cic. Tungilius mihi educit. Id. Ubi nunc nobis deus ille magister? Virg. Ecce tibi Sebosus! Cic. Hem tibi talentum argenti! Philippicum est. Plaut. Sibi is sometimes subjoined quite pleonastically to suus; as, Suo sibi gladio hunc jugulo. Plaut. Ignorans suo sibi servit patri. Id. Sibi suo tempore.

(b.) The following phrases also occur with volo and a reflexive pronoun: quid tibi vis? what do you want? quid sibi iste vult? what does he want? quid vult sibi hæc oratio? what does this speech mean? quid hæc sibi dona volunt? what is the meaning of these presents? or, what is their object?

ACCUSATIVE.

ACCUSATIVE AFTER VERBS.

§ 229. The object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative; as, Lægatos mittunt, They send ambassadors. Cæs. Animus movet corpus, The mind moves the body. Cic. Da veniam hanc, Grant this favor. Ter. Eum imitatus sunt, They imitated him. Cic. Piscem Syri venerantur. Id.

REMARK 1. A transitive verb, with the accusative, often takes a genitive, dative, or ablative, to express some additional relation; as,

Te convinco amentie, I convict you of madness. Cic. Da locum mellioribus, Give place to your betters. Ter. Solvit se Teucria luctu, Troy frees herself from grief. Virg. See those cases respectively.

REM. 2. Such is the difference of idiom between the Latin and English languages, that many verbs considered transitive in one, are used as intransitive in the other. Hence, in translating transitive Latin verbs, a preposition must often be supplied in English; as, Ut me cæreret, That he should beware of me. Cic. On the other hand, many verbs, which in Latin are intransitive, and do not take an accusative, are rendered into English by transitive verbs; as, Ille mihi facit, He favors me: and many verbs originally intransitive acquire a transitive signification.

REM. 3. The verb is sometimes omitted:—

1. To avoid its repetition; as, Eventum senatus, quem (scil. dñre) videbatur, dedit. Liv.

2. The interrogative interjection quid? what? depends on ais or censes. So also quid vero? quid igitur? quid ergo? quid enim? which are always followed by another question, and both questions may be united into one proposition, the first serving merely to introduce the interrogation. With quid postea? quid tum? supply sequitur. With quid quod, occurring in transitions, dicam de eo is omitted, but it may be rendered 'nay,' 'nay even,' 'but now,' 'moreover,' etc., without an interrogation.—Dicam is also to be supplied with quid multa? quid plura? ne multa; ne multis; ne plura. The infinitive dicere is also sometimes omitted; as, Nimis multa videor de me. Cic. Perge reliqua. Id.

REM. 4. The accusative is often omitted:—

1. When it is a reflexive pronoun; as, Nox præcipitat, scil. se. Virg. Flus præra avertit. Id. Eo levatum, scil. me. Hor.

The reflexives are usually wanting after aboleo, abstinco, accingo, adequo, æquo, agglomero, aureo, cætero, congemino, continuo, declino, decoquo, desino, differo, doro, erumpo, flecto, deflecto, facesso, incipio, inclino, insinuo, irrumpo, jungo, læro, lazo, lenio, mitato, molio, moveo, mito, pæno, præcipio, præsumo, quatio, remitto, retracto, redo, sisto, stabilio, suspendo, tardo, teneo, tendo, trahico, transmitto, turbo, vario, vergo, verio, averto, revero, vestio, vibro; and more rarely after many others.

2. When it is something indefinite, has been previously expressed in any case, or is easily supplied; as, Ego, ad quos scribam, nescio, scil. litteras Cic. De quo et tecum egi cogitaver, et scripsi ad te. Id. Bene fecit Silius. Id. Dedit in hostem, scil. exercitum. Liv.

REM. 5. An infinitive, or one or more substantive clauses, may supply the place of the accusative after an active verb; as,

Da mihi fallere. Hor. Reddes dulce loqui, reddes ridere decorum. Id. Cūpi me esse clementem. Cic. Athēnienses statuērunt ut naves conscenderent. Id. Vtēror ne a doctis reprehendar. Id. Eue, Bacche, sōnat. Ovid. Sometimes both constructions are united; as, Di Iram miscrantur inānem ambōrum, et tantos mortālibus esse lābōres. Virg.—Respecting the infinitive with and without a subject-accusative after an active verb, see § 270–273; and for the subjunctive after such verbs, see § 273.

(a.) In such constructions, the subject of the dependent clause is sometimes put in the accusative as the object of the leading verb; as, Nosti Marcellum, quam tardus sit, for Nosti quam tardus sit Marcellus. Cic. Illum, ut vivat, optant. Ter. At te ego faciam, ut minus valeas. Plaut.

(b.) An ablative with de may also supply the place of the accusative, by the ellipsis of some general word denoting things, facts, etc., modified by such ablative; as, De repūlicā vestrā paucis accipe. Sall. Compare a similar omission of a sub et modified by de and the ablative, § 209, R. 3, (2.)

REM. 6. The impersonal verbs of feeling, misēret, pœnitet, pūdet, tædet, piget, misērescū, misēretur, and pericūsum est, are followed by an accusative of the person exercising the feeling, and a genitive of the object in respect to which it is exercised. Cf. § 215, (1.); as,

Eōrum nos misēret, We pity them. Cic. The impersonal Vēritum est also occurs with such an accusative; Quos nūm est vēritum pōnere, etc. Cic.

REM. 7. Jūvat, dēlectat, fallit, fūgit, prætērit, and dēcet, with their compounds, take an accusative of the person; as,

Te hilāri animo esse valde me jūvat, That you are in good spirits greatly delights me. Cic. Fūgit me ad te scribere. Cic. Illud altērum quam sit difficile, te non fūgit. Id. Nec vero Cæsārem fēellit. Cæs. Fācis, ut te dēcet. Ter. So also when used personally; as, Purum parva dēcent. Hor.; but dēcet often takes the accusative of the person with the infinitive; as, Hanc maculam nos dēcet effūgere. Ter.; and in comic writers a dative; as, Vobis dēcet. Ter.

For mea, tua, sua, nostra, vestra, after rēfert and intērest, see § 219, R. 1: and for the accusative by attraction, instead of the nominative, see § 206, (6.) (b.)

§ 230. Verbs signifying to name or call; to choose, render or constitute; to esteem or reckon, which in the passive voice have two nominatives, are followed in the active voice by two accusatives, one of the object and the other of the predicate. Cf. § 210, R. 3, (3.); as,

Urbem ex Antiōchī patris nōmine Antiōchiam vocāvit, He called the city Antioch, etc. Just. Lūdōs faciō me, You make game of me. Plaut. Me consūlem fēcistis. Cic. Iram bene Ennius Intium dixit insānia. Id. Ancum Murcium regem pōpūlus creāvit. Liv. Sulpiciū accusātōrem suū nūmērābat, non compēditōrem. Cic. Quum vos testes habeam. Nep.

NOTE 1. The following are among the verbs included in this rule, viz. appello, dico, nōmino, nunciō, pēribeo, sālūto, scribo and inscribo, vōco; cāpio, cōstituo, creo, dēclarō, dēligo, dēsigno, dīro, eligo, faciō, efficio, instituo, lego, prōdo, reddo, rēnuncio, dāco, dignor, existimo, habeo, iūscō, nūmero, pūto, rēpērio, intelligo, invenio, se prætēre or prōstāre, etc.

NOTE 2. An ablative with ex occurs, though rarely, instead of the accusative of the object; as, Fortūna me, qui liber fuēram, servum fēcit, e summe infimū. Plaut. Cf. Qui recta prāva faciunt. Ter.

NOTE 3. An infinitive may supply the place of the objective accusative; as, Me alimū asse vocat crimen. Ovid.:—and sometimes of the predicate accusative also; as, Si rēp̄r̄re vōcas āmittēre certius; aut si scire ūbi sit rēp̄r̄re vōcas. Id. So also an adjective may supply the place of the predicate accusative; as, Præbuit se dignum suis mājoribus. Cic. Cæsarem certiorē faciunt. Cæs.

REMARK 1. After verbs signifying to esteem or reckon, one of the accusatives is often the subject, and the other the predicate, of esse expressed or understood; as,

Eum v̄v̄rum possumus existimāre. Cic. Talem se imp̄r̄tōrē præbuit. Nep. Præsta te eum, qui mihi es cognitus. Cic. Mercārium omnium inventōrē artium f̄erunt; hunc viarum atque itin̄erum dūcē arbitrantur. Cæs.; or an adjective supplies the place of the predicate accusative; as, Ne me existimāris ad m̄nē dum esse prop̄nsiōrē. Cic.

NOTE 4. Instead of the predicate accusative, (1) pro with the ablative sometimes follows p̄tō, dāco, and hābeo, but denotes only an approximation; as, Aliquid pro certo hābere or p̄tāre. Ea pro falsis dūcūt. Sall. Aliquem pro hoste hābere. Cæs.—So also in with the ablative; as, Nihil pr̄ter virtutē in bonis hābere. Cic. Aliquem in nūm̄ro hostium dūcere. Cic.—and the ablative without in; as, Uti vos affinium lōco dūcerem. Sall.—So also e or ex with the ablative; as, (Uti) faceret quod e rēp̄blicā fidēque suā dūceret. Liv.—Sometimes (2) the genitive; as, Officii dūxit exor̄are filia patrem. Suet. (See § 211, R. 8, (3).) So with a genitive or an ablative of price or value; as, P̄tāre āliquem nihilo. Cic. Non hābeo nanci Marsum augūrem. Enn.—and sometimes (3) a dative; as, Quando tu me habes despiciātui. Plaut.—or an adverb; as, Ægre hābuit, filium id pro p̄r̄nte avum. Liv. And (4) ad or in with the accusative; as, Lōca ad hibernācula lēgere. Liv. Aliquem in Patres lēgere. Id.: or (5) the genitive depending on the ablative of cause, manner, etc.; as, Qui servitūtem dēditiōnis nōmine appellānt. Cæs.

REM. 2. Many other verbs, besides their proper accusative, take a second, denoting a purpose, time, character, etc.

Such are do, tribuo, sūmo, p̄tō, pōno, adjungo, ascribo, cognosco, accio, fingo, significo, etc.; as, Quare ejus fūge cōmitem me adjungērem. Cic. Hōmīnum op̄inio socium me ascribit tuis ludibris. Id. Quos ego sim tōties jam dēdignāta mār̄itos. Virg. Hunc igitur rēgem agnosctmus, qui Philippum dēdignātur patrem? Curt. Filiam tuam mihi uxorem posco. Plaut. Petū hanc Sātūrn̄ia mūnus. Ovid. Such constructions may often be referred to apposition, or to an ellipsis of esse.

§ 231. Verbs of asking, demanding, and teaching, and cēlo (to conceal), are followed by two accusatives, one of the person, the other of the thing; as,

Hoc te v̄hēmenter rōgo. Cic. Illud te oro, ut, etc. Id. Rōgo te nummos, I ask you for money. Mart. Posce deos v̄niam, Ask favor of the gods. Virg. Quum legent quis mūsicam docuerūt Ep̄am̄nondam, When they shall read wh̄ taught Ep̄aminondas music. Nep. Antigōnus iter omnes cēlat, Antigonus conceals his route from all. Id. Dēpr̄cār̄i deos m̄la. Sen. Quōd̄ie Cæsar Æd̄us fr̄uentum flāgītare. Cæs. Multa deos orans. Virg.

REMARK 1. This rule includes the verbs of asking and demanding, flagito, efflagito, obsecro, oro, exoro, contendo, percontor, posco, reposco, consūlo, pr̄cor, dēpr̄cor, rōgo, and interrogo, which, with the accusative of the person, take the accusative of the neuter pronouns hoc, id, illud, quod, quid, more frequently than that of a substantive; of teaching, docēo, ed̄d̄eco, dēd̄eco, and erūd̄io, which last has two accusatives only in the poets. Admōneo and consūlo are rarely found with two accusatives; as, Consūlam hunc rem iusticos. Plaut. Eam rem nos lōcus admōnuit. Sall.

REM. 2. Instead of the accusative of the person, verbs of asking and demanding often take the ablative with ab or ex; as, Non dēbēbam abs te has litt̄ras poscere. Cic. V̄niam or̄emus ab ipso. Virg. Istud vōlēbam ex te percontār̄i. Plaut.

REM. 3. (a.) Instead of the accusative of the thing, the ablative with de is sometimes used; as, Sic ego te eisdem de rebus interrogem. Cic. De itinere hostium: sententiam edocet. Sall. Basius noster me de hoc libro celavit. Cic. Cf. § 229 R. 5, (b.).—(b.) Sometimes also instead of the accusative of the thing an infinitive, or an infinitive or subjunctive clause is used; as, Deos precari debetis, ut urbem defendant. Cic. Ut doceam Rullum posthac tacere. Id. Docus id non fieri posse. Id. Doceant eum qui vir Sex. Roscius fuerit. Id.—(c.) With verbs of teaching, the instrument by means of which the art is practised is put in the ablative; as, Aliquem fidibus docere. Cic. Docere aliquem armis. Liv. Literas may be used either in the accusative or in the ablative; as, Te litteras doceo. Cic. Doctus Græcis literis. Id.

REM. 4. Some verbs of asking, demanding, and teaching, are not followed by two accusatives; as, exigo, pto, posulo, quero, scitor, sciscitor, which, with the accusative of the thing, take an ablative of the person with the preposition ab, de, or ex; imbuo, instituo, instruo, etc., which are sometimes used with the ablative of the thing, generally without a preposition, and are sometimes otherwise construed; as, Instituere aliquem ad dicendum. Cic.

REM. 5. (a.) Many active verbs with the accusative of the person, take also an accusative denoting in what respect or to what degree the action of the verb is exerted.

(b.) The accusative of degree, etc., is commonly nihil, a neuter pronoun, or a neuter adjective of quantity; as, Non quo me aliquid juvare posses. Cic. Pauca pro tempore milites hortatus. Sall. Id adjuta me. Ter. Næque est te fallere quidquam. Virg. Cf. § 232, (8.)

REM. 6. By a similar construction, genus and seculus, 'sex,' are sometimes used in the accusative, instead of the genitive of quality; as, Nullas hoc genus vigiliis vigilarunt. Gell. So, Omnes muliebre seculis. Suet. Cf. 211, R. 6, (4.)

§ 232. (1.) Some neuter verbs are followed by an accusative of kindred signification to their own; as,

Vitam jucundam vivere, To live a pleasant life. Plaut. Mirum somniavi somnium, I have dreamed a wonderful dream. Id. Furere hunc furorem. Virg. Istam pugnam pugnabo. Plaut. Pugnare dicenda Mæsis proelia. Hor. Lusum insolentem ludere. Id. Si non servitutem serviat. Plaut. Quorū haud faciles questus. Stat. Juravi verissimum iusjurandum. Cic. Ignotas jubet ire vias. Val. Flacc. So, also, Ire exsequias, To go to a funeral. Ter. Ire supplicias, To go to one's assistance. Ire infitias, To deny. This expression is equivalent to infittior, and may like that take an accusative; as, Si hoc unum adiunxero, quod nemo est infittias. Nep.: or the accusative with the infinitive; as, Næque infittias inus Siciliam nostrum provinciam esse. Liv. Ut suum gaudium gauderemus. Cæc. ad Cic. Proficisci magnum iter. Cic. Populi ilque reditque viam. Virg. This accusative is usually qualified by an adjective.

(2.) Verbs commonly neuter are sometimes used transitively, and are then followed by an accusative.

Accusatives are thus used with oleo and sapio, and their compounds, redoleo, resipio; as, Olet unguenta, He smells of perfumes. Ter. Olere peregrinura, To have a foreign smell. Cic. Orationes redolentes antiquitatem. Id. Mella herbam eam sapiunt, The honey tastes of that herb. Plin. Uva piceum resipiens. Id. So, Stitio honores. Cic. Carnem pluit. Liv. Claudius aleam stultissimè lussit. Suet. Erumpere diu coercitam iram in hostes. Liv. Libros evigilare. Ovid. Prætere verba. Liv. Nec vox hominem sonat. Virg. Sulcare mella. Id. Morientem nomine clamat. Id. Quis post vina gravem militiam aut pauperiem crepat? Hor. Omnes una nuncet nox. Id. Ingrati animi crimen horreo. Cic. Ego meas quæror fortunas. Plaut. Vivere Bacchanalia. Juv. Pastorem sullaret uti Cyclops, rogabat. Hor. So the passive; Nunc agrestem Cyclopem movetur. Id. Xerxes quum mare ambulavisset, terram navigasset. Cic. Qui stadium currit. Id. Communia jura migrare. Id. Te volo colloqui. Plaut. Ea disserrere mæna. Cic.

Chrysolon ardēbat Alexin. Virg. Stygias jūrātimus undas. Ovid. Nāt, jat sequor Virg. Curvinus sequor. Id. Pascuntur sylvas. Id.

NOTE 1. Accusatives are found in like manner after ambūlo, calleo, dōleo, equito, flo, gaudeo, gēmo, glōrior, horreo, lator, lātro, nāto, palleo, pāceo, pēreo, depēreo, pōcēdo, quēror, rideo, sileo, sūblo, tāceo, trēmo, trēpido, vādo, vēnio, etc.

(3.) Neuter verbs and sometimes adjectives also may be followed by an accusative denoting in what respect, or to what degree, the feeling, condition, etc., is manifested; as,

Nihil lāboro. Cic. Num id lacrimat virgo? Does the maid weep on that account? Ter. Multa ālia peccat. Cic. Quicquid dētrant rēges, plectuntur Achivi. Hor. Nec tu id indignārī posses. Liv. Illud mihi latandum video. Cic. Illud valde tibi assentior. Id. Idem glōriārī. Id. Hæc glōrians. Liv. Hoc stūdel ūnum. Hor.—So, Id opērum dō, I strive for this. Ter. Consilium pētis, quid tibi sim auctor. Cic. Quod quidam auctōres sunt, Which is attested by some authors. Liv. Nil nostri miserere! Virg.—Nihil Rōmāna plēbis similis. Liv. Sēnitus nihil sāne intentus. Sall. These limiting accusatives have commonly the force of adverbs, particularly nihil, which is used like an emphatic non in the sense of 'in no way,' 'in no respect.' So non nihil, 'to some extent,' 'in some measure.'

NOTE 2. In the above and similar examples, the prepositions ob, propter, per, ad, etc., may often be supplied. This construction of neuter verbs is most common with the neuter accusatives id, quid, quidquam, aliquid, quicquid, quod, nihil, nonnihil, idem, illud, tantum, quantum, unum, multa, pauca, ālia, cētera, omnia, etc. Cf. § 256, R. 16, N.

§ 233. Many verbs are followed by an accusative depending upon a preposition with which they are compounded.

(1.) Active verbs compounded with trans, ad, and circum, have sometimes two accusatives, one depending upon the verb, the other upon the preposition; as,

Omnem equitātum pontem transducit. He leads all the cavalry over the bridge. Cæs. Agessilāus Hellespontum cōpias trājēcit. Nep. Petrēus jusjurandum ad igit Afrānium. Cæs. Roscillum Pompēius omnia sua præsidia circumduxit. Id. So, Pontus scōpulos superjācit undam. Virg. So, also, adverto and induco with ānimum; as, Id ānimum advertit. Cæs. Id quod ānimum induxerat paulisper non tenuit. Cic. So, also, injicio in Plautus—Ego te mām injiciam.

(2.) Some other active verbs take an accusative in the passive depending upon their prepositions; as, Māgicas accingier artes, To prepare oneself for magic arts. Virg. In prose writers the ad is in such cases repeated; as, accingi ad consūlatum. Liv. Clusis circumvēhitur arcem. Id. Quod anguis dōmī vectem circumjēctus fuisset. Cic. Iōcum prætervectus sum. Id.

(3.) Many neuter verbs, especially verbs of motion, or of rest in a place, when compounded with prepositions which govern an accusative, become transitive, and accordingly take an accusative; as,

Gentes quæ mære illud adjācent, The nations which border upon that sea. Nep. Obiqtātare agmen. Curt. Incēdunt mæstos lōcos. Tac. Translūi flammās. Ovid. Succēdere tecta. Cic. Lūdōrum diēbus, qui cognitiōnem intervēnerant. Tac. Adire provinciā. Suet. Caveat ne prælūm ineat. Cic. Ingrēdi iter pēdibus. Cic. Epīcūri hortis quos mōdo prætēribāmus. Id.

NOTE. To this rule belong many of the compounds of ambūlo, cēdo, curro, eo, equito, fūgo, grātior, labor, no and nāto, rēpo, sālio, scanō, vādo, vēhor, vēnio, vōlo;—cēdo, fūgo, sēdes, sisto, sto, etc., with the prepositions included in § 224, and with ex.

REMARK 1. Some neuter verbs compounded with prepositions which govern an ablative, in like manner become transitive, and are followed by an accusative; as, Nēmīnem convēni, I met with no one. Cic. Quī sociētātem coiēris. Id. Aversāri hōnōres. Ovid. Urī arbōrem āversi dēripunt. Plin. Edormi crāpūlam. Cic. Egressus exsilium. Tac. Exādūque cēler ripam. Virg. Excēdēre nūmērum. Tac. Exire līmen. Ter. Tibur āquā fertilē praeſtunt. Hor.

REM. 2. After verbs both active and neuter, compounded with prepositions which take an accusative, the preposition is often repeated, or one of similar signification is used; as,

Cesar se ad nēmīnem adiunxit. Cic. Multitudinem trans Rhēnum in Galliā transducere. Cæs.—In Galliā invāsit Aulōnius. Cic. Ad me adire quādam mēmini. Id. Orātor peragrat per animos hōmīnum. Id. Ne in sēnātum accēderem. Id. Rēgina ad templum incescit. Virg. Juxta gēntiōrem adstat Lavinia. Id. Fines extra quos egredi non possim. Cic. A dative instead of the accusative often follows such compounds, according to § 224. Circum is not repeated.

NOTE. Some verbal nouns and verbal adjectives in bundus are followed by an accusative, like the transitive verbs from which they are derived; as, Quid tibi huc receptio ad te est meum vīrum? Wherefore do you receive my husband hither to you? Plaut. Quid tibi, mālum, me, aut quid ego āgam, cūratio 'st? Id. Quid tibi hanc aditio est? Id. Quid tibi hanc nōtio est, inquam, amīcam meam? Quid tibi hanc digito luctio 'st? Id. Hanno vitābundus castra hostium consulesque. Liv. Mithridātes Rōmānum mēditābundus bellum. Just. Mirābundi vānam spēcīem. Liv. Pōpūlabundus agros. Sisenn. Carnificem imāgnābundus. App.

§ 234. A verb in the passive voice has the same government as in the active, except that the accusative of the active voice becomes the nominative of the passive.

NOTE 1. The accusative of the person with the infinitive, after verbs of saying and commanding, may become the subject of the passive voice; as, Active, Dico rēgem esse justum;—Passive, Rex dicitur justus esse. Act. Jūbeo te rēdire;—Pass. Jubēris rēdire: the construction in the passive being the same as though rēgem and te had depended immediately upon dico and jūbeo.—So, also, when the accusative of the person is the object of the verb and the infinitive stands as the accusative of the thing. Cf. § 270, N.

I. When a verb, which in the active voice takes an accusative both of the person and of the thing, is changed to the passive form, the accusative of the person becomes the nominative, and the accusative of the thing is retained; as,

Rōgātus est sententiam, He was asked his opinion. Liv. Interrogātus causam. Tac. Sēgētes āllmentāque debita dives poscēbātur hūmus. Ovid. Mōtus dōcēre gaudet lōntos mātūra virgo. Hor. Omnes belli artes edoctus. Liv. Nosne hoc cēlātus tam diu? Ter. Multa in extis mōnēmur. Cic.

NOTE 2. The accusative of the thing after doctus and edoctus is rare; and after cēlāri it is generally a neuter pronoun; as hoc or id cēlābar; of this I was kept in ignorance; but it is found also with the person in the dative; as, Id. Alcibiādī diūtius cēlārī non potuit. Nep. Alcib. 5. Cēlo, and especially its passive, generally de with the ablative.

REMARK 1. (a.) Induo and exuo, though they do not take two accusatives in the active voice, are sometimes followed by an accusative of the thing in the passive; as, Induitur atras vestes, She puts on sable garments. Ovid. Thorāca indūtus. Virg. Exūta est Rōma sēnectam. Mart. So inducor and cingor; as, Ferrum cingitur. Virg. So recingitur anguem. Ovid.

(b.) When two accusatives follow an active verb compounded with trans the passive retains that which depends upon the preposition; as, Belgæ Rhēnum antiquitus transducti. Cæs.

REM. 2. The future passive participle in the neuter gender with est, is sometimes, though rarely, followed by an accusative; as, Multa nobis rēbus quum sit agendum. Lucr. Quam (viam) nobis ingrediendum est. Cic.

II. Adjectives, verbs, and perfect participles, are sometimes followed by an accusative denoting the part to which their signification relates; as, Nudus membra, Bare as to his limbs. Virg. Os humerosque deo similis. Id. Clari genus. Tac. Tribuni suam vicem anxii. Liv. Tremi artus. Virg. Cetera parce puer bello. Id. Sibila colla timentem. Id. Expleri mentem nequit. Id. Grincus fruitur oculos. Ovid. Picti scuta Libici. Virg. Collis frontem leniter fastigatus. Cæs. Animum incensus. Liv. Oblitus faciem suo cruore. Tac.

REMARK 1. In this construction an ablative is often joined with the perfect participle; as, Miles fractus membra labore. Hor. Dexterum genu lapide ictus. Suet. Adversum femur tragula graviter ictus. Liv.

REM. 2. This is a Greek construction, and is usually called the limiting or Greek accusative. It is used instead of an ablative of limitation, (§ 250,) and occurs most frequently in poetry.

REM. 3. A limiting accusative instead of the ablative is found also in a few ordinary expressions, as in partim (for partem), vicem, magnum and maximam partem, instead of magna or maxima ex parte, or the adverb ferè; as, Maximam partem lucte vivunt. Cæs. Magnam partem ex iambus nostra constat oratio. Cic. Livy has magna pars, viz. Nimidae, magna pars agrestes.—So cetera and religua are joined to adjectives in the sense of ceteris, 'for the rest,' 'in other respects'; as, Proximum regnum, cetera egyptium, ab una parte haud satis prosperum fuit. Liv. So cetera similia, cetera bonus. A te bis terve summum litras accipi. Cic.—So, also, in the expressions id temporis; id, hoc or idem ætatis, illud horæ, for eo tempore, eâ ætate, etc.; id genus, omne genus, quod genus.

III. Some neuter verbs which are followed by an accusative, are used in the passive voice, the accusative becoming the subject, according to the general rule of active verbs; as, Tertia vinitur ætas. Ovid. Bellum militabitur. Hor. Dormiunt hiems. Mart. Multa peccantur. Cic. Aditur Gnosius Minos. Sen. Ne ab omnibus circumstritur. Cæs. Hostes invadi posse. Sall. Campus obitur aqua. Ovid. Plures tantur gratiæ. Cic. Ea res silitur. Id.

ACCUSATIVE AFTER PREPOSITIONS.

§ 235. (1.) Twenty six prepositions are followed by the accusative.

These are ad, adversus or adversum, antiè, apud, circa or circum, circiter, cis or citra, contra, erga, extra, infra, inter, intra, juxta, ob, pènes, pèr, post, pòne, præter, pròpè, propter, secundum, suprà, trans, ultrà; as,

Ad templum non æquæ Pallidis ibant,—to the temple. Virg. Adversus hostes, Against the enemy. Liv. Germani qui cis Rhenum incolunt,—this side the Rhine. Cæs. Quum tantum resident intra muros mali. Cic. Principio rerum imperium pènes reges erat. Just. Templum pònam propter aquam. Virg. Inter agendum. Id. Ante donandum. Id. Respecting the signification of some of the preceding preposit. see § 195, R. 5, etc.

REMARK 1. Cis is generally used with names of places; citra with other words also; as, Cis Tisurum. Cic. Cis Padum. Liv. Paucos cis menses. Plaut. Citra Viliam. Cic. Citra satiētatem, Not to satiety. Col. Citra jātīgatiōnem. Cels. Citra Trōjāna tempōra. Ovid.

REM. 2. Inter, signifying between, applies to two accusatives jointly, and sometimes to a single plural accusative; as, Inter me et Scipionem. Cic. Inter nātos et pārentes. Id. Inter nos, Among ourselves. Id. Inter falcārios, Among the scythe-makers. Cic. When it denotes time it signifies during, and more rarely at; as, Inter ipsum pugna tempus. Liv. Inter canam. Cic.

REM. 3. Ante and post are commonly joined with concrete official titles, when used to indicate time, rather than with the corresponding abstract nouns; as, ante or post Cicēronem consūlem, rather than ante or post consūlatum Cicēronis.

(2.) In and sub, denoting motion or tendency, are followed by the accusative; denoting situation, they are followed by the ablative; as,

Via dūcit in urbem, The way conducts into the city. Virg. Noster in te amor. Cic. Cullimāchi ēpigramma in Cleombrotum est—on or concerning Cleombrotus. Id. Exercitus sub jūgum missus est, The army was sent under the yoke. Cæs. Magna mei sub terras ibit imāgo. Virg. Mediā in urbe, In the midst of the city. Ovid. In his fuit Ariovistus. Cæs. Bella sub Iliadis mœnibus gēreŕe, To wage war under the Trojan walls. Ovid. Sub nocte silenti. Virg.

REM. 4. The most common significations of in, with the accusative, are, into, to, towards, until, for, against, about, concerning,—with the ablative, in, on, upon, among. In some instances, in and sub, denoting tendency, are followed by the ablative, and, denoting situation, by the accusative; as, In conspectu meo audet venire. Phæd. Natiōnes quæ in amicitiam pōpuli Rōmāni, ditiōnemque eŕant. Id. Sub jūgo dictātor hostes misit. Liv. Hostes sub montem conŕesse. Cæs.

REM. 5. In and sub, in different significations, denoting neither tendency nor situation, are followed sometimes by the accusative, and sometimes by the ablative; as, Amor crescit in hōras. Ovid. Hostilem in mōdum. Cic. Quod in bōno servo dici posset. Id. Sub eā conditiōne. Ter. Sub pœnā mortis. Suet.

REM. 6. In expressions relating to time, sub, denoting at or in, usually takes the ablative; as, Sub adventu Rōmānōrum. Liv. Sub luce. Ovid. Sub tempōre. Lucan. Denoting near, about, just before or just after, it takes the accusative; as, Sub lucem. Virg. Sub lūmina prima. Hor. Sub hoc hērus inquit. Id.

REM. 7. In is used with neuter adjectives in the accusative in forming adverbial phrases; as, In universum, In general. In lōtum, Wholly. So, in plēnum; in incertum; in tantum; in quantum; in majus; in melius; in omnia, in all respects, etc.

(3.) Sūper, when denoting place or time, is followed by the accusative, and sometimes poetically by the ablative; but when it signifies on, about, or concerning, it takes the ablative. With the accusative sūper signifies over, above, besides or in addition to; with numerals, more than; as,

Sūper labentem culmīna tecti, Gliding over the top of the house. Virg. Sūper tres mōdios. Liv. Sūper morbum etiam fāmes affēcit exercitum. Id. Sūper tēnēro prosterenit grāmīne corpus, He stretches his body on the tender grass. Virg. Multa sūper Priāmo rōgītans sūper Hec̄tōre mulla, ... concerning Priam, etc. Id.

REM. 8. The compound dēsūper is found with the accusative, and insūper with the accusative and the ablative.

(4.) Subter generally takes the accusative, but sometimes, in poetry, the ablative; as, Subter terras, Under the earth. Liv. Subter densā testūdīne. Virg.

(5.) Clam is followed by either the accusative or the ablative; as,

Clam vos, Without your knowledge. Cic. Clam patrem. Ter. Clam matrem suam. Plaut. Clam vobis. Cæs. Neque potest clam me esse. Plaut. Clam uxore meâ. Id. Its diminutive clanculum is once followed by the accusative, clanculum patres. Ter.

REM. 9. The adverbs versus or versum and usque are sometimes annexed to an accusative, principally of place, which depends on ad or in, and sometimes the preposition is omitted; as, Ad Océanum versus proficisci. Cæs. Fugam ad se versum. Sall. In Galliam versus castra movere. Id.—Usque ad Numan-tiam. Cic. Usque in Pamphylia. Id. Ad noctem usque. Plaut.—Brundisium versus. Cic. Terminos usque Libye. Just. Usque Ennam perfecti. Cic. Versus is always placed after the accusative.—Usque occurs more rarely with sub and trans with the accusative; as, Trans Alpes usque transferitur. Cic. Usque sub extrêmum brûmâs imbrem.—Versus also rarely follows ab, and usque either ab or ex with the ablative; as, Ab septentrione versus. Varr. A fundamento usque movisti mare. Plaut. Usque ex ultimâ Syriâ. Cic. Usque a puertitiâ. Ter. Usque a Rômulo. Cic. Usque a mâne ad vesperum. Plaut.

REM. 10. Prepositions are often used without a noun depending upon them but such noun may usually be supplied by the mind; as, Multis post innis, i. e. post id tempus. Cic. Circum Concordiæ, scil. ædem. Sall.

REM. 11. The accusative, in many constructions, is supposed to depend on a preposition understood; as, Quid opus est plura? i. e., propter quid? why? i. q. cur? or quare? Cic. So, Quid me ostentem? Id. But it is not easy, in every case, to say what preposition should be supplied. For the accusative without a preposition after neuter verbs, see § 232. For the accusative of limitation, see § 234, II.

ACCUSATIVE OF TIME AND SPACE.

§ 236. Nouns denoting duration of time, or extent of space, are put, after adjectives and verbs, in the accusative, and sometimes after verbs in the ablative; as,

ACC. Appius cæcus multos annos fuit, Appius was blind many years. Cic. Bituum Lædiciæ fuit. Id. Dies totos de virtute disserunt. Id. Te jam annum audientem Cratippum. Id.—Decrevērunt intercalarium quinque et quadraginta dies longum. Id.—Quum abessem ab Amâno iter unius diei. Id. Tres paterat casus spatium non amplius ulnas. Virg. (Cf. § 256, R. 6.) A portu stadia centum et viginti processimus. Cic.—Duas fossas quindécim pèdes lâtas perduxit,—two ditches fifteen feet broad. Cæs. Fossæ quinos pèdes altæ. Id. Foramina longa pèdes tres sèmis. Cato. Orbem olearium crassum digitos sex facito. Id.—ABL. Vixit annis undétriginta. Suet. Quatuordécim annis exsilium toleravit. Tac. Triginta annis vixit Panætius. Cic.—Exercitus Rômânus tridui itinère ab-fuit ab amne Tanai. Tac. Æsculipi templum quinque millibus passuum dis-tans. Liv.

NOTE 1. The ablative denoting extent of time and space is rarely used by Cicero, and less frequently than the accusative by other writers.

NOTE 2. The accusative denoting extent of space sometimes follows the ab-verbs longe, allic, etc.; as, Campestris locus allic duos pèdes et sèmissæ in-fa-ciendus est. Colum. Vercingetorix locum castris deliguit ab Avarico longe millia passuum sèdècim. Cæs.

NOTE 3. (a.) Old, in reference to the time which a person has lived, is expressed in Latin by natus, with an accusative of the time; as, Decessit Alexander mensem unum, annos tres et triginta natus. Just. (b.) A person's age may also be expressed without natus by a genitive of the time closely connected with his name, according to § 211, R. 6; as, Alexander annorum trium et triginta decessit. (c.) Older or younger than a certain age is ex-pressed by prefixing to the accusative or genitive of the definite age the adverbs plus o: minus, or the adjectives māior or minor, either with or without quam. See § 256, R. 6 and 7.—Sometimes, also, the ablative depends on the comparative; as, Minor viginti quinque annis natus. Nep. Minor triginta annis natus. Cic. Biennio quam nos maior. Id. Cf. § 256, R. 16. (1.)

REMARK 1. Nouns denoting time or space, used to limit other nouns, are put in the genitive or ablative. See § 211, R. 6.

REM. 2. A term of time not yet completed may be expressed by an ordinal number; as, Nos vicēsimū jam diem patimur hēbecere aciem hōrum auctōritatis. Cic. Paulo bello duodecimū annum Italia arēbatur. Liv. Hence in the passive, Nunc tertia videtur setas. Ovid.

REM. 3. The accusative or ablative of space is sometimes omitted, while a genitive depending on it remains; as, Castra quas abstant bidui, scil. spatio or spatio. Cic.

REM. 4. To denote a place by its distance from another, the ablative is commonly used; as, Millibus passuum sez a Casatris castris consistit. Cæs.; but sometimes the accusative; as, Tria passuum millia ab ipsā urbe castra posuit. Liv. The only words used for this purpose in the ablative alone are spatio and interrallo; as, Quindēctm ferme milium spatio castra ab Tarento posuit. Id.

NOTE 4. For abhinc and a cardinal number, with the accusative or ablative of past time, see § 253, R. 2. For the ablative denoting difference of time or space, see § 256, R. 16.

REM. 5. A preposition is sometimes expressed before an accusative of time or space, but it generally modifies the meaning; as, Quem per decem annos aluius, during ten years. Cic.

REM. 6. When the place from which the distance is reckoned is not mentioned, ab is sometimes placed before the ablative of distance, as if this depended on the preposition; as, A millibus passuum duobus castra posuerunt, Two miles from the place, or, Two miles off. Cæs.

REM. 7. An accusative of weight also occurs when expressed by libram or libras in connection with pondo. Cf. § 211, R. 6. (4.)

ACCUSATIVE OF PLACE.

§ 237. After verbs expressing or implying motion, the name of the town in which the motion ends is put in the accusative without a preposition; as,

Regulus Carthāginem rediit, Regulus returned to Carthage. Cic. Capuam aecitit iter, He turns his course to Capua. Liv. Calpurnius Romam proficiet. Sall. Romam erat nunciatum. Cic.

REMARK 1. The accusative, in like manner, is used after iter with sum, ibeo, etc.; as, Iter est mihi Lūndvium. Cic. Cæsarem iter habere Capuam. Id. And even after sum alone; as, Omnia illa municipta, quæ sunt a l'ibone Brundisium. Cic. So with a verbal noun; as, Adventus Romam. Liv. Reditus Roman. Cic.

REM. 2. (a.) The preposition to be supplied is in, denoting to or into, which is sometimes expressed; as, In Ephēsum abiit. Plaut. Ad, before the name of a town, denotes direction towards it; as, Iter dirigere ad Mātinam. Cic.; and also its vicinity; as, Adolescentulus miles profectus sum ad Capuam; i. e. in castra ad Capuam. Id. So, Lælius cum classe ad Brundisium venit. Cæs. Cæsar ad Gēnevam perrenit. Id. Quum ego ad Hērāclēam accēderem. Cic.

(b.) When verbs, oppidum, lōcus, etc., follow the names of towns as appositions, they generally take a preposition; as, Dēmātrātus se contulit Tarquinios, in urbem Etrūrie florētissimam. Cic. Ad Cirtam oppidum iter constituit. Sall.—So also when the name of the town is qualified by an adjective; as, Magnum

Itē ad doctas prōficiēci cōgor Athēnas. Prop. But the poets and later writers sometimes omit the preposition; as, Ovid, Her. 2, 88.

REM. 3. Instead of the accusative, a dative is sometimes, though rarely, used; as, Carthāgini nuncios mittam. Hor. Cf. § 225, IV. and R. 2.

REM. 4. Dōmus in both numbers, and rus in the singular, are put in the accusative, like names of towns; as, Itē dōmum, Go home. Virg. Galli dōmos abiērunt,—had gone home. Liv. Rus ibo. I will go into the country. Ter.

NOTE. (a.) When dōmus is limited by a genitive or a possessive adjective pronoun, it sometimes takes a preposition: with other adjectives, the preposition is generally expressed; as, Non introeo in nostram dōmum. Plaut. Venisse in dōmum Leccæ. Cic. Ad eam dōmum prōfecti sunt. Id. In dōmos sup̄eras p̄canl̄ere cura fuit. Ovid. Rarely, also, when not limited; as, Sōcrates philōsophum in dōmos intrōdūxit. Cic. So, lōrem suum. App., or ad lārem suum. Cic. Cūrtas in Albense rus inferre. Plin. Quum in s̄ta rūra vēnerunt. Cic. With the possessor's name in the genitive, either dōmum or in dōmum is used; as, Pompōniū dōmum vēnisse. Cic. In dōmum Mælii tēla inf̄eruntur. Liv.

(b.) Dōmus is sometimes used in the accusative after a verbal noun; as, Dōmum reditiōnis spe sublātā. Cæs. So, Itio dōmum. Cic. Concursus dōmum. Cæs. Cf. R. 1.

REM. 5. (a.) Before the names of countries and of all other places in which the motion ends, except those of towns, and dōmus and rus, the preposition is commonly used; as, Ex Asiā transis in Europam. Curt. Te in Epirum vēnisse gaudeo. Cic. But it is sometimes omitted; as, Dēveniunt sp̄luncam. Virg. Livēn̄re lōcos. Id. Tūmulum antiquæ Cēr̄is sēdemque sacratum vēnimus. Id. Ibis Cērōpius portus. Ovid. So, also, before names of countries, especially those ending in us; as, Ægyptus, Bospōrus, Chersōnesus, Epirus, Pēlōponn̄sus, etc. So, also, Illyricum prōfectus. Cæs. Macedōniā pervēnit. Liv. Africam transiitrus. Id. So, Tacitus construes even names of nations, when used, as they often are, for those of countries; as, Ductus inde Cangos exercitus. Ibēros ad patrūm regnum pervādīt. So, Virgil, Nos ibimus Afros.—Pliny has, Insulas Rubri M̄ris nāvīgunt.

(b.) Before the names of small islands the preposition is frequently omitted; as, Pausaniam cum clausē Cyprum mis̄runt. Nep.: but rarely before the names of the larger islands; as, Sardinia, Britannia, Cr̄eta, Eubœa, Sicilia.

(c.) Before accusatives of any words denoting locality after verbs of motion, the poets omit the preposition; as, Italiā—Lavinid̄que vēnit lit̄ora. Virg.—The old accusative fōras is used, like names of towns, to denote the place whither, while fōris denotes the place where; as, Vade fōras. Mart. Eti: fōras. Plaut.

ACCUSATIVE AFTER ADJECTIVES, ADVERBS, AND INTERJECTIONS.

§ 238. 1. (a.) The adjectives prōpior and proximus, with their adverbs prōpius and proxime, like their primitive prōpe, are often joined with the accusative; as,

Hæc prōpior montem suos collōcat. Sall. Crassus proximus m̄re Oceānum hiem̄rat. Cæs.—Libyes prōpius m̄re Africū agūtābant. Sall. Proxime Hispaniū Mauri sunt. Id.

(b.) The adverbs pr̄id̄e and post̄rid̄e are also often followed by the accusative; as, Pr̄id̄e eum diem. Cic. Pr̄id̄e idus. Id. Post̄rid̄e ludos. Id.—(c.) An accusative sometimes follows intus and cōtinus; as, Intus dōmum. Plaut. Agrestes cōtinus in̄r̄e suos, scil. in. Prop.

REMARK 1. The accusative with pridie and postidie is by s.m. referred to ante and post understood. For the genitive after these words, see § 212, R. 4. N. 6.—Respecting versus, usque, exadversus (-um) and obversus with the accusative, see § 195, R. 3: and § 235, R. 3.

REM. 2. The adverb bene, by the elipsis of valere jubeo, is sometimes followed by the accusative in forms of drinking health; as, Bene vrs, bene nos, bene te, bene me, bene nostrum etiam Stêphanium! Plaut. Bene Messalam, a health to Messala. Tibull. It is also construed with the dative. See § 228, 1.

2. In exclamations, the noun or pronoun which marks the object of the feeling is put in the accusative either with or without the interjections, O! ah! heu! eheu! ecce! en! hem! pro! or vœ! as,

En quattuor aras! ecce duas tibi Daphni! Behold four altars! lo, two for thee, Daphnis! Virg. Eccum! eccus! eccillum! for ecce eum! ecce eos! ecce illum! Plaut. O praetiarum custodem! Cic. Heu me infelicem! Ter. Pro Deum hominumque fidem! Cic. Ah me, me! Catull. Eheu me miserum! Ter. Item aetatis! Id. Vae te! Plaut. Vae me! Sen. Miserum me! Ter. Hominem gravem et creum egyptium! Cic. Cf. § 228, 3.

NOTE. The accusative after interjections is supposed to depend on some verb of emotion to be supplied.

SUBJECT-ACCUSATIVE.

§ 239. The subject of the infinitive mood is put in the accusative; as, Mileste Pompeium id ferre constabat, That Pompey took that ill, was evident. Cic. Eos hoc nomine appellari fas est. Id. Miror te ad me nihil scribere, I wonder that you do not write to me. Cn. Mag. in Cic. Campos jubet esse patentes. Virg.

NOTE 1. In historical writing the present infinitive has sometimes its subject in the nominative. Cf. § 209, R. 5.

REMARK 1. The subject of the infinitive is omitted when it precedes in the genitive or dative case; as, Est adolescentis majores natu revereri, scil. eum. Cic. Expatit binus esse robis, scil. vos. Ter.; and rarely when it precedes in the accusative; as, Ea populus letari et merito dicere fieri; and also when its place is supplied by a possessive pronoun expressed or understood; as, Non fuit consilium (meum)—servilibus officiis intentum aetatem agere (scil. me). Sal.

REM. 2. A substantive pronoun is also sometimes omitted before the infinitive, when it is the subject of the preceding verb; as, Pollicitus sum suscepturum (me), scil. me, I promised (that I) would undertake. Ter. Sed reddere posse negabit, scil. se. Virg.

REM. 3. The subject of the infinitive is often omitted, when it is a general word for person or thing; as, Est aliud iracundum esse, aliud iratum, scil. homi nem. Cic. See § 269, R. 1.

REM. 4. The subject-accusative, like the nominative, is often wanting. See § 209, R. 3. The subject of the infinitive may be an infinitive or a clause. See § 269, R. 3.

NOTE 2. For the verbs after which the subject-accusative with the infinitive is used see § 272. For the accusative in the predicate after infinitives neuter and passive, see § 210.

VOCATIVE.

§ 240. The vocative is used, either with or without an interjection, in addressing a person or thing.

REMARK 1. The interjections O, heu, and pro (proh), also ah, as (hau), ehem, eho, ehodum, eia (heia), hem, heus, hui, io, and ohe, are followed by the vocative; as,

O formosè puer! O beautiful boy! Virg. Heu virgo! Id. Pro sancte Jùpter! Cic. Ah stult! Ter. Heus Sýre! Id. Ohe ñbelle! Mart. Ehodum bone vir. Ter.—Urbem, mi Rñfe, cõle. Cic. Quintili Vare, lẽgĩtmes redde. Suet. Quo mortĩtũe ruis? Hor. Macte virtũte estu. Cic.

REM. 2. The vocative is sometimes omitted, while a genitive depending upon it remains; as, O miserẽ sortis! scil. hõmĩnes. Lucan.

NOTE. The vocative forms no part of a proposition, but serves to designate the person to whom the proposition is addressed.

ABLATIVE.

The ablative denotes certain relations of nouns and pronouns, all of which are expressed in English by means of prepositions. In Latin this case is sometimes accompanied by a preposition, and sometimes stands alone. Cf. § 37, 6.

ABLATIVE AFTER PREPOSITIONS.

§ 241. Eleven prepositions are followed by the ablative.

These are ã, (or ãb, abs), absquẽ, dẽ; cõram, pũlam, cum, ex, (ẽ); inẽ, tẽnũs, prõ, and prẽ; as,

Ab illo tempõre, From that time. Liv. A scribendo, From writing. Cic. Cum exercitũ, With the army. Sall. Certis de causis, For certain reasons. Cic. Ex fugã, From flight. Id. Pũlam pũpũlo. Liv. Sine labõre. Cic. Cũpũlo tẽnuẽ. Virg. Cantabit vãcus cõram lãtrõne viãtor. Juv. cf. § 195, 5.

NOTE. Of the prepositions followed by the ablative, five signify removal or separation, viz. ã (ãb or abs), dẽ, ẽ (or ex), absquẽ and inẽ.

REMARK 1. Tẽnuẽ is always placed after its case. It sometimes takes the genitive plural. See § 221, III.—Cum is always appended to the ablative of the personal pronouns me, te, se, nõbis, and võbis, and commonly to the ablatives of the relative pronoun, quõ, quã, quĩbus, and quĩ. Cf. § 133, 4, and § 136, R. 1.

REM. 2. The adverbs prõcul and simul are sometimes used with an ablative, which depends on the prepositions a or ab, and cum understood; as, Prõcul mãri, Far from the sea. Liv. Simul nõbis hãbitat. Ovid. Prõcul dũbio. Suet. The prepositions are frequently expressed; as, Frõcul a terrã. Cic. Prõcul a patriã. Virg. Tẽcum simul. Plaut. Võbiscum simul. Cic.—So, rarely, agũs. Qui me in terrã agũs fortũdĩtũs erĩt. Plaut. Cf. Nõvĩ agũs omnia tẽcum. Id.

REM. 3. Some of the above prepositions, like those followed by the accusative, are occasionally used without a noun expressed; as, Quũm cõram amĩcus. Cic. Cum frãtre an sine. Id. Cf. § 235, R. 10.

REM. 4. The ablative follows also the prepositions in and sub, when they answer to the question 'where?' super, when it signifies 'on' or 'concerning', and sometimes clam and subter. Cf. § 235, (2).—(5.)

REM. 5. In is generally joined with the ablative after verbs of placing, as, põno, lõco, colloco, stãtuo, constituo, and consido; as, Et sũle tabũtes artũs in hõĩõre pũt unt. Virg.—So, also, after verbs signifying to have, hãd, or regard as, addeō, dūco, nūmēro, etc.—After verbs of assembling, concealing, and including, in is followed by either the accusative or the ablative.—After dēfigo, in scribo, insculpo, incido, and insēro, in is usually joined with the ablative.

§ 242. Many verbs compounded with ab, de, ex, and sūper are followed by an ablative depending upon the preposition; as,

Absesse urbe, To be absent from the city. Cic. Abire sēdibus, To depart from their habitations. Tac. Ut se maledictis non abstinēant. Cic. Dētrūdunt nāves scōpulo, They push the ships from the rock. Virg. Nāvis ēgressus est. Nep. Excēdēre finibus. Liv. Cæsar prælio sūpersēdēre statuit. Cæs. Tribūto ac dēlectu sūpersessum est. Cic. So the adjective extorris; as, Extorris patriā, domo. Sall. And so the verbal eruptio, as, Mūtina eruptio. Cic.

REMARK 1. The preposition is often repeated, or one of similar signification is used; as, Dētrōhēre de tuā famā numquā cōgitāre. Cic. Ex oculis abiērunt. Liv. Exire a patriā. Cic. Exire de vitā. Id. Cf. § 224, R. 4.

REM. 2. These compound verbs are often used without a noun; but, in many cases, it may be supplied by the mind; as, Equites dēgressi ad pēdes scil. equis. Liv. Abire ad Deū, scil. vitā. Cic.

REM. 3. Some verbs compounded with ab, de, and ex, instead of the ablative, are sometimes followed by the dative. See § 224, R. 1 and 2. Some compounds, also, of neuter verbs, occur with the accusative. See § 233, R. 1.

ABLATIVE AFTER CERTAIN NOUNS, ADJECTIVES, AND VERBS.

§ 243. Opus and ūsus, signifying need, usually take the ablative of the thing needed; as,

Auctoritatē tuā nobis opus est, We need your authority. Cic. Nunc animis opus, nunc pectore firmo. Virg. Nāres, quibus consili ūsus non esset, Ships, for which the consul had no occasion. Liv. Nunc viribus ūsus, nunc manibus rapidis. Virg.

REMARK 1. (a.) Opus and ūsus are sometimes followed by the ablative of a perfect participle; as, Maturatio opus est, There is need of haste. Liv. Ūsus factus est mihi. Ter. Ubi summus impērator non adest ad exercitum, citius, quod non factus est ūsus, fit, quam quod factus est opus. Plaut. After opus, a noun is sometimes expressed with the participle; as, Opus fuit Hirtio convento,—of meeting or, to meet, § 274, R. 5. Cic. Opus sibi esse dōmno rjus invento. Liv.—or a scipine is used; as, Iu dictu opus est, It is necessary to say, I must say. Ter.—Instead of the ablative with opus est, an infinitive, either alone or with a subject accusative, or ut with a subjunctive clause, sometimes occurs; as, Opus est te animo valēre. Cic. Mihi opus est, ut lavem. Id.

(b.) Opus and ūsus, though nouns, are seldom limited by the genitive. In a few passages they are construed with the accusative. See § 211, R. 11.

REM. 2. Opus is sometimes the subject and sometimes the predicate of est; ūsus, which seldom occurs except in ante-classic poets, is, with only rare exceptions, the subject only. The person to whom the thing is needful is put in the dative; (§ 226.) With opus the thing needed may either be the subject of the verb in the nominative or accusative, or follow it in the ablative; as, Dux nobis opus est. Cic. Verres multa sibi opus esse aiebat. Id.; or, Dūce nobis opus est. The former construction is most common with neuter adjectives and pronouns; as, Quod non opus est, a se carum est. Cato apud Sen.—In the predicate opus and ūsus are commonly translated ‘needful’ or ‘necessary’. Cf. § 210, R. 1.

NOTE. For the ablative of character, quality, etc., limiting a noun, see § 211, R. 6.

§ 244. Dignus, indignus, contentus, præditus, and fi itus, are followed by the ablative of the object; as,

Dignus laude, Worthy of praise. Hor. Vox populi majestâte indigna, A speech unbecoming the dignity of the people. Cæs. Bestiæ eo contentæ non querunt amplius. Cic. Homo scélère præditus. Id. Plèrique ingènio frèti. Id.—Sq æquum est me atque illo. Plaut.

REMARK 1. The adverb digne, in one passage, takes the ablative; Peccat uter nostrum cruce dignus. Hor.—Dignor, also, both as the passive of the obsolete digno, and as a deponent verb, is followed by an ablative of the thing. As a deponent it takes also an accusative of the person; as, Haud equidem tali me honore dignor. Virg.—Pass. Qui tali honore dignati sunt. Cic. Conjūgio, Anchisa, Veneris dignate superbo. Virg.—Sometimes as a deponent, instead of the ablative of the thing, it is followed by an infinitive clause; as, Non ego grammaticas ambire tribus et pulpita dignor. Hor. And both dignor and dēdignor are followed by two accusatives, one of the object the other of the predicate. See § 230, R. 2.

REM. 2. (a.) Dignus and indignus are sometimes followed by the genitive; as, Suscipe cōplātōnem dignissimam tuæ virtutis. Cic. Indignus avörum. Virg.; and dignus sometimes takes a neuter pronoun or adjective in the accusative; as, Non me censes scire quid dignus siem? Plaut. Frētus is in Livy construed with the dative. Cf. § 222, R. 6, (b.)

(b.) Instead of an ablative, dignus and indignus often take an infinitive, especially in the passive; as, Erat dignus amari. Virg.; or a subjunctive clause, with qui or ut; as, Dignus qui impèret. Cic. Non sum dignus, ut figam pälum in päricem. Plaut.; or the supine in u; as, Digna atque indigna rēlätu vociferans. Virg. Contentus is likewise joined with the infinitive; as, Non hæc arles contenta paternus edidicisse fuit. Ovid.—So, Naves pontum irumpèro fræus. Stat.

§ 245. I. Utor, fruor, fungor, pötior, vescor, and their compounds, are followed by the ablative; as,

Ad quem tum Jäno supplex his vöcibus äsa est,—addressed these words. Virg. Fruis völuptâte, To enjoy pleasure. Cic. Fungitur officio, He performs his duty. Id. Oppido pötiti sunt. Liv. Vescitur aurä. Virg. His räbus perfruor. Cic. Lägbus abuti. Id. Difuncti império. Liv. Grävi opère perfungimur. Cic. O tandem magnis pētūgi difuncte përiclis. Virg.

The compounds are abutor, deutor, perfruor, defungor, and perfungor.

NOTE. Utor may take a second ablative, as an apposition or a predicate, like the predicate accusative, (§ 230, R. 2), and may then be translated by the verb to have; as, Ille faciäi me ütetur patre, He shall have in me an indulgent father. Ter.

REMARK. In early writers these verbs sometimes take an accusative; as, Quem romi medici üduntur. Varr. Ingènum frui. Ter. Dutämes militäre münu fungens. Nep. Gentem äliquam urbem nostram pcutäram pätem. Cic. Saceris lueros vescar. Tibull. In prölögis scribendis opëram abütur. Ter.—Pötior is, also, found with the genitive. See § 220, 4.

II. 1. Nitor, imitor, fido and confido, may be followed by the ablative without a preposition; as, Hastä inimis. Liv. Fidère cursu. Ovid. Nätürä löci confidebant. Cæs.

2. Misceo with its compounds takes, with the accusative of the object, the ablative of the thing mingled with; as, Miscère päbula säle. Coll. Aquæ neotäre. Ovid. Aër multo calöre admizetur. Cic.

3. Assuesco, assuefacio, consuesco, inuesco, and sometimes acquiesco, take either the dative or the ablative of the thing; as, Aves asngulne et prædä assueäta. Hor. Nullo officio aut disciplinä assuefactus. Cæs. Cf. § 224.

4. Vivē and epūlor, 'to live or feast upon,' are followed by the ablative; as Dāpibus epālāmur opimis. Virg. Lacte atque pecōre vivunt. Cæs.

5. Sto signifying 'to be filled or covered with,' and also when signifying 'to coast,' is followed by the ablative without a preposition; when signifying 'to persevere in, stick to, abide by,' 'to rest or be fixed on,' it is followed by the ablative either with or without in; as, Jam pulvère cælum stāre vident. Virg. — Multo sanguine ac vulneribus ea Pōnis victōria stetit. Liv. Stāre conditionibus. Cic. Omnis in Ascānio stat cūra parentis. Virg. — Consto, 'to consist of' or 'to rest upon,' is followed by the ablative either alone or with ex, de, or in; as Constat māteries sōlido corpore. Lucr. Hōmo ex ānimo constat et corpore. Cic.

REMARK 1. Fido, confido, misceo, admisceo, permisceo, and assuesco often take the dative.

REM. 2. When a preposition is expressed after the above verbs, sto, fido, confido, nitōr, innitōr, and assuesco take in or ad; acquiesco, in; and misceo with its compounds, cum.

§ 246. Perfect participles denoting origin are often followed by the ablative of the source, without a preposition.

Such are nātus, prōgnātus, scīus, creātus, crētus, ēdītus, gēnītus, gēnērātus, ortus; to which may be added oriundus, descended from.

Thus, Nāte deā! O son of a goddess! Virg. Tantūlo prōgnātus, Descended from Tantalus. Cic. Sātus Nēreide, Sprung from a Nereid. Ovid. Creātus rēge. Id. Alcānore crēti. Virg. Edīte rēgibus. Hor. Dīs gēnite. Virg. Argōltuo gēnērātus Alēmōne. Ovid. Ortus nullis mājoribus. Hor. Celesti sēmine oriundi. Lucr.

REMARK 1. The preposition is also rarely omitted after the verbs creo, gēnero, and nascor; as, Ū patre certo nascēre. Cic. Fortes creantur fortibus. Hor.

REM. 2. After participles denoting origin, the preposition ex or de is usually joined to the name of the mother; and in a few passages ex or ab is joined to the name of the father; as, Prōgnāti ab Dite patre. Cæs. In speaking of one's ancestors ab is frequently used; as, Plēroque Belgas esse ortos a Germānis. Id.

REM. 3. Origin from a place or country is generally expressed by a patril adjective; as, Thrasībūlus Athēniensis, Thrasylulus of Athens. Livy often uses ab; as, Turnus Herdōnius ab Ariciā. Cæsar prefers the ablative alone; as, On. Magius Crēmōnā; and in this manner is expressed the tribe to which a person belongs; as, Q. Verres Rōmiliā,—of the Roman tribe.

ABLATIVE OF CAUSE, ETC.

§ 247. Nouns denoting the cause, manner, means, and instrument, after adjectives and verbs, are put in the ablative without a preposition.

NOTE. The English prepositions with the ablative of cause, manner, means, and instrument are by, with, in, etc.

1. The cause. (1.) Adjectives which have a passive signification, as denoting a state or condition produced by some external cause, may take such cause in the ablative; as,

Campāni fuērunt sūperbi bōnitāte agrōrum. Cic. Animal pābulo letum. Sen. Prælio fessi lassique, Weary and faint with the battle. Sall. Hōmines egri grāvi morbo. Cic.

(2.) Neuter verbs expressing an action, state or feeling of the subject originating in some external cause, may take that cause in the ablative; as,

Intériùs fàme, He perished with hu. ger. Laude àliēnā dōlet. Cic. Læstus tuā dignitatē. Id. Græule tuo bōno. Id. Suā victoriā glōriāri. Cæs. Aquilōnibus libérant quercētū. Hor.—So with bēne est and the dative; as, Mīhi bēne erat non piscibus urbe pētitiā, sed pullo atque hædo. Hor. Ubi illi bēne sit ligno, aquā cālida, cibo, vestimentis, etc. Plaut.

NOTE 1. After such adjectives and neuter verbs, a preposition with its case often supplies the place of the simple ablative.

NOTE 2. In exclamations of encouragement or approbation, the defective adjective macte, macti, either with or without the imperative of esse (esto, esto, estote,) is joined with an ablative of cause, especially with virtute.

NOTE 3. After neuter verbs and adjectives denoting emotions, especially those of care, grief, and sorrow, the accusative vicem, with a genitive or a possessive pronoun, is used, instead of the ablative vice, to signify 'for' or 'on account of'; as, Remittimus hoc tibi, ne nostram vicem irascāris, That you may not be angry on our account. Liv. Tuam vicem sæpe dōleo, quod, etc. Cic. Suam vicem magis anxius, quam ejus, cui auxilium ab se ptebatur. Liv.

REMARK 1. When the cause is a voluntary agent, it is put in the accusative with the preposition ob, propter, or per; as, Non est æquum me propter vos decipi. Ter. These prepositions, and a, or ab, de, e or ex, and pro, are also sometimes used when the cause is not a voluntary agent; as, Ob adulterium cæsi. Virg. Nec loqui præ mœrore potuit. Cic.

REM. 2. (a.) After active verbs, the cause, unless expressed by an ablative in u from substantives having no other case; as, Jussu, rogatu and admonitu, is seldom expressed by the simple ablative, but either by a preposition, or by causā, gratiā, ergo, etc., with a genitive; as, Légibus propter mētum paret. Cic. Ne ob eam rem ipsos despiceret. Id. Donari virtutis ergo. Id. Si hoc hōnōris mei causā susciperis. Id. But with causā, etc., the adjective pronoun is commonly used for the corresponding substantive pronoun; as, Te abesse meā causā, moleste fero. Cic. Cf. § 211, R. 3, (b.)

(b.) When the cause is a state of feeling, a circumlocution is often used with a perfect participle of some verb signifying 'to induce'; as, Cupiditate ductus, inductus, inclivitus, incensus, inflammatus, impulsus, motus, captus, etc. Mihi bene-volentiā ductus tribuisti omnia. Cic. Livy frequently uses ab in this sense; as, Ab ira, a spe, ab odio, from anger, hope, hatred.

2. The manner. Cum is regularly joined with the ablative of manner, when expressed simply by a noun, not modified by any other word; and also when an adjective is joined with the noun, provided an additional circumstance, and not merely an essential character of the action, is to be expressed. Thus:

Cum voluptate aliquem audire. Verres Lampadum venit cum magnā calamitate civitatis. Cic. Hence also when the connection between the subject and the noun denoting the attribute is only external; as, Procedere cum veste purpureā: in distinction from Nudis pedibus incedere; Aperto capite sedere, etc., which express circumstances or attributes essential to the subject.

But modus, ratio, mos, ritus, etc., signifying manner, never take cum, and it is omitted in some expressions with other substantives; as, Hoc modo scripsi; Constituerunt quā ratione ageretur; More bestiarum vagari; Latronum ritu vivere; Equo animo fero; Maxima fide amicitias coluit. Summa æquitate res constituit; Viam incredibili celeritate confecit; Librum magnā curā diligentiaque scripsit; the action of the verb being intimately connected with the circumstance expressed by the ablative. So in some expressions with substantives alone; as, Silentio præstare or facere aliquid; Luge agere; Jure and injuria facere; Magistratus vitio creatus; Recte et ordine fieri.

REM. 3. The manner is also sometimes denoted by de or ex with the ablative as, De or ex industria, On purpose. Liv. Ex integro, Anew. Quiz.

3. The means and instrument. An ablative is joined with verbs of every kind, and also with adjectives of a passive signification, to express the means or instrument; as,

Amicos observantiā, rem parsimoniā retinuit, He retained his friends by attention, his property by frugality. Cic. Anro ostrique decōri. Virg. Ægrediuntēdo. Id. Cornibus tauri, apri dentibus, morsu leones se luctantur. Cic. Causa est virgis. Id. Trabs saucia sēcūri. Ovid. For the ablative of the means after verbs of filling, etc., see § 249, I.

REM. 4. When the means is a person, it is seldom expressed by the simple ablative, but either by per, or by the ablative opérā with a genitive or a possessive pronoun; as, meā, tuā, suā, opérā, which are equivalent to per me, per te, per se, and denote both good and bad services. Bénéficio meo, etc., is used of good results only; as, Bénéficio meo patres sunt. Sall. But persons are sometimes considered as involuntary agents, and as such expressed by the ablative without a preposition; as, Servos, quibus silvas publicas depopulatus erat. Cic.—When per is used to express the means, it is connected with external concurring circumstances, rather than with the real means or instrument. Hence we always say vi oppidum cepit, but per vim ei bona eripuit.

REM. 5. The material instrument is always expressed by the ablative without a preposition; as, Conficere cervum sagittis; gladio aliquem vulnerare; transigere pectus ferro.

§ 248. The ablative is used with passive verbs to denote the means or agent by which any thing is effected, and which in the active voice is expressed by the nominative. This ablative is used either with ab or without it, according as it is a person or a thing.

I. The voluntary agent of a verb in the passive voice is put in the ablative with a or ab; as,

(In the active voice,) Clodius me diligit, Clodius loves me (Cic.); (in the passive,) A Clodio diligor, I am loved by Clodius. Laudatur ab his, culpatur ab illis. Hor.

REMARK 1. (1.) The general word for persons, after verbs in the passive voice, is often understood; as, Probitas laudatur, scil. ab hominibus. Juv. So after the passive of neuter verbs; as, Discurritur. Virg. Toto certatum est corpore regni. Id. Cf. § 141, R. 2.

(2.) The agent is likewise often understood, when it is the same as the subject of the verb, and the expression is then equivalent to the active voice with a reflexive pronoun, or to the middle voice in Greek; as, Quum omnes in eum genere scelerum voluntur, scil. a se. Cic.

REM. 2. Neuter verbs, also, are sometimes followed by an ablative of the voluntary agent with a or ab; as,

M. Marcellus perit ab Annibale, M. Marcellus was killed by Hannibal. Plin. Ne vir ab hoste cecidit. Ovid.

REM. 3. The preposition is sometimes omitted; as, Nec conjūge captus Ovid. Cecidit linigera turbā. Id. Pereat meis excisus Argivis. Hor.

For the dative of the agent after verbs in the passive voice, and participles in dus, see § 225, II. and III.

II. The involuntary agent of a verb in the passive voice, or of a neuter verb, is put in the ablative without a preposition, as the caus, means, or instrument; as, Maximo dolore conficior. Cic. Frangi cupiditate. Id. Æcidea telo jacet Hector. Virg.

NOTE. The involuntary agent is sometimes personified, and takes a or ab; as, A voluptatibus dēseri. Cic. A naturā dātum hominī pēdē curriculum. Id. Vinci a voluptate. Id. Victus a lābore. Id.

§ 249. I. A noun denoting the means, by which the action of a verb is performed, is put in the ablative after verbs signifying to affect in any way, to fill, furnish, load, array, equip, endow, adorn, reward, enrich, and many others.

REMARK 1. This rule includes such verbs as afficio, aspergo, conspargo, inspergo, repergo, compleo, expleo, impleo, oppleo, repleo, suppleo, cūmulo, farcio, refercio, sāsio, exsāsio, sāsūro, stipo, constipo, obruo, ōnēro, augeo, induo, vestio, armo, orno, circumdo, circumfunio, macio, lōcuplito, instruo, imbuo, dōno, impertio, rēmānēro, honesto, lōnōro, etc.; as, Terrōre implētur Africa, Africa is filled with terror. Sil. Instruere ēpulis mensas, They furnished the tables with food. Ovid. Ut ejus animum his opibus imbuis, That you should imbue his mind with these sentiments. Cic. Naves onerant auro, They load the ships with gold. Virg. Cūmulat altaria donis, He heaps the altars with gifts. Id. Terra se gramine vestit, The earth clothes itself with grass. Id. Mollibus ornabat cornua sertis. Id. Multo cibo et potione complēt. Cic. Libros puerilibus fabulis referere. Id. Satiari delectatione non possum. Id. Homines satūrati honoribus. Id. Senectus stipita studiis juven-tūlis. Id. Me tanto honore honestas. Plaut. Equis Africam lōcupletāvit. Colum. Stūdium tuum nullā me novā voluptate affecit. Cic. Terram nox obruit umbris. Lucr.

REM. 2. Several verbs denoting to fill, instead of the ablative, sometimes take a genitive. See § 220, 3.

REM. 3. The active verbs induo, dōno, impertio, aspergo, inspergo, circumdo, and circumfunio, instead of the ablative of the thing with the accusative of the person, sometimes take an accusative of the thing, and a dative of the person; as, Cui quā Dicitura tunicam induisset. Cic. Dōnare mūnēra civibus. In the earliest writers dōno, like condōno, has sometimes two accusatives or an accusative of the person with the infinitive.

II. A noun denoting that in accordance with which any thing is, or is done, is often put in the ablative without a preposition; as, Nostro more, According to our custom. Cic. Inst.ūto suo Cæsar cōpās suas eduxit, According to his practice. Cæs. Id factum consilio meo,—by my advice. Ter. Pācem fecit his conditionibus,—on these conditions. Nep.

NOTE. The prepositions de, ex, pro, and secundum are often expressed with such nouns; as, Nēque est facturus quidquam nisi de meo consilio. Cic. Ex consuetudine aliquid facere. Plin. Ep. Decet quidquid agas, agere pro vir. as. Cic. Secundum naturam vivere. Id.

III. The ablative denoting accompaniment, is usually joined with cum; as, Vagāmur Igentes cum conjūgibus et libēris, Needy, we wander with our wives and children. Cic. Sæpe admirārī sōleo cum hoc C. Lælio. Id. Saltem cum his ad te libēris misi. Id. Ingressus est cum gladio. Id. Rōmam veni cum febrī. Cum occāsu solis cōpās edūcere, —as soon as the sun set.

REMARK. But cum is sometimes omitted before words denoting military and naval forces, when limited by an adjective; as, Ad castra Cæsaris omnibus cōpiis contendērunt. Cæs. Inde tōto exercitu p̄fectus. Liv. Eodem dōcum nāvibus C. Furius venit. Liv. And sometimes in military language cum is omitted, when accompanying circumstances are mentioned, and not persons; as Castra cū lōnōre incedunt.

§ 250. 1. A noun, adjective, or verb, may be followed by the ablative, denoting in what respect their signification is taken; as, Piſtate filius, conſiliis pater. In affection a son, in counsel a parent. Cic. Rēges nōmine magis quam impērio, Kings in name rather than in authority. Nep. (ppitum nōmine Bibraz. Cass.—Jure peritus, Skilled in law. Cic. Anxius animo, Anxious in mind. Tac. Pedibus aeger, Lame in his feet. Sall. Crine ruber, niger ore. Mart. Fronte latus. Tac. Māior natu. Cic. Prudentiā non infērior, aia vērō etiā supērior. Id. Maximus natu. Liv.—Animo angī, To be troubled in mind. Cic. Contrēmisco tōtā mente et omnibus artibus, I am agitated in my whole mind and in every limb. Id. Captus mente, Affected in mind, i. e. deprived of reason. Id. Altēro oculo capitur. Liv. Ingeniū laude floruit. Cic. Pallere nobilitate. Tac. Animūque et corpore torpet. Hor.

REMARK. This may be called the ablative of limitation, and denotes the relation expressed in English by 'in respect of,' 'in regard to,' 'as to,' or 'in.'—Respecting the genitive of limitation after adjectives, see § 213;—after verbs, § 220, 1: and respecting the accusative of limitation, see § 231, R. 5; § 232, (3); and § 234, II.

2. (1.) Adjectives of plenty or want are sometimes limited by the ablative; as,

Dōmus plēna servis, A house full of servants. Juv. Dives agris, Rich in land. Hor. Fēraz sēcūlum bonis artibus. Plin.—Inops verbis, Deficient in words. Cic. Orba frātribus, Destitute of brothers. Ovid. Viduum arboribus solum. Colum. Nūdus agris. Hor. For the genitive after adjectives of plenty and want, see § 213, R. 3-5.

(2.) Verbs signifying to abound, and to be destitute, are followed by the ablative; as, Scāntem bellis pontum, The sea abounding in monsters. Hor. Urbs rēdūdat militibus, The city is full of soldiers. Auct. ad Her. Villa abundat porco, hādo, agno, gallinā, lacte, cāseo, melle. Cic.—Virum qui pecūniā ēgeat, A man who is in want of money. Id. Cārere culpā, To be free from fault. Id. Mea adoleſcentia indiget illōrum bonā existimatiōe. Id. Abundat audaciā, consilio et ratiōne deficitur. Id.

REMARK 1. To this rule belong abundo, exubero, rēdundo, scāteo, affluo, circumfluo, diffuſuo, superfluo, suppedito, valeo, vigeo;—cāreo, ēgeo, indigeo, vāco, deficio, destitutor, etc.

REM. 2. The genitive, instead of the ablative, sometimes follows certain verbs signifying to abound or to want. See § 220, 3.

REM. 3. To do any thing with a person or thing, is expressed in Latin by facere with de; as, Quid de Tulliolā meā fiet? Cic; and more frequently by the simple ablative, or the dative; as, Quid hoc homīne or huic homīni faciatis? What can you do with this man? Cic. Nescit quid faciat auro,—what he shall do with the gold. Plaut. Quid me fiat parvi pendis, You care little what becomes of me. Ter.—Sum is occasionally used in the same manner; as, Mētum rēperunt quidnam se futurum esset,—what would become of them. Liv.

§ 251. A noun denoting that of which any thing is deprived, or from which it is freed, removed, or separated, is often put in the ablative without a preposition.

This construction occurs after verbs signifying to deprive, free, deprive, drive away, remove, depart, and others which imply separation.

NOTE. The principal verbs of this class are arceo, pello, dēpello, expello, abāico, interdīco, dēfendo, dēturbo, dīcicio, ēcicio, absterreo, dēterreo, mō. eo, āmōveo, dēmōveo, rēmōveo, sēcerno, prōhibeo, spāro, exclūdo, interclūdo, dōeo, exeo, cēdo, dēcēdo, discēdo, dēsisto, ēvādo, abstīneo, spōlio, privo, orbo, libēro, es pēdio, lazo, nūlo, solvo, exsolvo, exonēro, lēvo, purgo, to which may be added the adjectives liber, immānis, pūrus, vācuus, and aliēnus; as, Nūdantur arbōres fōliis, The trees are stripped of leaves. Plin. Hoc me libēra mētū, Free me from this fear. Ter. Tūne eam philōsophiam sēquere, quæ spōliat nos iūdicio, privat approbatione, orbat sensibus? Cic. Solvit se Teucria luctu. Virg. Te illis sēditibus arcēbit. Cic. Q. Varium pellere possessionibus cōnatus est. Id. Omnes tribu rēmōti. Liv. Lēvare se aere aliēno. Cic. Me lēves chōri sēcerrant pōpūlo. Hor. Animus omni liber cūrā et angore. Cic. Utrumque hōmīne aliēnissimum. Id. When aliēnus signifies 'averse' or 'hostile to,' it takes the ablative with ab, or rarely the dative; as, Id dicit, quod illi causæ maxime est aliēnum. Id. In the sense of 'unsuited,' it may also be joined with the genitive; as, Quis aliūnum pūtel ejus esse dignitātis? Id.—Alius too, in analogy with adjectives and verbs of separation, sometimes takes an ablative; as, Nōne pūtes aliū sapiente hōnōque beatum. Hor.; but this may also be referred to the ablative after comparatives. Cf. § 256, R. 14.

REMARK 1. Most verbs of depriving and separating are more or less frequently followed by ab, de, or ex, with the ablative of the thing, and always by ab with the ablative of the person; as, Tu Jūpiter, hunc a tuis arīs arcēbis. Cic. Præsidium ex arce pēpulerunt. Nep. Aquam de agro pellere. Plin. Ex ingrādā civitate cēdere. Cic. Arce[m] ab incendio liberāvit. Id. Solvēre bellum ex cātēnis. Auct. ad Her.—Sēdes rēmōtas a Germānis. Cæs. Se ab Etruscis sēcernere. Liv.

REM. 2. Arceo, in the poets, sometimes takes the dative, see § 224, R. 2, and sometimes an infinitive; as, Plāgumque sēdere cēdendo arcēbit. Ovid.—Prōhibeo and dēfendo take either the accusative of the person or thing to be defended, with the ablative of the thing to be warded off—or the reverse—aliqum or aliquid a pēriculo, or pēriculum ab aliqno. They are also sometimes construed with the dative, see § 224, R. 2, and sometimes with infinitive or subjunctive clauses. Prōhibeo has rarely two accusatives; as, Id te Jūpter prōhibessit. Plaut.; or poetically the accusative and genitive; as, Captā prōhibere Pamos æquillæ. Sil.—Interdīco takes the person either in the accusative or the dative, and the thing in the ablative, aliqum or alicui aliqūā re; as, Quibus quum æquā et igni interdixissent. Cæs.—Instead of the ablative, a subjunctive clause with ne, and more rarely with ut, sometimes follows interdīco.—Absterreo, in like manner, takes the ablative with ab, and sometimes the dative; as, Curtas nescio quid semper abest rei. Hor. Cf. § 224, R. 1.—Abdīco takes sometimes an ablative, and sometimes an accusative of the thing renounced; as, Abdīcare se māgistrātū. Cic. Abdīcare māgistrātum. Sall. In Plautus, circumdīco, to cheat, takes the ablative of the thing. Interclūdo, instead of an ablative of the thing with an accusative of the person, sometimes takes an accusative of the thing and a dative of the person; as, Itinērum angustia multitudīni fugam interclūserant. Cæs.; and, instead of the ablative of the thing, a subjunctive clause with quōminus occurs: Interclūdōr dōlōre, quōminus cui is plūra scribam. Cic.

REM. 3. Verbs which signify to distinguish, to differ, and to disagree, are generally construed with ab, but sometimes, especially in the poets, with the ablative alone.

NOTE. Verbs signifying to distinguish, etc., are distinguo, discerno, sēcerno, diffēro, discrepo, disideo, disto, dissentio, discordo, abhorreo, aliēno, and abaliēno.—Dissentio, disideo, discrepo, and discordo are construed also with cum.—The verbs which signify to differ are sometimes construed with the dative; as, Distat infido scurræ amicus. Hor., and in like manner the adjective diversus, as, Nihil est tum Lyside diversum, quam Isocrates. Quint.

ABLATIVE OF PRICE.

§ 252. The price or value of a thing is put in the ablative, when it is a definite sum, or is expressed by a substantive; as,

Quum te trêcentis talentis régi Cotto vendidisses, When you had sold yourself to king Cottus for three hundred talents. Cic. Vendidi hic auro patriam, This one sold his country for gold. Virg. Cibus uno asse venâlis. Plin. Constitit quadringentis millibus. Varr. Denis in diem assibus ântmum et corpus (militum); æstimâri. Tac. Lævi mômto æstimâre. Cæs. Latuc verbum vile est riguli infinis. Plaut. Asse cârûm est. Sen. Ep.

REMARK 1. The verbs which take an ablative of price or value are (1) æstimô, dâco, fûcio, fio, hâbeo, pendo, puto, depûto, tazo: (2) êmo, mercor, vendo, do, pîneo, sto, consto, prosto, conduco, lûco, vâleo, luo, and liceo.—To these must be added others, which express some act or enjoyment for which a certain price is paid; as, Lâvor quadrante. Trîginta millibus Cælius hâbitat. Cic. Vix drachmis est obrônâtus dâcem. Ter. Dâceo talento, etc. So esse in the sense 'to be worth'; as, Sextante sal in illâ erat.

REM. 2. Respecting the genitive of price or value, when expressed in a general or indefinite manner, see § 214.

REM. 3. The price of a thing, contrary to the general rule, is often expressed indefinitely by a neuter adjective; as, magno, permagno, parvo, tantulo, plare, minimo, plurimo, vili, viliori, vilissimo, nimio, etc.; as, Plure venit. Cic. Conluvit non magno donum. Id. These adjectives refer to some noun understood, as pretio, ere, and the like, which are sometimes expressed; as, Parvo pretio ea vendidisse. Cic.—The adverbs bene, pulchre, recte, male, cære, etc., sometimes take the place of the genitive or ablative of price; as, Bene emere; recte vendere; optime vendere, etc.

REM. 4. Varro has used vâleo with the accusative; as, Dênârii dicti, quod cênos aris vâlebant.

REM. 5. Mûto and its compounds, commûto and permûto, are commonly constructed like verbs of selling, the thing parted with being put in the accusative, and the thing received in exchange for it, in the ablative; as, Châdonium glandem pingui mûlavit aristâ. Virg. But these cases are often reversed, so that the thing received is put in the accusative and the thing given for it in the ablative; as, Cur vâlle permûtem Sâbinâ divitiâs opêrosiôres? Why should I exchange my Sabine valley for more wearisome riches? Hor.—Sometimes in this construction cum is joined with the ablative.

ABLATIVE OF TIME.

§ 253. A noun denoting the time at or within which any thing is said to be, or to be done, is put in the ablative without a preposition; as,

Die quinto decessit, He died on the fifth day. Nep. Hoc tempore, At this time. Cic. Tertiâ vigiliâ êruptionem fêcêrunt, They made a sally at the third watch. Cæs. U hieme nâviges, That you should sail in the winter. Cic. Proximo triennio omnes gentes subigit. Nep. Agâmennôn cum univêrsâ Græciâ riu dâcem annis unam cêpit urbem. Nep.

NOTE 1. The English expression 'by day' is rendered in Latin either by interdû or die; 'by night,' by noctu or nocte; and 'in the evening,' by vespère or vespêri; see § 82, Exc. 5, (a.) Lûdis is used for in tempore ludôrûm: and Sâturnâlibus, Lâtînis, glâdiatôrîbus, for lûdis Sâturnâlibus, etc. Other nouns not properly expressing time are used in that sense in the ablative either with or without in, as initio, principio, adrentu and discessu altêrûs, comitîis, am dîe, illi, pace, etc.; or in initio, etc. But bello is more common without in, if it is joined with an adjective or a genitive; as, Bello Pūnico secundo, bello Littānorum; and so, also, pugnā Cannensi. So we say in pueritiā, but omit in with an adjective; as, extrēmā pueritiā. In is very rarely used with nouns expressing a certain space of time; as, annus, dies, hōra, etc., for the purpose of denoting the time of an event. In tempore signifies either 'in distress,' or 'in time,' i. e. 'at the right time'; but in both cases tempore alone is used, and tempore in the sense of 'early' has even become an adverb, an earlier form of which was tempōri or tempēt, whose comparative is tempērius.

REMARK 1. When a period is marked by its distance before or after another fixed time, it may be expressed by ante or post with either the accusative or the ablative.—(a.) The preposition is regularly placed before the accusative, but after the ablative. If an adjective is used, the preposition is often placed between the adjective and the noun. In this connection the ordinal as well as the cardinal numbers may be used. Hence the English phrase 'after three years,' or 'three years after,' may be expressed in these eight ways; post tres annos, tribus annis post; post tertium annum, tertio anno post; tres post annos, tribus post annis; tertium post annum, tertio post anno.

(b.) When ante or post stands last, an accusative may be added to denote the time before or after which any thing took place; as, Multis annis post decenviros. Cic. So Consul factus est annis post Rōmā conditam trēcentis duodēnāginta.

NOTE 2. Post and ante sometimes precede the ablatives, as ante annis octo; post paucis diebus; and also before such ablatives as are used adverbially, as post aliquanto; ante paulo.

NOTE 3. Quam and a verb are sometimes added to post and ante in all the forms above specified; e. g. tribus annis postquam vēnerat; post tres annos quam vēnerat; tertio anno postquam vēnerat; post annum tertium quam vēnerat, etc.; all of which expressions signify 'three years after he had come.' Sometimes post is omitted; as, tertio anno quam vēnerat.

NOTE 4. Instead of postquam, 'after,' we may use ex quo, quum, or a relative agreeing with the preceding ablative; as, Ipse octo diebus, quibus has lītēras dabam, cum Lēpidi cōpiis me conjunxam; i. e. in eight days after the date of this letter. Planc. in Cic. Fam. Mors Sex. Rosci quadriduo, quo is occisus est, Chrysogōno nuntiātur,—four days after he had been killed. Cic. Quem triduo, quum has lītēras dabam, expectābam,—three days after the date of this letter. Planc. in Cic. In such cases in is sometimes joined with the ablative; as, In diebus paucis, quibus hec acta sunt, moritur. Ter.

REM. 2. The length of time before the present moment may be expressed by abhinc with the accusative, and, less frequently, the ablative; as, Quæstor fuisti abhinc annos quatuordecim. Cic. Cōmitiis jam abhinc triginta diebus habitis. Id. The same is also expressed by ante with the pronoun hic; as, ante hos sex menses multo-dixisti mihi,—six months ago. Phæd. Ante is sometimes used instead of abhinc; and the length of time before is sometimes expressed by the ablative joined with hic or ille; as, Paucis his diebus, or paucis illis diebus,—a few days ago.

REM. 3. The time at which any thing is done, is sometimes expressed by the reuter accusative id, with a genitive; as, Venit id tempōris. Cic. So with a preposition; Ad id diēi. Gell. See § 212, R. 3.

REM. 4. (a.) The time at or within which any thing is done, is sometimes, with personal subjects, expressed by de, with the ablative; as, De tertiā vigiliā ad hostes contendit,—in the third watch. Cæs. Ut jūgulent hōmīnes surgent de nocte litrōnes. Hor. So, also, with sub; as, Ne sub ipsā profectiōe milites oppidum irumpērent,—at the very time of his departure. Cæs. Sub adventu Romanorum. While the Romans were arriving. Id.

(b.) The time within which any thing occurs, is also sometimes expressed by intra with the accusative; as, Decimā partem natiōnum subēgit intra vīginti dies. Plaut. Intra decimum diem, quam Phērus vēnerat. In less than ten days after. Liv

REM. 5. The time within which a thing happens, is often expressed by the ablative with in; especially (a) in connection with numerals; as, Bis in die aditum fieri; vix ter in anno nuntium audire; and (b), as in the use of intra, to denote that the event happened before the time specified had fully expired.

REM. 6. Instead of in pueritiâ, adulescentiâ, iuventute, senectute, etc., in stating the age at which a person performed any action, the concretes puer, adulescens, iuuenis, senex, etc., are commonly joined to the verb; as, On. Pompeius, adulescens se et patrem consilio seravit.—So, also, adjectives ending in enarius are sometimes used in stating the number of years a person has lived; as, Cicero sexagénarius.

For the ablative denoting duration of time, see § 236.

ABLA TIVE OF PLACE.

§ 254. The name of a town in which any thing is said to be, or to be done, if of the third declension or plural number, is put in the ablative without a preposition; as,

Alexander Bâbylone est mortuus, Alexander died at Babylon. Cic. Interritum—Thebis nutritus an Argis,—whether brought up at Thebes or at Argos. Hor. Natus Tibure vel Gâbiis. Id.

REMARK 1. 'In the country' is expressed by rûre, or more commonly by rûri, without a preposition; as, Pater filium rûri habitare iussit. Cic. With an adjective only rûre is used; as, Interdum nûgaris rûre patermo. Hor. Cf. § 221, N.

REM. 2. (a.) The preposition in is sometimes expressed with names of towns; as, In Philippis quidam nunciavit. Suet.

(b.) Names of towns of the first and second declension, and singular number, and also dômus and hûmus, are in like manner sometimes put in the ablative without in. See § 221, R. 2 and R. 3.—So, also, terrâ marique, by land and by sea. In is also frequently omitted with loco and locis, especially when joined with an adjective and having the meaning of 'occasion'; as, Hoc loco, multis locis, etc.—Libro joined with an adjective, as huc, primo, etc., is used without in when the whole book is meant, and with in when only a portion is referred to. An ablative of place joined with toto, totâ, totis, is generally used without in; as, Urbe totâ gemitus fit. Cic. Totâ Asiâ vagatur. Id. Toto mari. Id. But in such cases in is sometimes used. So cunctâ Asiâ. Liv.

REM. 3. Before the names of countries, of nations used for those of countries, and of all other places in which any thing is said to be or to be done, except those of towns, and excepting also the phrases specified in the first and second remarks, the preposition in is commonly used; as, Iphicrates in Thrâciâ vixit, Chures in Sigô. Nep. Rûre ego viventem, tu dicis in urbe beatum. Hor. Aio hoc fieri in Græciâ. Plaut. In Bactriânis Sogdiânisque urbes consulit. Lacus in urbe fuit. Virg. But it is sometimes omitted by writers of every class and period; as, Milites stativis castris habebat. Sall. Magnis in laudibus fuit totâ Græciâ. Nep. Populi senatus maxime theatro et spectaculis perspectus est. Cic. Pompeius se oppido tenet. Id. In the poets and later prose writers this omission is of very frequent occurrence not only with names of towns but with ablatives of all nouns answering to the question, where? as, Navita puppe sedens. Ovid. Ibam forte Viâ Sacrâ. Hor. Silvisque agrisque visæ corpore fœda jacent. Ovid. Médio alveo concursus est. Liv.—Fôris, out at the door, abroad, is properly an ablative of place; as, Fôris cenat. Cic. Cf. § 237, It. 5, (c.)

§ 255. 1. After verbs expressing or implying motion, the name of a town whence the motion proceeds, is put in the ablative, without a preposition; as,

• Brundisio profecti sumus, We departed from Brundisium. Cic. Dionysius tyrannus Syracusis expulsus Corinthi pueros docebat. Id. Demetrius Tarquinius Corintho fugit. Id. Accipi tuas litteras datas Placentiâ. Id. Interim Romæ per litteras certior fit; scil. datus or missus. Sall. J. 82. So, also, after a verbal noun; as, Narbône reditus. Cic.

REMARK 1. The ablatives domo, hūmo, and rūre or rūrī, are used, like names of towns, to denote the place whence motion proceeds. as,

Domo profectus, Having set out from home. Nep. Surgit hūmo juvenis, The youth rises from the ground. Ovid. Rūre huc advenit. Ter. Si rūrī cœnet. Id. Virgil uses domo with unde; as, Qui gēnus? unde dōmo? and Livy instead of domo abesse, has esse ab dōmo. With an adjective, rūre, and not rūrī, must be used.

REM. 2. With names of towns and dōmus and hūmus, when answering the question 'whence?' ab, ex, or de, is sometimes used; as, Ab Alexandriâ profectus. Cic. Ex dōmo. Id. De vitifera venisse Viennâ. Mart. Ab hūmo. Virg.

REM. 3. (a.) With other names of places whence motion proceeds, ab, ex, or de, is commonly expressed; as, Me a portu præmisit. Plaut. Ex Asiâ trans in Europum. Curt. Ex castris proficiscuntur. Cæs. De Pomptino, scil. prædio. Cic.—So, also, before names of nations used for those of countries; as, Ex Mædis ad adversariorum hibernacula pervenit. Nep.

(b.) But the preposition is sometimes omitted; as, Eulæra Mæcædoniâ allata. Liv. Classis Cypro advenit. Curt. Cessissent loco. Liv. Ni cte vicis et castellis proximis subventum foret. Id. Ite sacris, præpèræte sacris, laurumque capillis pōnite. Ovid. Finibus omnes præsiluere suis. Virg. Advolvunt ingentes montibus ornos. Id. This omission of the preposition is most common in the poets and later prose writers.

2. The place by, through, or over which, after verbs of motion, commonly follows per; but frequently also it is put in the ablative without a preposition; as,

Per Thēbas iter fecit. Nep. Exercitum vado transducit. Cæs. His pontibus pabulatum mittebat. Id. Tribuni militum portâ Collinâ urbem intravere sub signis, mediâque urbe agmine in Aventinum pergunt. Liv. Légiōnes Penninis Cottianisque Alpibus, pars monte Graio, traducuntur. Tac. Equites viâ breviori præmisi. Cic.

ABLATIVE AFTER COMPARATIVES.

§ 256. 1. When two objects are compared by means of the comparative degree, a conjunction, as quam, atque, etc., is sometimes expressed, and sometimes omitted.

2. The comparative degree, when quam is omitted, is followed by the ablative of that with which the comparison is made; as,

Nihil est virtute formosius, Nothing is more beautiful than virtue. Cic. Quis C. Lælio cōmior? Who is more courteous than C. Lælius? Id.

REMARK 1. The person or thing with which the subject of a proposition is compared, is usually put in the ablative; as, Silvæ pulchrior ille est, tu levior cortice. Hor. Vilius argentum est auro, virtutibus aurum. Id. Tullus Hostilius ferocior Rōmulo fuit. Liv. Lacrima nihil citius arescit. Cic. Quid magis est durum saxo, quid mollius undâ? Ovid. Hoc nimio fuit minus inepius. Ter. Albanum, Mæcenas, sive Füllerum te magis appetitis delectat. Hor.

REM. 2. An object with which a person or thing addressed is compared, is also put in the ablative; as, O fons Bandusiae splendidior viro! Hor.

REM. 3. Sometimes the person or thing with which the subject of a proposition is compared, instead of following it in the ablative, is connected with it by quam, and it is then put in the same case as the subject, whether in the nominative or the accusative; as, Oratio quam habitus fuit miserabilior. Cic. Affirmo nullum esse ludem ampliore quam eam. Id. So, also, when an ablative in the case absolute takes the place of the subject; as, Eodem (scil. dūce) plura, quam gregario milite, tolerante. Tac.

REM. 4. If the person or thing which is compared with any object is neither the subject of the sentence nor the person addressed, quam is commonly used, and the object which follows it is then put in the nominative with sum, and sometimes in an oblique case to agree with the object with which it is compared; as, Meliorem, quam ego sum, suspēno tibi. Plaut. Ego hominem callidorem ridi neminem quam Phormionem. Ter. Adventus hostium fuit agris, quam urbi terribilior. Liv. Omnes fontes aestate, quam hieme, sunt gelidiores. Plin. Thémistoclis nomen, quam Solonis, est illustrius. Cic.—The following example illustrates both the preceding constructions:—Ut tibi multo major, quam Africanus fuit, me non multo minorem quam Lælium facile et in republica et in amicitia adiunctum esse putare. Cic.

REM. 5. (a.) The person or thing with which the object of an active verb is compared, though usually connected with it by quam, (R. 4.) is sometimes put in the ablative, especially in the poets, and frequently also even in prose, if the object is a pronoun, particularly a relative pronoun; as, Attulo, quo graviorem ismicum non habui, sororem decit. He gave his sister to Attalus, than whom, etc. Curt. Hoc nihil gravior facere potes. Cic. Causam enim suscepisti antiquiorem memoria tua. Id. Ezægi monumentum ære perennius. Hor. Cui olivum sanguine vperino cautius vitat? Id. Quid prius dicam solitis puerulis laudibus? Id. Majora viribus audes. Virg. Nullam sacra vite prius severis arborum. Hor. Nullus his nullem ludos spectasse. Id. § 178, 3.

(b.) The ablative instead of quam is never used with any other oblique case except the accusative, but quam is sometimes found, even where the ablative might have been used; as, Melior tuiorque est certa pax quam sperata victoria. Liv. After quam, if the verb cannot be supplied from the preceding sentence, est, fuit, etc., must be added; as, Hec verba sunt M. Porronis, quam fuit Cludius, doctioris. Gell. Drusum Germanicum minorem natu, quam ipse erat, fratrem amisit. Sen.

REM. 6. (a.) Minus, plus, and amplius with numerals, and with other words denoting a certain measure or a certain portion of a thing, are used either with or without quam, generally as indeclinable words, without influence upon the construction, but merely to modify the number; as, Non plus quam quatuor millia effugerunt, not effugit. Liv. Pictores antiqui non sunt isti plus quam quatuor coloribus, not pluribus. Cic.

(b.) Quam is frequently omitted with all cases; as, Minus duo millia hominum ex tanto exercitu effugerunt. Liv. Milites Romani sepe plus diuturni mensis cibarii ferebant. Cic. Quam plus annum æger fuisset. Liv. Sedecim non amplius eo anno legionibus defensum imperium est. Id.

(c.) These comparatives, as in the preceding example, are sometimes inserted between the numeral and its substantive, and sometimes, when joined with a negative, they follow both, as a sort of apposition; as, Quinque milia armatorum, non amplius, relictum erat presidium,—a garrison of five thousand soldiers, not more. Liv. So, also, longius; Cæsar certior est factus, magnas Gallorum copias non longius millia passuum octo ab ibernis suis abfuisse. Cæs. See § 236.

(d.) The ablative is sometimes used with these as with other comparatives; as, Dies triginta aut plus eo in navi fui. Ter. Triennio amplius. Cic. Hora amplius morabantur. Id. Ne longius triduo ab castris absit. Cæs. Apud Suæcos non longius anno remanere uno in loco incolendi causa licet. Id. Quam initio non amplius duobus millibus habuisset. Sall.

REM. 7. Quam is in like manner sometimes omitted, without change of case, after māior, minor, and some other comparatives; as, Obsides ne minores octōnum dēnum annōrum neu māiores quīnum quādrāgēnum... of not less than eighteen, nor more than forty-five years of age. Liv. Ex urbēno exercitu, qui minores quinque et triginta annis erant, in naves impositi sunt. The genitive and ablative, in these and similar examples, are to be referred to § 211, R. 6. Longius ab urbe mille passuum. Liv. Annos natus magis quādrāginta. Cic.

REM. 8. When the second member of a comparison is an infinitive or a clause, quam is always expressed; as, Nihil est in dicendo majus quam ut faveat fratri auditor. Cic.

REM. 9. Certain nouns, participles, and adjectives, as opinione, spe, expectatione, fide, dicto, solito, æquo, credibili, necessario, vēro, and justo, are used in a peculiar manner in the ablative after comparatives; as, Opinione celerius venturus esse dictur,—sooner than is expected. Cæs. Dicto citius tamen æquora placuit, Quicker than the word was spoken. Virg. Injuriis grāvius æquo habere. Sall.

(a.) These ablatives supply the place of a clause; thus, grāvius æquo is equivalent to grāvius quam quod æquum est. They are often omitted; as, T. A. mistocles liberius vivebat, scil. æquo. Nep. In such cases, the comparative may be translated by the positive degree, with too, quite, or rather, as in the above example,—‘He lived too freely,’ or ‘rather freely.’ Voluptas quam māior est atque longior, omne animi lumen exstinguit,—when it is too great, and of too long continuance. Cic. So tristior, scil. solito, rather sad.

(b.) The English word ‘still,’ joined with comparatives, is expressed by etiā or et, and only in later prose writers by adhuc; as, Ut in corporibus magne dissimilitudines sunt, sic in animis existunt majores etiā vitiōlutes. Cic.

REM. 10. (a.) With infērior, the dative is sometimes used, instead of the ablative; as, Vir nullā arte cuiquam infērior. Sall. The ablative is also found; as, Ut hūmānis cāsus virtute infēriōres pātes. Cic. But usually infērior is followed by quam; as, Timotheus belli laude non infērior fuit, quam pāter. Cic. Gratiā non infērior, quam qui umquam fuerunt amplissimi. Id.

(b.) Qualis, ‘such as,’ with a comparative, occurs poetically instead of the relative pronoun in the ablative; as, Nardo pērunctum, quāle non perfectius mea laborārint mānus; instead of quo. Hor. Epod. 5, 59. Animus quāles neque candiliorēs terra tulit; for quibus. Id. Sat. 1, 5, 41.

REM. 11. Quam pro is used after comparatives, to express disproportion; as, Prælium atrocius quam pro nūmēro pugnantiū, The battle was more severe than was proportionate to the number of the combatants. Liv. Minor, quam pro tumultu, cedes. Tac.

REM. 12. When two adjectives or adverbs are compared with each other, both are put in the comparative; as, Triumphus clārior quam grātor, A triumph more famous than acceptable. Liv. Fortius quam felicius bellum gesserunt. So, also, when the comparative is formed by means of magis; as, Magis audacter quam parate ad dicendum veniebat. Cic.—Tacitus uses the positive in one part of the proposition; as, Spēciem excelste glōrie vēmementius quam caute appēbat; or even in both; as, Clāris mājoribus quam vētustis.

REM. 13. (a.) Pōtius and magis are sometimes joined pleonastically with valle and prestāre, and also with comparatives; as, Ab omnibus se desertus pōtius quam ibi se dēfensū esse maluit. Cic. Qui magis vērē vincere quam ibi impērāre malit. Liv. Ut emōri pōtius quam servīre prestāret. Cic. Mihi quavis fuga pōtius quam ullā prōvincia esset optātior. Id. Quis magis queat esse beatior? Virg.

(b.) So, also, the prepositions præ, ante, præter, and supra, are sometimes used with a comparative; as, Unus præ ceteris fortior exurgit, Apul. Scelere ante alios immāior omnes. Virg. They also occur with a superlative; as, Ante alios carissimus. Nep. As these prepositions, when joined with the positive, denote comparison, they seem in such examples to be redundant. See § 127.

REM. 14. Alius is sometimes in poetry treated as a comparative, and construed with the ablative instead of atque with the nominative or a cusative; as, Nōve pūtes ālium sapiēte bōnōque beātum. Hor. Alius Lysippo. Id. But compare § 251, N.

REM. 15. By the poets ac and atque are sometimes used instead of quam after comparatives; as, Quanto constantior idem in citius, tanto lērius miser ac prius ille, qui, etc. Hor. Arctius atque hēlērā prōcūra ulstringitur illex. Id.

REM. 16. The degree of difference between objects compared is expressed by the ablative:—

(1.) Of substantives; as, Minor uno mense, Younger by one month. Hor. Sesquipēde quam tu longior, Taller than you by a foot and a half. Plaut. Hibernia dimidio minor quam Britannia. Cæs. Dimidio minoris constat, It will cost less by half. Cic. Quam molestum est uno digito plus habere !...to have one finger more, i. e. than we have, to have six fingers. Id.—but the expression is unambiguous, as it might mean 'to have more than one finger.' Sūperat capite et cervicibus altis. Virg.

(2.) Of neuter adjectives of quantity and neuter pronouns, in the singular number. Such are tanto, quanto, quo, eo, hoc, multo, parvo, paulo, summo, aliquanto, tantūlo, altero tanto (twice as much); as, Multo doctior es patre, Thou art (by) much more learned than thy father. The relative and demonstrative words, quanto—tanto, quo—eo, or quo—hoc, signifying 'by how much—by so much,' are often to be translated by an emphatic the; as, Quanto sumus superiōres, tanto nos submissius gerāmus, The more eminent we are, the more humbly let us conduct ourselves: lit. by how much—by so much—. Cic. Eo gravior est dolor, quo culpa est maior. Id. But the relative word generally precedes the demonstrative; as, Quo difficultius, hoc præclarius. Id. Poetically, also, quam magis—tam magis are used instead of quanto magis—tanto magis. Virg. Æn. 7, 787: and quam magis—tanto magis. Lucr. 6, 459.—Iter multo facilius,—much easier. Cæs. Parvo brevius, A little shorter. Plin. Eo magis, The more. Cic. Eo minus. Id. Istoc magis vipulibis, So much the more. Plaut. Via altero tanto longior,—as long again. Nep. Multo id maximum fuit. Liv.

(3.) The ablative of degree is joined not only with comparatives but with verbs which contain the idea of comparison; as, multo, presto, supero, excello, antecello, antecedo, and others compounded with ante; and also with ante and post, in the sense of 'earlier' and 'later'; as, Multo prestat. Sall. Post paulo, A little after. Id. Multo ante lacis adrentum, Long before—. Id. multis partibus is equivalent to nullo; as, Número multis partibus esset inferior. Cæs.

NOTE. The accusatives multum, tantum, quantum, and aliquantum, are sometimes used instead of the corresponding ablatives; as, Aliquantum est ad rem deidior. Ter. Multum improbiōres sunt. Plaut. Quantum dono inferior, tantum glōrii superior evisit. Val. Max. Cf. § 232, (3.).—So longe, 'far,' is frequently used for multo; as, Longe melior. Virg. Longe et multum antecellere. Cic. Su, pars pedis sesqui major,—longer by one half. Id.

ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

§ 257. A noun and a participle are put in the ablative, called absolute, to denote the time, cause, means, or concomitant of an action, or the condition on which it depends; as,

Pythagoras, Tarquinio regnante, in Italiam venit, Pythagoras came into Italy, in the reign of Tarquin. Cic. Lupus, stimulante fame, caput orit, Hunger inciting, the wolf seeks the fold. Ovid. Miles, pectore e longinquioribus cicis ducto, extrinsecum famem sustentabant. Cæs. Hac oratione habitā, concitum tenuit. Id. Galli, re cognita, obsidionem relinquunt. Id. Virtute exceptā, nihil metū præcibilibus patētis. Cic.

NOTE 1. The Latin ablative absolute may be expressed in English by a similar construction, but it is commonly better to translate it by a clause connected by when, since, while, although, after, as, etc., or by a verbal substantive; as, Te adiuvante, With thy assistance. Non—nisi te adiuvante, Only with thy assistance, or not without thy assistance. Te non adiuvante, Without thy assistance. Cf. § 274, R. 5, (c.)

REMARK 1. This construction is an abridged form of expression, equivalent to a dependent clause connected by quum, si, etsi, quamquam, quamvis, etc.

Thus, for Tarquinio regnante, the expression dum Tarquinius regnabat might be used; for hac oratione habita;—quum hanc orationem habuisset, or quum hac oratio habita esset, concilium dimisit. The ablative absolute may always be resolved into a proposition, by making the noun or pronoun the subject, and the participle the predicate.

REM. 2. This construction is common only with present and perfect participles. Instances of its use with participles in rus and dus are comparatively rare; as, Cæsare venturo, Phosphore, redde diem. Mart. Irrupturis tam infestis nationibus. Liv. Quum concio plausum, meo nomine recitando, dedisset,—when my name was pronounced. Cic. Quum immolandâ Iphigeniâ tristis Calchas esset. Id. Quis est enim, qui, nullis officiû præceptis trahendis, philosophum se audens dicere—without propounding any rules of duty. Cic. Cf. § 274, R. 5, (c.) and R. 8.

REM. 3. (a.) A noun is put in the ablative absolute, only when it denotes a different person or thing from any in the leading clause. Cf. § 274, 3, (a.)

(b.) Yet a few examples occur of a deviation from this principle, especially with a substantive pronoun referring to some word in the leading clause; as, Se audiente, scribit Thucydides. Cic. Légio ex castris Varronis, adstante et inspectante ipso, signis sustulit. Cæs. Me duce, ad hunc voti finem, me milite, veni. Ovid. So M. Porcius Cato, vivo quoque Scipione, allatrare ejus magnitudinem solitus erat. Liv.

NOTE 2. Two participles must not be put together in the ablative absolute agreeing with the same noun. Thus, we may say Porcia sepe maritum cogitantem invenerat, but not, Porcia marito cogitante invento.

NOTE 3. Instead of the ablative absolute denoting a cause, an accusative with ob or propter occurs in Livy and in later writers; as, Cinôpum condidisse Spartani, ob sepultum illic rectorem navis Cinôpum. Tac. Dicemtri libros Sibyllinos inspicere jussi sunt propter terribiles homines novis prodigiis. Liv.

REM. 4. The ablative absolute serves to mark the time of an action, by reference to that of another action. If the present participle is used, the time of the action expressed by the participle, is the same as that of the principal verb. The perfect participle and the future in rus, denote respectively an action as prior or subsequent to that expressed by the principal verb.

Thus in the preceding examples—Pythagoras, Tarquinio regnante, in Italiam venit, Pythagoras came into Italy during the reign of Tarquinius. Galli, re agnita, obsidionem relinquent, The Gauls, having learned the fact, abandon the siege. So, Rex ærum non nisi migraturo examine foras procedit, The king-bee does not go abroad, except when a swarm is about to emigrate. Plin.

NOTE 4. Non prius quam, non nisi, ut, velut, and tamquam, &c. sometimes joined with the participle; as, Tiberius excessum Augusti non prius p̄lām fēcit, quam Agrippā iuvēne int̄remplo, —not until. Suet. Galli levi, ut explorāta vicinīa, ad castra Rōmānōrum pergunt. Cæs. Antiochus, tamquam non transitūris in Asian Rōmānis, etc. Liv.

REM. 5. (a.) The construction of the ablative absolute with the perfect passive participle, arises frequently from the want of a participle of that tense in the active voice.

Thus, for Cæsar, having sent forward the cavalry, was following with all his forces, we find, 'Cæsar, equitātū prēmisse, subsequēbātur omnibus cōpis.'

(b.) As the perfect participle in Latin may be used for both the perfect active and the perfect passive participles in English, its meaning can, in many instances, be determined only by the connection, since the agent with a or ab is generally not expressed with this participle in the ablative absolute, as it is with other parts of the passive voice. Thus, Cæsar, his dictis, concilium dimisit, might be rendered, 'Cæsar, having said this, or this having been said (by some other person), dismissed the assembly.'

(c.) As the perfect participles of deponent verbs correspond to perfect active participles in English, no such necessity exists for the use of the ablative absolute with them; as, Cæsar, hæc locūtus, concilium dimisit. In the following example, both constructions are united: Itaque...agros Rōmōrum depopulātī, omnibus victis, ædificiisque incensis. Cæs.

REM. 6. The perfect participles of neuter deponent verbs, and some also of active deponents, which admit of both an active and a passive sense, are used in the ablative absolute; as, Ortā læce. Cæs. Vel extincto vel elapso animo, nullum residere sensum. Cic. Tam multis glōriam ejus adeptis. Plin. Lit̄ras ad exercitū, tamquam adepto principātū, misit. Tac.

REM. 7. (a.) As the verb sum has no present participle, two nouns, or a noun and an adjective, which might be the subject and predicate of a dependent clause, are put in the ablative absolute without a participle; as,

Quid, adolescentūlo dūce, efficere possent, What they could do under the guidance of a youth. Cæs. Me suāsore atque impulsore, hoc factum, By my advice and instigation. Plaut. Hannibale vivo, While Hannibal was living. Nep. Invitā Minervā, in opposition to one's genius. Cic. Cælo sereno, when the weather is clear. Virg. Me ignaro, without my knowledge. Cic. With names of office, the concrete noun is commonly used in the ablative absolute, rather than the corresponding abstract with in to denote the time of an event; as, Rōmam vēnī Mārio consule, He came to Rome in the consulship of Marius. Cic.

(b.) The nouns so used as predicates are by some grammarians considered as supplying the place of participles by expressing in themselves the action of a verb. Such are dux, cōmes, adiutor and adiutrix, auctor, testis, iudex, interpres, magister and magistra, præceptor and præceptrix; as, dūce naturā, in the sense of dūcente naturā, under the guidance of nature; iudice Polybio, according to the judgment of Polybius.

REM. 8. A clause sometimes supplies the place of the noun; as, Nondum comperto quam in rēgiōnem vēnisset rex. Liv. Audito vēnisse nūcium. Tac. Vale dicto. Ovid. This construction, however, is confined to a few participles; as, audito, cognito, comperto, explorato, desperato, nunciato, dicto, edicto. But the place of such participle is sometimes supplied by a neuter adjective in the ablative; as, Incerto prae tenebris quid p̄tērent. Liv. Cf. R. 7, (a.) Haud cuiquam dubio quin hostiū essent. Id. Juxta p̄riculoso v̄ra an ficta prōnēret. Tac.

REM. 9. (1.) The noun in the ablative, like the subject nominative, is sometimes wanting; (a) when it is contained in a preceding clause; as, Atticus Seroniam, Prati ætrem, non minus post mortem ejus, quam florēte, coluit, scil. eo,

i. e. Brūto. Nep. (b) When it is the general word for person or persons followed by a descriptive relative clause; as, Hannibal Ibērum cōpas irāciēti prēmisis, qui Alpium transitus spēcūlārentur. Liv. (c) When the participle in the neuter singular corresponds to the impersonal construction of neuter verbs in the passive voice; as, In amnis transgressu, multum certāto, Bardesānes victi. Tac. Mihi, errāto, nulla vēnia, recte facto, exigui vius prōpōnitur. Cic. Quum, nondum palam facto, vivi mortisque prēmiscue complōrērentur. Liv. Nam jam cōtāte eā sum, ut non siet, peccāto, nū ignosci cōquum; i. e. si peccātum fuerit. Ter. Cf. § 274, R. 5, (b.)

(2.) So in descriptions of the weather; as, Tranquillo, scil. māri, the sea being tranquil. Liv. Sērēno, scil. caelo, the sky being clear. Id. Arānei sērēno tezunt, nūbilo tezunt,—in clear and in cloudy weather. Plin. Substantives when used thus are to be considered as ablatives of time; as, Cōmittis, lūcie, Circensibus. Suetonius has used proscriptiōe in the sense of 'during the proscriptiōn.' So pāce et Principe. Tac. Impērio pōpuli Rōmāni. Cæs.

REM. 10. This ablative is sometimes connected to the preceding clause by a conjunction; as, Cesar, quamquam obsidiōe Massiæ retārdante, brevī tāmēn omninī subēgit. Suet. Dēcēvtri non ante, quam perlātis lēgibus, dēpōsitūros impērium esse aībant. Liv.

REM. 11. A predicate ablative is sometimes added to passive participles of naming, choosing, etc. § 210, (3.); as, Hasdrubāle impērātore suffecto. Liv.

CONNECTION OF TENSES.

§ 258. Tenses, in regard to their connection, are divided into two classes—principal and historical.

A. The principal tenses are, the present, the perfect definite, and the two futures.

B. The historical, which are likewise called the preterite tenses (§ 145, N. 2.), are the imperfect, the historical perfect, and the pluperfect.

I. In the connection of leading and dependent clauses, only tenses of the same class can, in general, be united with each other. Hence:—

1. A principal tense is followed by the present and perfect definite, and by the periphrastic form with sim. And:—

2. A preterite tense is followed by the imperfect and pluperfect, and by the periphrastic form with essem.

NOTE. The periphrastic forms in each class supply the want of subjunctive futures in the regular conjugation.

The following examples will illustrate the preceding rules:—

(a.) In the first class. Scio quid āgas. Scio quid ēgēris. Scio quid actūrus sis.—Audiri quid āgas, I have heard what you are doing. Audiri quid ēgēris. Audiri quid actūrus sis.—Audiam quid āgas, etc.—Audivēro quid āgas, etc.

(b.) In the second class. Sciēbam quid āgēres. Sciēbam quid ēgisses. Sciēbam quid actūrus esses.—Audiri quid āgēres, I heard what you were doing. Audiri quid ēgisses. Audiri quid actūrus esses.—Audivēram quid āgēres, etc.

The following may serve as additional examples in the first class; viz. of principal tenses depending on,

(1.) The PRESENT; as, Non sum ita hēbes, ut istuc dicam. Cic. Quantum dōlōrem accēpērim, tu existimāre pōtes. Id. Nec dubito quin rēctus ejus respōdere siliū iri fūturus sit. Id.

(2.) The PERFECT DEFINITE; as, Sitis prōvisum est, ut ne quid igēre possint. Id. Quis mūsicis, quis huic stultio librārum se dēdidit, quā om̄. n. illā un artium vim comprēhenderit. Id. Defectiōes solis prædictæ sunt, quæ, quantæ, quando futuræ sint. Id.

(3.) The FUTURES; as, Sic facillime, quanta brutorum sit, semperque fuerit paucitas, iudicabit. Id. Ad quos dies rediturus sim, scribam ad te. Id. Si scieris aspidem litere uspiam, et velle diuicem imprudentem super eam assidere, cuius mors tibi emolumentum factura sit, impròbe feceris, nisi moneris, ne assideat. Id.

The following, also, are additional examples in the second class, viz. of preterite tenses depending on,

(1.) The IMPERFECT; as, Unum illud extimescebam, ne quid turpiter facerem, vel jam effecissem. Cic. Non enim dubitabam, quin eas libenter lecturus essem. Id.

(2.) The HISTORICAL PERFECT; as, Veni in ejus villam ut libros inde promerem. Id. Hac quum essent nuntiata, Valerius classem extemplo ad ostium fluminis duxit. Liv.

(3.) The PLUPERFECT; as, Pavor cepērat milites, ne mortiferum esset vulnus. Liv. Ego ex ipso audieram, quam a te liberaliter esset tractatus. Cic. Non satis mihi constiterat, cum aliquāne animi mei molestia, an potius libenter te Athenis viurus essem. Id.

REMARK 1. (a.) When the present is used in narration for the historical perfect, it may, like the latter, be followed by the imperfect; as, Légatos mittunt, ut pacem impetrarent. Cæs.

(b.) The present is also sometimes followed by the perfect subjunctive in its historical sense; as, Pandite nunc Helicōna, deæ, cantusque mōvete, Qui bello excitī rēges, quæ quemque secūta Complērint campos actes. Virg.

REM. 2. The perfect definite is often followed by the imperfect, even when a present action or state is spoken of, if it is possible to conceive of it in its progress, and not merely in its conclusion or result; and especially when the agent has an intention accompanying him from the beginning to the end of the action; as, Feci hoc, ut intelligeres, I have done this that you might understand; i. e. such was my intention from the beginning. Sunt philosophi et fuerunt, qui omnino nullam habere censērent humanarum rerum procuratōnem deos. Cic.

REM. 3. (a.) The historical perfect is not regularly followed by the perfect subjunctive, as the latter is not, in general, used in reference to past action indefinite.

(b.) These tenses are, however, sometimes used in connection, in the narrative of a past event, especially in Livy and Cornelius Nepos; as, Factum est ut plus quam collēgæ Miltiades valuērit. Nep.

(c.) The imperfect and perfect are even found together after the historical perfect, when one action is represented as permanent or repeated, and the other simply as a fact; as, Ad eo nihil misēriti sunt, ut incursiōnes facerent et Vēos in animo habuērint oppugnare. Liv.

(d.) The historical perfect may even be followed by the present, when a general truth is to be expressed, and not merely one which is valid for the time indicated by the leading verb; as, Antiocho pacem pētenti ad priores conditiones nihil additum, Africāno predicante, neque Rōmānis, si vincantur, animos minui, neque, si vincant, secundis rebus insclescere. Just.

REM. 4. (a.) As present infinitives and present participles depend for their time upon the verbs with which they are connected, they are followed by such tenses as those verbs may require; as, Apelles pictōres quōque eos peccare dicebat, qui non sentirent, quid esset satis. Cic. Ad te scripsi, te lēviter accusans in eo, quod de me cito credidisses. Id.

(h.) In like manner the tense of the subjunctive following the infinitive future is determined by the verb on which such infinitive depends; as, Sol Phaëthonti filio facturum se esse dixit quicquid optasset. Cic.

REM. 5. (a.) The perfect infinitive follows the general rule, and takes after it a principal or a preterite tense, according as it is used in the definite or in the historical sense; as, Arbitramur nos ea præstitisse, quæ ratio et doctrina præscripsêrit. Cic. Est quod gaudeas te in ista loca vênisse, ubi aliquid scîpere vî lërere. Id.

(b.) But it may sometimes take a different tense, according to Rem. 2; as, Ita mihi videor et esse Deus, et quales essent satîs ostendisse. Cic.

II. Tenses belonging to different classes may be made dependent on each other, when the sense requires it.

(a.) Hence a present or perfect definite may follow a preterite, when the result of a past action extends to the present time; as, Ardëbat autem Hortensius cupiditate dicendi sic, ut in nullo unquam flagrantius stûdium vidërim; i. e. that up to this time I have never seen. Cic. And, on the other hand, a preterite may follow a present to express a continuing action in the past; as, Scîtote oppidum esse in Siciliâ nullum, quo in oppido non isti dilecta mûlier ad libidinem esset: (esset here alludes to the whole period of Verres' prætorship.) Cic.

(b.) But without violating the rule which requires similar tenses to depend upon each other, the hypothetical imperfect subjunctive, may be followed by the present or perfect subjunctive, since the imperfect subjunctive refers to the present time; as, Mémorâre possem quibus in locis maxime hostium cõpiis populus Rómânus parvâ manu fûderit. Sall. Possem here differs from possum only by the hypothetical form of the expression.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

§ 259. The indicative is used in every proposition in which the thing asserted is represented as a reality.

NOTE. Hence it is used even in the expression of conditions and suppositions with si, nisi, etsi, and etiamsi, when the writer, without intimating his own opinion, supposes a thing as actual, or, with nisi, makes an exception, which, only for the sake of the inference, he regards as actual; as, Mors aut plane negligenda est, si omnino exstinguit animum, aut etiam optanda, si aliquo eum defûcit, ubi sit futurus æternus. Cic. Adhuc certe, nisi ego insânio, stulle omnia et incute fiunt. Id.—It is likewise used in interrogations.

REMARK 1. The several tenses have already been defined, and their usual significations have been given in the paradigms. They are, however, sometimes otherwise rendered, one tense being apparently used with the meaning of another, either in the same or in a different mood. Thus,

(1.) (a.) The present is often used for the historical perfect in narration, see § 145, I. 3.—(b.) It is sometimes used also for the future to denote the certainty of an event, or to indicate passionate emotion. So, also, when the leading sentence contains the present imperative, si is often joined with the present instead of the future; as, defende si pòtes.—(c.) The present is also used for the imperfect or perfect, when it is joined with dum 'while'; as, Dum ego in Siciliâ sum, nulla stâtua dëjecta est. Cic. It is even so used by Livy in transitions from one event to another; as, Dum in Asiâ bellum geritur, ne in Eliôis quidem quæritæ res fuêrant. But the preterites are sometimes used with dum 'while'; and dum 'as long as' is regularly joined with the imperfect.

(2.) (a.) The perfect, in its proper signification, i. e. as a perfect definite, denotes an act or state terminated at the present time. Thus Horace, at the close of a work, says, Exegi mômâmentum ære përennius; and Ovid, in like circumstances, Jamque opus exëgi. So, also, Panthus in Virgil, in order to denote the utter ruin of Troy, exclaims, Fuimus Troes, fuit Ilium i. e. we are no longer Trojans, Ilium is no more.—(b.) The perfect indefinite or historical perfect is used in relating past events, when no reference is to be made to the time of other events; as, Cæsar Rubicōnem transiit, Cæsar crossed the Rubicon. (c.) As in the epistolary style the imperfect is used instead of the present, when an incomplete action is spoken of (§ 145, II. 3), so the historical perfect is in like circumstances employed instead of the present, when speaking of a completed action. With both the imperfect and perfect, when so used, however, the adverbs nunc and etiamnunc may be used instead of tunc and etiamtum.

(d.) The historical perfect is sometimes used for the pluperfect in narration; as, Sed postquam aspexi, illico cognovi, But after I (had) looked at it, I recognized it immediately. Ter.—This is the usual construction after postquam (or posteaquam, ubi, ubi primum, ut, ut primum, quam primum, simul, simul ut, simul ac, or simul atque, all of which have the signification of 'as soon as,' and sometimes after primum. But when several conditions are to be expressed in past time, the pluperfect is retained after these particles; as, Idem simulac se remisserat, neque causa suberat, quare animi liborem perferret, luxuriosus reperiebatur. Nep. So, also, postquam is joined with the pluperfect, when a definite time intervenes between events, so that there is no connection between them; as, Hannibal anno tertio, postquam domo profugerat, cum quinque navibus Africam accessit. Id.—In a very few passages the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive are joined with postquam.

(3.) The pluperfect sometimes occurs, where in English we use the historical perfect; as, Dixerat, et spissis noctis se condidit umbris, She (had) said, and hid herself in the thick shades of night. Virg. Sometimes, also, it is used for the historical perfect to express the rapidity with which events succeed each other; so, also, for the imperfect, to denote what had been and still was.

(4.) The future indicative is sometimes used for the imperative; as, Valebis, Farewell. Cic. And:—

(5.) The future perfect for the future; as, Alio loco de oratorum animo et injuriis vidēro, I shall see (have seen).... Cic. This use seems to result from viewing a future action as if already done, and intimates the rapidity with which it will be completed.

REM. 2. When a future action is spoken of either in the future, or in the imperative, or the subjunctive used imperatively, and another future action is connected with it, the latter is expressed by the future tense, if the actions relate to the same time; as, Naturam si sequemur ducem, nunquam aberrabimus. Cic.; but by the future perfect, if the one must be completed before the other is performed; as, De Carthagine ceteri non ante desinam, quam illum excisam esse cognovēro. Cic. In English the present is often used instead of the future perfect; as, Faciām si poterō, I will do it, if I can. Ut sementem faceris, ita metes, As you sow, so you will reap. Cic.

REM. 3. In expressions denoting the propriety, practicability or advantage of an action not performed, the indicative of the preterites (§ 145, N. 2.) is used, where the English idiom would have led us to expect the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive.

(a.) This construction occurs with the verbs oportet, necesse, debeo, convenit, possum, debet, licet, reor, puto; and with par, fac, copia, aequum, justum, conducere, satis, satis, aequius, melius, utilius, optabilius, and optimum—est, est, etc.

(b.) In this connection the imperfect indicative expresses things which are not, but the time for which is not yet past; the historical perfect and the pluperfect indicative, things which have not been, but the time for which is past; as, Ad mortem te duci jam pridem oportebat, i. e. thy execution was necessary and is still so; hence it ought to take place. Cic.—Longe utilius fuit angustias aditus occipere, It would have been much better to occupy the pass. Curt. Catilina erupit e senatu triumphans gaudio, quem omnino vivum illinc exire non oportuerat. Cic.

(c.) In both the periphrastic conjugations, also, the preterites of the indicative have frequently the meaning of the subjunctive; as, Tam boni constantior praeda tēnenda fuit,—ought to have been kept. Ovid. This is more common in hypothetical sentences than in such as are independent.

(d.) The indicative in such connections is retained, even when a hypothetical clause with the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive is added, and it is here in particular that the indicative preterites of the periphrastic conjugations are employed; as, Quam si dābim aut prōcul essent, tamen omnes bonos reipublicæ consilēre dēcēbat. Sall. Quodsi Cn. Pompeius privātus esset hoc tempore, tamen erat mittendus. Cic.—Dēlēri totus exercitus pōtuit, si fugientes persecuti victōres essent. Liv. Quas nisi mīnūmisset, tormentis etiā dedendi fuērunt. Cic. Si te non invēnissem, pērtūrus per praeceptia fui. Petr. But the subjunctive also is admissible in such cases in the periphrastic conjugations.

REM 4. (1.) The preterites of the indicative are often used for the pluperfect subjunctive, in the conclusion of a conditional clause, in order to render a description more animated. They are so used,

(2.) When the inference has already partly come to pass, and would have been completely realized, if something else had or had not occurred, whence the adverb jā is frequently added; as, Jā fāmes quam pestilentia tristior erat; nī unquā foret subventum,—would have been worse. Liv. The same is expressed by the verb capi instead of jā; as, Britanni circumire lēga vīcentium cōpērant, nī, etc. Tac. And without jā; Effigies Pisonis traxerant in Gēmōnias ac divellēbant (would have entirely destroyed them) nī, etc. Id.

(b.) The perfect and pluperfect are likewise used in this sense, and a thing which was never accomplished is thus, in a lively manner, described as completed; as, El peractum erat bellum sine sanguine, si Pompeium opprimeret Brundisii (Cæsar) pōtuisset. Hor.—The imperfect indicative is rarely used, also, for the imperfect subjunctive, when this tense is found in the hypothetical clause; as, Stultum erat monere, nisi sciret. Quint.—Sometimes, also, the preterites of the indicative are thus used in the condition; as, At fuērat mēius, si te puer iste tēnēbat. Ovid. See § 261, R. 1.

(2.) 'I ought' or 'I should,' is expressed by the indicative of dēbeo, and possum is in like manner often used for possem; as, Possum persēqui multa oblectamenta rīrum rusticarū, sed, etc., I might speak of the many pleasures of husbandry, but, etc.; and it is usual in like manner to say, difficile est, longum est, infinitum est, e. g. narrāre, etc., for, 'it would be difficult,' 'it would lead too far,' 'there would be no end,' etc.

(3.) The indicative is used in like manner after many general and relative expressions, especially after the pronouns and relative adverbs which are either doubled or have the suffix cumque; as, quisquis, quicquid, quicumque, atque, utcumque, etc., see §§ 139, 6, (3.) and 191, I. R. 1, (b.); as, Quidquid id est, timeo Divinus et dōni fērentes. Virg. Quem sors cumque dabit, lucro appōne. Hor. Sed quōquo mōdo sive illud habet. But however that may be. Cic.—In like manner sentences connected by sive—sive commonly have the verb in the indicative, unless there is a special reason for using the subjunctive; as, Sive verum est, sive falsum, mihi quidem ita rēnūciātum est. Later writers however use the subjunctive both with general relatives, etc., and with sive—sive.

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

§ 260. The subjunctive mood is used to express an action or state simply as conceived by the mind.

NOTE. The subjunctive character of a proposition depends, not upon its substance, but upon its form. 'I believe,' 'I suppose,' are only conceptions, but my believing and supposing are stated as facts, and, of course, are expressed by means of the indicative. When, on the other hand, I say, 'I should be lieve,' 'I should suppose,' the acts of believing and supposing are represented not as facts, but as mere conceptions. Hence the verb that expresses the purpose or intention for which another act is performed, is put in the subjunctive, since it expresses only a conception; as, Edo ut vivam, I eat that I may live. This mood takes its name from its being commonly used in subjoined or dependent clauses attached to the main clause of a sentence by a subordinate connective. In some cases, however, it is found in independent clauses, or in such, at least, as have no obvious dependence.

I. The subjunctive, in some of its connections, is to be translated by the indicative, particularly in indirect questions, in clauses expressing a result, and after adverbs of time; as, Rogas me quid tristis sim,—why I am sad. Tac. Stellârum tanta est multitudo, ut numerâri non possint,—that they cannot be counted. Quum Cæsar esset in Gallia, When Cæsar was in Gaul. Cæs.

II. The subjunctive is used to express what is contingent or hypothetical, including possibility, power, liberty, will, duty, and desire.

REMARK 1. The tenses of the subjunctive, thus used, have the significations which have been given in the paradigms, and are, in general, not limited, in regard to time, like the corresponding tenses of the indicative. Thus,

(1.) The present may refer either to present or future time; as, Médiocribus et quâs ignoscas vitiis teneor, I am subject to moderate faults, and such as you may excuse. Hor. Orat a Cæsare ut det sibi veniam, He begs of Cæsar that he would give him leave. Cæs.

(2.) The imperfect may relate either to past, present, or future time; as, Si facta fuissent ut caderem, If it had been my fate that I should fall. Virg. Si possem, sinior essem, I would be wiser, if I could. Ovid. Ceteros rapere et prosternere, The rest I would seize and prostrate. Ter.

(3.) The perfect subjunctive has always a reference to present time, and is equivalent to the indicative present or perfect definite; as, Errârim fortasse, Perhaps I may have erred. Plin.—When it has a future signification it is not to be accounted a perfect, but the subjunctive of the future perfect. See Rem 4 and 7, (1.) But compare § 258, R. 1, (b.) and R. 3, (b.)

(4.) The pluperfect subjunctive relates to past time, expressing a contingency, which is usually future with respect to some past time mentioned in connection with it; as, Id responderunt se facturos esse, quum ille vento Aquilona venisset Lemnum.... when he should have come.... Nep.

REM. 2. The imperfections vellem, nollem, and mollem, in the first person, express a wish, the non-reality and impossibility of which are known; as, vellem, I should have wished.—In the second person, where it implies an indefinite person, and also in the third when the subject is an indefinite person, the imperfect subjunctive is used in the sense of the pluperfect, and the condition is to be supplied by the mind. This is the case especially with the verbs, dico, pato, arbitror, credo; also with video, cerno, and discerno; as, Mestique (credere victos) redeunt in castra,—one might have thought that they were defeated. Liv. Pecunia an famæ minus parceret, haud facile discerneres. Sall. Qui videret equum Trojanum introductum, urbem captam diceret. Cic. Quis umquam crederet? Id. Quis putaret? Id.—The imperfect subjunctive is frequently used, also, for the pluperfect in interrogative expressions; as, Socrâtes quum rogaretur cuiusdem se esse diceret, Mundanum, inquit, Id. Quod si quis deus diceret, numquam putarem me in Academiâ tamquam philosophum disputaturum, If any god had said.... I never should have supposed. Cic.

REM. 3. The subjunctive in all its tenses may denote a supposition or concession; as, Vendat aules vir bonus, Suppose an honest man is selling a house. Cic. Dixerit Epicurus, Grant that Epicurus could have said. Id. Virum anceps pugnae fuerat fortuna.—Fuisse, Grant that it might have been. Virg. Malus civis Ch. Carbo fuit. Fuêrit alius, He may have been to others. Cic.—This concessive subjunctive is equivalent to esto ut.

REM. 4. The present and perfect subjunctive are used in independent propositions to soften an assertion. When so used, they do not differ essentially from the present and future indicative; as, Forſitan quærâtis, You may perhaps ask. Velim ſit exiſtimites, I would wiſh you to think ſo. Nemo iſtud tibi concedat, or conceſſerit, No one will grant you that. Hoc ſine ullâ dubitatione confirmaverim, eloquentiam rem eſſe omnium difficillimam, This I will unheſitatingly affirm. Cic. Nil ego contulerim jucundo ſancti amico. Hor. The form which is called the perfect ſubjunctive, when thus uſed for the future, ſeems to be rather the ſubjunctive of the future perfect: ſee Rem. 7, (1.) Volo and its compounds are often ſo uſed in the preſent; as, Velim obvias mihi literis crebrius mittas, I wiſh that you would frequently ſend, etc. Cic. The perfect ſubjunctive is alſo rarely uſed in the ſenſe of a ſoftened perfect indicative; as, Forſitan temere fecerim, I may have acted inconſiderately.

REM. 5. The ſubjunctive is uſed in all its tenses, in independent ſentences, to expreſs a doubtful queſtion implying a negative answer; as, Quo eam? Whither ſhall I go? Quo irem? Whither ſhould I go? Quo ierim? Whither was I to have gone? Quo iriſem? Whither ſhould I have gone? The answer implied in all theſe caſes is, 'nowhere.' So, Quis dubitet quin in virtute dititiſſi ſint? Who can doubt that riches conſiſt in virtue? Cic. Quisquam nâmen Jânônis adoret præſentia? Virg. Quidni, inquit, meminérim? Cic. Quis vellet tanti nuntius eſſe malî? Ovid.

REM. 6. The preſent ſubjunctive is often uſed to expreſs a wiſh, an exhortation, aſſeveration, request, command, or permission; as, Moriar, ſi, etc. May I die, if, etc. Cic. Peream, ſi non, etc. May I periſh, if, etc. Ovid. So, Ne ſim ſaltus. Cic. In media arma ruamus, Let us ruſh.... Virg. Ne me attingas, ſcélerte! Do not touch me, villain! Ter. Faciât quod libet, Let him do what he pleaſes. Id. The perfect is often ſo uſed; as, Ipſe viderit, Let him ſee to it himſelf. Cic. Quam id recte faciâm, viderint ſapientes. Id. Meminerimus, etiam adverſus inſanos juſtitiam eſſe ſervandam. Id. Nihil incommôdo valetudinis tuæ feceris. Id. Emas, non quod opus eſt, ſed quod neceſſe eſt. Sen. Dônis impij ne placere audeant deos; Plutonium audiant. Cic. Nataram expellas furca, iâmen uſque recurrat. Hor.

(a.) The examples ſhow that the preſent ſubjunctive, in the firſt perſon ſingular, is uſed in aſſeverations; in the firſt perſon plural, in requests and exhortations; in the ſecond and third perſons of the preſent and ſometimes of the perfect, in commands and permissions, thus ſupplying the place of the imperative, eſpecially when the perſon is indefinite.

(b.) With theſe ſubjunctives, as with the imperative, the negative is uſually not non but ne; as, ne dicas; ne dicat; ne dixeris. So, alſo, ne fuerit, for licet ne fuerit.

(c.) The ſubjunctive for the imperative occurs moſt frequently in the third perſon. In the ſecond perſon it is uſed principally with ne; as, ne dicas. In the latter caſe the perfect very frequently takes the place of the preſent; as, ne dixeris. The ſubjunctive is alſo uſed in the ſecond perſon, inſtead of the imperative, when the perſon is indefinite.

(d.) In precepts relating to paſt time, the imperfect and pluperfect, alſo, are uſed for the imperative; as, Forſitan non nemo vir fortis dixerit, reſtiſſiſſe, mortem pugnans oppetiſſe,—you ſhould have reſiſted. Cic.

REM. 7. In the regular paradigms of the verb, no future ſubjunctive was exhibited either in the active or paſſive voice.

(1.) When the expreſſion of futurity is contained in another part of the ſentence, the future of the ſubjunctive is ſupplied by the other tenses of that mood, viz. the future ſubjunctive by the preſent and imperfect, and the future perfect by the perfect and pluperfect. Which of theſe four tenses is to be uſed depends on the leading verb and on the completeness or incompleteness of the action to be expreſſed. The perfect ſubjunctive appears to be alſo the ſubjunctive of the future perfect, and might not improperly be ſo called; as,

Tantum moneo, hoc tempus si amisēris, te esse nullum umquam magis idoneum rēperturum, I only warn you, that, if you should lose this opportunity, you will never find one more convenient. Cic.

(2.) If no other future is contained in the sentence, the place of the future subjunctive active is supplied by the participle in rus, with sim and essem; as, Non dubitat quin brevi Trōja sit peritura, He does not doubt that Troy will soon be destroyed. Cic. In hypothetical sentences the form with fuērim takes the place of a pluperfect subjunctive; as, Quis enim dubitat, quin, si Saguntis impigre talissemus opem, totum in Hispaniam aversuri bellum fuērimus. Liv. The form in fuissem occurs also, but more rarely; as, Apparuit, quantum excitatura molem vērā fuisset clādes, quum, etc. See Periphrastic Conjugation, § 162, 14.

(3.) The future subjunctive passive is supplied, not by the participle in dis but by futurum sit or esset, with ut and the present or imperfect of the subjunctive; as, Non dubito quin futurum sit, ut laudetur, I do not doubt that he will be praised.

PROTASIS AND APODOSIS.

§ 261. In a sentence containing a condition and a conclusion, the former is called the protasis, the latter the apodosis.

1. In the protasis of conditional clauses with si and its compounds, the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive imply the non-existence of the action or state supposed, the imperfect, as in English, implying present time. In the apodosis the same tenses of the subjunctive denote what the result would be, or would have been, had the supposition in the protasis been a valid one; as,

Nisi te scitis incitatum esse confidērem, scriberem plura, Did I not believe that you have been sufficiently incited, I would write more (Cic.); which implies that he does believe, and therefore will not write. Si Neptūnus, quod Thiseo promiserat, non fecisset, Thiseus filio Hippolyto non esset orbatūs. Id.

2. The present and perfect subjunctive in the protasis, imply the real or possible existence of the action or state supposed; as,

Si vult, if he wishes, or, should wish, implying that he either does wish, or, at least, may wish. In the apodosis the present or perfect either of the subjunctive or of the indicative may be used.

REMARK 1. The tenses of the indicative may also be used in the protasis of a conditional sentence with si, etc.; as, Si vales, bene est. Cic. Si quis antea mirabatur quid esset, ex hoc tempore miretur potius.... Id.—The conjunction si in the protasis is often omitted; as, Libet agros emi. Primum quero quos agros? If you will buy lands, I will first ask, etc. But the protasis may be rendered without if, and either with or without an interrogation, as, You will buy lands, or, Will you buy lands? The future perfect often occurs in the protasis of such sentences; as, Cūsus medicusve levārit agrum ex præcepti, miter dicitur necabit, (Hor.) Should chance or the physician have saved him, the silly mother will destroy him. Si is in like manner omitted with the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive, in supposing a case which is known not to be a real one; as, Abaque te esset, hodie numquam ad solem occāsum vivērem. Plaut.

REM. 2. The present and perfect subjunctive differ but slightly from the indicative, the latter giving to a sentence the form of reality, while the subjunctive represents it as a conception, which, however, may at the same time be a reality. The second person singular of the present and perfect subjunctive often occurs in addressing an indefinite person, where, if the person were definite, the indicative would be used; as, Mēmoria minuitur, nisi eam exerceas. Cic. When the imperfect or pluperfect is required to denote a past action the indicative must be used, if its existence is uncertain, as these tenses in the subjunctive would imply its non-existence. In the oratio obliqua, when the leading verb is a present or a future the same difference is observed between the tenses of the subjunctive as in hypothetical sentences; but when the leading verb is a preterite the difference between possibility and impossibility is not expressed.

REM. 3. The present and perfect subjunctive are sometimes used, both in the protasis and apodosis of a conditional sentence, in the sense of the imperfect and pluperfect; as, Tu, si hic sis, aliter sentias, If you were here, you would think otherwise. Ter. Quos, si mea cura resisterat, jam flammæ tulerint. Virg.

REM. 4. The protasis of a conditional sentence is frequently not expressed, but implied; as, Magno mercentur Atrides, i. e. si possint. Virg.; or is contained in a participial clause; as, Agis, etsi a multitudine victus, gloriâ tamen omnes vicit. Just. So, also, when the participle is in the ablative absolute; as, Dona-rem tripodas—divite me scilicet artium, quas aut Parrhasius protulit, aut Scôpas. Hor. C. Mâcius Porcénam interficere, præpositâ sibi morte, cönatus est. Cic. It is only in later writers that the concessive conjunctions etsi, quamquam, and quavis are expressed with the participle, but tamen is often found in the apodosis, even in the classic period, when a participial clause precedes as a protasis.

REM. 5. In hypothetical sentences relating to past time, the actions seem often to be transferred in a measure to the present by using the imperfect, either in the protasis or the apodosis, instead of the pluperfect; as, Quod certe non fecisset, si suum numerum (navarum) naves haberent. Cic. Cimbri si statim festo agnâne urbem petissent, gravele discrimen esset. Flor. Sometimes the imperfect, although the actions are completed, appears both in the protasis and the apodosis.

REM. 6. Nisi, nisi vëro, and nisi forte are joined with the indicative, when they introduce a correction. Nisi then signifies 'except'; as, Nescio; nisi hoc video. Cic. Nisi vëro, and nisi forte, 'unless perhaps,' introduce an exception, and imply its improbability; as, Nemo fere saluat sobrius, nisi forte insanit. Cic. Nisi forte in the sense of 'unless you suppose,' is commonly used ironically to introduce a case which is in reality inadmissible.

SUBJUNCTIVE AFTER PARTICLES.

A. SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

§ 262. A clause denoting the purpose, object, or result of a preceding proposition, takes the subjunctive after ut, ne, quo, quin, and quâminus; as,

Ea non, ut te instituërem, scripsi, I did not write that in order to instruct you. Cic. Irritant ad pugnam, quo fiant acriores, They stimulate them to fight, that they may become fiercer. Varr.

REMARK 1. Ut or ût, signifying 'that,' 'in order that,' or simply 'to' with the infinitive, relates either to a purpose or to a result. In the latter case it often refers to sic, ita, adeo, tam, tâlis, tantus, is, ejusmodi, etc., in the preceding clause; as,

Id mihi sic erit grâtum, ut grâtius esse nihil possit, That will be so agreeable to me, that nothing can be more so. Cic. Non sum ita hëbes, ut istuc dicam. Id. Nëque tam èrâmus âmentes, ut explorata nobis esset victôria. Id. Tantum incultis s' lori, ut eum piëtas vincëret. Nep. Ita and tam are sometimes omitted; as, Epaminondas fuit ètiam disertus, ut nemo Thëbânus ei par esset èloquentiâ, instead of tam disertus. Id. Esse oportet ut vivas, non vivere ut edas. Auct. ad Hor. Id efficit ut omnia floreant. C. c.

REM. 2. Ut, signifying 'even if' or 'although,' expresses a supposition merely as a conception, and accordingly takes the subjunctive as,

Ut desint vires, tamen est laudanda voluntas, Though strength be wanting, yet the will is to be praised. Ovid. Ut, in this sense, takes the negative non; as, Exercitus si pacis nomen audierit, ut non referat pedem (even if it does not withdraw) insistet certe. Cic.

REM. 3. Ut, with the subjunctive denoting a result, is used with impersonal verbs signifying it happens, it remains, it follows, etc.; as,

Qui fit, ut nemo contentus vivat? How does it happen that no one lives contented? Hor. Huic contigit, ut patriam ex servitute in libertatem vindicaret. Nep. Sequitur igitur, ut etiam vitia sint parca. Cic. Reliquum est, ut egomet mihi consilium. Nep. Restat igitur, ut motus astrorum sit voluntarius. Cic. Extremum illud est, ut te orem et obsecrem. Id.

NOTE 1. To this principle may be referred the following verbs and phrases signifying 'it happens,' viz. fit, fieri non potest, accidit, incidit, contingit, evenit, usu venit, occurrit and est (it is the case, or it happens, and hence esto, be it that):—and the following, signifying 'it remains,' or 'it follows,' viz. futurum, extremum, prope, proximum, and reliquum—est, relinquitur, sequitur, restat, and superest: and sometimes accidit.

NOTE 2. Contingit with the dative of the person is often joined with the infinitive, instead of the subjunctive with ut; as, Non cuius homini contingit adire Chrythum. Hor. And with esse also and other verbs of similar meaning, the predicate (as in the case of licet) is often found in the dative.—Sequitur and efficitur, 'it follows,' have sometimes the accusative with the infinitive and sometimes the subjunctive; and nascitur, in the same sense, the subjunctive only.

NOTE 3. Mos or moris est, consuetudo or consuetudinis est, and natura or consuetudo fert, are often followed by ut instead of the infinitive.—Ut also occurs occasionally after many such phrases as novum est, rarum, naturale, necesse, usitatum, mirum, singulare—est, etc., and after aequum, rectum, verum, utile, verisimile, and integrum—est.

For other uses of ut, with the subjunctive, see § 273.

REM. 4. Ut is often omitted before the subjunctive, after verbs denoting willingness and permission; also after verbs of asking, advising, reminding, etc., and the imperatives dic and fac; as,

Quid vis faciam? What do you wish (that) I should do? Ter. Insani fiant sine libra iunctus. Virg. Tentes dissimulare rogat. Ovid. Id sinas oro. Id. Se suadere, dixit, Pharnabazo id negotii daret. Nep. Accedat oportet actio varia. Cic. Fac cogites. Sall. So, Vide ex navi efferrantur, quae, etc. Plant

Verbs of willingness, etc., are velo, malo, permitto, concedo, patior, sino, licet, veto, etc.; those of asking, etc., are rogo, oro, quæso, moneo, admoneo, jubeo, mando, peto, precor, censeo, suadeo, oportet, necesse est, postulo, hortor, curo, deprecor, oro, impetro.

REM. 5. Nē, 'that not,' 'in order that not,' or 'lest,' expresses a purpose negatively; as,

Cura ne quid ei desit, Take care that nothing be wanting to him. Cic. Nemo prudens punit, ut ait Plauto, quia peccatum est, sed ne peccetur. Id. Ut ne is frequently used for ne, especially in solemn discourse, and hence in laws; as, Opera datur, ut iudicia ne fiant. Id. Quo ne is used in the same manner in one passage of Horace. Missus ad hoc—quo ne per vacuum Romano incurreret hostis.—On the other hand ut non is used when a simple result or consequence is to be expressed, in which case ita, sic, tam are either expressed or understood as, Tum forte argrotabam, ut ad nuptias tuas venire non possem. In a few cases however ut is used for ne.—Ut non is further used, when the negation ne fers to a particular word or to a part only of the sentence, as in similar cases si non must be used, and not nisi; as, Confer te ad Manlium, ut a me non ejectus ad alios, sed inritatus ad tuos isse videaris. Cic.

REM. 6. Nē is often omitted after cave; as,

Cave putes, Take care not to suppose. Cic. Compare § 267, R. 8.

REM. 7. After metuo, timeo, vereor, and other expressions denoting fear or caution, nē must be rendered by that or lest, and ut by that or not.

NOTE 3. To the verbs metuo, timeo, and vereor are to be added the substantives expressing fear, apprehension or danger, and the verbs terreo, conterreo, deturro, caveo, to be on one's guard, video and observeo in requests (as, vide, memento and videndum est), in the sense of 'to consider'; as,

Milo metuēbat, ne a servis indicārētur, Milo feared that he should be betrayed by his servants. Cic. Vereor, ne, dum minuire velim laborem, augeam. Id. Pavor erat, ne castra hostie aggrēderētur. Liv. Illā duo vereor, ut tibi possim concedere, I fear that I cannot grant.... Cic. Ovendum est ne assentatoribus patēficiamus aures, neu adulāri nos sināmus. Cic. Vide ne hoc tibi obsit. Terrui gentes, grave ne rediret siculum Pyrrhæ. Multitudine deterrent, ne frumentum conferant. Cæs. Me miserum! ne prona cadas. Ovid.

NOTE 4. Nēve or neve is used as a continuative after ut and ne. It is properly equivalent to and ne, but is also used for et ne after a preceding ut; as, on the other hand, et ne is used after a negation instead of aut ne; as, Legem tūti, ne quis ante actarum rerum accusārētur, neve multārētur. Nep. Cæsar milites non longiore oratione cohortatus, quam uti sue pristinae virtutis memoriam retinerent, neu perturbarentur animo—prælii committendi signum dedit. Cæs. Nēque, also, is sometimes used for et ne after ut and ne; as, Ut ea prætermittam, nēque eos appellem. Cic. Cur non sanctis ne vicinus patrio sit pleribus, nec eodem tūtere eal. Liv.—Ne non is sometimes used for ut after verbs of fearing; as, Timeo ne non impetrem, I fear I shall not obtain it.

REM. 8. The proposition on which the subjunctive with ut and nē depends, is sometimes omitted; as, Ut ita dicam. Cic. Ne singulos nōminem. Liv.

NOTE 5. Nedum, like ne, takes the subjunctive; as, Optimis temporibus clariissimi vii tribuniciū sustinere non potuerunt: nedum his temporibus sine iudiciorum remediis salvi esse possimus,—still less, etc. Cic. Ne is sometimes used in the sense of nedum; as, Nōram eam potestatem (scil. tribunorum plēbis) eripere patribus nostris, ne nunc dulcedine semel capti ferant desiderium. Liv.—Nedum without a verb has the meaning of an adverb, and commonly follows a negative; as, Ægre inermis tanta multitudo, nedum armata, sustineri potest. Liv. Nē, also, is used in the same manner in Cic. Fam. 9, 26.

REM. 9. Quō, 'that,' 'in order that,' or, 'that by this means,' especially with a comparative; non quō, or non quod, 'not that,' 'not as if'; non quā, 'not as if not'; which are followed in the apollōsis by sed quorū, sed quia, or sed alone; and quōminus, 'that not,' after clauses denoting hinderance, take the subjunctive; as, Ajūta me, quō id fiat facilius, Aid me, that that may be done more easily. 1. Non quo rēpūblīcā sit mīhi quicquā cārius, sed desperātis etiā Hippocrātes et ut adhibere medicinā. Cic. Non quod sola ornet, sed quod excellent. Id. Nēque recūsāvit, quō minus lēgis pōnam subiret. Nep. Ego me dicem in ciuili bello negāvi esse, non quā rectum esset, sed quia, etc. Cic. And instead of non quā we may say non quo non, non quod non, or non quia non; and for non quod, non eo quod, or non ideo quod.

REM. 10. Quin, after negative propositions and questions with quis and quid implying a negative takes the subjunctive. Quin is used,

1. For a relative with non, after nemo, nullus, nihil....est, repperit invenitur etc., viz est, ægre repperitur, etc.; as, Messanum nemo venit, quin viderit, i. e. qui non viderit, No one came to Messana who did not see. Cic. Nego illum picuram fuisse....quin conquiescit, i. e. quam non, etc. Id. Nihil est, quin nula narrando possit depravari. Ter. Quis est, quin cernat, quantu vis sit in sensibus? Cic.

NOTE 6. When quin is used for the relative it is commonly equivalent to the nominative qui, quæ, quod, but it is sometimes used in prose instead of the accusative, and sometimes after dies for quo, as the ablative of time; as, Dies fere nullus est, quin hic Satrius domum meam ventitet, i. e. quo—non ventitet. Cic.—Qui non is often used for quin; as, Quis enim erat, qui non sciret. Id.; and when quin stands for qui non or quod non, is and id are sometimes added for the sake of emphasis; as, Cleanthes negat ullum cibum esse tam gravem, quin is die et nocte concocquatur. Cic. Nihil est quod sensum habent, quin id intèrent. Id.—So, also, the place of quin is supplied by ut non; as, Augustus numquam filios suos populo commendavit ut non adiceret (without adding) si mererentur. Suet. And if no negation precedes, or if non belongs to a particular word, and not to the verb, qui non and ut non must of course be used and not quin.

2. For ut non, 'that not,' or 'without' with a participle, especially after fâcere non possum, ficri non potest, nulla causa est, quid causæ est? nihil causa est; as, Fâcere non possum quin ad te mittam, i. e. ut non, etc. Cic. Numquam tam male est Sticilia, quin aliquid fâcite et commode dicant. Cic. Numquam cedo, quin abs te âbeun doctor,—without going from you wiser. Ter.

NOTE 7. Quin takes the subjunctive also after the negative expressions non dubito, non est dubium, non ambigo, I doubt not; non âbest; nihil, paulum, non procul, haud multum âbest; non, viz, ægre alstineo; tènere me, or tempèrâre mihi non possum; non impêdo, non rêcuso, nihil prætermitto, and the like. In these cases, however, the negation in quin is superfluous, and it is generally translated into English by 'that,' 'but that,' or 'to' with an infinitive; as, Non dubito quin domi sit, that he is at home. Non multum âbest, quin miserrimus sim, Not much is wanting to make me most wretched. Cic. Hence, as quin is not in such cases regarded as a negative, non is superadded when a negative sense is required; as, In quibus non dubito quin offensionem negligentie vitare atque effugere non possim. Cic. Dubitandum non est quin numquam possit utilitas cum honestate contendere. Id.

NOTE 8. In Nepos, non dubito, in the sense of 'I do not doubt,' is always followed by the infinitive with the accusative, and the same construction after occurs in later writers but not in Cicero: in the sense of to scruple or hesitate, when the verb following has the same subject, dubito and non dubito are generally followed by the infinitive; as, Cicero non dubitabat conjuratos supplicio afficere.—It may be added that 'I doubt whether' is expressed in Latin by *dubito si*ne, dubito utrum—an, *dubito si*ne—an, or dubito num, numquid, for dubito an, and dubium est an are used, like nescio an with an affirmative meaning.

NOTE 9. Quin signifies also 'why not?' being compounded of the old ablative qui and nè, i. e. non, and in this sense is joined with the indicative in questions implying an exhortation; as, Quin consentimus equus? Why not mount our horses? In this sense it is also joined with the imperative; as, Quin dic statim, Well, tell me: or with the first person of the subjunctive. Hence wish-out being joined to any verb it signifies 'even' or 'rather.'

REM. 11. The principal verbs of hinderance, after which quôminus occurs, and after which nè, and, if a negative precedes, quin also may be used, are deterreo, impêdo, intècedo, obsto, obsto, officio, prôhibeo, rêcuso, and rêpugno. It occurs also after stat or fit per me, I am the cause, non pugno, nihil moror, non contineo me, etc.

NOTE. Intècedo, deterreo, and rêcuso are sometimes, and prôhibeo frequently followed by the infinitive. Instead of quôminus, quo scècius is sometimes used.

§ 263. The particles specified in this section always introduce a sentence containing only a conception of the mind, and are hence joined with the subjunctive.

1. The subjunctive is used after particles of wishing, as utinam, ut, O! and O! si; as, Utinam minus vitæ cupidî fuissēmus! O that we had been less attached to life: Cic. O si sôlitæ quicquam virtutis âlesset! Virg.

REMARK. The present and perfect tenses, after these particles, are used in reference to those wishes which are conceived as possible; the imperfect and pluperfect are employed in expressing those wishes which are conceived as wanting in reality. Cf. § 261, 1 and 2.—'Would that not' is expressed in Latin both by utinam ne and utinam non. Utinam is sometimes omitted; as, Tecum lâlâre sicut ipsa possem! Catull.

B. ADVERBIAL CLAUSES.

2. (1.) Quamvis, however; licet, although; tamquam, tamquam si, quasi, ac si, ut si, vêlut, vêlut si, vêluti, sicût, and ceu, as if; môdo, dum, and dummôdo, provided, —take the subjunctive; as,

Quamvis ille fêlix sit, âmen, etc. However happy he may be, still, etc. Cic. Vêritas licet nullum dēfensôrem obtineat, Though truth should obtain no defender. Id. Tamquam clausa sit Asia, sic nihil perfertur ad nos. Id. Sed quid ego his testibus âtor, quasi res dubia aut obscura sit? Id. Me omnibus rebus, juxta ac si meus frâter esset, sustentâvit, He supported me in every thing, just as though he were my brother. Id. Similiter facere eos, —ut si nautæ certarent, âter, etc. Id. Absentis Ariônistî crâdêlîtatem, velut si côram âlesset, horrêrent. Cæs. Inque sinus cârôs, vêluti cognoscêret, ibat. Ovid. Sicûti jurgo lâcessitus foret, in sênâum vênit. Sall. Hic vêro ingentem pugnam, ceu cêtera nusquam bella fôrent. Virg. Odêrunt dum mêtuant. Att. in Cic. Mânent ingénia sênibus, môdo permâneat stûdium et industria. Cic. Omnia hônesta negligunt dummôdo pôtentiam consêquantur, They disregard every honorable principle, provided they can obtain power. Id.

NOTE. Môdo, dum, and dummôdo, when joined with a negation, become môdo ne, dum ne, and dummôdo ne.

(2.) Quamvis (although) is in Cicero joined with a principal tense of the subjunctive; as, Quamvis non fuêris suâsor, approbâtor certe fuisti. Cic. In later writers it is often used with the indicative; as, Fêlicem Nibben, quamvis tot funêra vidit. Ovid. So also once in Cicero, Quamvis putrem suum nunquam vidêrat. Rab. Post. 2.

(3.) Quamvis, as a conjunction, in the sense of 'however much,' is joined with the subjunctive. So also when its component parts are separated; as, C. Gracchus dixit, sibi in somnis Tî. frâtrem visum esse dicere, quam vellet cunô târêtur, âmen, etc.—Quamvis 'however much,' as an adverb, governs no particular mood.

(4.) Etsi, âtmetsi, even if, although, and quamquam, although, commonly introduce an indicative clause:—Etiam si is more frequently followed by the subjunctive. In later prose writers, and sometimes in Cicero and Sallust as well as in the poets, quamquam is joined with the subjunctive; as, Quamquam presente Lûcullô loquar. Cic. Vi rêgêre patriam quamquam possis. Sall. Jug. 8. Filius quamquam Thêtidôs mârinas Dardânius turres quâtêret. Hor.

REMARK. The imperfect subjunctive with ac si, etc., is used after the present, to denote that in reality the thing is not so, but in that case a hypothetical subjunctive must be supplied; as, Egnâtii rem ut tueâre æque a te pêtô, ac si me: négôtiâ essent, i. e. ac pêtêrem, si mea négôtiâ essent, as I would pray if, etc. Cic.

3. After antēquam and priusquam, the imperfect and pluperfect tenses are usually in the subjunctive; the present and perfect may be either in the indicative or subjunctive. The present indicative is commonly used when the action is to be represented as certain, near at hand, or already begun; the subjunctive is used when the thing is still doubtful, and also in general propositions; as,

Ea causa ante mortua est, quam tu nātus esses. That cause was dead before you were born. Cic. Averti equos, priusquam pābula gustassent Trōjæ, Xanthumque bibissent. Virg. Priusquam incipias, consulto opus est. Before you begin there is need of counsel. Sall.

4. (1.) Dum, donec, and quoad, signifying until, are followed by the subjunctive, if they refer to the attainment of an object; as,

Dum hic veniret, locum relinquere noluit. He was unwilling to leave the place until he (Milo) should come. Cic. Nihil puto tibi esse satius quam opperriri quoad scire possis, quid tibi agendum sit. Id. Cornu tulerunt, et ducit longe, donec curvata coerent inter se capita. Virg.—In the sense of 'as long as,' these particles take the indicative, but Tacitus joins donec with the subjunctive even when a simple fact is to be expressed.

(2.) Dum, while, is commonly used with the indicative present, whatever may be the tense of the principal sentence. Cf. § 259, R. 1, (1.), (a.)

5. Quum (cum), when it signifies a relation of time, takes the indicative; when it denotes a connection of thought, the subjunctive; as,

Qui non defendit injuriam, neque repulsat a suis, quum potest, injuste facit. Cic. Quum recte navigari poterit, tum naviges. Id. Credo tum, quum Sicilia florēbat opibus et copiis, magna artificia fuisse in ea insula. Id. Quum tot sustineas et tanta negotia, peccem, si morer tua tempora. Since you are burdened with so many and so important affairs, I should do wrong, if I should occupy your time. Hor. Quum vita sine amicis mētus plena sit, ratio ipsa monet amicitias comparare. Cic.

REMARK 1. (a.) The rule for the use of quum may be thus expressed: Quum temporal takes the indicative, quum causal the subjunctive. Hence, when quum is merely a particle of time, with no reference to cause and effect, and not occurring in a historical narrative (see Rem. 2), it may be joined with any tense of the indicative. But when it is employed to express the relation of cause and effect, or has the meaning of 'though' or 'although,' it is joined with the subjunctive (b.) Quum, relating to time, is commonly translated when, while, or after; referring to a train of thought, it signifies as, since, though or although, because; but may often be translated when.

REM. 2. In narration, quum, even when it relates to time, is joined with the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive, when a historical perfect stands in the principal clause; as, Gracchus, quum rem illam in religionem populo venisse sentiret, ad senatum retulit. Cic. Alexander, quum interemisset Cilicum, viæ minus a se abstinuit. Id.

NOTE. Quum temporal, when it expresses an action frequently repeated, may be joined with the pluperfect indicative, and the apodosis then contains the imperfect; as, Quum autem vir esse creperat, dabat se libori. Cic. Quum rogam viderat, tum incipere ver arbitrābatur. Id. Cf. § 264, 12.

REM. 3. Quum in the sense of 'while' is joined with the perfect and imperfect indicative, often with the addition of interea or interim, to express simultaneous occurrences; as, Citulus cepit magnum suæ virtutis fructum, quum omnes prope anni vice, in eo ipso vos spem habituros esse, dixistis. Cic. Cedebatur virgīs in medio foro Messianæ civis Rōmīnus, iudices, quum intērea nulla vox alia istius misēri audiebātur, nisi hæc: civis Rōmānus sum. Id.

REM. 4. Quum, for the most part preceded by an adverb, as, iam, nondum, vix, ægre, or joined with repente or sūbito is followed by the indicative, especially by the present indicative, to express the beginning of an action. In the cases mentioned in this and the preceding remark, the historians also use quum with the historical infinitive.

For the subjunctive after si and its compounds, see § 261.

C. ADJECTIVE CLAUSES.

SUBJUNCTIVE AFTER QUI.

§ 264. Relatives require the subjunctive, when the clauses connected by them express merely a conception; as, for example, a consequence, an innate quality, a cause, motive, or purpose.

1 (a.) When the relative qui, in a clause denoting a result of the character or quality of something specified in the antecedent clause, follows a demonstrative, and is equivalent to ut with a personal or demonstrative pronoun, it takes the subjunctive.

NOTE. The demonstratives after which qui takes the subjunctive, are tam with an adjective, tantus, tālis, ejusmodi, hujusmodi, and is, ille, iste, and hic in the sense of tālis; as,

Quis est tam Lynceus, qui in tantis tenebris nihil offendat? i. e. ut ille in tantis, etc., Who is so quick-sighted, that he would not stumble, (or, as not to stumble,) in such darkness. Cic. Talem te esse oportet, qui ab imperiorum civium societate sejungas; i. e. ut tu, etc. Id. At ea fuit legatio Octavia, in qua periculi suspicio non subesset, i. e. ut in ea. Id. Nec tamen ego sum ille ferreus, qui fratris carissimi morore non movear, i. e. ut ego non movear. Id. Non sumus illi, quibus nihil verum esse videatur, i. e. ut nobis nihil, etc. Id. Nulla gens tam fera est, cujus mentem non imbuerit deorum opinio, i. e. ut ejus mentem, etc. Id.

(b.) Sometimes the demonstrative word is only implied; as,

Res parva dictu, sed quæ studiis in magnum certamen excesserit, i. e. tālis res,....of such a kind that it issued in a violent contest. Cic. Nunc dicis aliquid, quod ad rem pertineat, i. e. tāle ut id, etc. Id. So quis sum, for num tālis sum; as, Quis sum, cujus aures ledi nefas sit? Sen.—In like manner, also, a demonstrative denoting a character or quality, is implied in the examples included in the following rule:—

2. When the relative is equivalent to quamquam, is, etsi is, or dummōdo is, it takes the subjunctive; as,

Laco, consilii quamvis egrègii, quod non ipse afferret, intmicus, Laco, an opponent of any measure, however excellent, provided he did not himself propose it. Tac. Tu aquam a pauce postulas, qui ipse sitiat. Plaut. Nihil molestum, quod non desideres, i. e. dummōdo id. Cic.

3. Quod, in restrictive clauses, takes the subjunctive; as,

Quod sciam as far as I know; quod meminērim, as far as I recollect; quod ego intelligam; quod d intelligi possit; quod conjecturā prōvidēri possit; quod salva fide possim; quod commōdo tuo fiat, etc.—Quidem is sometimes added to the relative in such sentences. Quod sine molestia tua fiat, So far as it can be done without troubling you. Cic. In the phrases quantum possum, quantum ego perspicuo, on the other hand, the indicative is used.

4. A relative clause, after the comparative followed by quam, takes the subjunctive; as, Māior sum, quam cui possit fortuna nocere, i. e. quam ut mihi, etc., I am too great for fortune to be able to injure me. Ovid. Auditiā voce præcōnis māius gaudium fuit, quam quod universum hōmīnes capērent, Upon the herald's voice being heard, the joy was too great for the people to contain. Liv.

REMARK 1. The clause annexed by quam qui implies an inherent quality or a consequence; so that quam qui is equivalent to quam ut, which also sometimes occurs. Sometimes the subjunctive follows quam even without a relative pronoun; as, In his libris longior fui, quam aut vellem, aut quam me putāre jōre:—and so frequently with the verbs velle and posse.

5. A relative clause expressing a purpose, aim, or motive, and equivalent to ut with a personal or demonstrative pronoun, takes the subjunctive; as,

Lacedæmōnii legatos Athēnas misērunt, qui eum absentem accūsārent: i. e. ut illi eum accūsārent, The Lacedæmonians sent ambassadors to Athens to accuse him in his absence. Nep. Cæsar equitātum omnem præmittit, qui videant, quas in partes iter faciāt. Cæs. Sunt autem multi, qui eripiunt aliis, quod aliis largiantur. Cic. Assidue rēpētant, quas perdant, Bēlides undas. Ovid.

REM. 2. So also with relative adverbs; as, Lampsacum ei (Thēmistocli) rex dōmārat, unde vinum sūmēret, i. e. ex quā or ut inde, etc. Nep. Sūper tābernāculum regis, unde ab omnibus concepti posset, imāgo solis crystallo inclūsa fulgebāt. Curt.

6. A relative clause with the subjunctive after certain indefinite general expressions, specifies the circumstances which characterize the individual or class indefinitely referred to in the leading clause; as,

Fuerunt eā tempestate, qui dicērent, There were at that time some who said. Sall. Erant, quibus appētentiōr fāma, vidērētur, There were those to whom he appeared too desirous of fame. Tac. Sunt, qui censeant, una animū et corpus occidēre. Cic. Erunt, qui existimāri vellent. Id. Si quis erit, qui perpetuam oratiōnem desidēret, alterā actiōne audiet. Id. Veniēt legiōnes, quæ neque me inultum neque te impūntum patiāntur. Tac. So after est followed by quid, in the sense of 'there is reason why'; as, Est quod gaudeas, You have cause to rejoice. Plant. Est quod visam domum. Id. Si est quod dēsit, ne beatius quidem est. Cic.

NOTE 1. The expressions included in the rule are est, sunt, adest, præsto sunt, existunt, exoriantur, inveniuntur, repēriuntur, (scil. hōmīnes); si quis est, tempus fuit, tempus veniet, etc.

REM. 3. The same construction occurs with relative particles used indefinitely; as, Est unde hæc fiant. Si est culpam ut Antipho in se admisērit, If it chance that, etc. Ter. Est tibi id isto modo valeat. Cic. So est cur and est ut in the sense of est cur; as, Ille erat, ut odisset defensorem salutis mee, i. e. he had reason to hate. Cic. Non est igitur ut mirandum sit, There is no occasion for wondering. Id.

REM. 4. The above and similar expressions are followed by the subjunctive only when they are indefinite. Hence, after sunt quidem, sunt nonnulli, sunt multi, etc., when referring to definite persons, the relative takes the indicative; as, Sunt oratiōnes quedam, quas Menocrito dabo. Cic.

REM. 5. The indicative is sometimes, though rarely, used after sunt qui even when taken indefinitely, especially in the poets; as, Sunt, quos iuvat. Hor. Sunt qui ita dicunt. Sall.

7. A relative clause after a general negative, or an interrogative expression implying a negative, takes the subjunctive; as,

Nemo est, qui haud intelligat, There is no one who does not understand. Cic. Nulla res est, quæ perferre possit continuum libet-tem, There is nothing which can endure perpetual labor. Quint. Nulla pars est corporis, quæ non sit minor. Id. Nihil est, quod tam miseris faciat, quam impietas et aclus. Cic. In fors viz decimus quisque est, qui ipsius sese noscat. Plaut. Quis est, qui utilia fugiat? Who is there that shuns what is useful? Cic. Quæ latebra est, in quam non intret metus mortis? Sen. Quid dulcius quam habere, quicum omnia audeas sic loqui ut tærum? Cic. (See respecting this use of the indefinite quicum rather than the definite quodcum, § 138, R. 1.) An est quisquam, qui hoc ignoret? Is there any one who is ignorant of this? Id. Numquid est mali, quod non dixeris? Ter.

NOTE 2. General negatives are nemo, nullus, nihil, unus non, alius non, non quisquam, non ullus, nec ullus, etc., with est; viz with an ordinal and quisque; nego esse quemquam, etc. Interrogative expressions implying a negative, are quis, quid; qui, quæ, quod quantus, uter, equus, numquis, an quisquam, an aliquis, quodvis quisque, quodvis, etc. with est? quot, quam multi, etc., with sunt?

NOTE 3. The same construction is used after non est, nihil est, quid est, numquid est, etc., followed by quod, cur, quære, or quamobrem, and denoting 'there is no reason why,' 'what cause is there?' 'is there any reason?' as, Quod timeas, non est, There is no reason why you should fear. Ovid. Nihil est, quod adventum nostrum pertimescas. Cic. Quid est, quod de rjus civitate dubites? Id. Queris a me, quid ego Cætilinam metuam. Nihil, et curavi ne quis metuëret. Quid est, cur virtus ipsa per se non efficiat beatos? Id.—So after non habeo, or nihil habeo; as, Non habeo, quod te accûsem. Cic. Nil habeo, quod ægam, I have nothing to do. Hor. Nihil habeo, quod ad te scribam. Cic. So without a negative, De quibus habeo ipse, quid sentiam. Id. Causa or, with quid and nihil, cause, is sometimes added; as, Non fuit causa, cur postulâres. Id. Quid erat causæ, cur metuëret. Id.

NOTE 4. (a.) The relative clause takes the subjunctive after the expressions included in this and the last rule, only when it expresses the character or quality of the subject of the antecedent clause; and the relative, as in the preceding cases of the relative with the subjunctive, is equivalent to a personal or demonstrative pronoun with ut; as, Nemo est, qui nesciat, There is no one who is ignorant, i. e. no one is ignorant. Cic. So, Sunt, qui hoc sapiunt, There are some who blame this, i. e. some blame this. Vell.

(b.) If the relative clause is to be construed as a part of the logical subject it does not require the subjunctive; as, Nihil stabile est, quod infidum est Nothing which is faithless is firm. Cic.

8. (1.) A relative clause expressing the reason of what goes before, takes the subjunctive; as, Peccârisse mihi videor, qui a te discesserim, I think I did wrong in leaving you. Cic. Inertium accusas adolescentium, qui istam artem non ediscant, You blame the idleness of the young men, because they do not learn that art. Id. O fortunâte adolescentens, qui tuæ virtutis Hônorûm præcônem inveneris!—in having found. Id. Cæcinius fuit mirificâ vigilantia, qui suo tôto consûlatu somnum non viderit,—since, etc. Id.

(2.) Sometimes, instead of qui alone, ut qui, quippe qui, or utpôtè qui, is used, generally with the subjunctive; as, Quæritur cum putre non inibat, quippe qui ne in oppidum quidem nisi pererrâre venisset. Cic. Nêque Antônus præcul aberrat, utpôtè qui magno exercitû sèquëretur. Sall. But sometimes with the indicative in Sallust and Livy; as, Quiippe qui omnia vicërat. Sall.

9. After dignus, indignus, aptus, and idôneus, a relative clause takes the subjunctive; as,

Videtur, qui aliquando impëret, dignus esse, He seems to be worthy at some time to command. Cic. Rustici nostri quum fidem aliquis bonitatemque laudant, ægnum esse dicunt, quicum in tenebris intes. Id. Nulla videtur aptior per- sōna, quæ de cæte loquērētur. Id. Pompeius Idōneus non est, qui impetret. Id. Et rem Idōneam, de quā quæratur, et hōmīnes dignos, quibuscum dissēratur, p̄tant. Id.

NOTE 5. If the relative clause does not express that of which the person or thing denoted by the antecedent is worthy, its construction is not influenced by this rule. Thus, Quis servus libertate dignus fuit, cui nostra sōlus cāra non esset? The subjunctive is here used according to No. 7 of this section.

NOTE 6. The infinitive frequently follows these adjectives in poetry, though rarely in prose; as, Et puer ipse fuit cantāri dignus. Virg.:—and sometimes ut; as, Eras dignus, ut hābēres integram mānum. Quint.

10. A relative clause, after ūnus, sōlus, primus, etc., restricting the affirmation to a particular subject, takes the subjunctive; as,

Hoc est ūna contentio, quæ adhuc permānsērīt. This is the only dispute which has remained till this time. Cic. Vōluptas est sōla, quæ nos vōcet ad se, et allīceat suapte natūrā. Pleasure is the only thing that, by its own nature, invites and allures us to itself. Id.

11. When the relative refers to a dependent clause, it often takes the subjunctive. See § 266.

12. The imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive are used in narration after relative pronouns and adverbs, when a repeated action is spoken of; as,

Semper hābiti sūt fortissimī, qui summam impērii pōtrentur, Those were always accounted the bravest, who obtained the supreme dominion. Nep. Quemcumque lictor jussu consūlis prēhendisset, tribūnus mitti jubebat. Liv. Ut quisque maxime laborāret locus, aut ipse occurrēbat, aut aliquis mittēbat. So after si quis or qui; as, Si qui rem mālitiōsius gessisset, dēlēctus existimābāt. Cic. Quōtiens sūper tāli nēgōtio consultāret, editā dōmūs parte aīebātur. Tac. Nec quisquam Pyrrhum, quā tūlisset impētum, sustinēre valuit.—It is sometimes found in like manner after quum, ubi, ut, and si when used in the sense of quum, when repeated actions are spoken of; as, Id ubi dixisset, hastam in fines eōrum emittēbat. Liv. Sin Nūmidā prōptius accessissent, ibi vērō virtutem ostendēre. Sall. Sometimes even the present subjunctive is so used when employed as an aorist to express things which have happened repeatedly, and still happen (see § 145, I. 2.): as, Ubi de magnā virtūte et glōriā bōnōrum mēmōres, quæ sibi quisque, etc. Sall.

NOTE 7. This is called the indefinite subjunctive, or subjunctive of generality, inasmuch as the action is not referred to a distinct, individual case. The indicative, however, is used in such cases more frequently than the subjunctive.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDIRECT QUESTIONS.

§ 265. Dependent clauses, containing an indirect question, take the subjunctive.

NOTE 1. A question is indirect when its substance is stated in a dependent clause without the interrogative form. Indirect questions generally depend upon those verbs and expressions which commonly take after them the accusative with the infinitive. Cf. § 272. Thus:—

Quālis sit animus, ipse animus nescit, The mind itself knows not what the mind is. Cic. Credibile non est, quantum scribam, It is incredible how much I write. Id. Quis ego sim, me rōgitas? Do you ask me who I am? Plaut. Ad te quid scribam nescio. Cic. Nec quid scribam hābeo, Nor have I any thing to write. Id. Dōce me, ubi sint dii, Inform me where the gods are. Id. Incertum est, quo te lēco mors expectet. Sen. Ep. Quam pridem sibi hōrēdītus vēnisset, ita et Id. Nunc uccipe, quāre dēspiciunt omnes. Hor. Id utrum illi sentiant, an vēro simūlent, tu intelliges. Cic. Quæro, num tu sēnātui causam tuam permittas. Id. Vides, ut allā stet nīve candīdum Sōracte. Hor. Nescit, vīdne fruātur, as sit apud mānes. Ovid.

NOTE 2. All interrogatives whether adjectives, pronouns, or particles, may serve as connectives of clauses containing indirect questions; as,

Quantus, qualis, quōt, quōtus, quōtuplex. ūter; quis, qui, cūjas; ūbi, quō, unde, quā quorsum, quāntū, quāndādm, quānpīdm, quōties, cur, quāre, quāmobrem, quēmadmōdm, quōmōdo, ut, quā, quāntōpēre, an, ne, num, utrum, anne, annon.

REMARK 1. The indicative is frequently used in dependent questions, especially in Terence and Plautus and occasionally in later poets; as, Vide dvārtus quid fācit. Ter. So Virg. Ecl. 5, 7. In the best prose writers the indicative generally indicates that the question is direct, or that the sentence is not a question; as, Quæramus ūbi mālēficium est, Let us seek there, where the crime actually is. Cic. Nihil est admirābilis, quā quōmōdo ille mortem filii tulit.

REM. 2. In double questions, 'whether—or,' the first may be introduced by utrum, or the enclitic ne, or without an interrogative particle. Hence there are four forms of double questions,—1. utrum (or utrum ne),—an. 2. utrum,—an (anne). 3. ne,—an. 4. ne,—ne; as, Multum ultrēt, utrum laus imminuātur, an sālus dēsērātur. Cic. The interrogative particle utrum is not used in a single question; and num—an is used only in direct questions. The English 'or not' in the second part, which is used without a verb, is expressed in Latin by annon or necne, either with or without a verb; but necne occurs only in indirect questions; as, Dī utrum sint, necne sint, quæritur. Cic.—Ne—ne, an—an, or num—num scarcely occur except in poetical or unclassical language.

REM. 3. Dūbito, dūbium est, or incertum est an, dēlibēro or hæsito an, and especially haud scio an, nescio an, though implying some doubt, have generally a sense almost affirmative. Compare § 198, 11, R. (e.)

REM. 4. Nescio quis, used nearly in the sense of aliquis, does not influence the mood of the following verb; as, Sed cāsu nescio quo in ea tempōra citas nostra incidit. Cic. Lūcus, nescio quo cāsu, nocturno tempōre incensus est. Nep. So, also, nescio quōmōdo, 'somehow' or 'in some way'; as, Sed nescio quōmōdo, inheret in mentibus quāsi augūrium. Cic. In like manner mirum quā, mirum quantum, nīmium quantum, and the like, when united to express only one idea, do not affect the mood of the verb; as, Sāles in dicendo nīmium quantum vident,—very much. Cic

SUBJUNCTIVE IN INSERTED CLAUSES.

§ 266. 1. When a dependent proposition containing either an accusative with the infinitive, or a verb in the subjunctive, has a clause connected with it, as an essential part, either by a relative, a relative adverb, or a conjunction, the verb of the latter clause is put in the subjunctive; as,

Quid enim pōtest esse tam perspicuum, quā esse aliqūod nūmen, quo hæc regantur? For what can be so clear as, that there is some divinity by whom these things are governed? Cic. Here the thing which is stated to be clear is, not merely esse aliqūod nūmen, that there is a god, but also that the world is governed by him. Hence the latter clause, quo hæc regantur is an essential part of the general proposition. Illud sic fēre dēfiniri sōlet, dēcōrum id esse, quod consentāneum sit hōminis excellentiæ. Id. Audiam quid sit, quod Epicūrum non pōbes, I shall hear why it is that you do not approve of Epicurus. Id. Iussit ut, quæ vō i'ssent naves Eubæam pētērent. Liv.

REMARK 1. Hence the subjunctive is used in general sentences, in which the class of things mentioned exists only as a conception or idea, while the individual thing has a real existence; as, Est enim ulciscendi et puniendi modus, atque haud scio an satis sit eum qui læcesserit injuriæ suæ pondere, i. e. each individual offender of the class.

REM. 2. When the principal proposition contains a subjunctive denoting a result, after ita, tam, ut, etc., the inserted clause has the indicative; as, Asia vero tam optata est et fertilis, ut—multitudine earum rerum, quæ exportantur, facile omnibus terris antecellat. Cic. The same is the case in definitions; as, Videtur igitur oportet, quæ sint convenientia cum ipso negotio, hoc est, quæ ab re separare non possunt. Cic.—So also explanatory clauses, especially circumlocutions introduced by a relative pronoun, are sometimes found with the indicative; as, Itaque ille Marius item eximie L. Plautium dilexit, cujus ingenio putabat ea, quæ gesserat, posse celebrari. Cic.

NOTE. To this rule belongs the construction of the oratio obliqua, 'indirect discourse,' or 'reported speech,' in which the language of another is presented, not as it was conceived or expressed by him, but in the third person. Thus Cæsar said, 'I came, I saw, I conquered,' is direct,—Cæsar said, that 'he came, saw, and conquered,' is indirect discourse.

2. In the oratio obliqua, the main proposition is expressed by the accusative with the infinitive; and dependent clauses connected with it by relatives and particles, take the subjunctive.

Thus, Cicero and Quintilian, in quoting the language of Marcus Antonius make use, the former of the oratio directa, the latter of the oratio obliqua;—Antonius inquit, 'Ars earum rerum est, quæ sciuntur', Antonius says, 'Art belongs to those things which are known.' Cic. Antonius inquit, artem earum rerum esse, quæ sciuntur, Antonius says, that 'art belongs to those things which are known.' Quint.

So, Socrætes dicere solebat, omnes, in eo quod scirent, satis esse eloquentes, Socrates was accustomed to say, that 'all were sufficiently eloquent in that which they understood?' Cic. Cito mirari se airbat, quod non rideret hârsupez, hârsupicem quam vidisset. Id. Negat jus esse, quia miles non sit, pugnare cum hoste. Id. Indignabantur ibi esse imperium, ubi non esset libertas. Liv. Itaque Athenienses quod honestum non esset, id ne utile quidem (esse) putaverunt. Cic.

REMARK 1. (a.) When the subjunctive would be necessary in the oratio directa, to denote liberty, power, etc., the same remains in the oratio obliqua, and is not changed into the infinitive with an accusative; as, Ad hæc Ariovistus respondit, quum vellet, congrèderetur. To this Ariovist replied, that 'he might meet him when he pleased.' Cæs. In the oratio directa, this would be congrèderetur.

(b.) The imperative in the oratio directa is, in the oratio obliqua, changed into the subjunctive; as, hoc mihi dicite, which in the oratio obliqua is, hoc sibi dicant, or hoc sibi dicèrent, according to the tense of the leading verb.

(c.) So also direct questions addressed to the second person, when changed from direct to indirect speech, become subjunctives. Liv. 6, 37.—But such questions when not addressed to the second person are expressed in the oratio obliqua by the accusative with the infinitive; as when in direct speech we say, Etiamsi veltis contumelia oblivisci velim, num possum etiam recentium injuriarum memoriam depondere? The oratio obliqua will be, Cæsar respondit (histor. perf.)—si veltis contumelia oblivisci vellet, num etiam recentium injuriarum—memoriam depondere posse? Cæs. Very rarely the accusative with the infinitive is found in a question of the second person, as in Liv. 6, 17: but the subjunctive in questions of the third person is less uncommon in Cæsar; as, Quis pati posset? for quem pati posse? Quis hoc sibi persuaderet? for quem sibi persuasurum? See § 273, 3.

REM. 2. A writer may state his own past words or thoughts in oratio obliqua as if he were present, using the first person, or adopting the third.

REM. 3. When the inserted clause contains the words or sentiments of the subject of the leading clause, all references to him are regularly expressed by the reflexives sui and se; as, Hac necessitate coactus domino nāvis qui sit aperit, multa pollicens, si se conservasset. Nep. And this is equally true when the word to which the pronoun refers is not in reality the grammatical subject, provided it may still be conceived as such; as, Quum ei in suspitionem venisset, aliquid in epistola de se esse scriptum. Nep.; for the words, quum ei in suspitionem venisset, are equivalent to quum suspicāretur. See § 208, (1.)

REM. 4. The tenses to be used in changing the oratio directa into the obliqua, depend on the tense of the verb which introduces the quotation, according to the rule, § 258. But when the future perfect would be used in the direct, the pluperfect is necessary in the oblique form; but the perfect is used after the present, perfect definite, or future.

REM. 5. When the connected clause contains merely a descriptive circumstance, or expresses what is independent of the sentiment of the preceding clause, it takes the indicative; as, Imperavit Alexander Lysippo, ut eorum equitum, qui apud Granicum ceciderant, faceret statuas, Alexander ordered Lysippus to make statues of those horsemen who had fallen at the Granicus. Sometimes, in other cases, when it is evident from the sense, that the connected clause is an essential part of the proposition, the indicative is used, to avoid giving the appearance of contingency to the sentence.

3. A clause connected to another by a relative or causal conjunction, takes the subjunctive, (whatever be the mood of the preceding verb,) when it contains not the sentiment or allegation of the writer, but that of some other person alluded to; as,

Socrates accusatus est, quod corrumpere iuventutem, Socrates was accused of corrupting the youth, lit., because (as was alleged) he corrupted the youth. Deum invocant, cujus ad solenne venissent, They invoked the god, to whose solemnities they had come. Liv. Quos vicēris amicos tibi esse care credas, Do not believe that those whom you have conquered are your friends. Here, in the first example, the charge of corrupting the youth is not made by the writer, but by the accusers of Socrates. So, in the second example, the worshippers allege that they have come to attend upon the solemnities of the god. In the last, it is implied by the use of the subjunctive mood, that the belief spoken of is that of the person addressed:—quos vicisti would have been merely an addition of the speaker, by means of which he would have designated the persons whose friendship he was speaking of; and, in general, the indicative, in such sentences, is employed in those statements which are independent of the sentiments of the person, to whose thoughts or words allusion is made. Cf. supra, 2, R. 5.

REMARK. In the preceding cases, it is not directly said that the sentiments are those of another than the writer. In Cicero, however, the words dico, puto, arbitror, and the like, are often construed in a similar manner, although, properly speaking, not these verbs, but those in the clauses dependent on them, should be in the subjunctive; as, Quum enim, Hannibalis permissu, exisset de castris, rediit paulo post, quod se oblitum nescio quod diceret,...because (as) he said, he had forgotten something. Cic. Ab Athēniensibus, locum sepulture intra urbem ut darent, impetrare non potui, quod religione se impetiri dicerent. Id.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

§ 267. The imperative mood is used to express a command, wish, advice, or exhortation; as,

Nosce te, Know thyself. Cic. Æquam memento seritare mentem, Remember to preserve an unruffled mind. Hor. Huc ades, Come hither. Virg. Pasce od vellas, et potum pastas æge, et inter agendum occurrere capro caverito. Id.

(1.) The imperative present denotes that an action is to be performed directly or at once; as, lĕge, read; mōrĕre, die; or that a state or condition is to continue; as, vĭve, live.

(2.) The imperative future denotes that something is to be done, as soon as something else has taken place; as, Quum vāletūdinē tuā cōsultāveris, tum cōsultō vārigātiōnē. Cic. Prius audite paucis; quā d quum dixerō, si placuit, itē, faciōtē. Ter. The precedent event is often to be supplied by the mind. Sometimes, especially in poetry, the imperative present is used for the imperative future, and, on the other hand, scito and scitōte, from scio, are used instead of the imperative present, which is wanting.

(3.) Hence the imperative future is properly used in contracts, laws, and wills; and also in precepts and rules of conduct; as, Rēgiō impĕriō duo sūnt, itque cōsules appellāntor, militiā summum jus hābentō, nēmīni pārentō, his sātus pōpuli supĕrma lex esto. Cic. Non sātis est pulchra esse pōēmīta, dulcia sūnt. Hor. Ignosĕito sepe aliĕri, numquam tibi. Syr.

REMARK 1. With the imperative, not is expressed by nē, and nor by nēve; as, Ne tantis animis assuescĭte bella. Virg. Ne crēde cōlōri. Id. Hōmīnem mortuū in urbe ne sēpĕlĭto, nēve ūrta. Cic.

NOTE. Non and nēque occur, though rarely, with the imperative; as, Vos quōque non cārīs aures ōnĕrāte lapillis, nec prōdite grāves insāto vestibus auro. Ovid. But with the subjunctive used for the imperative non and especially nēque are found more frequently. Cf. § 260, R. 6, (b).—In Plautus and Terence ne is of common occurrence both with the imperative and with the present subjunctive, and with no difference of meaning; but later poets chiefly use ne with the present subjunctive, and ne with the imperative only when they speak emphatically. In classical prose writers the periphrastic nōli with the infinitive is preferred.

REM. 2. The present and perfect subjunctive are often used instead of both tenses of the imperative, to express a command in a milder form, an exhortation, or an entreaty; as, Qui adīpisci vĕram glōriam vōlet, justitiā fungātur officiis. Cic. Quod dūbitas, ne faciās. Plin. Ep. See § 260, II., R. 6. An imperative of the perfect passive is very rarely found; as, At vos adnōnti nōstris quōque cōsibus este. Ovid. Jacta ālea esto. Cæs. in Suet. But the subjunctive is more common; as, Jacta sit ālea. Sometimes also the future indicative; as, Sed vālĕbis, mēque nēgōtia vīdābis, mēque dīs jūvantibus ante brūm exspectābis, instead of vāle, vīde, exspecta. Cic. Ubi sententiā meā vōbis pĕrīgĕro, tum quibus eādem placēbunt, in dextram partem tōcili transibitis, instead of transitōte. Liv. With the future the negative is non. See § 259, R. 1, (4.)

REM. 3. Sometimes, for the simple affirmative imperative, cūra or cūrāto ut, fac ut, or fac alone is used with the subjunctive; as, Cūra ut quā prīmum vĕnias, Cōme as soon as possible. Fac erūdias, Instruct, or Take care to instruct. Cic. For the negative imperative fac ne, cāve ne or cāve alone, with the present or perfect subjunctive is used; but especially nōli with the infinitive; as, Nōli pātāre, Do not suppose. Cic. Cāve existimes, Do not think. Id. Nōlite id velle quod non fieri pōtest, et cāvĕte ne spe pĕsēntis pācis pĕrĕpĕtum pācem ōmittātis. Id.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

OF THE TENSES OF THE INFINITIVE.

§ 268. 1. The infinitive partakes of the properties of the noun and verb, just as the participle combines the properties of the adjective and verb. It expresses simply the action or state implied in the verb in an abstract manner, without specifying either person, number, or time, and thus merely indicates whether an action is in progress or completed.

2. The tenses of the infinitive denote respectively an action as present, past, or future, in reference to the time of the verbs with which they are connected; as,

Hoc facere possum, I am able to do this. Cic. Vidi nostros inimicos cupere bellum, I saw that our enemies were desiring war. Id. Nec gemere atria cessabit turtur ab ulmo, Nor shall the turtle dove cease to coo from the lofty elm. Virg.—Victorem victæ succubuisse queror, I complain that the victor has yielded to the vanquished. Ovid. Se a senibus audisse dicabant, They said that they had heard (it) from the old men. Cic. Audiet civis acuisse ferrum juvenis, The youth will hear that the citizens have whetted the sword. Hor.—Negat sese verbum esse facturum, He declares that he is not about to speak. Cic. Postquam audierat non datum iri filio uxorem suo, After he had heard that a wife would not be given to his son. Ter. Semper existimabitis nihil horum eos visuros fore, You will always suppose that you are to see none of these things. Cic.

REMARK 1. (a.) The present and perfect infinitives are sometimes called respectively the infinitives of incomplete and of completed action. The present infinitive, however, is sometimes used to denote a completed action. This is the usual construction with mementi; but in such case the speaker transfers himself to the past, and the expression denotes rather a recollection of the progress than of the completion of the action; as, Hoc me mementi dicere, I remember my saying this. Cic. Teucrum mementi Sidonæ venire, I remember Teucer's coming to Sidon. Virg. So with memoria teneo. Cic. Phil. 8, 10. Scribit also is construed like mementi; as, Cic. Off. 3, 2: and after the same analogy, and for the sake of vivid expression Cicero says, M. Maximum accepimus facile celare, tacere, dissimulare, etc., though speaking of things which he had not witnessed himself. So, also, with recordor:—Recordor longe omnibus unum anteferre Demosthenem. Cic. When the action is spoken of simply as a fact, the perfect infinitive is used with mementi; as, Mementis me tui distribuisse casum. Cic.

(b.) The passive voice having no simple form for expressing the completed state of suffering makes use of the combination of the perfect participle with esse; as, amatus esse, to have been loved. When thus combined esse loses its own signification of a continued state, and when this state is to be expressed, another infinitive must be chosen; as, Constrictam jam horum conscientia teneri conjurationem tuam non vides? Cic. Sometimes, however, when no ambiguity can arise, esse in the usual combination retains its original meaning as, Aqua Plutinem est, omnem morem Lacedæmoniæ inflammatum esse cupiditate vincendi. Id. Here inflammatum esse expresses a continued or habitual state.—Fuisse with the perfect participle denotes a state completed previous to a certain past time; as, Jabet bono animo esse; sopitum fuisse regem subito ictu. Liv.

REM. 2. To express the result of an action rather than its progress, the perfect infinitive is sometimes used instead of the present, especially after scitis habeo, satis mihi est, pudet, contentus sum, melius erit, rolo or a verb of equivalent meaning; as, Bacchatur rates, magnum si pectore possit excussisse deum. Virg. Quum illum nemo vellet attigisse. Plin. The poets use the infinitive perfect where we should expect a present; as, Tendentes Pelion imposuisse Olympo. Hor.

REM. 3. The present infinitive is also sometimes used for the future, especially when the verb has no future; as, Disne fata deum flecti sperare, Cease to hope that the fates of the gods will be changed. Virg. Progeniem Trojano a sanguine dici audire. Id. Cras mihi argentum dare dicat, i. e. se daturum esse. Ter. Cito affirmat se vivo illum non triumphare. Cic.

REM. 4. (a.) The infinitive future active is formed by a combination of the participle future active with esse; as, amaturus esse; the infinitive future passive by a combination of the supine in um with iri; as, amatum iri. These future infinitives denote an action or state as continuing. The participle in rus which properly expresses intention (see § 162, 14), takes also the infinitive fuisse to express a past intention; as, Scio te scripturum fuisse, I know that you have had the intention to write, whence it was an easy transition to the sense, 'you would have written,' in conditional sentences, when the condition is not fulfilled. This infinitive is used especially in the apodosis of hypothetical sentences, where in direct speech the pluperfect subjunctive would be used (cf. § 162, 14, R. 8.); as, Etiam si obtemperasset auspiciis, idem eventurum fuisse puto. Cic. In like manner the infinitive future with esse is used in the apodosis of hypothetical sentences instead of the imperfect subjunctive; as, Libertus, nisi iurasset, scelus se facturum (esse) arbitrabatur. Id.

(b.) Instead of the future infinitive, in both voices, futurum esse or fore followed by ut and the subjunctive, is often used; the present and imperfect subjunctive, in such cases, denoting an unfinished, the perfect and pluperfect a finished, future action; as, Numquam potavi fore, ut supplex ad te venirem, I never supposed (that it would happen) that I should come a suppliant to you. Cic. Suspicio fore, ut infringatur hominum improbitas. Id. Credebam fore, ut epistolam scripsisses.—So, also, in the passive for a continued state of future suffering the present and imperfect are used; as, Crede fore, ut epistolam scribatur, and, Credebam fore, ut epistola scriberetur. But to express a completed state in future time the perfect participle is employed; as, Quos spero brevi tempore tecum copulatos fore. Cic. Quod videret nomine patris bellum involutum fore. Id. This construction is necessarily used, when the verb has either no future active participle, or no supine; as, in such case, the regular future infinitive cannot be formed; as, Spero fore ut sapias.—Fore is found in two passages pleonastically joined with the future participle active, viz. Te ad me fore venturum. Cic. Att. 5, 21: and Quum senatus censeret—libenter facturos fore. Liv. 6, 42.

REM. 5. (a.) The periphrastic infinitive formed by the future active participle with fuisse, denotes a future action contingent upon a condition which was not fulfilled; and, in the apodosis of a conditional sentence, corresponds to the pluperfect subjunctive; as, An censes me tantos labores suscepturum fuisse, si tandem finibus gloriam meam quibus vitum essem terminaturus? Do you think that I should have undertaken so great labors if, etc. Cic. Ut perspicuum sit omnibus, nisi tantu acerbitas injuria fuisset, numquam illos in eum locum progressuros fuisse,...that they never would have come into that place. Id.

(b.) Futurum fuisse with ut and the imperfect subjunctive passive, corresponds to the infinitive fuisse with the future participle active in a conditional proposition; as, Nisi nuncii essent allati, existimabant plerique futurum fuisse, ut oppidum amitteretur,...that the town would have been lost. Cæsar.

(c.) The participle future passive cannot be used to form an infinitive future passive, since it always retains the meaning of necessity, and in this sense has three regular infinitives, amandum esse, amandum fuisse, and amandum fore; as, hivere hiemem, aut sub pellibus habendos milites fore, aut differendum esse in aestatem bellum. Liv.

REM. 6. In the apodosis of a conditional sentence, the perfect infinitive, like the past tenses of the indicative, (see § 259, R. 4.), sometimes corresponds to the pluperfect subjunctive; as, (Dixit) sibi vitam filia suæ cariorem fuisse, si liberæ ac pudicæ vivere licitum fuisset, (He said) that the life of his daughter had been dearer to him than his own, if it had been permitted.... Liv. This use of the perfect infinitive is necessary, when the verb has no future participle; as, Egredem Plutōnem existimo, si genus forense dicendi tractare veluisset, gravissime et copiosissime potuisse dicere,—would have been able to speak. Cic.

§ 269. The infinitive may be regarded either as a verb or as an abstract noun. (a.) As a verb it is used either indefinitely (§ 143, 4), or with a subject of its own, which is put in the accusative, (§ 239). But the infinitive passive of neuter and sometimes of active verbs, like the third person singular of that voice, may be used impersonally or without a subject; as, Vides tota præparari litore, You see a stir is made all along the shore. Virg. See §§ 209 R. 3, (2), and 239, R. 4. The present infinitive has sometimes, in narration, a subject in the nominative. See § 209, R. 5.

(b.) As a noun, the infinitive, either alone or with a subject-accusative, has two cases, the nominative and the accusative, and is accordingly used either as the subject or the object of a verb.

THE INFINITIVE AS THE SUBJECT OF A VERB

The infinitive, either with or without a subject-accusative, may be the subject of a verb; as,

Ad rempúblicam pertinet me conservári, It concerns the state that I should be preserved. Cic. Nunquam est útile peccáre, To do wrong is never useful. Id. Május dódécus est paria ámittére quam omnino non parávisse. Sall. In the first example conservári with its subject accusative me is the subject of pertinet, and is equivalent to 'my preservation': in the second, peccáre is the subject of est útile. See § 202, 2, and III. R. 2.

REMARK 1. A general truth may be expressed by the infinitive without a subject; as, Fúcius est vincire civem Rómánum, To bind a Roman citizen, or, that one should bind a Roman citizen, is a crime. But in such case the verb esse and verbs denoting to appear, to be considered or called (§ 210, R. 3.), require the noun or adjective of the predicate to agree with the implied subject in the accusative; as, Æquum est peccátis véniam poscentem reddére rursus. Hor. Atticus maximum vestiménti questum, mémórem grátumque cognosci. Nep.

NOTE. The indefinite pronoun aliquem or aliquis may in such cases be supplied, and the same indefiniteness may be expressed by te or nos, cf. § 209, R. 7; but it is still more frequently expressed by the infinitive passive. Hence the sentence Fúcius est vincire civem Rómánum, may also be expressed by Fúcius est vincíri civem Rómánum. So, Quam vidérent de eórum virtúte non despérári. Nep.—The impersonal verbs licet, décet, oportet, opus est, and nécesse est, when there is no definite subject, are joined with the infinitive active alone; but when there is a subject-accusative, they are connected with the passive construction; as, a. c. t. licet hoc fácere; décet spéctimen capére ex hac re; pass. licet hoc fáeri; décet spéctimen capí.

REM. 2. The infinitive, with or without a subject accusative, is often the subject of a proposition, when the substantive verb with a noun, a neuter adjective, or an impersonal verb forms the predicate. Of this kind are justum, æquum, vérissimile, consentáneum, ápertum—est, erat, etc., nécesse est, opus est:—appáret, constat, convénit, décet, licet, oportet; intelligitur, perspícitur, etc.; as, Cui verba däre difficile est. Ter. Mendácem mémórem esse oportet. Quint. Légem brevem esse oportet. Sen. Omsud profecto ad adúltero civium íventus esse léges. Cic. Non enim me hoc jam dicére pudebit. Id. See § 209, R. 3, (5.), (a.)

REM. 3. The infinitive may itself be the subject of an infinitive; as, Audíto non licére cuiquam in náve capillos depónere. Ter.

REM. 4. The infinitive, with or without a subject accusative, may also be the predicate nominative; as, Impúne quolibet fácere id est régem esse. Sall. In this sentence fácere is the subject, and régem esse is the predicate; for id, which only represents by a kind of apposition the clause impúne quolibet fácere, can be omitted.

REM. 5. When the infinitive esse, (or others of similar meaning, as, fáeri, vincere, vítam dígere, cédere, óbire, etc.), with a predicate adjective (or noun), is joined with licet, such predicate is put in the accusative, if the subject-accusative of the infinitive is expressed, and sometimes, also, when it is omitted, but more frequently, in the latter case, the predicate adjective or noun is attracted to the dative following licet; as, Ut eum liceat ante tempus consiliúm fáeri. Auct. ad Her. Médios esse jam non licébit. Cic. Si civi Rómáno licet esse Gladiátum. Id.—Licuit enim esse ótioso Thémistocli. Id. Mihi negligenti esse non licet. Id. Sibi vítam filius suá cariórem fuisse, si libère ac púdica scítam fuisset (scil. ei). Liv. So also nécesse est with the predicate in the dative. Vobis necesse est fortibus viris esse. Liv.—But licet, oportet, and necesse est are also joined with the subjunctive mood, and hence is derived the construction of licet as a conjunction. See § 263, 2.

THE INFINITIVE AS THE OBJECT OF A VERB.

§ 270. The infinitive, either with or without a subject-accusative, may be the object of a verb; as,

Hec vitare cupimus. We desire to avoid this. Cic. Poetas omnino non cōmor attingere, I do not at all attempt to read the poets. Id. Sententiam vāre cupiērunt, They desired that the opinion should prevail. Id. Spēro te vālere, I hope that you are well. Id.

NOTE. The infinitive as the object of a verb supplies the place of the accusative of the thing, and hence many active verbs besides the infinitive take in the active voice an accusative of the person, cf. § 231, R. 3, (b.), and in the passive retain the infinitive; as, Consules jūbentur scribere exercitum. Muros adire vētiti sunt. Cf. § 234, I.

REMARK 1. The infinitive alone may also depend upon an adjective, and sometimes upon a noun.

(a.) It may depend upon relative adjectives, (see § 213, R. 1), which, by the poets, are joined with the infinitive instead of their usual construction with the genitive of the gerund, etc.; as, Cedere nescius. Hor. Avidi committere pugnam. Ovid. Cupidus moriri. Id. Cintare periti Arcades. Virg. Callidus condere furto. Hor. Quidlibet impotens sperare. Id. Sutrinus facere inscius. Varr. Insuetus vera audire. Liv. Certa mori. Virg. Fellicior unguere tela. Virg. So, Audax omnia perpēti, Resolute to endure every thing. Hor. Sollers ornare Cypassis, Skillful to adorn. Ovid. Segnes solvere nodum. Hor. Indocilis pauperiem pati. Id. Non lenis fata recludere. Id. See § 213, R. 4, (1.)

(b.) It may also depend upon adjectives signifying usefulness, fitness, etc., which are sometimes by the poets construed with the infinitive instead of the dative; as, (Tibia) aspirare et esse choris erat utilis. Hor. Aetis mollis et apta regi. Ovid. Fons etiam vivo dare nomen idoneus. Hor. Fruges consumere nati. Id. And after dignus and contentus; as, Dignus amari. Virg. Cf. § 244, R. 2, (b.)

(c.) Upon a noun; as, Tempus est hujus libri facere finem, It is time to finish this book. Nep. Iniit consilia reges tollere, He devised a plan to destroy the kings. Id. Ea erat confessio caput rerum Romanam esse. Liv. Cupido incesserat Aethiopum invadere. Curt. Quibus in otio vivere copia erat. Sall. So, Nec mihi sunt vires inimicus pellere lectis, instead of pellendis inimicis, or ad pellendos inimicos. Ovid.

(d.) If for the infinitives depending on nouns or adjectives other nouns were substituted, these last would be put in the genitive, dative, or ablative; and hence such infinitives may perhaps be properly regarded as exceptions to the rule, that the infinitive has but two cases, the nominative and the accusative.

REM. 2. (a.) The infinitive with the accusative sometimes stands unconnected, especially in exclamations and indignant interrogations, where credibile est? or verumne est? may be supplied; as, Mene incepto desistere victam? That I, vanquished, should desist from my undertaking? Virg. Me miserum! te in tantis arummas propter me inclidisse! Cic.—But ut, also, with the subjunctive, either with or without an interrogative particle, may be used to express a question with indignation; as, Eine (scil. putri) ego ut adverser? Liv. Tu ut unquam te corrigas? Cic. Judicio ut arator decumānum perscquatur? Id; where fieri potest? may be supplied.

(b.) So, in the oratio obliqua, the words signifying said, saying, etc., are often omitted, or implied in a preceding verb or phrase; as, Id facile effari posset. Sall. Quem signum datum fugientibus? Curt.

REM. 3. The infinitive is sometimes to be supplied; and esse and fuisset with a predicate adjective, and also in the compound forms of the infinitive, both active and passive, are commonly omitted, especially after verbs of saying, thinking, knowing, and perceiving; as, Vos cognōvī fortes. Sall. Quem pulsum mēmōrārī. Tac.—So, also, with the infinitive perfect passive when depending on volo, nolo, cupio, and oportet; as, Adōlescenti mōrem gestum oportuit. Ter. Quod jam pridem factum oportuit. Cic.—Sometimes in a relative clause an infinitive is to be supplied from the finite verb of the main proposition; as, Quos voluit omnes interfecit, scil. interficere. Ne illam quidem consequuntur, quam putant, grātiam; i. e. quam se consecuturos putant. Cic.

THE INFINITIVE WITHOUT A SUBJECT-ACCUSATIVE.

§ 271. The infinitive, without a subject-accusative, is used after verbs denoting ability, obligation, intention or endeavor; after verbs signifying to begin, continue, cease, abstain, dare, fear, hesitate, or be wont; and after the passive of verbs of saying, believing, reckoning, etc.

NOTE 1. To these classes belong possum, queo, nēqueo, valeo, debeo; curo, cogito, decerno, statuo, constituo, instituo, pōro; cōmor, nitor, tento, contendo, tento, māturo, propōro, aggredior, perstrero;—capi, inclino, pergo, desino, desisto, intermitto, parro, recuso; solor, assuesco, consuesco, insuesco; audio, vīdeor, nēto, reformulo, rimor, horreo, dubito;—audior, cōdor, existimor, fēror, nēgor, nuntior, pēthibor, pūtor, trador, jubor, vīdeor, and cōdor.

NOTE 2. When the preceding verbs are joined with esse, habēri, jūdicārī, viderī, etc., the predicate noun or adjective is put in the nominative; as, Sōlet tristis viderī; aule sapiens esse; caput mihi molestus esse; debes esse diligens; potest liber esse: and so also mēretur, scī, dīcīt liber esse.

NOTE 3. The poets, in imitation of the Greeks, use the infinitive after fūge, aufer, cūce, parce, memento; pūreo, rēfūgio, quero, urgeo, libbro, amo, gaudeo, fūro, culleo, sūmo, mitto, rēmitto, pātor, jūro, conjūro, pugno, natus, and some other verbs, especially to denote a wish or purpose; as, Introitū vīdere. Ter. Non te frangere persēquor. Hor. Non pōpūlāre pēdātes vīntus. Virg. In this construction, the poets are sometimes imitated by the later prose writers.

REMARK 1. Many of the verbs above enumerated, instead of the infinitive, may be followed by the subjunctive with ut, ne, etc.; and with some of them this is the regular construction; as, Sententiam ne dicret, rēcūsāvit. Cic.

REM. 2. The passives dicor, trador, fēror, narror, rēpōrior, existimor, vīdeor, etc., may either be used personally, with the infinitive alone, or impersonally, followed by the accusative with the infinitive. Thus we may say, Māter Pausāniā eo tempore vixisse dīcitur, or, Dīcitur eo tempore mātrē Pausāniā vixisse. The mother of Pausanias is said to have been living....or, It is said that the mother of Pausanias was living.... Nep. The former construction is more common especially with videor, see § 272, R. 6; but the latter is frequent with nuntīatur, and very common with the compound tenses, trādītum est, pōdītum est, etc., and with the participle future passive; as, crēdētum est, intellēgētum est, etc.; as, Quōrum nēmīnem tū m fuisse crēdētum, etc. Cic.

REM. 3. The infinitive without a subject is used after a verb, only when it denotes an action or state of the subject of that verb.

REM. 4. The verbs to wish or desire, volo, nolo, mōlo; cupio, opto, studeo, have a twofold construction:—the infinitive without a subject-accusative is used after them, when the subject remains the same; and when followed by esse, habēri, etc., the predicate-noun or adjective is in the nominative;—but the accusative with the infinitive is used when the subject is changed, or when a reflexive pronoun of the same person follows. We say, therefore, volo erūdītus fieri, and on the other hand, volo te erūdītum fieri, and volo me erūdītum fieri. Cic. Cupio me esse clementem, cupio— me non dissolutum videri. Id.; or, omitting the pronoun, cūpī esse clēmens nec dissolutus videri.—Omnis hōmīnes quī sese stūdent pręstare cēteris animālibus, etc. Sall.

NOTE 4. Volo is used with the present infinitive passive; as, Me amari volo, I wish to be beloved; hoc velle intelligi, I wish this to be understood; and also with the infinitive perfect passive to denote the eager desire that something should be instantly accomplished; as, Lęgati quod erant appellati superbius, Corinthum patres vestri—exstinctum esse voluerunt. Cic.; but it occurs most frequently with the omission of esse; as, hoc factum volo; nunc illos cominēntos velle: so, patriam exstinctum cupit.

NOTE 5. The nominative with the infinitive after verbs of saying, perceiving, etc. (§ 272), is rare even in poetry, and is an imitation of the Greek idiom, which requires the nominative with the infinitive when the same subject remains; as, Phāsītus ille, quem vidētis, hospites, ait fuisse nāvium celerissimus. Catull. Quin retulit Ajax esse Jovis nepos, instead of se esse Jovis nepotem. Ovid. Sensit mēdīos delapsus in hostes, instead of se delapsus esse. Virg.

THE INFINITIVE WITH A SUBJECT-ACCUSATIVE.

§ 272. The infinitive with a subject-accusative follows verbs of saying, thinking, knowing, perceiving, and the like; as, Videbat, id non posse fieri, He saw that that could not be done. Nep. Sentit animus, se sua vi, non alēnā, moveri. Cic. Audi vi te venire. Me in ejus potestate dixi fore. Id. Affirmant militum jacere animos. Liv. Sepe venit ad aures mens, te istud nimis crebro dicere. Cic. Eum pugnam ad Persiam pugnatam (esse), quādam auctores sunt. Liv.

NOTE 1. This rule includes all such verbs and phrases as denote the exercise of the external senses and intellectual faculties, or the communication of thought to others; as, audio, videro, sentio, animadverto, cognosco, intelligo, percipio, disco, scio, nescio, censeo, spero, despero, cogito, judico, credo, arbitror, puto, opinor, duro, statuo, memini, recordor, oblitiscor, opinio est, spes est, etc.;—dico, trado, prędo, scribo, refero, narro, nuntio, confirmo, nęgo, ostendo, indicō, doceo, certiorē facio, demonstro, pęhibeo, pręmitto, pollicor, spondeo, etc.; but with most of these a different construction often occurs. See § 273.

NOTE 2. The propositions, whose subjects are thus put in the accusative and their verbs in the infinitive, are those which are directly dependent on the verbs of saying and perceiving. Respecting the clauses inserted in such dependent propositions, see § 266. 1.

NOTE 3. (a.) When a relative clause inserted in a proposition containing the accusative with the infinitive, has the same verb as the proposition in which it is inserted, but such verb is not repeated, the noun which is the subject of the relative clause is also put by attraction in the accusative; as, Te suscipor eisdem rēbus, quibus me ipsum, commovere. If the verb is expressed we must say, eisdem rēbus commovere, quibus (ego) ipse commoveor. So, also, in inserted relative clauses where the verb, if expressed, would be in the subjunctive, (see § 266. 2.); as, (Verres) aitbat se tantidem estimasse, quanti Sacerdos Rein, for quanti Sacerdos aestimasset. Cic. Amfictur se in eā parte fuisse quā h. quā virum omni laude dignum patrem tuum. Id.

(b.) The same is the case with the particle quam after a comparative, see § 256. R. 5, (a.) But sometimes when quam connects a clause to a preceding proposition containing the accusative with the infinitive, the same construction follows that precedes quam, even when the verb of the latter clause is expressed; as, Nonne tibi affirmāvi quidris me potius perpassurum, quam ex Italiā ad bellum civile me exiturum; instead of quam exirem or quam ut exirem. Cic.

(c.) In long speeches in the oratio obliqua, relative clauses, having a verb of their own which should properly be in the subjunctive, are put in the accusative with the infinitive, if the relative clause is not subordinate to the one with the infinitive, and which is governed by a verb of saying or perceiving, but is rather coordinate with it; in which case the relative is equivalent to the demonstrative with et; as, Nam illorum urbem ut prœpugnaculum oppositum esse barbaris, apud quam jam his classes regias fecisse naufragium; for et apud eam jam his, etc.—In Livy and Tacitus the same construction sometimes occurs even after conjunctions; as after quum in the sense of 'while,' see § 263, 5, R. 3; after quoniam on account of its absolute signification, see § 198, 4, and after quia.

NOTE 4. The personal pronouns, which, with the other moods, are expressed only when they are emphatic, must be always expressed in the accusative with the infinitive. The verbs 'to promise' and 'to hope' are in English usually joined with the infinitive present without a pronoun, but in Latin not only is the pronoun expressed, but the infinitive which follows is in the future; as, 'He promised to come,' is in Latin, Prœmisit se venturum (scil. esse, see § 270, R. 3). But the infinitive present sometimes occurs after these verbs; as, Pollicentur obsides dare, Cæs. B. G. 4, 21; and the pronoun is occasionally omitted, see § 239, R. 2 and 3.

REMARK 1. When ambiguity would arise from the subject and the object of the verb being both in the accusative, the passive infinitive is substituted for the active, by which means the subject is put in the ablative, or in the accusative with per; as, Ne fundo quidem auditum est, crocodilum violatum esse ab Ægyptio; instead of Ægyptium crocodilum violasse. Cic.

REM. 2. After verbs of saying, thinking, etc., the conjunction that is omitted in translating from English into Latin, and the subject of the dependent clause is put in the accusative, and its verb in the infinitive.

REM. 3. The accusative with the infinitive is sometimes rendered into English by a similar form; as, Si vis me flere, If you wish me to weep. Hor.; but the dependent clause is more frequently connected to the verb of saying, etc. by the conjunction that, and the infinitive translated by the indicative or potential mood; as, Sentimus nrem esse albam, We perceive that snow is white. Cic. Sometimes the dependent clause is annexed to the other without the conjunction; as, Crédunt se negligi, They think they are neglected. Ter.

REM. 4. A present infinitive corresponds to the imperfect indicative, when with an accusative it follows a preterite tense; as, Dixit Cæsarem venire, He said that Cæsar was coming. Cæs. In like manner the perfect infinitive with an accusative after a preterite tense corresponds to the pluperfect indicative; as, Dixit Cæsarem venisse, He said that Cæsar had come. See § 268, 2.

REM. 5. The present infinitive, after verbs of sense, is often equivalent to the present participle; as, Surgere videt lunam, He sees the moon (to rise) rising. Virg. Arma rutilare vident. Id. Videbis collucere facis. Id. Nec Zephyros audis spirare? Do you not hear the zephyrs blowing? Id. Scpe hoc majores natu dicere audiri. Cic. The two constructions are sometimes united; as, Medium video discedere cælum, palantesque polo stellas. Virg.

REM. 3. The subject-accusative after verbs of saying, showing, and believing; as, duco, nego, trahô, fero, mêmoro, narro, nuntio, përhíbeo, prôbo, scribo, demonstrô, ostendo, arguo, crêdo, puto, existimo, and the like, and also after jubeo, vëo, and prôhibeo, is regarded also as the accusative of the object after these verbs; and hence such verbs are used also in the passive, the accusative of the active voice becoming, as usual, the nominative of the passive. This is especially the case when their subject is indefinite; as, Dicunt (they or people say) ne ritum prôbum esse, or Acor vir prôbus esse. So, Vëtimur hoc facere, instead of, Nos hoc facere rêtant. Instead also of the impersonal videtur (it appears) followed by the infinitive with its subject-accusative, it is common to say personally, videor, videris, etc., with the infinitive; as, videor errasse, it appears that I have erred.

INFINITIVE AND SUBJUNCTIVE CLAUSES.

§ 273. When the particle that, in English, introduces a clause denoting a purpose, object, or result, it is a sign of the subjunctive in Latin, and is to be expressed by ut, etc.; but otherwise it is usually the sign of the accusative with the infinitive. Cf. §§ 262 and 272.

1. (a.) Verbs of endeavoring and resolving take after them the infinitive and more rarely the subjunctive, when the subject remains the same; but when the subject is changed, they take the subjunctive only.

NOTE 1. Such are statuo, constituo, décerno, traho, labôro, péro, meditor, cûro, nitor, contendo, consilium capio, animum or in animum induco. Cf. § 271, N. 1. After opèram do, I exert myself, id. hoc, or illud ago, I endeavor, nilil antiquius habeo or idcirco quam, nothing is of more importance to me, and cûdeo for cûro, the subjunctive is almost exclusively used.

(b.) Verbs of effecting are construed with ut or ne and the subjunctive.

NOTE 2. Such are facio, efficio, perficio, evincô, pervincô, impetro, asséquor, consequor, etc. But facere 'to effect' occurs in Cic. Brut. 38, in connection with the accusative and infinitive passive.

NOTE 3. Facio with ut is also used as a periphrasis for the indicative; as, Invictus quidem feci, ut L. Flaminium e senatu ejicere, for invictus ejeci. Cic.—Fac, 'suppose' or 'granting,' and efficere, 'to prove,' take the accusative with the infinitive; but the passive efficitur, 'it follows,' takes also the subjunctive.—Facere, 'to introduce' or 'represent,' is joined with a present or perfect participle; as, Laetum et Scipionem facinus admirantes. Cic. In the passive the accusative also with the infinitive is found, there being no present participle; as, Isocratem Plato laudari facit a Socrate. Cic.

2. Verbs signifying to request, to demand, to admonish, to advise, to encourage, to command, and the like, both when the subject remains the same and when it is changed, are followed by the subjunctive with ut or ne, and only rarely by the infinitive.

NOTE 4. (a.) Such are rogo, oro, precor, pèro: posco, postûlo, flagito; monéo, admôro, commôneo, hortor, côhortor, exhortor, suâdeo, persuâdo, instûo. (I instruct) impello, rogo, mando, præscribo, edico, décerno, légem do, censô, perpello, scribo, in- cito, impéro, etc.; as, Te non hortor solum, sed etiam oro, ut tota mente in reipublicam incumbas. Cic.

(b.) In the poets and later prose writers the infinitive more frequently follows those verbs without any difference of meaning. The poets even use the infinitive to express a purpose; as, Prôtens pécus egit altos viscere munes. Hor.

(c.) Nuntio, scribo, mitto, and even dico, are followed by the subjunctive, when they imply an injunction or intention that something should be done; as, Hæc ut facias, scribo. Cic.

(d.) Jûbeo and erô commonly take the accusative with the infinitive, but sometimes the subjunctive with or rarely without ut. Sometimes, with the infinitive, the person to whom the command is given is omitted, especially when it is either obvious from the nature of the command or indefinite; as, Cadra munire jûbet, scil. milites. Cæs. Lex recte facere jûbet, scil. hómines. Cic. With the subjunctive the dative of the person sometimes follows jûbeo, as, Britannico jussu, exsurgéret. Tac.—Impéro is sometimes followed by the accusative with the infinitive passive; and so also is censeo, I vote, or, I ordain. The latter is often construed with the participle in duo with esse expressed or understood; as, Orthoginem delendum censeo.

(c.) Moneo and admoneo, 'I remind,' and persuadeo, 'I convince' take the accusative with the infinitive.

3. (a.) In the oratio obliqua, the construction of the accusative with the infinitive, is exchanged for that of the subjunctive, to denote possibility, liberty, duty, etc.; as,

Virginius unum Ap. Claudium legum experientem esse aiebat: respicerent tribunales homines castellum omnium scelerum. Liv.

(b.) On the contrary, when the subjunctive has been used after a verb of requesting, commanding, etc., the construction often passes into that of the accusative with the infinitive; the verb of saying being considered as implied in the verb of requesting, etc.; as, Orabat ne se ut parricidam liberum aversarentur: sibi vitam filius suam caridorem fuisse, si.... Liv. Cf. § 270, R. 2, (b.)

4. (a.) Verbs which denote willingness, unwillingness, permission, and necessity, commonly take the infinitive, or the accusative with the infinitive, but sometimes the subjunctive.

NOTE 5. Such are volo, nolo, malo, opto, permitto, patior, sino, concedo, licet, praebeo, oportet, and necesse est. Cf. § 271, R. 1. Volo ut is used to express a strong emphasis. Nolo is not construed with the subjunctive.

(b.) An infinitive passive without a subject is sometimes used with oportet; as, Non oportuit relictas, scil. esse ancillas. Ter. Ut ut erat, mansum tamem oportuit, scil. esse. Id. Non putabant de tali viro suspicionibus oportere iudicari. Nep.

(c.) Some other verbs which regularly take the accusative with the infinitive after them, are occasionally followed by the subjunctive.

5. Quod, 'that,' commonly with the indicative, introduces a substantive clause containing the explanation or ground of the predicate or of some other word in the principal clause.

REMARK. The subjunctive follows quod in those cases only in which the clause expresses the view or sentiment of some other person than the writer or speaker. Cf. § 266, 3.

Quod is used:—

(1.) After such expressions as bene, male, prudenter facio; bene, male fit; eveni, accidit, and the like; praetereo, nullo; and generally adeo, accedit, etc.; as, Bene facis, quod me adjuvas.

(2.) To introduce the explanation of a noun, pronoun, or pronominal adverb in the principal clause; as, Magnum beneficium est naturae, quod necesse est mori.

(3.) After verbs signifying an affection of the mind, and the outward expression of such feeling; and also after verbs of praising, censuring, accusing, and thanking.

NOTE 6. Such are gaudeo, delector, gratum, or jucundum est mihi, angor, doleo, aere, mihi, se, or graviter fero, succenseo, paenitet, miror, admittor, glorior, gratulor, gratias ago, quaeror, indignor, and others of similar meaning; as, Scipio saepe quaesiebatur, quod omnibus in rebus homines diligentiores essent, ut, etc. Cic. Gaudeo quod se interpellavi. Id. Quod speratis, quod vocem mittitis, quod formas hominum habetis, indignantur. Liv. Cato mirari se aiebat, quod non rideret harsupex, harsupicem quam videbat. Cic.

NOTE 7. After those verbs which express the feeling of joy, grief, etc.; as, gaudeo, doleo, miror, the accusative with the infinitive is more commonly found, but those which denote the outward expression of such feeling are more commonly construed with quod; but sometimes this distinction is reversed. Gratulor is commonly joined with quod.

NOTE 8. A purely objective proposition is expressed by quod only when it depends upon addo, (generally in the imperative adde), or upon fūcio joined with an adverb; as, Adde quod pūbes tibi crescit omnes. Hor. Adde huc quod mercem sine fūcis gestat. Id. Fecit hūmānter Licinius, quod ad me respīri vīnū. Cic. In all other cases the infinitive is employed in purely objective propositions.

6. By the infinitive, with or without a subject-accusative, a proposition is expressed as a thought, so that it resembles an abstract noun; by quā, with the indicative or the subjunctive, it is represented simply as a fact. To the latter is frequently joined hoc, id, illud, istud, or huc, etc.; as, Illud quodque nūbīs accēdit incommōtum, quod M. Jūnius abest. Cic. Huc accēdēbat, quod, etc. Sall. Quod generally refers to past time, and hence it is preferable to say, Grātissimum mīhi est, quod ad me tua mānu scripsisti; but with the infinitive, Grātissimum mīhi est te bene vālere.

(a.) Quod, with the indicative, in the sense of as to, or with regard to, is used at the beginning of a sentence, especially in letters, in repeating an expression of a person for the purpose of answering it; as, Quod autem me Agamemnonem amulārī pūtas, fullēris. Nep. Quod scribis te velle scire, qui sit reipūblīcē stitūs, summa dissensio est. Cic. Sentences thus introduced by quod are in no grammatical connection with the verb that follows them. See § 206, (14.)

(b.) Quod is used in explanatory or periphrastic propositions which refer to a preceding demonstrative pronoun, as hoc, id, etc., unless such pronoun be added pleonastically, in the nominative or accusative, to verbs governing the accusative with the infinitive; as, Mīhi quidem videntur hōmīnes hac re maxime solūis praeſtare, quod loqui possunt. Cic.

NOTE 9. The construction of the infinitive resembles, in the following particulars, that of a noun in the singular number and neuter gender:—

(a.) Like a noun, it may have an adjective or pronoun agreeing with it; as Tōtum hoc philōsōphārī displicet. Cic. Quum vivere ipsum turpe sit nobis. Id. Me hoc ipsum nihil agere delectat. Id. Meum intelligere nulli pecuniā vultō. Petr. See § 206, R. 8.

(b.) It may be followed by a limiting genitive; as, Cūjus non dimicāre fuit vincere. Val. Max.

(c.) It may be either the subject or object of a verb. See §§ 209, R. 3, (5,) and 229, R. 6. It may also be used after neuter verbs, like an accusative, depending on a preposition understood; as, Te accēpisse meas lītēras gaudeo. Ter. See §§ 232, (2,) and 273, 5.

(d.) It is also used like a predicate-nominative; as, Vidēre est perspicere aliquid. Cic. See § 210.

(e.) It may, like a genitive, limit the signification of an adjective or noun. See § 270, R. 1.

(f.) It may, like an accusative, depend on a preposition; as, Arīsto et Pyrrho inter optime vālere et grāvissime egrotāre, nihil prorsus dicēbant intēresse. Cic. Quod crīmen dicis praeſter amasse meum? Ovid. Inveniet nil sibi lēgatum, praeter plorāre. Hor.

(g.) It is used also like an ablative; as, Audito rēgem in Scīlliam tendere. Sall.

(h.) Sometimes, also, especially in the poets, it denotes a purpose, like a participle in duo, (see § 274, R. 7.); as, Loricam donat habēre viro. Virg.; as like a dative of the end, (see § 227.)

PARTICIPLES.

§ 274. 1. Participles are followed by the same cases and constructions as the verbs; as,

Quidam, poeta nōmīnātus, A certain one, called a poet. Cic. Cū ūlōrū n oblita leona, The lioness forgetful of her whelps. Virg. Fāventes rēbus Carthaginiensium, Favoring the interests of the Carthaginians. Liv. Tendens cū sidēre palmas. Virg. Accūsātus rei capitālīs. Cic. Primā dicte mīhi summā dicende ūmēnā. Hor. Omnia doctus. Stat. Cāsus abies visūra mārinōs. Id. Cārtūri urbōre montes. Ovid. Parcendum est tēnēris. Juv. Ueniūm est etāte. Ovid. 1. Brūtus arcens rōditu tyrannūm, in prælio concidit. Cic.

2. The present, perfect, and future active participles, denote respectively an action which is present, past, or future, in reference to the time of the verb with which they are connected; as,

Simul hoc dicens attollit se. Virg. Tum ad Thraceam in hortis āgentem missus est. Tac. Turnum fūgentem hæc terra videbit? Virg. Qui missus ab Argis Itālā consēderat urbē. Id. Lāmia munere occlūtātis perfunctus, pētit præstūram. Cic. Jussus cum fide ponas luam. Hor. Jūctōis mēdīos mōrtūrus in hostes irruit. Virg. Pērtūrus injēcit sēsē in agmen. Id. Illā tibi ventūra bella capēdi. Id.

NOTE. The participle expresses the action or state of the verb, and also marks its complete or incomplete state or condition. Cf. § 144, 1-3. Except, however, in deponent verbs, the Latin language has no active participle denoting a completed action, equivalent to the English 'having written,' nor any passive participle denoting a state of suffering still going on, equivalent to the English present participle 'being loved.'

REMARK 1. The present participle, particularly that of the verb eo, sometimes denotes that which is about to be done; as, Interclūsit hiems, et terrat Auster euntes, as they were on the point of going. Virg. Nec nos via falsit euntes. Id.

REM. 2. (a.) The present participle, also, sometimes denotes a purpose; as, Ibant, orantes vēnīum, to sue for favor.... Virg. Eurypylum scitāntem Orāculā Phœbā mittimus. Id. (b.) It is also used to express a state or condition, where, in English, a substantive is employed with a preposition; as, ignōrāns, from ignorance; mētuen, from fear; consulātum pētens, in his suit for the consulship; omne malum nascens fācile opprimitur,—in its origin.

REM. 3. (a.) The perfect participle passive, especially in the poets, often denotes the result of a past action, and thus supplies the place of a present participle passive; as, Nātus erolat picēā tectus cālyptē, covered with pitchy darkness. Ovid. Cf. Virg. Æn. 1, 480; 2, 277; 4, 72, 589; 6, 113, 708; 8, 336; Georg. 1, 204. It is often to be translated by a present active participle; as, Mīnu pectus percussa dēcōrum, flāventesque abscissa cōmas, i. e. percūtiens, abscīdens. Virg. Tunx pectōra palmis. Id. So, also, sōlitus, ausus, fisus, and the perfect participles of deponent verbs; as, Longum cantū sōlātā lābōrem. Id. Vox audītur fractos sōnitūs īmītātā tūbārū. Id. Dicitāticus Orsīrem complexus, obscūrāre capit. Cæs. Concrētōs sanguīne crīnes gērens. Virg. Tōisis in val- libus, i. e. quæ tōndentur. Id.

(b.) The perfect participle of a preceding verb is often used in a succeeding clause, to express the completion of an action; as, Exercitum fundit fūgūque, fāsūm persequitur. Liv. This idiom frequently occurs in Ovid.

REM. 4. Hābeo, with perfect participles denoting knowledge and determination; as, cognitum, perspectum, perceptum, comprēhensum, explōrātum, stātūtum, constitūtum, dēlibērātum, persuāsūm mīhi hābeo, etc., forms a periphrasis, like the passive verb in English, and equivalent to cognōc, perspēci, percēpi, etc., instead of the verb of the participle; as, Clōdī arctum perspectum or cognitum hābeo; for perspēci, etc., I perceive, know. Persuāsūm mīhi hābeo and persuāsissimūm hābeo are used only in the neuter gender and with an accusative with the infinitive in the sense of mīhi persuāsi or persuāsūm mīhi est. When hābeo with any other participle than those above indicated is used, it expresses more than the ordinary perfect active; as, Quod me hortūris ut absolam; hābeo ab- sōlūtā su īve ēpus ad Casīrem; i. e. I have it ready. Cic. Do, reddo, cūro, lūeo, possideo, and missum fācio, are sometimes so construed with participles as, Missam tram fāciēt, for mittet. Ter. Hostes victos dūre, for vincere. Sall.

REM. 5. (a.) The passive participles may supply the place of a verbal noun in to or us, the perfect being employed to represent an action as completed, and the future when it is conceived as still incomplete; as, Ante Rōmānā conditā, Before the building of Rome. Cic. Consilia urbis dēlendæ, Plans for the destruction of the city. Id. See § 275, II. With the limitations about to be made in regard to the nominative, this construction is used in all the cases, and even when they are governed by the prepositions, ad, ante, ab, post, propter; ab and ex; as, Haec liēra rēcitātē magnum luctum fēcērunt, The reading of this letter. Liv. Tārentum captūm, The taking of Tarentum. Ob rēceptū in Hannibālem, On account of the reception of Hannibal. Sibi quisque cāsi rēgis expētibat dēcus, The glory of killing, or, of having killed the king. Propter Africā dōmītam. Eutrop. Ante Epōnitōndā nātum. Nep. Post Christum nātum. Ab conditā urbe ad libērātā. Liv. The oblique cases only of participles in dus are used in this manner as the nominative denotes necessity, (see Rem. 8,) and even the perfect participle is not thus used in the nominative by Cicero.

(b.) The neuter of the perfect passive participle without a noun is used by Livy, as the subject of a proposition; as, Tentātum per dictātōrē, ut ambo patrīci consules crēdēntur, rem ad interregnum perducit: i. e. the attempt, or the fact of the attempt being made by the dictator. Compare a similar use of this participle in the ablative, § 257, R. 9, (1.) (c.)

(c.) The English 'without' with a verbal substantive; as, 'without writing, without having waited,' etc., is expressed in Latin by means of a negative noun, adjective or particle connected with a participle; as, Cāsar exercitum numquam per insidiōsā itinēra duxit, nisi perspicūlātus locōrum situs, without having examined the localities. This form occurs often with the ablative absolute; as, Athēnienses non expectātō auxilio adversus ingentem Persārū exercitum in praelium egrēdiuntur, without waiting for assistance. So, nullā praeistitūā diē, Without fixing any time. Cic. Miserum est nihil perficientem angī. Id.

REM. 6. (a.) The participle in rus, especially with verbs of motion, often denotes intention or purpose; as, Ad Jovē Ammōnē pergīt consultūrus de origine suā, He goes to Jupiter Ammon, to consult respecting his origin. Just.

(b.) It is also used where in English a clause connected by since, when, although, etc., is employed; as, Plāra locūtūros ābre nos jussit, When or although we intended to say more. Herculem Germāni, itūri in praelium cūnunt. Tac. Hence it is sometimes used, though not by Cicero, to express the inference from a hypothetical proposition; as, Egrēditur castris Rōmānus, nullum invāsūrus, nī cōpia pugnis fieret. And with the repetition of the preceding verb; as, Dedit mihi quantum maxime potuit, dātūrus amplius, si potuisset, i. e. ac dedisset amplius. Plin. Ep.

REM. 7. (a.) The participle in dus, also, denotes a purpose passively, when joined with verbs signifying to give, to deliver, to agree for, to have, to receive, to undertake, etc. Such are do, trādo, tribuo, attribuo, mīdo, mitto, permitto, concēdo, redimo, condūco, lōco, habeo, accipio, suscipio, relīquo, cūro, dispo ri go; as, Testāmentum tibi trādīt lēgendū, He delivers his will to you to read. Hor. Attribuit nos trucidandos Cēthēgo. Cic. Quod utendum accēperis, reddito. ... cōm mīros dirūtōs a Lysandro reficiendos cūravit,—ordered them to be restored. Nep.

(b.) But the same meaning may be expressed actively by means of ad and the gerund; as, Cāsar oppidum ad diripiendū militibus concessit.—The poets sometimes use the infinitive active for the same purpose; as, Tristitium et mēlus trādām prōtervis in mēre Cuspium portāre ventis. Hor. In prose such use of the infinitive is of exceedingly rare occurrence; as, Bibere dāre. Cic.

REM. 8. (a.) The participle in dus, when agreeing with the subject of a sentence, has the signification of necessity or propriety; sometimes, though rarely, except in later writers, that of possibility; as,

Is vènerandus a nobis et còlenus est, He should be worshipped and honored by us. Cic. Delenda est Carthago, Carthage must be destroyed. Cato. Hec spèranda fuèrunt. Virg. So with est used impersonally; as, Ururus pàce nobis an bello esset utendum. Cic.

(b.) Sometimes, also, when not agreeing with the subject of a sentence, it has this signification; as, Facta narràbus dissimulanda tibi, You were relating facts which you should have concealed. Ovid. A. L. Bruto principe hujus maxime conservandi gèneris et nòminis. Cic.

REM. 9. The participle in dus, in its oblique cases, supplies the place of a present participle of the passive voice, to denote a continued or incomplete action; as, Occupatus sum in litéris scribendis, in writing letters; literally, in letters which are being written. See § 275, II.—So, also, in the poets both in the nominative and oblique cases; as, Triginta magnos volvendis mensibus orbis imperio explébit. Virg. Volvenda dies. Id. Cf. Volventibus annis. Id.

REM. 10. After participles in dus, the person by whom a thing must be done, is put in the dative, but in a few passages even of Cicero it is found in the ablative with ab. See § 225, III.

REM. 11. The neuter of the participle in dus, joined with a tense of esse in the periphrastic conjugation (see § 184, 3,) retains the signification of necessity; as, Audendum est. We must venture. In early writers and sometimes also in the poets, an accusative of the object is joined with this neuter, if the verb is transitive; as, Nunc pacem orandum, nunc—arma repònendum, et bellum extitiale cavendum. Sil. But in classical Latin such accusative is generally changed to the nominative, and the participle is made to agree with it in gender and number. Thus, instead of virtutem laudandum est, we usually find virtus laudanda est. The accusative in this connection is used by Cicero in only two passages. Utendum est with the ablative occurs more than once in Cicero; as, Quum suo cuique iudicio sit utendum.

REM. 12. In classical prose the participle in dus never has the signification of possibility, except when joined with vix; as, Vix optandum nobis videbatur. Cic. Vix erat credendum, i. e. vix credi poterat. Later writers use it in this sense with negative particles, and at a later period it was used with still more frequency in the sense of possibility as well as in that of necessity.

3. (a.) A participle is often employed, instead of a verb, in a conditional, explanatory, adversative, relative, or other dependent clause; as,

Curio, ad focum sedenti (as he was sitting) magnum auri pondus Samnites attulerunt. Cic. Tridui viam progressi, rursus revertèrunt; for, quum progressi essent. Cæs. Dionysius tyrannus, Syracusis expulsus, Corinthi pueris docebat. Cic. Dionysius, cultus metuens tonsorios, candenti carbone sibi adurebat capillum. Id. Risus interdum ita repente erumpit, ut eum cùpientis tenere nequeamus. Id. Icones ablituræ congregantur in loco certo. Plin.

NOTE 1. If the participle refers to a noun not contained in the leading proposition, it is put with that noun in the ablative absolute. See § 257, R. 3.

NOTE 2. (a.) The English clauses most frequently expressed in Latin by means of participles are such as are connected by relatives or by as, when, after, although, since, because, etc.; as, Nemo observat vitam nisi laborantem. Sen. Ut dolus, sic animus, se non videns, alia cernit,—though not perceiving itself. Cic. Sextilius Ahala Spürum Mæcium, regnum appetentem, interemit,—because he was aspiring to the sovereignty. Cic.—(b.) When a participle is connected with a relative or interrogative it can only be translated by a circumlocution; as, Non sunt ea bona dicenda, quibus abundantem flet esse miserum,—which one may possess in abundance, and still be very miserable. Cic. Senatus absurdum esse ficebat, ignorare regem, quid sperans aut petens venerit,—with what hope or request he had come. Liv.

(b.) When two verbs are in English connected by and, and the actions denoted by them are regarded as simultaneous, one of them may be expressed in Latin by the present participle; as, He sits and holds his lute, Ille (Arion) sedens citharam tinet. Ovid. Simul hoc dicens attollit in ægrum se fœmur. Virg. i. e. hoc dicit et attollit. But if one of the actions precede the other, the perfect participle must be used; as, Cæsar attacked and defeated the enemy, Cæsar hostes aggressus fugavit. Submersas obrue puppes, i. e. Submerge et obrue. Virg.—When the English clause would be connected by although, the participle is often followed by tamen. Later writers in such case join the particles quamquam, quumvis, etiam and vel with the participle itself; as, Cæsarem milites, quamvis recūsantem ultro in Africam sunt secuti. Suet.; and these are sometimes retained in the ablative absolute.—It is only in late Latin that participles are sometimes used in describing persons as possessing certain attributes, e. g. adstantes, audientes, for ii qui adstant, audiunt, i. e. the bystanders, hearers.

(c.) A participle is used with verbs signifying to represent and perceive, especially to see and hear, when the object is described or perceived in a particular state; as, Apelles pinxit Alexandrum Magnum fulmentonem. Plin. In English the infinitive is often joined with verbs of seeing and hearing; as, Audivi te canentem, I heard you sing. Audiri te canere, would be, I heard that you sung. Videmus Polyphæmum vastâ se mole moventem. Virg.

NOTE 8. In many cases, for want of a perfect participle active, and a present participle passive, this construction cannot be used. Thus, quum amâvisset cannot be exchanged for a participle corresponding with the English having loved. As the perfect participles of deponent verbs, however, have an active signification, they admit of the participial construction. The want of a perfect active participle may also be supplied by the perfect passive participle in the ablative absolute. See § 267, R. 5.

GERUNDS AND GERUNDIVES.

§ 275. I. Gerunds are governed like nouns, and are followed by the same cases as their verbs; as, Mētus parendi sibi, Fear of obeying him. Sall. Parcendo victis, By sparing the vanquished. Liv. Effrōr studio patres vestros videndi, I am transported with a desire of seeing your fathers. Cic. Petendi consilium gratiâ. Sall. Venit ad recipiendum pecūnias. Varr.

REMARK 1. The gerund is the same in form as the oblique cases of the neuter singular of participles in dus, but it has the meaning of the active voice. It is sometimes translated by the present participle with a preposition, and sometimes by a present infinitive active; as, Consilium Lucædemum occûpandi, A design of occupying, or to occupy, Lacedæmon: Liv.

REM. 2. The gerund is sometimes, though rarely, used in a passive sense; as, Spes restituendi nulla erat,—of being restored. Nep. Athrus erudiendi gratiâ missus,—for the purpose of being instructed. Just. Ante domandum. Virg. Ader ad inaprandum. Cic.

REM. 3. The gerund is in its nature a verbal noun, having only the genitive, dative, ablative, and, after a preposition, the accusative. In its signification it corresponds with the English present participle when used as a verbal noun. Hence, in the oblique cases, it supplies the place of a declinable present infinitive active; but in the accusative there is this difference between the infinitive used as an accusative and the gerund, that the infinitive has simply the power of an abstract noun, whereas the gerund expresses a real action; as, Mulum intereat inter dâre et accipere. Sen. Non solum ad discendum propensissimus, sed etiam ad docendum. Cic.

II. When the object of an active verb is to be expressed, the participle in dus is commonly used in preference to the gerund; the object taking the case in which the gerund, if used, would have been put, and the participle agreeing with it.

Thus, to express 'the design of writing a letter,' which, with the aid of the gerund, would be represented in Latin by Consilium scribendi epistolam, the participle in dus is commonly substituted for the gerund: and since, in this example, the gerund, (scribendi) is in the genitive, the rule requires that, in substituting the participle for the gerund, the object of the gerund (epistolam) should also be put in the genitive, and that the participle (scribendus) should agree with it in gender, number, and case. Hence with the participle the expression is, Consilium scribendæ epistolæ. Between the two forms of construction there is no difference of signification. So, Consilia urbis delendæ (Cic.), for urbem delendi, Plans for destroying the city. Répārāndarum classium causâ (Suet.), for répārāndi classes. Perpetiēdo lābōri idōneus. Colum. Ad defendendam Romam ab oppugnandâ Capuâ dūces Rōmānos abstrāhere. Liv.

REMARK 1. The same construction is used with the future passive participles of utor, fruor, fungor, potior, and rarely of medeor, as these verbs were originally followed by the accusative; as, Ætas ad hæc utendâ idōnea. Ter. Iustitiæ fruendæ causâ. Cic. In mūnere fungendo. Id. Hostes in spem potiundorum castrorum vēnerant. Cæs. Aquæ salubritatē mēdendisq; corpōribus mōbiles. Vell.

REM. 2. When a participle is thus used for a gerund, it is called a gerundive, and is usually translated like a gerund. The gerundive cannot be substituted for the gerund, where ambiguity would arise from the gender not being distinguishable. It should therefore not be used when the object of the gerund is a neuter pronoun or adjective; as, Aliquid faciendî ratiō (Cic.), not ālciyus. Artem et vērâ et falsâ dīyūcandî (Id.), not vērōrum dīyūcandōrum: because it would not be known whether ālciyus and vērōrum were masculine or neuter. It is to be remarked, also, that the change of the gerund into the gerundive is less frequent in some writers than in others.

III. Examples of the construction of gerunds, in each of their cases, have been already given, among other nouns, under the heads Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Ablative. The following remarks specify in what connections they are used: and when it is said that the gerundive is governed in any of the cases like the gerund, it will of course be understood of the noun which is limited by a gerundive.

REMARK 1. The genitive of gerunds and gerundives may follow either nouns or relative adjectives; as,

Amor habendi. Cic. Patriam spes videndi. Virg. Nam habet nātūra, ut aliārū omnium rerū, sic vivendi mōtum. Cic. Barbāra consuetudo hōmīnum immolāndōrum. Id. Postremo Cātīlīna dissimulandi causâ aut sui expurgandi, in senitum vēnit. Sall. Inta sunt consilia urbis delendæ, civium trucidandōrum, nominis Rōmāni exstinguendi. Id. Vēnandi studiōi. Cic. Certus eundi. Virg. Insuetus nāvīgandi. Cæs. Peritus civitatīs regendæ. Nep.

(1.) The nouns after which these genitives most frequently occur are amor, ars, causa, consilium, consuetudo, copia, cupiditas, dēsiderium, difficultas, finis, fācultas, forma, grātia, illēcebra, libido, locus, licentia, mōdus, māteria, mo, occasio, otium, pōtestas, ratiō, spātium, spes, stūdium, tempus, usus, vēnia, vis, vōluntas.

NOTE 1. With these and other substantives the infinitive also may be used, when with a tense of sum they form a periphrasis for a verb which is followed by the infinitive, or supply the place of an adjective of which the infinitive is the subject; as, Quibus omnia hōnesta atque inhōnesta vendēre mos erat, With whom it was a custom, or, who were accustomed. Sall. Tempus est ālire, It is time, i. e. tempestivum est, it is proper to go.

(2.) The relative adjectives, which most frequently take after them these genitives, .re such as denote desire, knowledge, remembrance, and their contraries; as, avidus, cupidus, studiosus, peritus, imperitus, insuetus, certus, conscius, ignarus, rûdis, etc. See § 218, R. 1, (3.)

NOTE 2. With the relative adjectives the infinitive is also joined poetically.

(3.) Instead of an accusative after the gerund, or a genitive plural with a gerundive, a noun or pronoun in the genitive plural is sometimes joined with the gerund; as, Exemplorum eligendi potestas, instead of exempla eligendi, or, exemplorum eligendorum. Cic. Earum rerum infiltandi ratio. Id. Facultas agrorum condonandi. Cic. Nominandi istorum erit copia. Plaut.

(4.) The pronoun tui and also the plurals vestri and sui, even when feminine, are joined with the masculine or neuter form of the gerundive in di; as, Quoniam tui videndi est copia. Plaut. Non timeor, ne quis hoc me vestri adhortandi causâ magnifice loqui existimet. Liv. In castra venerunt sui purgandi causâ.—With the demonstrative pronouns, ejus, hujus, illius, the participle usually agrees, but in two passages of Terence ejus, though referring to a woman, has the participle in di, not in dæ; as, Ego ejus videndi cupidus rectâ consequor. Ter. Tua in the first example and ejus in the last are feminine.

(5.) By a Greek idiom the gerund and gerundive, after the verb sum, are sometimes found in the genitive denoting a tendency or purpose, with no noun or adjective on which they can depend; as, Régium impérium initio conservandæ libertatis fuerat. Sall. Sometimes esse in some form is to be supplied; as, Quæ postquam gloriôsa modo, nèque belli patrândi cognovit, scil. esse. Id. Causâ or grâtiâ may sometimes be supplied. In some other cases, also, the word on which the gerund in di depends is not expressed; and the gerund seems to be used instead of the infinitive; as, Mâneat provinciâlibus potentiam suam tali modo ostentandi, scil. facultas. Tac. Quum habërem in animo navigandi, scil. propositum. Cic.

REM. 2. The dative of gerunds and gerundives is used after adjectives which govern a dative (§ 222), especially after those which signify usefulness or fitness; and also after certain verbs and phrases, to denote a purpose; as, Charta empôrîtica est inutîlis scribendo. Plin. Câpessendæ reipublicæ hâbilis. Tac. Ut nec triumviri accipiundo, nec scribæ referendo sufficerent. Liv. Vocum oppido condendo capere. Id. Non fuit consilium agrum colendo aut venando intentum civitatem agere. Sall. Tiberius quâsi firmandæ vilitâtini in Compâniâ concessit. Tac. Quum solvendo ære aliëno reipublica non esset. Liv. Quum solvendo civitates non essent,—were insolvent. Cic.

(1.) The verbs and phrases upon which this dative most frequently depends are, Studere, intentum esse, tempus inpendere, tempus consumere or insumere, optaram dare, sufficere, satis esse, deesse, esse, signifying to serve for, to be adequate to, and, in later writers, on verbs of motion.—The dative of the gerund after sum is usually supposed to depend on idoneus understood; but see § 227, R. 3.

(2.) The dative of the gerundive, denoting a purpose, is also used after names of office; as, Decemviri légibus scribendis, i. e. the ten commissioners for drawing up a code of laws. Liv. So, Comitia creandis dëcemviris. Id. Triumvires agro dando creat. Id.

(3.) A purpose is more commonly expressed by ad and the accusative of the gerund, or by a clause with ut, than by the dative; as, Pecus ad vescendum hominibus apta. Cic.

REM. 3. The accusative of gerunds and gerundives follows the preposition ad, to, or inter, during or amid, and sometimes ante, circa, ex ob; as,

Ad possitendum prœperat, qui cito iudicat. Pub. Syr. Inter bibendum, While drinking. Just. Ad tolerandos facilius labores. Quint. Ad castra facienda. Cic. Ob absolvendum. Id.

NOTE. The construction of the gerundive instead of the gerund almost invariably occurs here when the object of the gerund is to be expressed.

REM. 4. The ablative of gerunds and gerundives follows the prepositions a, (ab), de, e, (ex), or in; or it is used without a preposition, as the ablative of cause, manner, or means; as, Aristotëlem non deterruit a scribendo. Cic. Ex assentando. Ter. Non video defendendis hominibus discêdere. Cic. Crescit eundo. Virg. Rem querunt mercatûris faciendis. Cic. Oratîonem Lâtînam lêgendis nostris efficitis plênîm. Id.

NOTE 1. This ablative also occurs, though rarely, after pro and cum; as, Pro vâpûlando. Plaut. Cum loquendo. Quint.

NOTE 2. Generally with the ablative of the means, and always with the ablative after a preposition, the gerund, when its object is to be expressed, is changed to the gerundive. In a few passages the ablative of the gerundive is differently construed; as, Nullum officium rêfêrendâ grâtiâ magis nécessaire est, instead of rêlatîone grâtiæ. § 256. Cic. Nec jam possidendis públicis agris contentos esse. § 244. Liv. Is finis fuit ulciscendâ Germânici morte,—in avenging the death of Germanicus. Tac.; where the ablative seems to imply time. § 253.

SUPINES.

§ 276. Supines, like gerunds, are verbal nouns, having no other cases except the accusative and ablative singular. In certain connections they supply the place of the present infinitive; the supine in um having an active and the supine in u a passive signification. As in the case of gerunds, we are to regard their construction both as verbs and as nouns. As verbs we are to notice their government, as nouns, their dependence.

I. Supines in um are followed by the same cases as their verbs; as, Non Grâtiis servitum mâtribus ibo, I shall not go to serve Grecian matrons. Virg. Te id admônîtum venio. Plaut.

II. Supines in um follow verbs of motion, and serve to denote the purpose of the motion; as, Cûbitum discessimus. Cic. Ire dêjectum mônûmenta régis. Hor. Lêgati vênêrunt questum injûriæ, et res rêpêtitum. Liv. Quum spectâtum lûdos iret. Nep. So after participles; as, Patriam dêfensum rêvôcâus. Nep. Spectâtum edmissi. Hor.

NOTE. The construction of the supine in um, considered as a noun, is analogous to that of names of places in answer to the question 'whither?' (§ 237), the notion of purpose arising from its verbal character.

REMARK 1. Supines in um sometimes follow verbs which do not express motion; as, Do fîlium nuptum. Ter. Vos ultum injûriæ hortor. Sall.

REM. 2. The supine in um with eo literally signifies 'I go to do a thing,' and hence 'I intend,' or, 'am going to.' Instances of this use are found in Plautus and Terence and in the prose writers later than Cicero; as, Mea Glycêrium, quid agis? cur te is perditum? Why are you going to destroy yourself? Plaut. Bônûrum prægum èreptum eunt. Sall. With eo the supine in um often forms a periphrasis equivalent to the same mood and tense of the verb from which the supine is formed; as, Ne bonos omnes perditum eant (Sall.), for perdant. Ereptum eunt (Id.), for eripiunt. Ultum iri (Tac.), for ultus est. Ultum live injurius festinavit, i. e. ulcisci. Sall.

REM. 3. The supine in um most frequently occurs with the infinitive iri with which it forms the future infinitive passive; as, Brutum visum iri a me puto. Cic. In this construction the accusative properly depends upon the supine, and iri is used impersonally; 'I suppose that I am going to see Brutus.' § 184, 2, (a.) Its notion of futurity is derived from the proper signification of the active voice, as perditum iri, to go to destroy, the idea of intending passing easily into that of futurity.

REM. 4. But to express a purpose Latin writers in general prefer using a gerund or gerundive in the accusative with ad or in the genitive with causâ or gratiâ, a subjunctive clause with ut or qui, a present or future active participle, and sometimes poetically an infinitive. See § 275, R. 1, 2: §§ 262, 264, 274, and 271.

III. The supine in u is used to limit the meaning of adjectives signifying wonderful, agreeable, easy or difficult, worthy or unworthy, honorable or base, and a few others; as,

Mirabile dictu! Wonderful to tell, or to be told! Virg. Jucundum cognitû atque auditu, Pleasant to be known and heard. Cic. Res factu facilis, A thing easy to be done. Ter. Facilia inventu. Gell. Incredibile memoratu. Sall. Turpi dictu. Cic. Optimum factu. Id.

NOTE. The principal supines in u in common use are auditû, cognitû, dictu, factu, inventu, memoratu and natu, which occurs in the expressions, grandis, major, minor, maximus, and minimus natu. In magno natu, of an advanced age, and maximo natu filius, the eldest son, natu is the ablative of a verbal substantive, since neither gerunds nor supines are joined with adjectives.

REMARK 1. The principal adjectives, after which the supine in u occurs, are affabilis, arduus, asper, bonus, deformis, dignus, indignus, dulcis, durus, facilis, difficilis, facustus, gravis, honestus, horrendus, incredibilis, jucundus, injucundus, magnus, memorabilis, mollis, præcivis, pulcher, rarus, rûrus, tuapis, and atilis.

REM. 2. The supine in u is used also after the nouns fas, nêfus, and opus; as, Hoc fas est dictu. Cic. Nêfas dictu. Ovid. Dictu opus est. Ter.—In the following examples it follows a verb: Pudet dictu. Tac. Agr. 32. Dictu fustidienâ sunt. Val. Max. 9, 13, 2.

REM. 3. As the supine in u is commonly translated by a passive form. It is placed under the passive voice; but, in many cases, it may with equal or greater propriety be translated actively. As a noun, its construction may be referred to the ablative of limitation. § 260.

REM. 4. (a.) Instead of the supine in u, an infinitive, a gerund or gerundive with ad, or a verbal noun in the ablative, and sometimes in the dative or accusative, may be used; as, Ardua imitatu, ceterum cognosci utilia. Val. Max. Illud autem facile ad credendum est. Cic. Opus proscriptione dignum. Plin. Aqua potui jucunda. Id. Facilior ad intellectum atque imitationem. Quint. With opus est the perfect passive participle is often used instead of the supine in u; as, Opus est maturato, There is need of haste. Cf. § 243, R. 1.

(b.) The construction with ad and the gerund; as, res facilis ad intelligentiam; or with sum and the infinitive active; as, facile est invenire, is used by the best writers after facilis, difficilis, and jucundus. The most common construction of dignus is with qui and the subjunctive, (§ 264, 9), but the poets and later prose writers have joined it with the infinitive passive.

ADVERBS.

§ 277. I. A verbs modify or limit the meaning of verbs, adjectives, and sometimes of other adverbs; as,

Bene mōres. You advise well. Ter. Fortissime urgentes. Most vigorously pressing on. Plin. Male narrando. Ter. Longe distinilis. Cic. Valde bene. Id.

REMARK 1. Adverbs may also modify nouns, when they are used as adjectives or participles, and accordingly denote a quality, or when a participle is understood. They are also joined to adjective pronouns, when their adjective character predominates; and sometimes limit the meaning of a preposition; as, Populus late rex, for late regnans,—ruling far and wide. Virg. Nihil admōdum, Nothing at all. Cic. Homo plane noster,—entirely ours that is, devoted to us. Id. Honorus plane orator. Id. Admōdum puella. Liv. Late tyrannus. Hor. Gravibus stirpe ictibus conflictabantur, i. e. sūperne accidentibus. Tac. Multum circa ciuitatum, i. e. neighboring cities. Liv.

REM. 2. (a.) Most of the modifications made by adverbs may also be made by means of the various cases of nouns and adjectives, and many modifications may be made by these, for expressing which no adverbs are in use. In general those limitations which are most common can be expressed by adverbs; as, sapienter for cum sapentiā; hic for in hoc loco; bene for in bono modo; nunc for hoc tempore.—(b.) The following are examples of other parts of speech used adverbially, viz. Nihil, 'in no way'; nonnihil, 'in some measure'; quidquam, 'at all'; aliquid, 'somewhat'; quid? 'why?'

REM. 3. A negative adverb, modifying another negative word, destroys the negation; as,

Non parere noluit. He was not unwilling to obey. Nep. Haud ignōra mali. Not ignorant of evil. Virg. Haud nihil est. It is something. Ter. Nec hoc ille non vidit. And this he clearly perceived. Cic. So, nonnulli, some; nonnunquam, sometimes. Non, before a negative word, commonly heightens the affirmative sense, while it softens the expression; as, Homo non indoctus, i. e. homo sane doctus. Non semel, i. e. sæpius; non ignōro, non nescio, non sum nescius, I know very well. Qui mortem in malis pōnit, non pōtest eam non timere,—must needs fear it. Cic.

REM. 4. When the subject and predicate of a proposition are both modified by negative words, and also when the predicate contains two negatives, the proposition is affirmative; as,

Nemo non videt. Every one sees. Cic. Næque hæc non evenērunt. And this indeed took place. So, if both the antecedent and the predicate of a relative clause are negative, the proposition is affirmative; as, Nemo est, qui nesciat. Every body knows. Cic.

REM. 5. 1.) But in the case of non followed by ne—quidem, the two negatives do not destroy each other; as, Non fūgio ne hos quidem mōres; and when the negative leading proposition has subordinate subdivisions with næque—ni sue, neque—nec, or non—non, these negative particles are equivalent to aut—or; as, Non me carminibus vincet, nec Orpheus, nec Linus. Virg. Nēmitem, non re, non verbo, non cultu denique offendi. Cic. Nullius rei næque præs, næque maniceps factus est. Nep.

(b.) In a few passages, however, two negatives in Latin, as in Greek, strengthen the negation, and this exception appears to have been derived from the language of common life; as, Jura te non nocituram homini nemini. Plaut.

(c.) Nemo, nullus, nihil, and numquam have a different sense according as the non is placed before or after them; as, Non nemo, some one; nemo non, every one; non nullus, some; nullus non, every; non nihil, something; nihil non, every thing; non numquam, sometimes; numquam non, at all times. So, usquam non, every where, but instead of nonnusquam, alicubi is used.

REM. 6. (a.) Non is sometimes omitted after non modo or non solum, when followed, in a subsequent clause, by ne quidem, if both clauses have the same verb, and if the verb is contained in the second clause; as,

Mihi non vobis irasci, sed ne dolere quidem impune licet, which is e.ivalent to Mihi non modo non irasci, sed ne dolere quidem impune licet, or Mihi non modo irasci, sed dolere quidem impune non licet. Not only am I not permitted to be angry, but not even to grieve with impunity. Cic. Quum civitatis non solum salvare rempublicam, sed ne lacerare quidem liceret. Id.

(6.) Non is also rarely omitted after non modo when followed by sed or etiam, with etiam, and also after vix; as, Qui non modo ea futura timet, verum etiam fert, sustinetque presentia, Who not only does not fear.... Cic. Ilex virtutum non solum in moribus nostris, sed vix jam in libris reperitur, These virtues are not only not found in life, but scarcely in books. Id.

REM. 7. Facile, in the sense of undoubtedly, clearly, is joined to superlatives, and words of similar import; as, Vir unus totius Græciæ facile doctissimus. Cic. Homo regionis illius virtute facile princeps. Id.

REM. 8. Sentences are often united by means of an adverb which is repeated before each of the connected clauses; as, modo—modo, and nunc—nunc, (sometimes —sometimes); as, Modo hoc, modo illud dicit; modo huc, modo illic volat. Instead of the second modo other particles of time are sometimes used; as, illucundo, nonnumquam, interdum, sæpius, tum or deinde.—Partim—partim, 'partly—partly,' is sometimes used with a genitive or the preposition ex, in the sense of alii—alii, as a nominative in all the genders; as, Quum partim e nobis ita timidi sunt, ut, etc., partim ita republicâ aversi, ut, etc.—Simul—simul, 'as well—as,' like nunc—nunc, is not found in Cicero.—Quâ—quâ is equivalent to et—et.—Tum—tum is used sometimes like modo—modo, sometimes like partim—partim; as Erumunt sæpe vitia amicorum tum in ipsos amicos, tum in alios. Cic. Hæc (beneficia) tum in universam rempublicam, tum in singulos cives conferuntur. Id.

REM. 9. Quum—tum is equivalent to et—et, except in assigning a greater importance to the second part: hence it must be translated by 'both—and especially,' 'not only—but also,' or 'but more particularly.' Sometimes additional weight is given to the second part by means of vero, certe, etiam, quæque, præcipue, imprimis or maxime. This use of quum—tum seems to have had its origin in the use of quum with the subjunctive and often with the indicative in the protasis, followed by tum in the apodosis. When quum followed by tum serves to express the opposition between single words which have the same verb, it is to be regarded as a complete adverb; as, Fortuna quum in rebus quibus, tum præcipue in bello plurimum potest. Sometimes the verb stands in the first part of the sentence; as, Quum omnis arrogantia odiosa est, tum illa ingenii atque eloquentiæ multo molestissima. Tum is sometimes repeated in the second part of the sentence; as, Quem pater moriens quum tutoribus et propinquis, tum legibus, tum æquitati magistratuum, tum iudiciis vestris commendatum putavit. Cic. Sometimes the gradation is, quum—tum—tum vero.

REM. 10. Non modo—sed etiam (or non solum, or non tantum—verum etiam) generally expresses the transition from less important to more important things, like the English 'not only—but (also)'. The transition from greater to smaller things is expressed by non modo—sed, without the etiam, which we render in English by 'I will not say—but only,' and in Latin, too, we may say non dicam et non dico—sed; as, Quid est enim minus non dico fratris, sed hominis.

REM. 11. Tum—quam expresses a comparison in degree; as, Nemo tam multa scripsit, quam multa sunt nostra. With superlatives they are rendered into English by 'the—the' and comparatives; as, Herodotus quam plurimum bibit, tam maxime sitit, The more he drinks, the more he thirsts. Cato. Quam quisque pessime fecit, tam maxime tatus est. Sall.—Tum—quam quod maxime signifies, 'as much as possible.'—Non tam—quam signifies, 'not so much—as,' or 'less—than'; as, Provincia non tam gratioſa et illustris, quam negotioſa ac moleſta. Cic.

REM. 12. Non minus—quam and non magis—quam are equivalent to æque—ac, 'as much as,' but in non magis—quam the greater weight is attached to the affirmative clause beginning with quum; as, Alexander non ducis magis quam militis mania exsequébatur, Alexander performed as much the service of a soldier as that of a commander. In this connection plus frequently supplies the place of magna.

(a.) Sic and ita are demonstrative adverbs corresponding to the relative ut. The restrictive meaning of ita (see § 191, R. 5.), is sometimes made more emphatic by the addition of tamen. Tantus is used in a like restrictive sense; as, Procedis tantum est, ut ne mirus quidem cingi possit, i. e. 'only so much.' Cæs.

(b.) Ut—ita or sic places sentences on an equality. They may sometimes be translated 'although—still,' or 'indeed—but.'—The adverb ut, 'as,' sometimes takes the signification of the conjunction quod, 'because'; as, Atque illa ut semper fuit apertissimus, non se purgavit. Cic.

REM. 13. In an enumeration, primum, deinde, tum, dénique are commonly preferred to the numerals, primum, secundo, (for secundum is not often used), tertium, quartum, etc., unless the strict succession of the numbers is required. Sometimes tum is used once or twice instead of deinde, or the series is extended by accedit, huc addit, etc. Sometimes dénique is followed by postremo to form the conclusion of a series, but often dénique without the other adverbs concludes a series, and is then equivalent to 'in short' or 'in fine.' See Cic. Cat. 1, 5.

REM. 14. Minus is often used for non; as, Nonnumquam ea, quæ prædicta sunt, minus evéniant. Cic.—So, si minus—at, 'if not—yet;' and sin minus, 'but if not,' without a verb, after a preceding si; but with si non the verb is repeated.—The English 'how little' is in Latin quam non; and 'so little,' ita non or adeo non; as, adeo non curabat, quid homines de se loquerentur.

REM. 15. Nunc always expresses the time actually present, or the time to which a narrator transfers himself for the purpose of making his description livelier. Thus in speaking of the present time we may say, Nunc primum somnia me elidunt or eluserunt; but in a narrative we must say, Somnia tunc primum se dicebat eluisse. Compare the use of hic and ille. See § 207, R. 23, (c.)

REM. 16. The conjunction dum, 'while,' when added to negatives, becomes an adverb, signifying 'yet'; as, non dum, 'not yet'; nec dum, 'and not yet'; nul-ludum, 'no one yet'; nihil dum, 'nothing yet.' Hence vix dum signifies 'scarcely yet'; as, Vix dum epistolam tuam legeram, quam ad me Curtius venit. Cic.—So, also, the conjunction nisi, by omitting its verb or uniting it with the leading verb, acquires, after negatives and negative questions, the sense of the adverb 'except,' which is generally expressed by præterquam or the preposition præter, and must be so expressed when no negative precedes. But the expression 'except that' may be rendered either by nisi quod or præterquam quod.—After nihil aliud we may use either nisi or quam, nisi referring to nihil and quam to aliud. Hence nihil aliud nisi signifies 'nothing further,' or 'nothing more,' and nihil aliud quam, 'nothing else,' or 'no other thing but this.'

REM. 17. Ut, 'as,' in interposed clauses, such as ut opinor, ut puto, ut censeo, ut credo, is frequently omitted. Credo, used in this manner often takes an ironical sense.

PREPOSITIONS.

II. 1. See respecting the construction of prepositions with the accusative, § 235; and with the ablative, § 241. See, also, for the different meanings of prepositions, § 195, and for their arrangement, § 279, 10.

2. Two prepositions must not be joined in Latin, as they sometimes are in English, with the same noun; as, to speak for and against a law; or, I have learned this with, and, to some extent, from him. These sentences may be thus expressed in Latin; pro lege et contra legem dicere; hæc cum eo, partim etiam ab eo dicta. Those dissyllabic prepositions only, which are sometimes used as adverbs, may follow another, without being joined with a case; as, Quod aut secundum naturam esset, aut contra. Cic. Cis Padum ultraque Liv. Cæsar reverses the order, Intra extraque munitiões. B. Civ. 8, 72

3. When nouns mutually dependent upon a preposition are in apposition, when they constitute an enumeration without a connective, and when connected by copulative, disjunctive, adversative, or comparative conjunctions, the preposition is not repeated, unless such nouns are to be distinguished from each other, or are emphatic; as,

Quid dicam de thesauro omnium rerum, inemoriā? Hoc apparet in bestiis, volucris, nautibus, agrestibus, cicuribus, feris, ut se ipse diligant. Cic. Scipissime inter me et Scipionem de amicitia disserebatur. Id. Quid fueres si in aliquam domum villamve venisses? Id. Nil per iram aut cupiditatem actum est. Id. Themistocles non minus in rebus gerendis promptus quam excogitandis erat. Nep.

4. The monosyllabic prepositions ab, ad, de, ex, and in are often used before each of two nouns connected by et, etc., especially if the qualities denoted by such nouns are to be considered separately. If the nouns are separated by et—et, nec—nec, etc., the prepositions must be repeated; as, Ut eorum et in bellis et in civilibus officiis vigeat industria. Cic.—Inter is frequently repeated by Cicero after interesse, and other writers repeat it after other verbs also; as, Quid intersit inter populum—cirem, et inter constantem, severum et gravem. Cic. Certatum inter Ap. Claudium maxime ferunt et inter P. Decium. Liv.

5. (a.) In poetry a preposition is occasionally omitted with the first of two nouns, and put with the second only; as, Quae nemora, aut quos agor in specus, (Hor.) for, in quae nemora aut in quos specus agor. So, Hor. Ep. 2, 1, 25.—(b.) An ellipsis of a preposition with the relative pronoun sometimes occurs, together with that of the verb belonging to the preceding demonstrative; as, In eadem opinione fui, qua reliqui omnes, (Cic.), properly in qua reliqui omnes fuerunt.

CONJUNCTIONS.

§ 278. Copulative, disjunctive, and other coördinate conjunctions, connect similar constructions.

NOTE 1. Clauses are similarly constructed, which are mutually independent, whose subjects and verbs are in the same case and mood, and which have either no dependence or a similar dependence on another clause.

NOTE 2. (a.) Words have a similar construction, when they stand in the same relation to some other word or words in the sentence. Hence, (b.) Conjunctions connect the same cases of nouns and pronouns, dependent, if the cases are oblique, upon the same government; the same number, case, and gender of adjectives, belonging to the same noun; the same mood of verbs, either independent, or alike dependent; adverbs qualifying the same verbs, adjectives, etc.; and prepositions on which depends the same noun or pronoun; as, Amictum venti, fugiuntque nubes, The winds subside, and the clouds disperse. Hor. Locum, quem et non coquit sol, et tangit ros. Varr. Lani decem per dies, facti sunt, neque res ulla pretermissa est. Cic. Vides, ut alta steterit nive candidum Socrate, nec jam sustineant onus silvae laborantes, gelique flumina constitierint acuto. Hor. Intelligitis et animum ei presto fuisse, nec consilium defuisse. Cic. Generi animantium omni est a natura tributum, ut se tueantur, declinetque ea, quae nocitura videantur. Id. Aut nemo, aut cito sapiens fuit. Id. Pulvis et umbra sumus. Hor. Si tu et Tullia valebis, ego et Cicero valemus. Cic. Aggere jacto turribusque constitatis. Caes. Clarus et honoratus vir, An illustrioris and honorabile man. Id. Caesar Remos cohortatus, liberaliterque oratione prosecutus. Caes. Pater tuus, quem colui et dilexi. Cic. Belgae spectant in septentrionem et orientem solem. Caes. Navibus junctis, ratibusque compluribus factis. Id. Lege, vel tabellas redde. Plaut. Allobroges trans Rhodanum vicis possessionesque habebant. Caes. Quum triumphum egers, castrisque ibi poneret. Caes.

Ades anim et omite timorem. Cic. Ea vidēre ac perspicere potestis. Id. Graviter et copiose dixisse dicitur. Id. Cum fratre an sine. Id. Cf. § 277, II. 2. Cui carmina cordi, nūmērosque intendere nervis. Virg. Nec census, nec clārus nōmen dōrum, sed prōbitas magnos ingēniumque fūit. Ovid. Philosophi negant quemquam virum bonum esse, nisi sapientem. Cic. Gloria virtutem tantquam umbra sequitur. Id.

REMARK 1. Copulative conjunctions may connect either single words and phrases or entire clauses; the other conjunctions, whether coordinate or subordinate, connect clauses only.

REM. 2. Words thus connected are sometimes in different cases, though in the same construction; as, Meā et respūblicæ interest. Cic. (See § 219.) Sive es Romæ, sive in Epīro. Id. (See §§ 221 and 254. But see also § 221, Note.) In Metti descendit iudicis aures, et patris et nostras. Hor. See § 211, R. 3. In like manner, Hannibal non aliter vinci potuit, quam morā.

REM. 3. As the subjunctive is often used for the imperative, they may be connected by coordinate conjunctions; as, Disce nec invideas. Pers.

REM. 4. Where the purpose of the writer requires it, coordinate conjunctions sometimes connect independent propositions, whose verbs are in different moods; as, Stuporem hominū, vel dicam pēdās, vidēte. Cic. Nec scitis scio, nec, si sciam, dicere ausim. Liv.

REM. 5. Et is used after multi followed by another adjective, where in English 'and' is usually omitted; as, Multe et magnæ arbores. Many large trees. In such cases et supplies the place of et is, introducing a more accurate description. See § 207, R. 26, (c.)

REM. 6. The conjunction is often omitted; as, (a.) When two single words, as comprehending the whole idea, are opposed to each other, as, velim, nolim, whether I would or not; maxima minima, the greatest as well as the least; prima postrema, from the first to the last; dignos indignos adire; ire, redire, to go to and fro. Reluctis omnibus publicis privatis, sacris profanis sic peperci. Cic. Nam glōrium, hōnorem, impērium bonus ignāvis æque exoptant. Sall. C. 11.

(b.) Et is very frequently omitted between the names of two colleagues; as, Consules dēclārati sunt Cn. Pompeius M. Crassus. P. Lentulo L. Triario, questoribus urbānis. Cic. Sometimes, also, when the two persons are not colleagues. It is also occasionally omitted between two words in the oratorical style; as, Adstant amici, propinqua. Id.; also with verbs; as, Adsum, quēruntur Siculi. Id. In good prose, if three or more substantives are joined, it is usual either wholly to omit the conjunction or to insert it between each. The following may serve as an example of both cases: Qui non modo Curiis, Cātōnibus, Pompeiis, antiquis illis, sed his recentibus, Mariis et Didis et Cælis commemorandis jacebant. This is also the common practice with adjectives and verbs, and hence when et has not previously occurred in an enumeration of persons or things, we shou'd not conclude the enumeration with et alii, et reliqui, et cætera, etc., but should make use of the adjectives alone, alii, reliqui, cætera, etc. But though et, ac and que are not used alone in the third or fourth place, yet the enclitic que frequently occurs in this position; as, Præcor ut ea res vobis pacem, tranquillitatem, otium, concordiamque afferat. Cic. Et may be supplied also when two protases introduced by si are joined together; where we say 'if—and if,' or 'if—and.' See an example in Cic. Off. 8, 9.

(c.) An ellipsis of ut is supposed when ne precedes and et, atque, or que is used to continue the sentence, those copulative conjunctions in such case obtaining the meaning of the adversative sed; as, Mōnere capit Porum, ne ultima experiri perscrvaret, dederetque se victori. Curt.

REM. 7. Copulative conjunctions are often used, before each of two or more connected words or clauses, in order to mark the connection more forcibly; as, Et pecūnia persuadet, et grātia, et auctoritas dicentis, et dignitas, et postremo aspectus. Quint. Hoc et turpe, nec tamen tūtum. Cic. Necque nila est, et æternæ est. Id. Et tibi et mihi voluptati fr̄re. Id. Before clauses the disjunctive cor junctions are used in a similar manner; as, Res ipsa aut invitābi aut dēhortābi tur. Id. So, also, nunc...nunc, simul...simul, partim...partim, quā...quā, tum...tum, quum...tum, are used before successive clauses.

REM. 8. To connect different names of the same person or thing, sive or seu, rather than aut or vel, is employed; as, Mars sive Māvors. Cf. § 198, 2, (c.)

REM. 9. Instead of et and ut with the negatives nemo, nihil, nullus, and numquam, neque (or nec), and ne are used with the corresponding affirmative words quisquam, ullus, unquam, and usquam. But 'in order that no one' is rendered in Latin by ne quis and not by ne quisquam, see § 207, R. 31, (a.); as, Si vā quidem cōhinc, et dies, et menses, et anni: nec prætēritum tempus unquam rēverātur. Cic. Sēnātus decrēvit, dārent opēram consūles, ne quid rēspūblica dētrimenti cōpēret. Cæsar.

REM. 10. The conjunctions igitur, vērūm, vērūmlāmen, sed, and sed tāmēn, indicate a return to the construction of the leading clause, when it has been disturbed by the insertion of another clause. These conjunctions, in such connection, are usually rendered by 'I say,' and sometimes in Latin inquam is so used. Nam also is occasionally employed in this way and very rarely itāque.

REM. 11. Vēro and autē are frequently omitted in adversative clauses, especially in short ones; as, Vincēre scit Hannibul, victōriā ūti nescit. Liv. This omission often occurs in describing a progress from smaller to greater things, as in Cic. Cat. 1, 1. And it is to be remarked that non in the second member of such adversative sentences is used without et or vēro; as, aliēna vitia videt, sua non videt. But in unreal suppositions or ironical sentences, where the second member contains the truth, et non or ac non must be used, where we may supply 'rather'; see § 198, 1, (c.); as, Quāsi nunc id agātur,—ac non hoc quærātur. Cic.

INTERJECTIONS.

Respecting the construction of interjections with the nominative, see § 209 R. 13:—with the dative, § 228, 3:—with the accusative, § 238, 2:—and with the vocative, § 240.

ARRANGEMENT.

I. OF THE WORDS OF A PROPOSITION.

§ 279. 1. In arranging the parts of a proposition in English, after connectives, are placed, first, the subject and the words which modify or limit it; next, the verb and its modifiers; then, the object of the verb; and finally, prepositions and the words depending upon them. This is called the logical or natural order.

2. (a.) In Latin, either of the four principal parts of a sentence may be placed first, and there is great freedom in the arrangement of the rest, but with this general restriction in prose, that words which are necessary for the complete expression of a thought should not be separated by the intervention of other words. In ordinary discourse, especially in historical writing, the following general rule for the arrangement of the parts of a sentence is for the most part observed.

(b.) In a Latin sentence, after connectives, are placed, first, the subject and its modifiers; then, the oblique cases and other words which depend upon or modify the verb; and last of all, the verb.

(c.) Hence a Latin sentence regularly begins with the subject and ends with the principal verb of its predicate; as, Dumnōrix grātiā et largitiōne apud Sequēnos plurimum pōtērat. Cæs. But the verb is often not placed at the end of a sentence, especially if the sentence is long, or if two many verbs would be thus brought together at the end. In the familiar style, also, the verb is often placed earlier in the sentence, and in explanatory clauses it is sometimes placed at the very beginning of the proposition, in which case a conjunction is generally added.

(d.) It is also to be remarked, as a further modification of the general rule of arrangement, that, in sentences containing the expression of emotion, the word whose emphasis characterizes it as especially affecting the feelings, or as forming a contrast, is placed at the beginning; as, Cito ārescit lacrima, praesertim in aliēnis malis, Quickly dries the tear, especially when shed for others' woes. Cic. Sua vitia insipientes et suam culpam in senectutem confērunt. Id.

(e.) If there be no emotive or pathetic word requiring prominence, the place at the end of the proposition is reserved for the significant word, that is, the word which is to be most strongly impressed upon the understanding or memory; as, Gallia est omnis divisa in partes tres. Cæs. Quod ante id tempus accidērat nunquam. Id. Quod aliud iter hābērent nullum. Id. Quas virtus ex prōdendo est appellāta prudentia. Cic.

3. (a.) Connectives generally stand at the beginning of the clause which they introduce, and with the following this is their only position; viz. et, ētēnim, ac, at, atque, atque, nēque or nec, aut, vel, sive, sin, sed, nam, vērūm, and the relatives quāre, quōcirca, and quomobrem.

(b.) Most other connectives generally stand in the first place, but when a particular word is peculiarly emphatic, this word with all that belongs to it stands first, and the conjunction follows it. U, even when there is no particular emphasis, is commonly placed after vix, pæne, and prope, and also after the negatives nullus, nemo, nihil, and the word tantum. In Cicero, *ut*que stands first and igitur is commonly placed after the first, and sometimes after several words.

(c.) Autem, enim, and vērō (but), are placed after the first word of the clause, or after the second when the first two belong together, or when one of them is the auxiliary verbum; as, Ille enim revocatus resistere cepit. Cæs. Ego vērō vellem, affuisse. Cic. Incrēdibile est enim, quā sit, etc. Id. They rarely occur after several words; as, Cur non de integro autem dātum. Id. The enclitics que, ne, ve, are usually subjoined to the first word in a clause; but when a monosyllabic preposition stands at the beginning, they are often attached to its case; as, Rōmam Cato dēmigravit, in fōrūque esse cepit; and this is always the case with a, ad and ob. So, also, for the sake of euphony, Apud quosque. Cic.

(d.) Quidem and quōque, when belonging to single words, are always subjoined to the emphatic word in a clause; as, Verbo ille reus erat, re quidem vērō Oppianicus. Cic. Me scilicet maxime, sed proxime illum quoque infellicem. Id. In negative sentences, ne precedes, and quidem follows, the emphatic word; as, Ne ad Cātōnem quidem prōdēbō. Cic.—Quidem is sometimes attracted from the word to which it properly belongs to a neighboring pronoun; as, Tibi que persuāde, esse te quidem mihi carissimum, sed multo fore cariorē, si, etc., instead of, te carissimum quidem mihi esse.—Prepositions and conjunctions belonging to the word on which the emphasis rests are placed with it between ne and quidem; as, Ne in fānis quidem. Cic. Ne si dubitētur quidem. Id. Ne quum in Sicilia quidem fuit. Id.; and even Ne cuius rei arguēretur quidem.—So, also, in Cicero, non nisi, 'only,' are separated; and the negative may even be contained in a verb.

(e.) The preceding rules respecting the position of connectives are often violated by the poets, who place even the prepositive conjunctions after one or more words of a proposition; as, Et tu, pōtes nam, etc.. Hor. Vivos et rōdētes ungues. Id. They even separate et from the word belonging to it, as, Audire et videre plus errare per lucos. Id. So, Auctius atque diu melius fecere. Id. And they sometimes append que and re neither to the first word, nor to their proper words in other connections; as, Messallum terrâ dum, segreturque mari, instead of terrâ marique. Tib. In such arbitrary positions, however, these conjunctions are almost invariably joined to verbs only.

4. When a word is repeated in the same clause, so that one is opposed to, or distinguished from, the other, they must stand together; as, Homines hominibus maxime utiles esse possunt. Cic. Equites alii alio dilapsi sunt. Liv. Légisque virum vir. Virg. Manus manum lavat. Petr. So, also, the personal and possessive pronouns; as, Sequere quo tua te natura ducit. Suum se negotium igere dicunt.

5. Words used antithetically are also placed near each other; as, Dum tacent, clamant. Cic. Fragile corpus animus sempiternus movet. Id.

6. Inquam and often aio, introducing a quotation, follow one or more of the words quoted; as, 'Non nosti quid pater,' inquit, 'Chrysippus dicat.' Hor. 'Quid,' aio, 'tua crimina prodit?' Ovid. When a nominative is added to inquit, it usually follows this verb; as, Mihi vero, inquit Cotta, videtur. Cic.—Dicit and dixit are used like inquit only by the poets.

7. (a.) The adjective may be placed before or after its noun according as one or the other is emphatic, the more emphatic word being placed before the other. When any thing is dependent on the adjective, it usually follows its noun. When a noun is limited by another noun, as well as by an adjective, the adjective usually precedes both; as, Ulla officii præcepta. Cic. Tuum erga dignitatem meam studium. Id.

(b.) Demonstratives, and the adjectives primus, medius, etc., when signifying the first part, the middle part, etc., (see § 205, R. 17), usually precede their nouns; as, Ea res. Cæs. His ipsis verbis. Cic. Média nox. Cæs. Reliqua Ægyptus. Cic.

8. Monosyllables are usually prefixed to longer words with which they are connected; as, Vir clarissimus. Cic. Di immortales. Res innumerabiles. Vis tempestatis. Cæs.

9. (a.) When nouns are put in apposition, the one which explains or defines the other is generally put last, unless it is to be made emphatic; as, Opes irritamenta malorum. Ovid. Hence names of honors or dignities, and every thing of the nature of a title, are commonly placed after the proper name, as explanatory additions. Thus, especially, the names of changeable Roman dignities; as, Cicero consul; C. Curius tribuno plebis; but also permanent appellations; as, Ennius poëta; Plato philosophus; Dionysius tyrannus; and such epithets as vir honestissimus; homo doctissimus. But the hereditary title rex is frequently placed before the name; as, rex Deiotarus; and so the title Impëratör after it became permanent.

(b.) In the arrangement of the Roman names of persons, the prænomen stands first, next the nomen or name of the gens, third the cognomen or name of the familia, and last the agnomen; as, Publius Cornelius Scipio Africanus. The prænomen is usually denoted by a letter. In the imperial times the nomen is often either omitted or follows as something subordinate.

10. (a.) Oblique cases precede the words on which they depend, but they follow prepositions; as, Pöpilli Römâni laus est. Cic. Laudis avidi, pecuniæ liberales. Sall. Cunctis esto benignus, nulli blandus, paucis familiaris, omnibus æquus. Sen. Momentum ære perennius. Hor. Hanc tibi dono do. Ter.—Ad meruliam spectans. Cic. Extra periculum. Id.

(b.) Genitives depending upon neuter adjectives are commonly placed last as, Incerta fortuna. Liv. Nec tibi plus cordis, sed minus oris inest. Ovid.

REMARK. This rule, so far especially as it relates to genitives, is in a great degree arbitrary, as the position of the governed and governing words depends on the idea to be expressed; thus, mors patris tui, contrasts the death with the preceding life; but, fratris tui mors distinguishes this case of death from others. Hence we say, animi motus, animi morbus, corporis partes, terræ motus.—An objective genitive usually follows the word on which it depends; as, una significatione literarum, by means of a single notice by letters.—When several genitives are dependent on one noun, the subjective genitive commonly precedes and the objective genitive may either precede or follow the governing noun.—The genitive dependent on causâ or gratiâ, 'on account of,' regularly precedes these ablatives; as, gloriæ causâ mortem obire; emolumentum sui gratiâ.

(c.) When a noun which is governed by a preposition, is modified by other words which precede it, the preposition usually stands before the words by which the noun is modified; as, A primâ luce ad sextam horam. Liv. Ad ultima mei lætitiâ. Cic. Ad bene beatæque viventium. Id.

(d.) Sometimes, however, the preposition comes between its noun and an adjective or a genitive, by which the noun is modified; as, Nullâ in re. Cic. Iustis de causis. Id. Suos inter æquales. Id. Hunc ob causam. Id. Magno cum metu. Id. Quâ in urbe. Id. Eâ in re. Id. Atatis suæ cum primis. Nep.—So, also, a conjunction may follow the preposition; as, Post vèro Sullæ victoriam.

(e.) Per, in adjurations, is often separated from its case by other words; as, Per ego te deos oro. Ter.—In the poets, other prepositions are sometimes separated in the same manner; as, Vulnèra, quæ circum plurima muros accepit patrios. Virg.

(f.) Tenus and versus, and sometimes other prepositions, (cf. § 241, R. 1.) follow their cases, especially when joined with quâ or hic. This occurs most frequently with the prepositions ante, contra, inter, and propter; more rarely with circa, circum, pènes, ultra and adversus; and with still less frequency with post, per, ad, and de; as, quam ante, quem contra, quos inter, quem propter, quos ad, quem ultra, hunc adversus, hunc post, quam circa.—The preceding prepositions, and more rarely others also, sometimes, especially in the poets and later prose writers, follow nouns and personal pronouns. In such case, if the noun be modified by an adjective or a genitive, the preposition sometimes stands between them, and sometimes follows both; as, Postes sub ipsos. Virg. Ripam opud Euphratès. Tac. Maria omnia circum. Virg. And more rarely other words intervene; as, His accensa super. Id. Vitis nemo sine nascitur. Hor.

11. Infinitives precede the verbs on which they depend; as, Jugurtha, ubi eos Africâ decessisse ratus est, nèque propter loci naturam Arum armis expugnare possit, mœnia circumdat. Sall. Servire magis quam impedire parati estis. Id.

12. A word which has the same relation to several words, either precedes or follows them all; as, Vir gravis et sapiens. Cic. Clarus et honoratus vir. Id. In scriptoribus legendis et imitandis, or In legendis imitandisque scriptoribus, but not In legendis scriptoribus et imitandis. Quam respondere nèque vellet nèque posset. Habentur et dicuntur tyranni. Amicitiam nec usu nec ratione habent cognitam.

13. Relatives are commonly placed after their antecedents, and as near to them as possible; as,

Qui sim, ex eo, quem ad te misi, cognosces. Sall. Litteras ad te misi, per quas gratias tibi ago. Cic.

14. Quisque is generally placed after se, suis, quâ, ordinals and superlatives; as, Suos quisque debet tueri. Cic. Satis superque est sibi suorum cuique rerum cura. Id. Severitas animadversionis infimo cuique gratissima. Id. Maxime decet, quod est cuiusque maxime suum. Id. Quisque very rarely begins a proposition.

15. (a.) An adverb is usually placed immediately before the word which it qualifies; but if the same word is modified by the oblique case of a noun, the latter commonly follows the adverb; as, Māle par̄ta māle dilābuntur. Cic. Nihil tam asp̄rum n̄que tam diff̄cile esse, quod non cōp̄dissime fact̄ari essent. Sell.—Imp̄erum facile iis artibus ret̄netur, quibus initio partum est. Id. Sec̄i maxime ad̄olescentium fam̄iliāritates app̄etēbat. Id. Non tam in bellis et in pr̄eliis, quam in pr̄missis et fide firmiorem. Cic.—(b.) When non belongs to a single word of the proposition, it always stands immediately before it; as, non te r̄p̄rehēdo, sed fort̄nam. But if it belongs to the proposition generally, it stands before the verb, and particularly before the finite verb, if an infinitive depends on it; as, Cur tant̄op̄re te angas, intelliḡere s̄c̄ne non possum. Instead of non dico, n̄go is generally used; as, n̄gavit eum ālesse.—The negatives non, n̄que, n̄mo, nullus, when joined to general negative pronouns or adverbs, such as quisquam, ullus, umquam, always precede them though not always immediately; as, n̄mini quidquam n̄gavit; non m̄mini me umquam te vidiāse. § 207, R. 81.

NOTE 1. In some phrases, custom has established a certain order, which must be observed and imitated; as, Civis R̄mānus, p̄p̄ulus R̄mānus, jus civile, as ub̄erum, terrā m̄trique, Pontifex max̄imus, m̄giater ep̄itum, trib̄nus militum, trib̄ni militum cons̄lari p̄testāte, J̄p̄iter opt̄imus max̄imus, via App̄ia; ne quā resp̄blica d̄trimenti c̄piat. Cic. The ablatives opin̄ione, spe, justo, s̄lito, (see § 256, R. 9), generally precede the comparative.

NOTE 2. Exceptions to the foregoing principles are very numerous. These may arise (a) from emphasis; (b) from poetic license; and (c) from regard to the harmony of the sentence. The following general rule sometimes modifies nearly all the preceding.

16. The emphatic word is placed before the word or words connected with it which are not emphatic.

NOTE 3. The last place is often an emphatic one, except for the verb. When the verb is neither first nor last in a proposition the word before it is emphatic. An adjective, when emphatic, commonly precedes its substantive; when not emphatic, it commonly follows it. But with the demonstrative pronouns the rule is reversed.

NOTE 4. The principal poetical variation in the arrangement of words consists in the separation of the adjective from its noun, and in putting together words from different parts of a proposition.

17. A sentence should not close like a hexameter verse, with a dactyl and spondee; as, Esse vid̄etur; nor, in general, with a monosyllable.

18. Hiatus should be avoided; that is, a word beginning with a vowel should not follow a word ending with a vowel.

19. A concurrence of long words or long measures,—of short words or short measures,—of words beginning alike or ending alike,—should be avoided.

II. OF THE ARRANGEMENT OF CLAUSES.

§ 280. A compound sentence, whose clauses are united as protasis and apodosis, or in which the leading clause is divided by the insertion of one or more subordinate clauses, is called a period.

1. (a.) In the former kind of period the protasis must precede the apodosis; as, Quum Pausānias s̄miān̄inis de templo elātus esset, confestim ānlmā effl̄avit. When Pausanias had been carried out of the temple but just alive, he immediately expired. In a period of the latter kind the verb of the principal proposition is placed at the end, and the subordinate clauses between the parts of the leading clause; as, Pausānias, quum s̄miān̄inis de templo elātus esset, confestim ānlmā effl̄avit, Pausanias, when he had been carried out of the temple but just alive, immediately expired. Nep̄.

(b.) A sentence, such as Scipio exercitum in Africā trāj̄cit, ut Hann̄bālem ac Iul̄iā d̄d̄ac̄eret, is not periodic in its structure, but it becomes so when ut say, Scipio, ut Hannibalem ex Italiâ deduceret, exercitum in Africam trajecit. Periods in which the subordinate clause precedes with two conjunctions, as, Quum igitur Rōmam venisset, statim imp̄rātōrem adiit, are made still more strictly periodic by placing first the conjunction which belongs to the whole, and then inserting the subordinate proposition; as, Itaque, quum Rōmam venisset, statim imp̄rātōrem adiit.

2. (a.) If the verbs of the leading and dependent clauses have the same subject, or the same noun depending on them, they are commonly formed into a period; as, Antigōnus, quum adversus Sēleucum Lysimachumque dimicaret, in p̄lio occisus est. Nep. Quem, ut barbari incendium effugisse intus viderunt, telis missis interfecerunt. Id.

(b.) So, also, when the noun which depends on the verb of the leading clause is the subject of the dependent clause; as, L. Manlio, quum dictātor fuisset, M. Pompōnius, tribūnus plēbis, diem dixit. Cic.

3. When obscurity would arise from separating the leading subject and verb by dependent words or clauses, they are often placed together at the beginning or end of the sentence; as, Lātēs (sunt) deinde lēges, non solum quæ regni suspiciōne consilium absolvērent, sed quæ adeo in contrārium verterent, ut populi rem dūm facerent. Liv. The position of the leading verb is also often otherwise varied, from regard to emphasis, to avoid monotony, or to prevent its meeting with the verb of the last dependent clause; but clauses, when so arranged, do not constitute a period.

4. When one clause is interrupted by the introduction of another, the latter should be finished before the first is resumed.

5. Clauses expressing a cause, a condition, a time, or a comparison, usually precede the clauses to which they relate.

6. A short clause usually stands before, rather than after, a long one.

III. OF THE CONNECTION OF CLAUSES.

(1.) In connecting propositions, relatives, whether pronouns, pronominal adjectives, or adverbs, are often employed in order to avoid the too frequent recurrence of et, autem, and certain other conjunctions. Every relative may be used for this purpose instead of its corresponding demonstrative with et; as, qui for et is, quālis for et tālis, quo for et eo, etc. They are used also before those conjunctions which are joined with et or autem at the beginning of a proposition; as, si, nisi, ut, quum, etc. (see § 206, (14.)); as, quod quum audivissem, quod si fecissem, quod quamvis non ignorassem, for et quum hoc, et si hoc, et quamvis hoc: or quum autem hoc, etc.; and, often, also, where in English no conjunction is used, and even before other relatives; as, quod qui facit, eum ego impium jūlico, i. e. et qui hoc facit, or, qui autem hoc facit. In the ablative with comparatives the relative is often used as a connective; as, Cato, quo nemo tunc erat prudentior, i. e. Cato, who was more prudent than all others.

(2.) In propositions consisting of two members, the relative pronoun is joined grammatically either to the apodosis or to the protasis; with the former in, qui, quum ex eo quereretur, cur tam diu vellet esse in vitā, Nihil habeo, inquit, quid accipiam senectutem. Cic. de Sen. 6. But is more frequent with the protasis or secondary clause; as, A quo quum quereretur, quid maxime expediret, respondit. Cic. Off. 2, 25. When it is joined with the protasis, the nominative of the demonstrative is supplied with the apodosis from another case of the relative in the protasis, as, in the preceding passage, from the ablative. But for the sake of emphasis the demonstrative may be expressed, and frequently, also, for the sake of clearness; as, Qui mos quum a posteroribus non esset retentus, Arcesilas eum revocavit. Cic. de Fin. 2, 1. The accusative is sometimes to be supplied; as, Qui (Hērāclitus) quoniam intelligi nōluit, omittamus. Cic. N. D. 3, 14. When the demonstrative precedes, and is followed by a proposition consisting of two members, the relative is attached to the prota-quæ, which is placed first, and not to the leading clause or apodosis; as, Ille cuius Pompeio, quibus ille si parvisset, Cæsar tantas opes, quantis nunc habet non haberet. Cic. Fam. 6, 6. Noli adversus eos me velle ducere, cum quibus ne contra te arma ferrem, latium reliqui. Nep. Att. 4.

(3.) Where in English we use 'however' with the relative; as, He promised me many things, which, however, he did not perform, the Latinus made use of the demonstrative with sed or vêrum, or the relative alone implying the adversative conjunction; as, multa mihi promisit, sed ea non præstitit, or, quæ non præstitit, but not quæ autem or quæ vëro. Qui autem and qui vëro are used however in protases, where the relative retains its relative meaning, and there is a corresponding demonstrative in the apodosis; as, Qui autem omnium bona a se ipsis petunt, eis nihil malum rideri potest, quod naturæ necessitas afferat. Cic. de Sen. 2.

(4.) In double relative clauses, especially where the cases are different, Cicero frequently for the second relative clause substitutes the demonstrative; as, Sed ipse in mente insidebat species pulchritudinis eximia quodam, quum intrinseus, in eaque defixus, ad, etc. for et in quâ. Cic. Orat. 2. And sometimes even when the cases are the same; as, Quem Philumtem venisse ferunt, eumque cum Leonte discessisse quodam. Cic. Tusc. 5, 8; where et alone would have been sufficient.

(5.) From this tendency to connect sentences by relatives arose the use of quod before certain conjunctions merely as a copulative. See § 206, (14.)

(6.) Nêque or nec is much used by Latin writers instead of et and a negation, and may be so used in all cases except when the negative belongs to one particular word; see § 278, R. 9. Nêque or nec is added to enim, vëro, and tâmen, where we cannot use 'and.' To these negative expressions a second negative is often joined, in which case nêque enim non is equivalent to nam; non vëro non, to aliquæ etiâ, a stronger et; nec tamen non, to attâmen.

ANALYSIS.

§ 281. I. 1. The analysis of a complex or a compound sentence consists in dividing it into its several component propositions, and pointing out the relation to each other.

2. In resolving a sentence into its component clauses, the participial constructions equivalent to clauses should be mentioned, and ellipses be supplied. See § 203, 4; § 274, 3; and § 257.

3. In a continued discourse the connection and relation of the successive sentences also should be specified.

Rules for the Analysis of Complex and Compound Sentences.

(1.) State whether the sentence is complex or compound. § 201, 11, 12.

(2.) If complex, (1) specify the principal and subordinate clauses. (2) Specify the class to which the subordinate proposition belongs, (§ 201, 7), and (3), its connective, and the class to which such connective belongs, (§ 201, 8 and 9.)

(3.) If compound, specify the principal propositions, with their subordinates, if any they have, as in the case of complex sentences.

II. The analysis of a proposition or simple sentence consists in distinguishing the subject from the predicate, and, in case either of them be compound, in pointing out the simple subjects or predicates of which it is composed, and if complex, in specifying the several modifiers, whether of the essential or subordinate parts.

Rules for the Analysis of a Simple Sentence.

1. Divide it into two parts—the subject and the predicate, § 201, 1—3. If these are simple, the analysis is complete, but if either is compound:—
2. Specify the simple subjects or predicates of which the compound consists.—If either is complex:—
3. Point out the grammatical subject, and the words, phrases, etc. directly modifying it.
4. Point out the words, phrases, etc., which modify the direct modifiers of the grammatical subject, and those which modify them, and so on successively, until the relation of each of the words composing the logical subject is specified.
5. Point out the grammatical predicate, and the words, phrases, etc., directly modifying it.
6. Point out the words, phrases, etc., which modify the direct modifiers of the grammatical predicate, and those which modify them, and so on successively, until the relation of each of the words composing the logical predicate is specified.

PARSING.

III. Parsing consists in resolving a proposition into the parts of speech of which it is composed, tracing the derivation of each word, and giving the rules of formation and construction applicable to it.

Rules for Parsing.

1. Name the part of speech to which each word belongs, including the subdivision in which it is found.
2. If it is an inflected word:—
 - (1.) Name its root or crude form, and decline, compare, or conjugate it.
 - (2.) If it is a noun or pronoun, tell its gender, number and case:—if in the nominative or in the accusative with the infinitive, tell its verb:—if in an oblique case depending on some other word, tell the word on which its case depends.
 - (3.) If it is an adjective, adjective-pronoun, or participle, tell the word which it modifies.
 - (4.) If it is a finite verb or an infinitive with the accusative, tell its voice, mood, tense, number, person, and subject.
3. If it is a conjunction, tell its class and what it connects.
4. If it is a preposition, tell the words whose relation is expressed by it.
5. If it is an adverb, tell its class and what it qualifies.
6. Prove the correctness of each step of the process by quoting the definition or rule of formation or construction on which it depends.

NOTE. The words constituting a proposition are most conveniently parsed in that order in which they are arranged in analysis.

Examples of Analysis and Parsing.

1. Equus currit, The horse runs.

Analysis. This is a simple sentence: its subject is equus, its predicate is currit, both of which are simple. See § 201, 1—3; § 202, 2; and § 203, 2.

Parsing. Equus is a common noun, § 26, 1 and 3; of the 2d decl., § 38; masc. gender, § 38, 1; third person, § 35, 2; its root is equ-, § 40, 10; decline it, § 46; it is in the nominative case, singular number, § 35, 1, (b.); the subject of currit, § 209, (a.).—Currit is a neuter verb, § 141, II.; of the 3d conjugation, § 143, 2, from curro; its principal parts are curro, cūcurri, cursum, currere, § 151, 4; it is from the first root curr-; give the formations of that root, § 151, 1; it is in the active voice, § 142, 1; indicative mood, § 143, 1; present tense, § 145, 1; third person, § 147; singular number, § 146; agreeing with its subject-nominative equus, § 209, (b.).

NOTE. The questions to be asked in parsing equus are such as these, Why is equus a noun? Why a common noun? Why of the second declension? Why masculine? etc.—In parsing currit, the questions are, Why is currit a verb? Why a neuter verb? Why of the third conjugation? Which are the principal parts of a verb? Of what does the first root of a verb consist? What parts of a verb are derived from the first root? etc. The answer in each case may be found by consulting the etymological rules and definitions.

2. Sævius ventis agtātur ingens pinus, The great pine is more violently shaken by the winds. Hor.

Analysis. This also is a simple sentence:—its subject is ingens pinus, its predicate sævius ventis agtātur; both of which are complex, § 201, 10, § 202, 6, and § 203, 5.

The grammatical subject is pinus, the pine; this is modified by ingens, great, § 201, 2, § 202, 2, and § 202, 6, (3.).

The grammatical predicate is agtātur, is shaken; this is modified by two independent modifiers, sævius, more violently, and ventis, by the winds, § 203 II. 3 Rem., § 203, I. 1, (2), and (3.).

Parsing. Pinus is a common noun, § 26, 1 and 3; of the 2d and 4th declensions, § 38 and § 99; feminine gender, § 29, 2; 3d person, § 35, 2; from the root pin-, § 40, 10; (decline it both in the 2d and 4th declensions);—it is found in the singular number, § 35, 1, and the nominative case, the subject of agtātur, § 209, (a.).

Ingens is a qualifying adjective of quantity, § 104, 4, and § 205, N. 1; of the 3d decl., § 105, 1, and § 38; of one termination, § 108, and § 111; from the root ingent-, § 40, 10; (decline it like presens, § 111, but with only i in the ablative, § 113, Exc. 3.);—it is found in the singular number, feminine gender, § 26, R. 4; and nominative case, agreeing with its noun pinus, § 205.

Agitātur is an active frequentative verb, § 141, I., and § 187, II. 1; of the 1st conjugation, § 149, 2; from the first root of its primitive ago, § 187, II. 1, (b.); (name its principal parts in both voices, see § 151, 4; and give the conjugation of the passive voice, indicative mood, present tense, see § 156.);—it is found in the singular number, § 146; third person, § 147; agreeing with its subject-nominative pinus, § 209, (b.).

Sævius is a derivative adverb of manner, § 190, 2-4; in the comparative degree, from the positive sæve or sæviter, which is derived from the adjective sævus, § 194, 1 and 2, and § 192, II. 1, and Exc. 1 and 2; modifying the verb agitātur, by expressing its degree, § 277.

Ventis is a common noun, § 26, 1 and 3; of the 2d declension, § 38; masculine gender, § 46; from the root vent-, § 40, 10; (decline it);—it is found in the plural number, § 35, 1; ablative case, modifying agitātur by denoting its means or instrument, § 247.

3. Mithridātes, duarum et viginti gentium rex, totidem linguis jura dixit, Mithridates, king of twenty-two nations, pronounced judicial decisions in as many languages. Plin.

Analysis. This also is a simple sentence; its subject is Mithridātes, duarum et viginti gentium rex, its predicate is totidem linguis jura dixit, both of which are complex, § 201, 10, § 202, 6, and § 203, 5.

The grammatical subject is Mithridates; this is modified directly by rex § 202, I. (1.)

Rex is limited by gentium, § 202, I. 1, (2.)

Gentium is limited by the compound addition duarum and viginti connected coordinately by et, § 202, III. 3.

The grammatical predicate is dixit; this is limited by jura and linguis, the former a simple, the latter a complex addition, as it is modified by totidem § 203, I. 1, (2.) and II. 1.

Parsing. Mithridates is a proper noun, § 26, 2; of the third declension, § 38; masculine gender, § 28, 1; from the root Mithridat-, § 40, 10; genitive Mithridatis, § 73, 1; (decline it in the singular number only, § 96, (a).)—it is found in the nominative case, the subject of dixit, § 209, (a.)

Rex is a common noun—third declension, § 38; masculine gender, § 28, 1; from the root reg-, § 40, 10; genitive regis, § 73, 2; (decline it);—it is found in the singular number—the nominative case, in apposition to Mithridates, § 204.

Gentium is a common noun from gens—third declension—feminine gender, § 62; from the root gent-, § 56, I, R. 1; genitive gentis, § 77, 2 and (2.); (decline it);—it is found in the plural number—genitive case, § 83, II. 3; limiting rex subjectively, § 211 and R. 2.

Duarum is a numeral adjective, § 104, 5; of the cardinal kind, § 117; from duo, duo, duo; from the root du-; (decline it, § 118, 1.);—it is found in the plural number, § 118, 2; feminine gender, genitive case, § 26, R. 4; agreeing with its noun gentium, § 205.

Et is a copulative conjunction, § 198, 1, connecting duarum and viginti, § 278.

Viginti is a numeral adjective of the cardinal kind, indeclinable, § 118, 1; limiting gentium, § 205.

Dixit is an active verb, § 141, I.; of the third conjugation, § 149, 2; from dico, (give the principal parts in the active voice, and its first, second, and third roots, § 150, 4, and § 171, 1); it is formed from the second root dix-, (give the formations of the second root);—it is found in the active voice, § 141, 1; indicative mood, § 143, 1; perfect indefinite tense, § 145, IV. and Rem.; singular number, third person, agreeing with Mithridates, § 209, (b.)

Jura is a common noun, of the third declension, from jus, root jur-, § 56, I. R. 1 genitive juris, § 76, Exc. 3; neuter gender, § 66; (decline it);—it is found in the plural number, accusative case, § 40, 8; the object of dixit, § 229.

Linguis is a common noun, of the first declension, feminine gender from lingua, root lingu-, (decline it);—found in the plural number, ablative case, after dixit, § 247.

Totidem is a demonstrative pronominal adjective, § 139, 5, (2.) and (3.); indeclinable, § 115, 4; it is in the ablative plural, feminine gender, limiting linguis, § 205.

4. Pausanias, quum semiānēmis de templo elātus esset, confestim animam efflāvit. Nep. Paus. 4.

Analysis. This is a complex sentence, § 201, 11; consisting of two members, which are so arranged as to constitute a period, § 280, 1.

The principal proposition is, Pausanias confestim animam efflāvit, § 201, 5. The subordinate proposition is, quum (is) semiānēmis de templo elātus esset, § 201, 6.

The leading proposition has a simple subject, Pausanias, § 202, 2, and a complex predicate, confestim animam efflāvit, § 203, 3; in which efflāvit is the grammatical predicate, § 203, 2; which is modified by confestim and animam, § 203, I. 1, (2.) and (3.), and II. R. 2., and also by the adverbial clause quum semiānēmis, etc. § 201, 6 and 7, and § 203, I. 3.

The subordinate proposition, which is connected to the leading clause by the subordinating conjunction quum, § 201, 9, has a simple subject, viz. is understood, and a complex predicate, semiānēmis, de templo elātus esset, § 203, 2.—The grammatical predicate is elātus esset, § 203, 2; which is modified by semiānēmis, § 203, I. 1, (1.), and de templo, § 203, I. 2, and II. Rem. 2.

Parsing. Pausānias, a Greek proper noun, § 26, 2;—1st decl., §§ 41 and 44; masc. gender, § 28, 1; root Pausān-; found in sing. num., nom. case, the subject of efflāvit, § 209, (a.)

Confestim, an adv. of time § 190, 3; limiting efflāvit, § 277.

Animam is a com. noun of 1st decl., fem. gender, § 41; from ānima, root ānim-; (decline it);—it is found in the sing. num., acc. case, the object of efflāvit, § 229.

Efflāvit, an act. verb, 1st conj., from efflo, compounded of ex and flō, § 166, 6; (give the principal parts in the act. voice and the three roots);—it is formed from the second root; (give the formations of that root); in the active voice in 1. mood, perfect indefinite tense, sing. num., 3d pers., agreeing with Pausānias, § 209, (b.)

Quum is a temporal conjunction, § 198, 10; connecting the dependent to the principal clause, § 278.

Semiānimis is a predicate adj., of the 3d decl., of two terminations, § 109; (decline it);—it is in the sing. num., masc. gen., nom. case, agreeing with is understood, § 210, R. 1, (a.)

De is a preposition, expressing the relation between ēlātus esset and templo, § 196.

Templo is a com. noun, 2d decl., neut. gen., from templum, root templ-; (decline it);—in the sing. num., abl. case, after de, § 241.

Elātus esset is an irregular active verb, of the third conjugation, § 179; from effēro, compounded of ex and fēro, § 196, 6; (see fēro and compounds, § 172); (give the principal parts in both voices, and the 1st and 3d roots);—it is formed from the third root, elāt-, (give the formations of that root in the passive voice); in the subjunctive mood, pluperfect tense, § 145, V.; sing. num., third person, agreeing with is understood referring to Pausānias, § 209, (b.)

5. Rōmāna pūbes, sēdātō tandem pāvōre, postquam ex tam turbīdo die sērēna et tranquilla lux rēdiit, ūbi vācuam sēdem rēgiām vidit, etsi sātis crēdebat patrībūs, qui proxīmī sītēlerant, sublimem raptū prōcellā; tāmen, vēlut orbītātis mētū icta, mōstum āliquāmdiū silentium obtinuit. Liv. 1, 16.

Analysis. This is a complex sentence, whose clauses constitute a period, § 280. It is composed of the following members or clauses:—

1. Rōmāna pūbes [tāmen] mōstum āliquāmdiū silentium obtinuit. This is the leading clause. The following are dependent clauses.

2. vēlut orbītātis mētū icta,

3. sēdātō tandem pāvōre,

4. postquam ex tam turbīdo die sērēna et tranquilla lux rēdiit,

5. ūbi vācuam sēdem rēgiām vidit,

6. etsi sātis crēdebat patrībūs,

7. qui proxīmī sītēlerant,

8. sublimem raptū prōcellā.

NOTE 1. In the preceding clauses the predicates are printed in Italics.

NOTE 2. The connective of the 1st clause, is the adversative tāmen, which is inserted on account of etsi intervening between the principal subject and predicate. The connective of the 2d clause is vēlut, of the 4th postquam, of the 5th ūbi, of the 6th etsi, followed by a clause constituting the protasis, and of the 7th qui. The 3d and 8th clauses have no connectives.

(1.) The grammatical subject of the leading clause is pūbes, which is limited by Rōmāna.—The grammatical predicate is obtinuit, which is limited by āliquāmdiū and silentium, and also either directly or indirectly by all the dependent clauses. Silentium is itself modified by mōstum.

The second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth clauses are used adverbially to denote the time and other circumstances modifying the principal predicate silentium obtinuit, § 201, 7.

(2.) The second is a participial clause, equivalent to vélut (ea scil. púbes, orbítáris métu icta esset, § 274, 3, (a).)

(3.) The third clause is also participial, and is equivalent to quum tandem pávor seditus esset, § 257, R. 1; and hence pávore represents the subject, and sedito tandem the predicate—the former being simple, the latter complex.

(4.) The grammatical subject of the 4th clause, which is connected to the leading clause by postquam, § 201, 9, is lux, which is modified by sérèna and tranquilla.—The grammatical predicate is redíit, which is modified by postquam and ex tam turbido die, § 203, I. 1, (3.), and II. 1.

(5.) The grammatical subject of the fifth clause is ea understood.—The grammatical predicate is vidit, which is modified by ubi and vácuam seditem régiam, § 203, I. 1, (3.) and II. 1.

(6.) The grammatical subject of the sixth clause also is ea. Its grammatical predicate is credebat, which is modified by atús and patribus, § 203, I. (2.) and (3.), and by the 8th clause, II. 3.

(7.) The grammatical subject of the seventh clause is qui. Its grammatical predicate is sistérant, which is modified by proximi, § 203, I. (1.). It is an adjective clause, modifying patribus, § 201, 7 and 9.

(8.) The grammatical subject of the eighth clause, which has no connective, § 201, Rem., is eum, i. e. Rómulum, understood. Its grammatical predicate is ruptum (esse), which is modified by sublimem and prócellá.

Parsing. Rómána is a patrial adjective, § 104, 10, derived from Róma, § 128, 6, (a.) and (e.); of the 1st and 2d declensions, § 105, 2; fem. gender, sing. number, nom. case, agreeing with púbes, § 205.

Púbes, a collective noun, § 26, 4; 3d decl., fem. gender, § 62; from the root púb-, § 56, I. R. 6; genitive púbis, § 73, 1; (decline it);—found in the nom. sing., the subject of obtinuit, § 209, (a).

Támen, an adversative conjunction, § 198, 9, relating to etsi in the 6th clause.

Mestum, a qualifying adj., § 205, N. 1; of the 1st and 2d declensions, neut. gender, sing. num., acc. case, agreeing with silentium.

Alíquāntu, an adverb of time, § 191, II.; compounded of alíquis and ānu § 193, 6; and limiting obtinuit, § 277.

Silentium, a com. noun, 2d decl., neut. gender, § 46; sing. number, acc. case the object of obtinuit, § 229.

Obtinuit, an active verb, of the 2d conj., § 149, 2; from obtinéo, compounded of ob and lénéo, see § 165; (give the principal parts in the act. voice, and the formations of the 2d root, § 157 at the end);—found in the active voice, ind. mood, perf. indef. tense, sing. num., 3d person, agreeing with púbes, § 209, (b.).

Vélut for vélut si, an adverb, compounded of vel and ut, § 193, 10; modifying icta, and obtinuisset understood, (as they would have done if, etc.).

Orbitáris, an abstract noun, § 26, 5; from the primitive orbús, § 101, 1 and 2; 3d decl., fem. gender, § 62; from the root orbítat-, § 56, I., and R. 1; (decline it);—found in the sing. num., subjective gen. case, limiting métu, § 211.

Métu, an abstract noun, 4th decl., masc. gen., § 87; sing. num., abl. case, § 247.

Icta, a perf. part. pass., from the active verb ico, of the 3d conj. (give the principal parts in both voices, and decline the participle);—found in the fem. gen., sing. num., nom. case, agreeing with púbes, § 205.

Sedito, a perfect pass. part. from the active verb sédo, of the 1st conj., § 149, 2; (give the principal parts in both voices, § 151, 4; and decline it, § 105, R. 2.);—found in the masc. gender, sing. num., abl. case, agreeing with pávore, § 205.

Tandem, an adverb of time, § 191, II.; modifying sedito, § 277.

Pávore, an abstract noun, § 26, 5, and § 102, 1; (from páveo), 3d decl., masc. gen., § 58; root pávor, § 56, II., and § 70, (decline it);—found in the sing. number, abl. case, absolute with sedito, § 257.

Postquam, an adverb of time, compounded of post and quam, § 198, 10; modifying redíit, and connecting the 1st and 4th clauses, § 201, 9.

Ex, a prepositional, § 195, R. 2.

Tam, an adverb of degree, § 191, R. 2; modifying turbido, § 277.

Turbido, an adjective, agreeing with dñe.

Die, a common noun, 6th decl., masc. gender, § 90, Exc. 1.; sing. Lamber abl. case, after the prep. ex, § 241.

Sérèna, an adj., 1st and 2d decls., fem. gen., sing. num., nom. case, agreeing with lux, § 206.

Et, a copulative conjunction, § 198, 1; connecting sérèna and tranquilla, § 278.

Tranquilla, like sérèna.

Lux, a common noun, 3d decl., fem. gen., § 62; from the root luc-, § 56, L, and R. 2; genitive lucis, § 78, 2.

Rediit an irregular neuter verb, of the 4th conj., § 176; from redeo, compounded of eo, § 182, and the inseparable prep. red-, § 196, (b.), 3; (give its principal parts);—found in the ind. mood., perf. indef. tense, sing. num., 3d pers., agreeing with lux, § 209, (b.)

Ubi, an adverb of time, and like postquam, a connective, § 201, 9; and modifying vidit, § 277.

Vacuum, an adj., qualifying sedem.

Sedem, a common noun, 3d decl., fem. gen., § 62; from the root sēd-, § 56, L, R. 6; genitive sēdis, § 78, 1; (decline it);—found in the sing. num., acc. case, the object of the transitive verb vidit, § 229.

Régiam, a denominative adj., § 128, L, 2, (a.); from the primitive rex, agreeing with sedem.

Vidit, an active verb, of the 2d conj., (give its principal parts in the active voice, and the formations of the 2d root); found in the active voice, ind. mood., perf. indef. tense, sing. num., 3d pers., agreeing with ea, i. e. pubes, understood.

Etsi, a concessive conjunction, § 198, 4; corresponding to the correlative adverbative conj. tamen, § 198, 4, R. and 9.

Satis, an adverb of degree, § 191, III., and R. 2; modifying crédēbat, § 271.

Crédēbat, an act. verb, § 141, L; 3d conj., (give the principal parts in the active voice and the formations of the 1st root);—found in the act. voice, ind. mood, imperfect tense, sing. num., 3d person, agreeing with ea, scil. pubes, understood.

Patribus, a common noun, § 26, 3; 3d decl., from the root patr-, § 56, II., R. 3; gen. patris, § 71; masc. gender, § 28, 1; plur. num., dat. case, depending on crédēbat, § 228, R. 2.

Qui, the subject of the 7th clause, is a relative pronoun, § 136; masc. gender, plur. num., agreeing with its antecedent patribus, § 206, R. 19, (a.); and is nominative to sublērant, § 209, (a.)

Proximi, an adj. of the superlative degree, § 126, 1, (compare it); of the 1st and 2d decls., masc. gen., plur. num., nom. case, agreeing with qui, § 205, § 210, R. 1, (a.) and R. 8, (2.)

Sublērant, a neuter verb, 1st conj., irregular in its 2d root, § 165; (give its principal parts, and the formations of the 2d root);—found in the act. voice ind. mood, plup. tense, § 145, V.; 3d person plural, agreeing with its subject qui, § 209, (b.)

Sublimem, an adj., of the 3d decl., and two terminations, § 119; masc. gen., sing. num., acc. case, agreeing with eum, (i. e. Rómulum), understood and modifying also raptum esse, § 205, R. 15.

Raptum (esse), an act. verb, 3d conj.; (give the principal parts in both voices and the formations of the 3d root in the passive voice)—found in the pass. voice, inf. mood, perf. tense; but, following the imperfect, it has the meaning of a pluperfect, § 268, 2 and § 145, V.; depending on crédēbat, § 272.

Irócella, a com. noun, 1st dec., fem. gen., sing. num., abl. case, § 247.

PROSODY.

§ 282. Prosody treats of the quantity of syllables, and the laws of versification.

QUANTITY.

1. The quantity of a syllable is the relative time occupied in pronouncing it. Cf. § 13.

2. A syllable is either short, long, or common.

(a.) The time occupied in pronouncing a short syllable is called a mora or time.

(b.) A long syllable requires two moræ or double the time occupied in pronouncing a short one; as, amāre.

(c.) A common syllable is one which, in poetry, may be made either long or short; as the middle syllable of tēnēbra.

3. The quantity of a syllable is either natural or accidental;—natural, when it depends on the nature of its vowel; accidental, when it depends on its position.

Thus the e in rēsisto is short by nature; while in rēsistū it is long by its position, since it is followed by two consonants: § 283, IV. On the contrary, the e in dēdūco is naturally long, but in dēcrro it is made short by being placed before a vowel: § 283, I.

4. The quantity of syllables is determined either by certain established rules, or by the authority of the poets.

Thus it is poetic usage alone that determines the quantity of the first syllables of the following words, viz. māter, frāter, prāvus, dico, dūco; pāter, deus, cado, māneo, grāvis, etc.; and hence the quantity of such syllables can be ascertained by practice only or by consulting the gradus or lexicon.

5. The rules of quantity are either general or special. The former apply alike to all the syllables of a word, the latter to particular syllables.

GENERAL RULES.

§ 283. I. (a.) A vowel before another vowel, or a diphthong, is short; as, e in mēus, i in patriæ. Thus, Consecta mens recti famæ mendacia ridet. Ovid. F. 4, 811.

Ipsæ etiam extimæ laudis succensus amore. Virg. A. 7, 496.

(b.) So also when h comes between the vowels, since h is accounted only a breathing; as, nihil: (see § 2, 6.) Thus,

Dē nihilō nihil, in nihilum nil posse reverti. Pers. 4, 84.

Exc. 1. (a.) Fio has the i long, except in fūt and when followed by er; as fiunt, fiēbam. Thus, Omnia jam fiunt, fieri quæ posse negābam. Ovid Tr. 1, 8, 7.

(b.) It is sometimes found long even before er; as, fiēret. Ter.; fieri. Plaut and, on the contrary, Prudentius has fiō with i short.

Exc. 2. (a.) E is long in the termination of the genitive and dative of the fifth declension, when preceded and followed by i; as, fāciēs. Thus,

Non rādī sōlle, nēque lūcida tēla dīci. Lucr. 1, 148.

(b.) In spei, rei, and fidei, e is short.

NOTE. In Lucretius, the e of rei is, in a few cases, long, and that of fidei is lengthened once in Lucretius and once in a line of Ennius.

Exc. 3. (a.) A is long in the penult of old genitives in at of the first declension; as, aulāt, pictāt. Cf. § 43, 1.

(b.) A and e are also long in proper names in atus, etus, or eta; as, Cārus Pompētus, Aquilēa; and in the adjectives Grātus and Vētus. Thus, Æthērīum sensum, atque aurātī simplici ignem. Virg. A. 6, 747.

Accipe, Pompētī, dēductum carmen ab illo. Ovid. Pont. 4, 1, 1.

Neonon cum Vēnētis Aquilēia perfūrīt armis. Sil. 8, 606.

Exc. 4. (a.) I is common in genitives in ius; as, ūnīus, illīus. Thus, Illius et nītīdo stillent unguenta cāpillo. Tibull. 1, 7, 51.

Illius puro dēstillent tempōra nardo. Id. 2, 2, 7.

(b.) But i in the genitive of alter is commonly short; and in that of alius it is always long.

Exc. 5. The first vowel of ēheu is long; that of Dīāna, īo, and ōhe is common.

Exc. 6. Greek words retain their original quantities, and hence, in many Greek words, a vowel is long, though immediately followed by another vowel; as, āēr, Achāta, Achēlōns, dīa, ēos, Līertes, and Greek words having in the original a long e or o (u or a.) See also § 293, 3.

(1.) Words which, in Greek, are written with ei (u) before a vowel, and in Latin with a single e or i, have the e or i long; as, Ænēas, Alexandria, Cissiopea, Chio, Dārius, ēlēgia, Galatēa, Mēdēa, Mausōlēum, Pēnelōpēa, Thātia, Atrides.

Hence, most adjectives in eus, formed from Greek proper names, have the e long; as, Cytherēus, Pēlōpēus; and the e remains long when ei is restored; as, Pēlōpēia.

Exc. Acadēmīa, chōrea, Mālea, plātea, and some patronymics and patrials in es; as, Nēreus, have the penult common.

(2.) Greek genitives in eos, and accusatives in ea, from nominatives in eus, generally shorten the e; as, Orphēos, Orphēa;—but the e is sometimes lengthened by the Ionic dialect; as, Cēphēos, Iliōnēa.

(3.) Greek words in ais, ois, aius, eius, oius, aon, and ion, generally lengthen the first vowel; as, Nāis, Minōis, Grātus, Nērētus, Minōtus, Māchāon, Ixion. But Thēbāis, Sinōis, Phāon, Deucālion, Pygmālion, and many others, shorten the former vowel.

NOTE 1. Greek words in aon and ion, with o short in the genitive, have the penult long; but with o long in the genitive, they have it short; as, Amgithāon -ōnis; Draucālōn, -ōnis.

NOTE 2. In Greek proper names in eus (gen. eos), as Orpheus, the eu in the nominative is always a diphthong in the original, and, with very few exceptions, in the Latin poets.

II. A diphthong is long; as, aurum, fœnus, Eubœa, Pompæus, Orphœu. Thus, Infernique lœcus, Ætœque insula Circæ. Virg. A. 3, 386.

Thêsæuros ignotum argenti pondus et Ætri. Id. A. 1, 369.
Harpyiæque cølunt Alcæ, Phinœia postquam. Id. A. 3, 212.

Exc. 1. Præ, in composition, is short before a vowel; as, præustus, præcûsus. Thus,

Nec totâ tamen ille prior præeunte carinâ. Virg. A. 5, 186.

In Statius, and Sidonius Apollinaris, it is found long.

Exc. 2. A diphthong at the end of a word, when the next word begins with a vowel, is sometimes made short; as, Insulæ Rôno in magno, quas dira Cêlæno. Virg. A. 3, 211.

Exc. 3. The diphthongs consisting of u followed by a vowel are either long or short; the two vowels thus combined being subject to the same rules of quantity, as their final vowel would be if standing alone; as, quâ, quî, quorum, quæ, quibus, quatio, queror, quor, linguâ, sanguis.

III. A syllable formed by contraction is long; as, âlus for alitus; côgo for côigo; nîl for nîhil; jûnior for jûvénior. Thus,

Titjre côge pœus, tu post cârrecta lâtêbas. Virg. E. 3, 20.

IV. A vowel naturally short, before two consonants, a double consonant, or the letter j, is long by position; as, ârma, bêllum, âxis, gâza, mâjor. Thus,

Pascere spôrtes ovæ lêdâctum dîcere cârmen. Virg. E. 6, 5.
Nec mîrâtus vincet côrpylos; nec laurea Phœbi. Id. E. 7, 64.
At nobis, Pax alma, vênî, spicamque ténêto. Tibull. 1, 10, 67.
Rara jûvant: primis sic mâjor grâtia pômîs. Mart. 4, 29, 3.

NOTE 1. A vowel (other than i) before j is in reality lengthened by forming a diphthong with it, since i and j are in fact but one letter. Thus mâjor is equivalent to maî'-or, which would be pronounced ma'-yor. See § 9, 1.

Exc. 1. The compounds of jûgum have i short before j; as, bîjûgus, quâdrîjûgus. Thus, Intêrâ bîjûgis infert se Lœcûsus albîs. Virg. A. 10, 575.

REMARK. The vowel is long by position, when either one or both of the consonants is in the same word with it; but when both stand at the beginning of the following word, the vowel is either long or short; as,

Tolle mōras; sempër nōcuit differre pârâtis. Lucan. 1, 281.
Ferte citi ferrûm; dâte tēlâ; scandite mûros. Virg. A. 9, 87.
Nô tamen ignôrêt, quæ sit sententiâ scripto. Ovid.

NOTE 2. A short vowel at the end of a word, before an initial double consonant or j in the following word, is not lengthened.

NOTE 3. In the comic poets a vowel frequently remains short though followed by two consonants, especially if only one of them is in the same word.

Exc. 2 A vowel naturally short, before a mute followed by a liquid, is common; as, āgrīs, phārētra, vōlūcris, pōplīes, cōchlea. Thus,

Et primo stans cōlūcri, mox vērā cōlūcris. Ovid. M. 12. 807.
Natum ante ora patris, patrem qui obruncat ad aras. Virg. A. 2. 668.
Nox tēnēbras prōfert. Phœbus fugat inde tēnēbras. Ovid.

REM. 1. If the vowel before a mute and liquid is naturally long, it continues so; as, sālūbris, ambulācrum.

REM. 2. In compound words, of which the former part ends with a mute, and the latter begins with a liquid, a short vowel before the mute is made long by position; as, ablūo, ōbruo, sālūo, quāmbōrem.

REM. 3. A mute and liquid at the beginning of a word seldom lengthen the short vowel of the preceding word, except in the arsis of a foot; as, Terræque tractusque maris cœlumque profundum. Virg. E. 4. 51.

REM. 4. In Latin words, only the liquids l and r following a mute render the preceding short vowel common; but, in words of Greek origin, α and η after a mute have the same effect, as in Tēcnessa, Prōcne, Cŷnus.

SPECIAL RULES.

FIRST AND MIDDLE SYLLABLES.

I. DERIVATIVE WORDS.

§ 284. Derivative words retain the quantity of their primitives; as, by conjugation, āmo, āmat, āmābat, āmāvi, āmātus, etc.; by declension, āmor, āmōris, āmōri, āmōribus, etc.; so, ānīmal, ānīmātus, from ānīma; gēmēbundus, from gēmēre; fāmīlia, from fāmīlus; māternus, from māter; prōpinquus, from prōpe.

NOTE 1. Lār, pār, sāl, and pēs in declension shorten the vowel of the nominative; as, sālīs, pēsūs, etc.

NOTE 2. The vowel of the primitive is sometimes lengthened or shortened in the derivative by the addition or removal of a consonant.

REM. 1. Derivatives from increasing nouns of the second or third declension agree in quantity with the increment of their primitives as, puērītia, from puērī; virgīneus, from virgīnis; sālūber, from sālūtis.

REM. 2. In verbs, the vowels of the derived tenses and of derivative words agree in quantity with the verbal root from which they are formed; as, mōvēbam, mōvēbo, mōveam, mōvēi em, mōve, mōvēre, mōvens, mōvendus, from mōv, the root of the present, with ō short;—mōvēram, mōvērim, mōvissem, mōvēro, mōvisse, from mōv, the root of the perfect, with ō long; mōtūrus and mōtus:—mōto, mōtor, and mōtus, -ūs, from mōt, the root of the supine with ō also long.

REM. 3. (a) Sōlūtum and vōlūtum from solvō and volvo have the first syllable short, as if from sōlvō, vōlvō. So, from gigno come gēnui, gēnitum, as if from gēno, and pōtui, from pōtis sum (possum).

(b.) The a in da, imperative of do, is long, though short in other parts of the verb. See § 294, 2.

(c.) The o in pōui and pōitum is short, though long in pōno.

Exc. 1. Perfects and supines of two syllables have the first syllable long, even when that of the present is short; as, vēni, vidi, fēci, from vēnio, video, fācio; cāsum, mōtum, visum, from cādo, mōveo, video.

NOTE 3. Such perfects are supposed to have been formed either by the contraction of reduplicated syllables, as vēno, perf. vēvēni, by syncope vēni, by crasis vēni, or by the omission of a consonant, as video, perf. vidi, by syncope vidi, the vowel retaining the quantity which it had by position.

NOTE 4. The long vowel of dissyllabic supines probably arose in like manner from syncope and contraction; as, video, vidsum, by syncope visum; mōveo, mōvitum, by syncope mōitum, by contraction mōtum.

(1.) (a.) These seven perfects have the first syllable short:—hīhi, dēdi, fidi, (from findo), scīdi, stēti, stīti, tūli. So also perculi, from vercello.

(b.) The first syllable is also short before a vowel (§ 283, 1.); as, rūi.

(2.) (a.) These ten supines have the first syllable short:—citum, (from cio), dātum, itum, litum, quitum, rātum, rūtum, sātum, situm, and stātum.

(b.) So, also, had the obsolete fūtum, from fūs, whence comes fūturus.

Exc. 2. (a.) Reduplicated polysyllabic perfects have the first two syllables short; as, scīdī, cēcīni, uttīgi, dīdīci, from cādo, cāno, tango, and disco.

(b.) The second syllable of reduplicated perfects is sometimes made long by position; as, mōmōrchi, uttēdi.—Cēcīdi from cādo, and pēpēdi from pēdo, retaining the quantity of their first root also have the second syllable long.

Exc. 3. Desiderative verbs in urio have the u short, though, in the third root of the verbs from which they are formed, it is long; as, candūtūrio from cenūtū, the third root of ceno. So partūtūrio, isūtūrio, nuptūtūrio.

Exc. 4. Frequentative verbs, formed from the third root of verbs of the first conjugation, have the i short; as, clāmīto, rōlīto. See § 187, II. 1.

Exc. 5. A few other derivatives deviate from the quantity of their primitives.

1. Some have a long vowel from a short one in the primitive
Such are,

Dēni , from dēcem .	Mōbillis , from mōveo .	Stipendium , from stīpe
Fōmes and } from	Persōna , from persōno .	(stīpis).
Fōmentum , } fōveo .	Rēgūla and } from	Suspicio , ōnis , from sus
Hāmānus , from hōmo .	Rex (rēgis), } rēgo .	pīcor .
Lāterea , from lāteo ,	Sācius , from sēcus .	Tēgūla , from tēgo .
Lītēra from līno .	Sādes , from sēdeo .
Lex (lēgis), from lēgo .	Sēmen , from sēro .

2. Some have a short vowel from a long one in the primitive
Such are,

Dicax , from dico .	Molestus , from mōles .	Sāgax , from sāgio .
Dux (dūcis), from dūco .	Nāto , from nātu . sup .	Sōpor , from sōpio .
Fides , from fīdo .	Nōto , from nōtu . sup .	Vādum , from vādo .
Lābo , from lābor , dep. v .	Odium , from ōdi .	Vōco , from vox (vōcia).
Lūcerum , from lūceo .	Quānullus , from quānū .

NOTE 1. Disertus comes regularly (by syncope) from dissertus, the prefix dis being short, § 299, 1. Cf. dirimo and diribeo, where s is changed to r. See § 196, (b.) 2.

NOTE 2. Some other words might, perhaps, with propriety be added to these lists; but, in regard to the derivation of most of them, grammarians are not entirely agreed.

REMARK 1. Some of these irregularities seem to have arisen from the influence of syncope and crasis. Thus mōbilis may have been mōvibilis; mōtum, mōvītum, etc.

REM. 2. Sometimes the vowel in the derived word being naturally short, is restored to its proper quantity by removing one of the consonants which, in the primitive, made it long by position; as, nūx, nūcis. So, when the vowel of the primitive is naturally long, but has been made short before another vowel, it is sometimes restored to its original quantity by the insertion of a consonant; as, hibernus, from hiems.

REM. 3. The first syllable in liquidus is supposed to be common, as coming either from liquor or liqueo; as, Cræssique convēniant liquidis, et liquida crasis. Lucr. 4, 1255.

II. COMPOUND WORDS.

§ 285. 1. Compound words retain the quantity of the words which compose them; as, dēfēr, of dē and fērō; adōrō, of ad and ōrō. So abōrior, amōvērō, circāmō, comōdō, enītor, prōdūcō, sūbōrno.

2. The change of a vowel or a diphthong in forming the compound does not alter its quantity; as, concidō, from cādō; concidō, from cado; erigo, from rēgo; reclūdō, from claudō; iniquus, from æquus.

Exc. 1. A long syllable in the simple word becomes short in the following compounds:—agnitus and cognitus, from nōtus; dējērō and pējērō, from jūrō; hōc dīe, from hōc dīe: nihilum and nihil, from hīlum; causidicus, and other compounds ending in dīcus, from dīcō.

Exc. 2. Imbēcillus, from bācillum, has the second syllable long. The participle ambitus has the penult long from itum, but the nouns ambitus and ambitiō follow the rule.

Exc. 3. Innūba, prōnūba, and subnūba, from nūbō, have u short; but in convēnībium, it is common.

Exc. 4. O final, in the compounds of do and sto, is common, though long i in the simple verbs. § 294, (a.)

NOTE 1. Prepositions of one syllable, which end in a vowel, are long (§ 294, (a.); those which end in a single consonant are short (§ 299, 1.)—Trā from trans is long; as, trādō, trādūcō.

Exc. 5. Pro, in the following compounds, is short:—prōfānus, prōfārī, prōfecto, prōfestus, prōfiscor, prōfiteor, prōfūgus, prōcella, prōfundus, prōnepos, prōneptis, and prōtervus. It is common in procūro, profundo, propāgo, propello, and propino.—Respecting præ in composition before a vowel see § 288, II. Exc. 1.

REM. 1. The Greek preposition pro (before) is short; as, prōphēta. In prōdūgus, propōla, and propino, it is common.

REM. 2. The inseparable prepositions di (for dis) and se are long as, didūcō, sēpāro. Respecting dissertus, see § 284, Exc. 5, 2, N. 1.

REM. 3. (a) The inseparable preposition re or red is short; as, rēmitto, rēfēro, rēdamo.

(b.) Re is sometimes lengthened in religio, reliquie, reliquus, repērit, retulit, repulit, recidit, redicere, where some editors double the consonant following re. Cf. § 307, 2. In the impersonal verb rēfert, re is long, as coming from res.

REM. 4. A ending the former part of a compound word, is long the other vowels are short; as, mālo, quāpropter, trādo, (trans do); nēfas, valēdico, hujuscēmōdi; biceps, trāiens, omnipotēns, significo; hōdie, quandōquādem, philōsophus; dūcenti, lōcuples, Trōjāgēna; Polydōrus, Eurypylus, Thrāsýbulus.

Exc. 1. A. A is short in quāsi, ēddem, when not an ablative, and in some Greek compounds; as, cātāpulla, hexāmēter.

Exc. 2. E. E is long in crēdo, nēmo, nēquam, nēquāquam, nēquidquam, nē quis, nēquitiā; mēmē, mēcum, lēcum, sēcum, sēsē, vēcors, vēsānus, vēnificus, and vidēlicet;—also in words compounded with se for seu or sēni; as, sēdēcim, sēmestris, sēmōliis; but in selibra it is found short in Martial.

NOTE 2. (a.) The first e in vidēlicet, as in vide, is sometimes made short. See § 295, Exc. 3.

(b.) E is common in some verbs compounded with fācio; as, liquefācio, pātefācio, rārefācio, tābefācio, tēpefācio.

Exc. 3. I. (1.) I is long in those compounds in which the first part is declined, (§ 296;) as, quidā, quōvis, quolibet, quāntōvis, quānticumquē, tantēdem, unicuique, eidem, reipūblicæ, utrique.

(2.) I is also long in those compounds which may be separated without altering the sense, (§ 296;) as, lūdimāgister, siquis, agricultūra.

(3.) I, ending the former part of a compound word, is sometimes made long by contraction; as, tūbicen for tūbicen, from tūbia and cāno. See ‡ 282, III.

(4.) I is long in bigæ, quadrigæ, ilicet, scilicet.

(5.) In idem, when masculine, i is long; but when neuter, it is short. The s of ūtrique and utrobique, the second in ibidem, and the first in nimirum, are long. In ubicumque, as in ubi, i is common.

(6.) Compounds of dies have the final i of the former part long; as, vicinum, triduum, mēridies, quōtidie, quōtidiānus, pridie, postridie.

NOTE 3. In Greek words, i, ending the former part of a compound, is short; as, Cullimāchus; unless it comes from the diphthong ei (u), or is made long or common by position.

Exc. 4. O. (1.) In compounds, the final o of contro, intro, retro, and quando except quōmodoquē, is long; as, contrōversia, intrōdūco, retrocedō, quāndōquē. O is long also in aliōquā (-quin), and utroque.

(2.) O is long in the compounds of quō and eo; as, quōmodo, quōcumque, quōnam, quolibet, quōminus, quōcirca, quōvis, quōque (l. e. et quo); ēddem, eōne; but in the conjunction quōque, it is short.

(3.) Greek words which are written with an oméga (ω) have the o long; as, gōmetra, Mindūrus, lāgōpus.

Exc. 5. U. U is long in Jūpiter (Jōvis pāter), and jūdico (jūs dico).

III. INCREMENT OF NOUNS.

§ 286. 1. A noun is said to increase, when, in any of its cases, it has more syllables than in the nominative singular; as, pax, pācis; sermo, sermōnis. The number of increments in any case of a noun is equal to that of its additional syllables.

2. Nouns in general have but one increment in the singular, but iter, sūpellex, compounds of cāput ending in ps, and sometimes jēcur, have two increments; as, iter, i-tēr-i-ris; sūpellex, sū-pel-lec-ti-lis; anceps, an-cēp-i-tis; jēcur, jē-cur-i-ris.

REMARK. The double increase of iter, etc., in the singular number arises from their coming from obsolete nominatives, containing a syllable more than those now in use; as, itiner, etc.

3. The dative and ablative plural of the third declension have one increment more than the genitive singular; as,

rex ,	Gen. rē-gis ,	D. and Ab. rēg-i-bus .
sermo ,	— ser-mō-nis ,	— ser-mōn-i-bus .
iter ,	— i-tēr-i-ris ,	— it-i-nēr-i-bus .

4. The last syllable of a word is never considered as the increment. If a word has but one increment, it is the penult; if two, the antepenult is called the first, and the penult the second; and if three, the syllable before the antepenult is called the first, the antepenult the second, and the penult the third increment; as, ser-mo, ser-mō-nis, ser-mōn-i-bus; i-ter, i-tēr-i-ris, it-i-nēr-i-bus.

1 1 2 1 2 1 2 3

5. In the third declension, the quantity of the first increment is the same in all the other cases as in the genitive singular; as, sermōnis, sermōni, sermōnem, sermōne, sermōnes, sermōnum, sermōnibus. Bōbus, or bābus, from bos, bōvis, is lengthened by contraction from bōvibus.

NOTE. As adjectives and participles are declined like nouns, the same rules of increment apply to all of them; and so also to pronouns.

INCREMENTS OF THE SINGULAR NUMBER.

OF THE FIRST, FOURTH, AND FIFTH DECLENSIONS.

§ 287. 1. When nouns of the first, fourth, and fifth declensions increase in the singular number, the increment consists of a vowel before the final vowel, and its quantity is determined by the first general rule with its exceptions, § 283, I.

Thus, aura, gen. aurāi, § 283, I. Exc. 3, (a.): fructus, dat. fructūi, § 283, I. (a.): dies, gen. diēi, § 283, I. Exc. 2, (a.)

INCREMENTS OF THE SECOND DECLENSION.

2. The increments of the second declension in the singular number are short; as, gēner, gēnēri; sātur, sātūri; lētēr, lētēri; vīr, vīri. Thus,

No. puēri, ne tanta animis assuescite bella. Virg. A. 6, 883.

Monstra sinunt; gēneros externis affōre ab ōris. Id. A. 7, 270.

Exc. The increment of Iber and Celtiber is long. For that of genitives in ius see § 283, Exc. 4.

INCREMENTS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

3. The increments of the third declension and singular number in a and o are long; those in e, i, u, and y, are short; as, animal, animālis; audax, audācis; sermo, sermōnis; fērox, fērōcis; opus, opēris; cēler, cēlēris; miles, militis; supplex, supplicis; murmur, murmuris, dux, dūcis; chlāmys, chlāmēdis; Styx, Stygis. Thus, Prōnque cum spectent animalia cœtera terram. Ovid. M. 1, 84.

Hæc tum multiplici pópulo sermōne replēbat. Virg. A. 4, 189.

Incumbent gēneris lapē sarcire ruinas. Id. G. 4, 249.

Quālem virgīneo dēmessum pollice flōrem. Id. A. 11, 68.

Adapice, ventālē oscidērunt murmuris aurē. Id. E. 9, 68.

Exceptions in Increments in A.

1. (a.) Masculines in al and ar (except Car and Nar) increase short; as, Annibal, Annibālis; Amīcar, Amīcārīs.

(b.) Par and its compounds, and the following—ānas, mas, vas (vādīs), baccar, hēpar, jūbar, lar, nectar, and sal—also increase short.

2. A, in the increment of nouns in s with a consonant before it, is short; as, daps, dāpis; Arabs, Arābis.

3. Greek nouns in a and as (ādis, ānis, or ātis) increase short; as, lampas, lampādīs; Mēlas, Mēlānis, poēma, poēmātīs.

4. The following in az increase short:—ābaz, anthrax, Arctophylax, Atlas, Atrax, climax, colux, corax, and nyctobrax, drōpax, fuz, harpax, pānax, smīlax, and styraz.—The increment of Syphax is doubtful.

Exceptions in Increments in O.

1. O, in the increment of neuter nouns, is short; as, marmor, marmōris; corpus, corpōris; ebur, ebōris. But os (the mouth), and the neuter of comparatives, like their masculine and feminine, increase long. The increment of odor is common.

2. O is short in the increment of Greek nouns in o or on, which, in the oblique cases, have omicron, but long in those which have oméga; as,

Aëdon, Aëdōnis; Agāmēmnōn, Agāmēmnōnis:—Plāto, Plātōnis; Stīxon, Stīxōnis; Sicyon, Sicyōnis. Sidon, Orion, and Ægeon, have the increment common.

3. (a.) In the increment of gentile nouns in o or on, whether Greek or barbaric, o is generally short; as, Macedō, Mācedōnis. So, Amazōnes. Aōnes, Myrmidōnes, Santōnes, Sazōnes, Sēnōnes, Teutōnes, etc.

(b.) But the following have o long:—Eburōnes, Lacōnes, Iōnes, Nasamōnes, Suesōnes (or -iōnes), Vettōnes, Burgundīōnes. Britōnes has the o common.

4. Greek nouns in or increase short; as, Hector, Hectōris; rhētor, rhētōris; Agēnor, Agēnōris.

5. Compounds of pus, (πῶς), as tripus, polypus, Œdipus, and also arbor, nemor, bos, compos, impos, and ēpus, increase short.

6. Ō, in the increment of nouns in s with a consonant before it, is short as, scrobs, scrobis; inops, inōpis; Dólōpes. But it is long in the increment of serops, Cyclops, and hydrops.

7. The increment of Allubroz, Cappadox, and præcox, is also short.

Exceptions in Increments in E.

1. Nouns in en, enis (except Hymen), lengthen their increment as, Stren, Strēnis. So, Aniēnis, Nēriēnis, from Anio and Nerio, or rather from the obsolete Aniēn and Nēriēnes.

2. Hæres, locuples, mansues, merces, and quies—also Iber, ver, lex, rex, alec or alex (hæl-) narthex and verrex—plebs and seps—increase long.

3. Greek nouns in es and er (except aër and æther) increase long; as, magnes, magnētis; crāter, crātēris.

Exceptions in Increments in I.

1. Nouns and adjectives in ix, increase long; as, victrix, victricis fēlix, fēlicis.

Exc. Cūlix, Cūlix, coxendix, filix, fornix, hystrix, latrix, nix, pix, sūlix, strix and rarely sandix or sandyx, increase short.

2. Vibex and the following nouns in is increase long:—dis, glis, lis, vis, Nēsis, Quāris, and Samnis. The increment of Pēphis is common.

3. Greek nouns, whose genitive is in inis increase long; as, delphin, delphinis; Sālāmis, Sālāminis.

Exceptions in Increments in U.

1. Genitives in udis, uris, and utis, from nominatives in us, have the penult long; as, pūlus, pūlūdis; tellus, tellūris; virtus, virtūtis. But intercus, Ligus and pēcus pēcūdis, increase short.

2. Fur, frux, (obs.), lux, and Pollux, increase long.

Exceptions in Increments in Y.

1. Greek nouns whose genitive is in ynis, increase long; as, Trāchyn, Trāchynis.

2. The increment of bombyx, Cēyx, gryps, and mormyr, is long; that of Bebruz and sandyx is common.

INCREMENTS OF THE PLURAL NUMBER.

§ 288. 1. A noun in the plural number is said to increase, when, in any case, it has more syllables than in the ablative singular.

REMARK. When the ablative singular is wanting, or its place is supplied by a form derived from a different root, an ablative may, for this purpose, be assumed, by annexing the proper termination to the root of the plural.

2. When a noun increases in the plural number, its penult is called the plural increment as, sa in māsārum, no in dōminōrum, p in ripium and ripiūbus.

§ 289, 290. PROSODY.—QUANTITY—INCREMENT OF VERBS. 325

3. In plural increments, a, e, and o, are long, i and u are short
as, bônîrum, animâbus, rerum, rêbus, gênerôrûm, amôbûs; sermônibus, lacûbus

Thus,

Appia, longârûm, tœritur, rêgina viârûm. Stat. B. 2, 2, 12.
Sunt lacrymæ rerum, et mentem mortâlla tangunt. Virg. A. 1, 462.
Atque illi, quôrûm cômœdia prius vitôrûm est. Hor. B. 1, 4, 2.
Portûbus egredior, ventisque ferentibus usus. Ovid.

IV. INCREMENT OF VERBS.

§ 289. 1. A verb is said to increase, when, in any of its parts, it has more syllables than in the second person singular of the present indicative active; as, das, dâ-tis; dôces, dô-cê-mus.

2. The number of increments in any part of a verb is equal to that of its additional syllables. In verbs, as in nouns, the last syllable is never considered the increment. If a verb has but one increment, it is the penult; and this first increment, through all the variations of the verb, except in reduplicated tenses, continues equally distant from the first syllable. The remaining increments are numbered successively from the first; as,

â-mas,	mô-nes,	au-dis,
â-mâ-mus,	mô-nê-tur,	au-di-tis,
1 2	1 2	1 2
âm-â-bâ-mus,	môn-ê-rê-tur,	au-di-ê-bas,
1 2 3	1 2 3	1 2 3 4
âm-â-vê-râ-mus.	môn-ê-blm-i-ni.	au-di-ê-bâm-i-ni.

3. A verb in the active voice may have three increments; in the passive, it may have four.

4. In determining the increments of deponent verbs, an active voice, formed from the same root, may be supposed.

Thus the increments of lœ-tâ-tur, lœ-tâ-bâ-tur, etc., are reckoned from the supposed verb lœto, lætas.

§ 290. In the increments of verbs, a, e, and o, are long; i and u are short; as, amâre, mônêre, faciûle, vólâmus, rêgêbâminî. Thus,

Et cantâre pâres, et respondêre pârâti. Virg. E. 7, 5.
Sic equidem dâcebam ânimo, rêbarque fûtûrum. Id. A. 6, 680.
Cumque loqui potêrit, mâtrem faciûle salûtet. Ovid. M. 9, 378.
Scinditur incertum stûdia in contrâria vulgus. Virg. A. 2, 39.
Non nûmêrus sûmus, et frûges consûmêre nâti. Hor. Ep. 1, 2, 27.

(a.) Exceptions in Increments in A.

The first increment of do is short; as, dâmus, dâbâmus, dâret, dâ-ûrus, circumdâre, circumdâbâmus.

(b.) Exceptions in Increments in E.

1. E before r is short in the first increment of all the present and imperfect tenses of the third conjugation, and in the second increment in bēris and bēre; as, régere (infin. and imperat.), régēris or régere (pres. ind. pass.), régērem and régērer (imp. subj.); amābēris, amābēre; mōnēbēris, mōnēbēre.

NOTE 1. In vēlim, vēlis, etc., from volo, (second person, regularly vōlis, by syncope and contraction vis), i is not an increment, but represents the root vowel o, and is therefore short; § 284, and § 178, 1.

2. E is short before ram, rim, ro, and the persons formed from them; as, amāvēram, amāvērat, amāvērim, mōnuērimus, rextēro, audivērtis.

NOTE 2. In verbs which have been shortened by syncope or otherwise, e before r retains its original quantity; as, flēram, for flēvēram.

For the short e before rum, in the perfect indicative, as, sistērum, see Syncope, § 207.

(c.) Exceptions in Increments in I.

1. I before v or s, in tenses formed from the second root, is long; as, pētīvi, audīvi, quāsitīvi, divīsīvi, audīvimus, divīvimus, audīvērām.

2. I is long, after the analogy of the fourth conjugation, in the final syllable of the third root of gaudeo, arcesso, divīdo, fācesso, lācesso, pēto, quæro, rēcenseo and oblīviscor; as, gāvīvus, arcessitū, divīsus, fācessitū, lācessitū, pētītū, quāsītū, rēcensitū, oblītū; gāvīsūrus, etc.

3. I in the first increment of the fourth conjugation, except in īmus of the perfect indicative, is long; as, audīre, audīrem, audītus, audītūrus, pres. vēnimus, but in the perfect vēnimus. So in the ancient forms in ībam, ībo, of the fourth conjugation; as, nutrībāt, lēmībunt; and also in ībam and ībo, from eo.

NOTE 3. When a vowel follows, the i is short, by § 283; as, audīunt, audībim.

4. I is long in the first and second persons plural of subjunctives in sim, sīs, sit, etc., (§ 162, 1.); as, simus, sītis, vēlimus, vēlītis, and their compounds; as, possimus, adsimus, mālimus, nōlimus. So also in nōlito, nōlīte, nōlītote, after the analogy of the fourth conjugation.

5. I in ris, rimus and ritis, in the future perfect and perfect subjunctive, is common; as, vidēris, Mart., occidēris, Hor.; vidērtis (Ovid), ddērtis (Id.); fēcērimus (Caes.), egērimus (Virg.)

(d.) Exceptions in Increments in U.

U is long in the increment of supines, and of participles formed from the third root of the verb; as, secūtus, scūtus, secūtūrus scūtūrus.

RULES FOR THE QUANTITY OF PENULTIMATE AND ANTEPENULTIMATE SYLLABLES.

I. PENULTS.

§ 291. 1. Words ending in acus, icus, and icum, shorten the penult; as, āmārcūs, Ægyptiācus, rusticus, tritūcum, viāticum.

Except Dācus, mērcūs, opācus; āmicus, apricus, fīcus, mendicus, pius, posticus, pūdicus, epicus, umbilicus, vicus.

2. Words ending in abrum, ubrum, acrum, and atrum, lengthen the penult; as, candēlabrum, delābrum, lāvācrum, vērātrum.

3. Nouns in ca lengthen the penult; as, apōthēca, cloāca, lactūca, lōrica, phōca.

Except ālica, brassica, āica, fūlica, mātica, pētica, pertica, scītica, phālārica, tūmica, vōmica; and also some nouns in ica derived from adjectives in icus; as, fabrica, grammātica, etc. So mātica.

4. Patronymics in ades and ides shorten the penult; as, Atlantiūdes, Priāmides.

Except those in ides which are formed from nouns in eus or ēs (✱); as, Atrides, from Atrēus; Neoclides, from Neoclēs; except, also, Amphitrāides, Bēhdes, Amyclides, Lēcurgides.

5. Patronymics and similar words in ais, eis, and ois, lengthen the penult; as, Achāis, Chrjsēis, Minōis. Except Phōcāis and Thēbāis. The penult of Nēreis is common.

6. Words in do lengthen the penult; as, vādo, cēdo, dulcēdo, formido, rōdo, testūdo. Except cādo, divido, ēdo (to eat), comēdo, Macēdo, mōdo, sōlido, spādo, trēpido. Rudo is common.

7. Words in idus shorten the penult; those in udus lengthen it; as, callidus, herbidus, limpidus, lividus, perfidus; crūdus, ludus, nudus, sūcus, ūcus. Except Idus, fidus, infidus, nidus, sūlus.

8. Nouns in ga and go lengthen the penult; as, sāga, collēga, auriga, rūga; īmāgo, cālīgo, arēgo. Except cālīga, ossifrāga, sōga, plāga, (a region, or a net), fūga and its compounds, stēga, eclōga, ēgo, karpāgo, līgo.

9. Words in le, les, and lis, lengthen the penult; as, crīnāle, nantēle, ancile; āles, miles, prōles; annilis, crudēlis, civīlis, cīrālīs.—Except māle;—verbals in itis and bilis; as, āgilis, amābilis;—adjectives in atilis; as, umbrātīlis;—and also, indōles, sōbōles; pērisclētis, dapetīs, grātīlis, hēmīlis, pātilis, smīlis, stērilis, mūgilis, strīgilis.

10. Words in elus, ela, elum, lengthen the penult; as, phāsēlus, quērēla, prēlum. Except gēlus, gēlum, scēlus.

11. Diminutives in olus, ola, olum, ulus, ula, ulun, also words in ius, and those in ulus, ula, and ulum, of more than two syllables shorten the penult; as, urceolus, filiola, lectulus, ratiuncula, corculum, pabulum; rutilus, garrulus, fabula. Except asilus.

12. Words in ma lengthen the penult; as, fama, poema, rima, pluma. Except anima, coma, decima, lacrima, victima, fama.

13. A vowel before final men or mentum is long; as, levamen, gramen, crimen, flumen, jumentum, atramentum. Except tamen, calamen, Hymen, elementum, and a few verbal nouns derived from verbs of the second and third conjugations; as, dilectum, documen or documentum, emolumentum, monumentum, regimen, specimen, legimen, etc.

14. Words ending in imus shorten the penult; as, divinus, decimus, fenitimus, fortissimus, maximus. Except bivinus, finis, vivinus, optinus, quadrinus, simus, trimus, imus and two superlatives, issus and primus.

NOTE. When an adjective ends in issus for imus, the quantity remains the same; as, decimus, optimus, maximus, for decimus, etc.

15. A, e, o, and u, before final mus and mum, are long; as, ramus, remus, catremus, promus, damus, pomum, volumum. Except diomus, balsamum, cinnamum, domus, glomus, humus, postumus, thalamus, tomus, calamus, nemus.

16. (a.) Words in na, ne, ni, and nis, lengthen the penult; as, lana, arena, carina, matrona, lana, mane, septeni, octoni, inanis, finis, immanis. Except advena, collana, pilana, mina, gena, bene, sine, canis, cinis, juvenis; and the following in ina.—buccina, domina, fascina, femina, fuscina, lamina, machina, pagina, patina, sarcina, tibicina, tritina; and in plur. apina, mina, nundina So compounds of geno; as, indigena.

piētus, civitas, bōnitas.

25. Adverbs in tim lengthen the penult, those in iter and itus shorten it; as, stātīm, (constantly), virītīm, tribūtīm; acritēr, fundātus. Except stātīm, (immediately), affātīm.

26. (a.) Words in ates, itis, otis, and in ata, eta, ota, uta, lengthen the penult, as,

vātes, pēnātes, vītis, mītis, cāryōtis, lcarītōtis, pīrāta, mēta, poēta, ālūta, cicūta.
Except sūtis, pōtis, drāpēta, nōta, rōta.

(b.) Nouns in ita shorten the penult; as, āmīta, nāritū, orbita, sēmīta. Except pītūita.

27. Nouns in atum, itum, utum, lengthen the penult; as, lūpnātum, acōnītum, vērūtum. Except dēfrūtum, pulpītum, pēlōrtum, lātum (μῦν): comptum.

28. Nouns and adjectives ending in tus lengthen the penult; as, barbītus, grātus, bōlētus, fācītus, crīmītus, pērītus, agrōlūs, lōlūs, argūtus, hīr ūtus. Except cūtus, lūtus, (-ēris), impētus, mētus, vōgētus, vētus; anhēlūtus, dīgī tus, grātūtus, hālūtus, hospītus, servītus, spīritus; antidōtus, nōtus, quōtus, lōtus (so great); arbūtus, pūtus; inclūtus; and derivatives from perfect participles having a short penult; as, exercītus, hābītus.

29. A penultimate vowel before v is long; as, clīva, ōlīva, dīves, nāvis, civis, pāpāver, pāvo, prīvo, ovum, prāvus, actīvus fūctīvus. Except āvis, brēvis, grāvus, lēvis, ovis; cāvo, grāvo, jūvo, lāvo, lūvo ovus, cāvus, fāvus nōvus, fāvor, pāvor, nōvem.

30. Words ending in dex, dix, mex, nix, lex, rex, lengthen the penult; as, codex, jūdex; lōdix, rādix; cīnex, pānex; jānix; īlex; cārex, mārex.

Except cūlex, sīlex, rūnex.

II. ANTEPENULTS

§ 292. 1. I is short in diminutives in icūlus and icellus (a, um) whether nouns or adjectives; as, collicūlus, dulcitūlus, crātūcula, pellicūla, mollitellus. Except words in which the preceding vowel is short; as, cūticūla, cānicūla: or in which i is long in the primitive; as, cornicūla, from cornix, -icis.

2. Numerals in ginti, ginta, ēni, and estmus, lengthen the antepenult; as, vīginti, quādrāginta, tricēni, quīquāgēstmus.

3. O and u before final lentus are short; as, rīdolentus, fraudulentus, pulvērulentus, trūcūlentus.

4. A vowel before final nea, neo, nia, nio, nus, nium, is long; as, ārnea, līnea, cāneo, mūnia, pūnio, Fāvōnius, patrignōnium. Except castānea, ānea, māneo, mīneo, mōneo, sēneo, tēneo, ignōmīnia, luscīnia, vēnia, lānio, rēnio, ingēnium, gēnius, sēnio, sēnium; words in cīnium, as, lēnōcīnium; and derivatives in onius, when o in the root of the primitive is short; as, Agāmēmnōnius, from Agāmēnnon, -ōnis.

5. Words ending in areo, arius, arium, erium, orius, orium, lengthen the antepenult; as, āreo, cibārium, plantārium, dictērium, censōrium, tenōrium. Except cāreo, vārius, dēsiderium, impūrium, māgiētērium, mīnistērium.

6. Adjectives in aticus, atilis, lengthen the antepenult; as, āquāticus, plumātīlis. Except some Greek words in āticus; as, grammāticus.

7. I before final tūdo is short; as, altitūdo, longitūdo.

8. Verbals in bilis lengthen a but shorten i in the antepenult; as, āmābilis, mīrābilis; crēdibilis, terrībilis. In hābilis, b belongs to the root.

9. U before v is short, (except in Jūverna); as, jūvénis, jūvénālis, jūvéniltas, flūvius, diluvium.

III. PENULT OF PROPER NAMES.

§ 293. 1. Patrials and proper names of more than two syllables, found in the poets with the following terminations, shorten the penult:—

ba,	de,	o, ⁶	ges,	dus, ¹²	ena, ¹⁹	arus,	atus, ²²
ca,	le, ⁴	on, ⁷	les,	eus, ¹⁴	anes,	erus, ²¹	itus, ²³

 mon, Sarpēdon, Thermōdon.—⁸Cercyros, Pēpārēthios, Pharsālos, Sēriphios.—
⁹Meleāger.—¹⁰Bessālis, Eumēlis, Jūvēnālis, Martiālis, Phāsēlis, Stymphālis.—
¹¹Bēnācus, Calcus, Grāncus, Nūmfcus, Trivicus.—¹²Ophiūchūs.—¹³Abūdus.—
¹⁴Cāphāreus, Enipeus, Prōmētheus, Phōrōneus, Salmōneus, Oileus.—¹⁵Cēthēgus.—¹⁶*Names in -clus, in -oius (except Æolus, Naubolus), in -bulus, (except* Bibulus) Eumēlus, Gætūlus, Iūlus, Massylus, Orbēlus, Pharsālus, Surdānāpālus, Stymphālus.—¹⁷*Some in -dēmus and -phēmus; as, Acādēmus, Pōlyphē-* mus.—¹⁸Seriphus.—¹⁹Alcmēna, Athēna, Cāmēna, Fidēna, Messēna, Mūrēna, Mycēnē.—²⁰Amāsīs.—²¹Hōmērus, Iberus.—²²Arātus, Cērātus, Torquātus.—
²³Hērāclitus, Hermāphrōditus.—²⁴Bāthrōtus.

2. Proper names of more than two syllables, found in the poets with the following terminations, lengthen the penult:—

ana, ¹	sa,	num, ⁷	tas,	nus, ¹²	urus,	etus, ¹⁶
ina, ²	tu, ⁴	tum,	des, ⁹	pus, ¹³	esus, ¹⁵	utus,
ona, ³	æ, ⁵	or, ⁸	tes, ¹⁰	irus,	isus,	ytus, ¹⁷

 num, Drēpanum.—⁸Nūmitor.—⁹Miltiades, Pylades, Sotades, Thūcydides; pu- tronymics in -des, (§ 291, 4.) and plurals in -ades.—¹⁰Antiphatēs, Chārites, Eurybates, Ichnōlōates, Enorgētes, Massagētes, and all names in -crates.—¹¹Dercetis.—¹²Apidānus, Apōnus, Cūranus, Chrysōgōnus, Ciminus, Clymēnus, Concanus, Dardānus, Diālūmēnus, Eārinus, Eridānus, Iūcinus, Hēlēnus, Libānus, Mōrini, Mycōnus, Nebrōphōnus, Olenus, Periclymēnus, Rhōdānus, Santōnus,
 Sēquani, Stēphānus, Telēgōnus, Terminus, and names in -gonus and -xenus.—
¹³Clidippus.—¹⁴Pācōrus, Bospōrus, and names in -chorus and -phorus; as, Stēsichōrus, Phosphōrus.—¹⁵Epheus, Vogesus, Volēsus.—¹⁶Iāpētus, Tāygētus Venētus.—¹⁷Æpytus, Anytus, Eurytus, Hippolytus.

3. The penultimate vowel of the following proper names, and adjectives derived from proper names, though followed by a vowel, is long. See § 283, I. Exc. 6.

Enēus, Ethion, Achēlus, Achillēus, Aleyōnēus, Alexandria, Alcēus, Alphēus, Amineus, Amphiarēus, Amphigēnia, Amphion, Amythāon, Arion, An-chiseus, Atlantēus, Antiōchia, Bioneus, Cæsarea, Calāurea, Calliōpea, Cassiō-peā, Cleanthēus, Cydonēus, Cymōdocea, Cythērea, Dārius (-eus), Dēdantia, Didymāon, Diomēdeus, Dollchāon, Echion, Elēus, Endymionēus, Enyo, Eōus, Erebeus, Eretheus, Galatē, Gigantēus, Hērāclēa (-eus), Hippodāmia, Hyperion, Ilithia, Iuāon, Iolāus, Iphigēnia, Ixion, Lāodāmia, Lātōus, Lesbous, Lycāon, Machaon, Mausōleum, Mēdēa, Menēlaus, Methion, Myrtōus, Ophion, Orion, Orithia, Orphēus, Pallantēum (-us), Pandior, Paphagēa, Pēneus, Penthesila, Phoebeus, Poppea, Protēsilaus, Pyrenēus, Sardcus, Thalia.

NOTE. Eus in the termination of Greek proper names, is commonly a diphthong; as, Alceus, Ceneus, Orpheus, Peleus, Perseus, Proteus, Theseus, Tydeus, which are dissyllables; Brādeus, Enipheus, Macāreus, Typhēus, which are trisyllables, Idomēneus, etc. Cf. § 283, Exc. 6, Note 2. But in those which in Greek are written εως (eios), eus forms two syllables; as, Alphēus. So also in adjectives in eus, whether of Greek or Latin origin; as, Erēbēus, Erethēus Orphēus; aureus, ligneus.

QUANTITY OF FINAL SYLLABLES.

I. VOWELS.

MONOSYLLABLES.

§ 294. (a.) All monosyllables, except enclitics, ending in a vowel, are long; as, ā, āh, dā, stā, ē, dē, mē, tē, sē, nē, rē, ī, fī, hī, quī, nī, sī, O or ōh, dō, prē, prōh, quō, slō, tū.

POLYSYLLABLES.

A final.

1. A final, in words declined, is short; as, mūsā, templā, cāpī-tā, Tȳdeā. Thus,

Mūsā mīhī causas mēmōrā; quo nūmīne laeso.... Virg. A. 1, 8.

Exc. A final is long in the ablative of the first declension, and in the vocative of Greek nouns in as and es; as,

Mūsā, fūndā; O Ānēā, O Pallā, O Anchisā.

2. A final, in words not declined, is long; as, āmā, frustrā, antēā, ergā, intrā. Thus,

Extra fortūnam est quidquid donātur amicis. Mart. Epig. 5, 42, 7.

Exc. A final is short in ciā, tūā, quāā, and in pūtā, when used adverbially, in the sense of 'for example.' It is sometimes short in the preposition contra, and in numerals ending in ginta; as, trīginta, etc. In postea, it is common.

A final is also short in the names of Greek letters; as, alphā, bēlā, etc., and in tāritantārā, the imitated sound of the trumpet.

E final.

§ 295. E final, in words of two or more syllables, is short; as, nātē, patrē, ipsē, currē, rēgērē, nempē, antē. Thus,

Incipē, purē puer, risu cognoscērē mātrem. Virg. E. 4, 60.

REMARK. The enclitics -que, -ne, -ve, -ce, -te, -pte, etc., as they are not used alone, have e short, according to the rule; as, nēquē, hūjuscē, suaptē. Cf. § 294, (a.)

Exc. 1. E final is long in nouns of the first and fifth declensions as,

Ulliōpē, Tȳdidē, fidē. So also in the compounds of rē and diē; as, quārē, hōdūr, pridē, postridē, quōtūdiē, and in the ablative fūmē, originally of the fifth declension.

Exc. 2. E final is long in Greek vocatives from nouns in -es, of the third declension; as, Achillē, Hippōmēnē; and in Greek neuters plural; as, cēlē, mēlē, pēlāgē, Tempē.

Exc. 3. In the second conjugation, e final is long in the second person singular of the imperative active; as, dōcē, mēnē;—but it is sometimes short in cāve, vāle and vide.

Exc. 4. E final is long in adverbs formed from adjectives of the second declension; as, placide, pulchrē, valde for valdē, maxime; but it is short in bene, male, inferne, and superne.

Exc. 5. Fere, ferme, and he, have the final e long.

I final.

§ 296. I final is long; as, dōminī, fili, classi, doceri, si. Thus,

Quid dōmini facient, audent cum tālla fures. Virg. B. 3, 16.

Exc. 1. (a.) I final is common in mihi, tibi, sibi, ubi, and ibi.

(b.) In ubique and commonly in ibidem it is long, but in ibique and utinam it is short.—(c.) In nisi, quasi, and cui, when a dissyllable, i final is common, but usually short. In utinam and utique, and rarely, also, in isti, it is short.

Exc. 2. I final is short in the dative singular of Greek nouns of the third declension, which increase in the genitive; as, Pallādī, Minotādī, Tēthēi.

Exc. 3. I final is short in the vocative of Greek nouns in -is; as, Alexī, Daphnī, Pārī. But it is long in vocatives from Greek nouns in -is, (us) -entes; as, Simōi, Pylōi.

Exc. 4. I final is short in Greek datives and ablatives plural in -ei, or, before a vowel, -sin; as, Dryadī, herōī, Trōādī.

O final.

§ 297. O final, in words of two or more syllables, is common; as, virgō, amō, quandō. Thus,

Ergō mētū capite Scylla est infūta paternō. Virg. Cir. 386.
Ergō sollicitus tu causā, pēcūniā, vitae es! Prop. 3, 6, 1.

Exc. 1. O final is long in the dative and ablative singular; as, dōminō, regnā bonō, suō, illō, eō.

Exc. 2. O final is long in ablatives used as adverbs; as, certō, falsō, mēritō, vulgō, eō, quō; and also in omnino, in ergō, 'for the sake of,' and in the interjection io.

REMARK 1. The final o of verbs is almost always long in poets of the Augustan age.

REM. 2. In poets subsequent to the Augustan age, final o in verbs, in gerunds, and in the adverbs ideo, ergo, sero, vero, porro, retro, inmo, idcirco, ubito, and postremo, is sometimes short.

Exc. 3. O final is short in cto, illico, profecto, and the compounds of modo; as, hummodō, postmodō, etc.; and in ego and homo it is more frequently short than long.

Exc. 4. O final in Greek nouns written with an omega (ω) is long; as, Chō, Didō, Athō, and Andrōgēō, (gen.)

U final.

§ 298. 1. U final is long; as, vultū, cornū. Panthū, dictū, diū. Thus, Vultū, quo caelum tempestatesque serēnat. Virg. A. 1, 255.

Exc. Indis and nemis, ancient forms of is and non, have u short. l is also short in terminations in is short, when s is removed by elision; as, contentis for contentis. See § 306, 2.

Y final

2. Y final is short; as, Moly, Tiphý. Thus,

Moly vocant sup̄eri: nigrā rādice tēnētur. Ovid. M. 14, 232.

Exc. Y in the dative Tēthý, being formed by contraction, is long. § 283, III

II. CONSONANTS.

MONOSYLLABLES.

§ 299 1. Monosyllabic substantives ending in a consonant are long; all other monosyllables ending in a consonant are short; as, sōl, vir, fūr, jū, splēn, vēr, fār, lār, Nār, pār, Sēr, fūr, fās, mās, rēs, pēs, Dis, glīs, ūs, vis, flōs, mōs, rōs, Trōs, ōs, (ōris), dōs, grās, rās, ūs;—nēc, in, an, ab, pēl, quā, quīs, quāt, ēl; as,

Ipsē dōcet quid ligam. Fās est et ab hoste dōcērī. Ovid. M. 4, 428.
Vēr adeo frondi nēmōrum, vēr ūtile silvis. Virg. G. 2, 323.

NOTE. The rules for the quantity of final syllables ending in a consonant imply that the consonant is single, and that it is preceded by a single vowel. If otherwise the syllable will be long by § 283, IV. and II.

Exc. 1. Ōr, fēl, mēl, pōl, vir, ōs (gen. ossis), and probably vas (vādis), are short.

Exc. 2. En, nōn, quā, sīn, crās, plūs, cūr, and pār, are long: so also are particles and pronouns ending in c, except nēc, which is short, and the pronouns hic and hoc, in the nominative and accusative, which are common.

Exc. 3. Monosyllabic plural cases of pronouns and forms of verbs in as, es, and is, are long; as, hās, quās, hōs, nōs, vōs, quōs, his, quīs;—dīs, flēs, sēs, in, fis, sis, vis; except ēs from sum which is short.

Exc. 4. The abridged imperatives retain the quantity of their root; as, dāc, from dico, dūco; fāc, fēr, from fācio, fēro.

POLYSYLLABLES.

D, L, N, R, T, final.

2. Final syllables ending in d, l, n, r, and t, are short; as illūd, consūl, carmēn, pātēr, cāpit. Thus, Obetūpuit stmul̄ ipse, simul percussus Achātes. Virg. A. 1, 518.

Nomēn Arionūm Sicūlas impleverāt urbes. Ovid. F. 2, 98.

Dum loquor, horrōr, habet; parsque est meminisse doloris. Id. M. 9, 291.

Exc. 1. F in lien is long.

Exc. 2. In Greek nouns, nominatives in n (except those in on written with an omicron), masculine or feminine accusatives in an or en, and genitives plural in on, lengthen the final syllable; as,

Tūm, Orōn, Antēn, Anchisēn, Calliōpēn; epigrammōn.

Exc. 2. Ætēr, æthēr, and nouns in ēr which form their genitive in ēris, lengthen the final syllable; as, cratēr, solēr. So also Ibēr; but the compound Celtiber has sometimes as Martial its last syllable short.

REMARK. A final syllable ending in t, may be rendered long by a diphthong, by contraction, by syncope, or by position; as, aut, abit for abūt, fūmūt, for fumāvūt, āmānt. See § 288, II. III. IV., and § 162, 7, (d.)

M final.

NOTE. Final m with the preceding vowel is almost always cut off, when the next word begins with a vowel. See Echēlipsis, § 305, 2.

3. Final syllables ending in m, when it is not cut off, are short as, Quam laudas, plūmā? octo mēm ādest hōnor Idem. Hor. S. 2, 2, 28.

REMARK. Hence in composition the final syllables of cum and circum are short; as, cōmēdo, circūmāgo.

C final.

4. Final syllables ending in c are long; as, ālēc, īlīc, ītāc, illūc. Thus,

Ilīc indocto primum se exērcuit arcu. Tib. 2, 1, 69.

Exc. The final syllable of dōnēc is short; as,

Dōnēc ēris fēlix, multos nūmērābis āmīcos. Ovid. Trist. 1, 9, 5.

AS, ES, and OS, final.

§ 300. Final syllables in as, es, and os, are long; as, mēdēs, piētās, āmās, Enēās, quīēs, sermōnēs, diēs, Pēnēlōpēs, dūcentiēs, mōnēs, hōnēs, vīrēs, dōmīnēs. Thus, Hās autem terrās, Itālique hanc Itōris ōram. Verg. A. 3, 396.

Si mōdo dēs illis cultus, simūlque parātus. Ovid. M. 6, 454.

Exc. 1. (a.) AS. As is short in ānds, in Greek nouns whose genitive ends in ādis or ādos; as, Arcās, Pallās; and in Greek accusatives plural of the third declension; as, hērōās, lampādās.

(b.) As is short also in Latin nouns in as, ādos, formed like Greek patronymics; as, Appiās.

Exc. 2. ES. (a.) Final es is short in nouns and adjectives of the third declension which increase short in the genitive; as, hospēs, līmēs, hēbēs; gen. hospītis, etc.

(b.) But it is long in ābiēs, āriēs, pāriēs, Ōrēs, and pēs, with its compounds cornipēs, sōnipēs, etc.

(c.) Es, in the present tense of sum and its compounds, and in the preposition pēnēs, is short.

(d.) Es is short in Greek neuters in es; as, cācōthēs, and in Greek nominatives and vocatives plural from nouns of the third declension, which increase in the genitive; as, Arcādēs, Trōēs, Amazōnēs; from Arcas, Arcādīs, etc.

Exc. 3. OS. (a.) Os is short in compēs, impēs, and ōs (ossis), with its compound exōs

(b.) Os is short in Greek nouns and cases written in the original with omacron; as (1) in all neuters; as, chads, épds, Argds; (2) in all nouns of the second declension; as, líds, Týrds, Délds; except those whose genitive is in ds, (Greek os); as, Athds, gen. Athds; (3) in genitives singular of the third declension; as, Palláds, Téthýds, from Pállis and Téthys.

IS, US, and YS, final.

§ 301. Final syllables in is, us, and ys, are short; as, turris, míltis, míls, ámáts, ámábis, mágs; pectús, bónús, éjús, ámámús, ruráls, ámds; Ópýs, líjs. Thus,

Non ápis inde tálit collectos sádúla fíres. Ovid. M. 13, 928.

Sérús aut cítlus sédem própérámús ad únám. Id. M. 10, 88.

At Cápýs, et quórum méllor sententia menti. Virg. A. 2, 85.

Exc. 1. IS. (a.) Is is long in plural cases; as, músis, nóbis; omnis, urbis, (for omnés, urbés); quis, (for qués or quibus). So also in the adverbs grátis, ingrátis, and fóris, which are in reality datives or ablatives plural.

Et líquidí simúl ignis; ut áts exórdia púmís. Virg. A. 6, 88.

Quis ante óra patrú Trójæ sub mœnibus altis. Id. A. 1, 95.

Non omnis arbusta júvant, húmílesque mýricæ. Id. E. 4, 2.

Adde tót égrégias úrbis, ópérumque láborem. Id. G. 2, 155.

(b.) Is is long in the nominative of nouns whose genitive ends in ísis, ísis, or omnis; as, Samis, Sálamis, Simois.

(c.) Is is long in the second person singular of the present indicative active of the fourth conjugation; as, audis, nescis. So also in the second persons, fis, is, sis, vis, vélis, and their compounds; as, adsis, possis, quamvis, máls, nóls, etc. Cf. § 299, 1, Exc. 3.

(d.) Ris, in the future perfect and perfect subjunctive, is common; as, videris.

Exc. 2. US. (a.) Us is long in nouns of the third declension which increase long, and in the genitive singular, and the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural of the fourth declension, (§ 89, Rem., and § 283, III.); as, tellús, virtús, incús;—fructús. But pálús, with the us short, occurs in Horace, Art. Poet. 65.

(b.) Us is long in Greek nouns written in the original with the diphthong ous (ous) whether in the nominative or genitive; as, nom. Amáthús, Opús, Eekpús, átpús, Panthús; gen. Didús, Sapphús. But compounds of pus (πους), when of the second declension, have us short; as, pólypus.

NOTE. The last syllable of every verse, (except the anapæstic and the Ionic a minore), may be either long or short at the option of the poet.

REMARK. By this is meant, that, although the measure require a long syllable, a short one may be used in its stead; and a long syllable may be used where a short one is required; as in the following verses, where the short syllable ma stands instead of a long one, and the long syllable cu instead of a short one:—

Sanguineaue mánu crépítantia concútít armá. Ovid. M. 1, 148.

No' éget Mauri jacúlla. nec arrá. Her. Od. 1, 22, 2.

VERSIFICATION.

FEET.

§ 302. A foot is a combination of two or more syllables of a certain quantity.

Feet are either simple or compound. Simple feet consist of two or three syllables; compound feet of four.

I. SIMPLE FEET.

1. Of two Syllables.

Spondee ,.....	two long, — —; as,.....	fāndant.
Pyrrhic ,.....	two short, — —; as,.....	Désu.
Trochee, or choree ,.....	a long and a short, — —; as,.....	ārmā.
Iambus ,.....	a short and a long, — —; as,.....	ērānt.

2. Of three Syllables.

Dactyl ,.....	a long and two short, — — —; as,.....	cōrpōrā.
Anapest ,.....	two short and a long, — — —; as,.....	dōmīnī.
Tribrach ,.....	three short, — — —; as,.....	fāctōrī.
Molossus ,.....	three long, — — —; as,.....	cōntēdānt.
Amphibrach ,.....	a short, a long, and a short, — — —; as,.....	āmārī.
Amphimācrus, or Cretic ,.....	a long, a short, and a long, — — —; as,.....	cāstīlīs.
Bacchius ,.....	a short and two long, — — —; as,.....	Cālōnēs.
Antibacchius ,.....	two long and a short, — — —; as,.....	Rōmānīs.

II. COMPOUND FEET.

Dispondee ,.....	a double spondee, — — — —; as,.....	cōnflīxērānt.
Proceleusmatic ,.....	a double Pyrrhic, — — — —; as,.....	hōmīnībūs.
Ditrochee ,.....	a double trochee, — — — —; as,.....	cōmprōbārēt.
Diambus ,.....	a double iambus, — — — —; as,.....	āmāvērānt.
Greater Ionic ,.....	a spondee and a Pyrrhic, — — — —; as,.....	cōrrēctīnīs.
Smaller Ionic ,.....	a Pyrrhic and a spondee, — — — —; as,.....	prōpēvībānt.
Choriambus ,.....	a choree and an iambus, — — — —; as,.....	tērrīfīcānt.
Antispast ,.....	an iambus and a choree, — — — —; as,.....	ādhesīssēt.
First epitrit ,.....	an iambus and a spondee, — — — —; as,.....	āmāvērānt.
Second epitrit ,.....	a trochee and a spondee, — — — —; as,.....	cōndītōrēs.
Third epitrit ,.....	a spondee and an iambus, — — — —; as,.....	discōrdīās.
Fourth epitrit ,.....	a spondee and a trochee, — — — —; as,.....	addūxīssēt.
First pæon ,.....	a trochee and a Pyrrhic, — — — —; as,.....	tēmpōrībūs.
Second pæon ,.....	an iambus and a Pyrrhic, — — — —; as,.....	pōtētīd.
Third pæon ,.....	a Pyrrhic and a trochee, — — — —; as,.....	āmātīs.
Fourth pæon ,.....	a Pyrrhic and an iambus, — — — —; as,.....	cēllētīd.

REMARK. Those feet are called isocaronous, which consist of equal times as the spondee, the dactyl, the anapest, and the proceleusmatic, one long time being considered equal to two short.

METRE.

§ 303. 1. Metre is an arrangement of syllables and feet according to certain rules.

2. In this general sense, it comprehends either an entire verse, a part of a verse, or any number of verses.

3. Metre is divided into dactylic, anapestic, iambic, trochaic, choriambic, and Ionic. These names are derived from the original or fundamental foot employed in each.

4. A metre or measure, in a specific sense, is either a single foot or a combination of two feet. In the dactylic, choriambic, and Ionic metres, a measure consists of one foot; in the other metres, of two feet. Two feet constituting a measure are sometimes called a syzygy.

VERSES.

§ 304. A verse is a certain number of feet, arranged in a regular order, and constituting a line of poetry.

1. Two verses are called a distich; a half verse, a hemistich.

2. Verses are of different kinds, denominated sometimes, like the different species of metre, from the foot which chiefly predominates in them; as, dactylic, iambic, etc.;—sometimes from the number of feet or metres which they contain; as, senarius, consisting of six feet; octonarius, of eight feet; mönömēter, consisting of one measure; dimēter, of two; trimēter, tetramēter, pentamēter, hexamēter;—sometimes from a celebrated author who used a particular species; as, Sapphic, Anacreontic, Alcaic, Asclepiadic, Glyconic, Phalæcian, Sotadic, Archilochian, Alcmanian, Pherecratic, Aristophanic, etc., from Sappho, Anacreon, Alcæus, Asclepiades, Glycon, Phalæcus, Sotades, Archilochus, Alcman, Pherecrates, Aristophanes, etc.—and sometimes from the particular uses to which they were applied; as, the prosodiac, from its use in solemn processions, the paræmiac, from its frequent use in proverbs.

3. A verse, with respect to the metres which it contains, may be complete, deficient, or redundant.

(1.) A verse which is complete is called acatalectic.

(2.) A verse which is deficient, if it wants one syllable at the end, is called catalectic; if it wants a whole foot or half a metre, it is called brachycatalectic.

(3.) A verse which wants a syllable at the beginning, is called acephalous.

(4.) A verse which has a redundant syllable or foot, is called hypercatalectic or hypermēter.

4. Hence, the complete name of every verse consists of three terms—the first referring to the species, the second to the number of metres, and the third to the ending; as, the dactylic trimēter catalectic.

5. A verse or portion of a verse of any kind (measured from the beginning) which contains three half feet, or a foot and a half, is called a trihēmimēris; if it contains five half feet, or two feet and a half, it is called a penthēmimēris; if seven half feet, or three feet and a half, a hepthēmimēris; if nine half feet, or four feet and a half, an ennehēmimēris. A portion of a verse consisting of one whole metre and a half, is called a hēmidiūs, as being the half of a trimeter.

NOTE. The respective situation of each foot in a verse is called its place.

6. SCANNING is the dividing of a verse into the feet of which it is composed.

REMARK. In order to scan correctly, it is necessary to know the quantity of each syllable, and also to understand the following poetic usages, which are sometimes called

FIGURES OF PROSODY.

SYNALŒPHA.

§ 305. 1. Synalœpha is the elision of a final vowel or diphthong in scanning, when the following word begins with a vowel.

Thus, terra antiqua is read terr' antiqua; Dardānida infensi, Dardānid' infensi; vento huc, vent' huc. So, Quidve mōror? si omnes uno ordine hābētis Achivos. Virg. A. 2, 102.

Which is scanned thus—

Quidve mōror? s' omnes ūn' ordin' hābētis Achivos.

(1.) The interjections O, heu, ah, proh, væ, vah, are not elided; as,

O et de Latiā, O et de gente Sābinā. Ovid. M. 14, 832.

REMARK. But O, though not elided, is sometimes made short; as,

Te Cōrydon O Alexi; trāhit sua quemque vōluptas. Virg. E. 2, 66.

(2.) Other long vowels and diphthongs sometimes remain unelided, in which case, when in the thesis of a foot, they are commonly made short; as,

Victor apud rāpidum Simōenta sūb Iliō alto. Virg. A. 5, 261.

Anni tempore eo quī Etēsia esse fēruntur. Lucr. 6, 717.

Ter sunt cōnati impōnere Pelīō Ossam. Virg. G. 1, 281.

Glauco et Pānōpez, et Inōo Mēlioertes. Id. G. 1, 496.

(3.) Rarely a short vowel, also, remains without elision; as,

Et vēra incesu pātuit deū. Ille ūbi mātrem.... Virg. A. 1, 406.

(4.) Synalœpha in a monosyllable occasionally occurs; as,

Si ad vitūlam spectas, nihil est, quod pocūla laudes. Virg. E. 3, 48.

For synalœpha at the end of a line, see Synapheia, § 307, 3.

ECTHLIPSIS.

2. Ecthlipsis is the elision of a final m with the preceding vowel, when the following word begins with a vowel. Thus,

O cūras hōmīnum, O quantū est in rēbus Ināne! Pers. 1, 1.

Which is thus scanned—

O cūras hōmīn' O quant' est in rēbus Ināne.

Monstrum horrendum, informe, ingens, cui lūmen ādemptum. Virg. A. 3, 638.

- (1.) This elision was sometimes omitted by the early poets; as,
Corporū officium est qu' niam prēmere omnia deorsum. Lucr. 1, 303.

See § 299, 2

- (2.) Final s, also, with the preceding vowel, is sometimes elided by the early poets before a vowel, and sometimes s alone before a consonant; as, content' atque (Enn.), for contentus atque; omnibu' rēbus. (Lucr.) So,

Tum laterali' dolor, certissimu' nunciu' mortis. Lucil.

REMARK. This elision took place principally in short syllables.

For ecthipsis at the end of a line, see Synapheia, § 307, 3.

SYNÆRESIS.

§ 306. 1. Synæresis is the contraction into one syllable of two vowels which are usually pronounced separately. Thus, Aureā percussam virgā, verumque venēis. Virg. A. 7, 190.

Eodem habuit secum, quibus est elata, capillos. Prop. 4, 7, 7.

Tityre, pascentes a flumine reice capellas. Virg. E. 3, 96.

REMARK 1. So Phæthon is pronounced Phæthon; alveo, alvo; Orphea, Orpha; deorsum, dorsum.

- (1.) Synæresis is frequent in ii, idem, isdem, dii, dīs, dein, deinceps, deinde, deest, deerat, debro, destru, desse; as,

Præcipitatur æquis, et æquis nox surgit ab isdem. Ovid. M. 4, 92.

Sint Mæcenates; non deerunt, Flacce, Mæcenes. Mart. 8, 56, 6.

REM. 2. Cui and huic are usually monosyllables.

- (2.) When two vowels in compound words are read as one syllable, the former may rather be considered as elided than as united with the latter; as, s in anteambulo, antetre, antehac, dehinc, mehercule, etc., and a in contraire.

(3.) The syllable formed by the union of i or u followed by another vowel retains the quantity of the latter vowel, whether long or short; as, abiēte, ariēte, abiēgnæ, pāriētibus, consiliū, fortuitus, Nāsiēnus, vindēmīator, omnia; gēnuā, tēnuis, pūvita, fluviorum, etc. In such examples, the i and u are pronounced like initial y and w; as, abyēte, pāryētibus, consilyum, fortwitus, Nāsidyēnus, omn-yā, tēwuis, pūwita, etc.; and, like consonants, they have, with another consonant, the power of lengthening a preceding short vowel, as in the above examples.

NOTE. In Statius, the word tēnuōre occurs as a trisyllable, in which the three vowels, uo, are united in pronunciation; thus, tēn-wo-re.

- (4.) Sometimes, after a synaloepha or ecthipsis, two vowels suffer synæresis; as, stellio et, pronounced stell-yet: consilium et,—consil-yet.

(5.) If only one of the vowels is written, the contraction is called crasis; as, st, consili, for dii, consilii.

DIÆRESIS.

2. Diæresis is the division of one syllable into two; as, aulā, Troia, silva, suādent; for aula, Troia or Troja, silva, suādent. So, suscoco for suecoco; religūis for iliquis; ecquīs for ecquis; milūis for milvus, etc., as Æthereum sensum, atque auræ simplicis ignem. Virg. A. 6, 747

Atque illos illi irrident, Veneremque stident. Lucr. 4, 1153.
Grammatici certant; et adhuc sub iâcte lis est. Hor. A. P. 78.
Aurarum et silvas metra. Id. O. 1, 23, 4.

(1.) So in Greek words originally written with a diphthong (u or i); as, Ῥιπέα for Ῥιγία, Bacchéa for Bacchéa, Rhacétus for Rhacétus, Pléida for Pléida and also in words of Latin origin; as, Véius for Veius, Aquiléa for Aquileia.

REMARK. This figure is sometimes called dialysis.

SYSTOLE.

§ 307. 1. Systole is the shortening of a syllable which is long by nature or by position; as, vidē'n for videsne, in which e is naturally long; adit'n for adtime, in which i is long by position;—hodie for hōc die; multimōdis for multis mōdis. So, Ducere multimōdis voces, et flectere cantus. Lucr. 5, 1406.

(1.) By the omission of j after ab, ad, ob, sub, and re, in compound words, those prepositions retain their naturally short quantity, which would otherwise be made long by position; as, abici, adici, obici, etc. Thus,

Si quid nostra tuis adicit veratio rebus. Mart. 10, 82, 1.

REMARK. In some compounds the short quantity of ad and ob is preserved before a consonant by the elision of the d or b of the preposition, as in apério, opério, omitto, etc.

(2.) The penult of the third person plural of certain perfects is said by some to be shortened by systole; as, sistērunt, talērunt, etc.; but others ascribe these irregularities to the errors of transcribers, or the carelessness of writers.

DIASTOLE.

2. Diastole is the lengthening of a syllable which is naturally short.

(1.) It occurs most frequently in proper names and in compounds of re; as, Pyramides, religio, etc. Thus, Hanc tibi Pyramides mitto, Ledaem, silitem. Ovid. H. 16, 1.

Religione patrum multos servata per annos. Virg. A. 2, 715.

(2.) Some editors double the consonant after the lengthened re; as, rellegio

(3.) Diastole is sometimes called ectasis.

SYNAPHEIA.

3. Synapheia is such a connection of two consecutive verses, that the first syllable of the latter verse has an influence on the final syllable of that which precedes, either by position, synalœpha, or ecthipsis. See §§ 283 and 305.

(1.) This figure is most frequent in anapæstic verse, and in the Ionic a minore.

The following lines will illustrate its effect:—

Præceps silvas montesque fugit
Citus Actæon. Sen.

Here the i in the final syllable of fugit, which is naturally short, is made long by position before the following consonants, tc.

Omnia Mercurio similia, vocemque elöremque Et crines flavos.... Virg. A. 4. 568.
Dissidens plöbi nüméro beatörum
Eximit virtus. Hor. O. 2, 2, 18.

In the former of these examples, synapheia and synalcepha are combined, que being elided before et in the following line; in the latter there is a similar combination of synapheia and ecthlypsis.

(2.) By synapheia, the parts of a compound word are sometimes divided between two verses; as,

.... si non offendéret animum-
Quemque postörum linæ läbor et möra... Hor. A. P. 290.

(3.) In hexameter verse a redundant syllable at the end of a line elided before a vowel at the beginning of the next line, by causing the accent to fall on the second syllable of the concluding spondee, and connecting the two verses by synapheia, excites the expectation of something which is to follow, and often tends to magnify the object; as,

Quöe supér- | -ätrá st- | -lëx, jä-m- | -jä-m läp- | -sürä cá- | -dönti- | -que
Imminet assimilis. Virg. A. 6. 602.

REMARK. The poets often make use of other figures, also, which, however, are not peculiar to them. Such are prosthësis, äpharësis, syncope, epenthësis, apocöpe, paragöge, tnësis, antithësis, and metathësis. See § 322.

ARSIS AND THESIS.

§ 308. (1.) Rhythm is the alternate elevating and depressing of the voice at regular intervals in pronouncing the syllables of verse.

(2.) The elevation of the voice is called arsis, its depression thesis. These terms designate, also, the parts of a foot on which the elevation or depression falls.

1. The natural arsis is on the long syllable of a foot; and hence, in a foot composed wholly of long, or wholly of short syllables, when considered in itself, the place of the arsis is undetermined; but when such foot is substituted for the fundamental foot of a metre, its arsis is determined by that of the latter.

REMARK. Hence, a spondee, in trochaic or dactylic metre, has the arsis on the first syllable; but in iambic or anapæstic metre, it has it on the last.

2. The arsis is either equal in duration to the thesis, or twice as long.

Thus, in the dactyl, — — —, and anapæst, — — —, it is equal; in the trochee, — —, and iambus, — —, it is twice as long. This difference in the proportionate duration of the arsis and thesis constitutes the difference of rhythm. A foot is said to have the descending rhythm, when its arsis is at the beginning, and the ascending, when the thesis is at the beginning.

3. The stress of voice which falls upon the arsis of a foot, is called the ictus. When a long syllable in the arsis of a foot is resolved into two short ones, the ictus falls upon the former.

NOTE 1. Some suppose that the terms arsis and thesis, as used by the ancients, denoted respectively the rising and falling of the hand in beating time, and that the place of the thesis was the syllable which received the ictus.

NOTE 2. As the ancient pronunciation of Latin is not now understood, writers differ in regard to the mode of reading verse. According to some, the accent of each word should always be preserved; while others direct that the stress of voice should be laid on the arsis of the foot, and that no regard should be paid to the accent.

It is generally supposed that the final letters elided by synalæpha and æthlipsis, though omitted in scanning, were pronounced in reading verse.

CÆSURA.

§ 309. Cæsura is the separation, by the ending of a word, of syllables rhythmically or metrically connected.

Cæsura is of three kinds:—1, of the foot; 2, of the rhythm; and 3, of the verse.

1. Cæsura of the foot occurs when a word ends before a foot is completed; as,

Silves | -trem tenu- | -i Mu- | -sam medi- | -târis a- | -vênâ. Virg. E. 1, 2.

2. Cæsura of the rhythm is the separation of the arsis from the thesis by the ending of a word, as in the second, third, and fourth feet of the preceding verse.

REM 1. It hence appears that the cæsura of the rhythm is always a cæsura of the foot, as e. g. in the 2d, 3d, and 4th feet of the preceding verse; but, on the contrary, that the cæsura of the foot is not always a cæsura of the rhythm, as e. g. in the fifth foot of the same verse.

(1.) Cæsura of the rhythm allows a final syllable naturally short, to stand in the arsis of the foot instead of a long one, it being lengthened by the ictus; as,

Pœtôri | -bûs inhi- | -âns spi- | -rântiâ | cœnsûlit | ãta. Virg. A. 4, 64.

This occurs chiefly in hexameter verse.

REM 2. Cæsura of the foot and of the verse do not of themselves lengthen a short syllable, but they often coincide with that of the rhythm.

3. Cæsura of the verse is such a division of a line into two parts, as affords to the voice a convenient pause or rest, without injury to the sense or harmony.

REM 3. The cæsura of the verse is often called the cæsural pause. In several kinds of verse, its place is fixed; in others, it may fall in more than one place, and the choice is left to the poet. Of the former kind is the pentameter, of the latter the hexameter.

The proper place of the cæsural pause will be treated of, so far as shall be necessary, under each species of verse.

REM 4. The effect of the cæsura is to connect the different words harmoniously together, and thus to give smoothness, grace, and sweetness, to the verse.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF METRE.

DACTYLIC METRE.

§ 310. I. A hexameter or heroic verse consists of six feet. Of these the fifth is a dactyl, the sixth a spondee, and each of the other four either a dactyl or a spondee; as,

Āt tūba | tērrībi- | -lēm sōni- | -tūm prēcūl | āre cā- | -nōrē. Virg. A. 9, 568.
 Intōn- | -ei ori- | -nēs lōn- | -gā cōr- | -vicē flū- | ēbānt. Tibull. 3, 4, 27.
 Lūdērs | quē vēl- | -lēm cālā- | -mā pār- | -misit ā- | -grēsti. Virg. E. 1, 10

1. The fifth foot is sometimes a spondee, and the verse in such case is called spondaic; as,

Cārādē- | -ūm sōbē- | -lēs māg- | -nūm Jōvis | incē- | -mētūm. Virg. E. 4, 49.

REMARK 1. In such verses, the fourth foot is commonly a dactyl, and the fifth should not close with the end of a word. Spondaic lines are thought to be especially adapted to the expression of grave and solemn subjects.

2. A light and rapid movement is produced by the frequent recurrence of dactyls; a slow and heavy one by that of spondees; as,

Quadrūpē- | -dantē pū- | -trēm sōni- | -tū quātīt | ūngulā | cāmpum. Virg. A. 8, 596.
 Illi in- | -tēr sē- | -sē māg- | -nā vī | brāchiā tollunt. Id. A. 8, 452.

REM. 2. Variety in the use of dactyls and spondees in successive lines, has an agreeable effect. Hexameter verse commonly ends in a word of two or three syllables, and a monosyllable at the end of a line is generally ungraceful, but sometimes produces a good effect; as,

Stērnitūr- | ēxāni- | -mlequē, trē- | -mēns prē- | -cūmbit hū- | -mī bōs. Virg. A. 5, 481
 Partūri- | -ant mōn- | -tēs nās- | -cētūr | ridicū- | -lūs mūs. Hor. A. P. 139.

3. The beauty and harmony of hexameter verse depend much on due attention to the cæsura. (See § 309.) A line in which it is neglected is destitute of poetic beauty, and can hardly be distinguished from prose; as,

Rōmāē | mōnā | tērrūt | impīgēr | Hānnibāl | ārmis. Enn.

4. The cæsural pause most approved in heroic poetry is that which occurs after the penthemimēris, i. e. after the arsis in the third foot. This is particularly distinguished as the heroic cæsura. Thus,

Āt dōmūs | intēri- | -or || rē- | -gālī | splēndidā | lūxā. Virg. A. 1, 637.

5. Instead of the preceding, a cæsura in the thesis of the third foot, or after the arsis of the fourth, was also approved as heroic; as,

Infān- | -dūm rē- | -gīnā || jū- | -bēs rēnō- | -vārē dō- | -lōrem. Virg. A. 2, 3.

REM. 3. When the cæsural pause occurs, as in the latter example, after the hepthemimēris, i. e. after the arsis of the fourth foot, another but slighter one is often found in the second foot; as,

Primā tē- | -nēt, || plāū- | -sūquē vō- | -lāt || frēmī- | -tūquē sē- | -cūndo. Virg. A. 5, 338.

6. The cæsura after the third foot, dividing the verse into exactly equal parts, was least approved; as,

Cui nōn | dictūs Hē- | -lās pūr || ēt Lā- | -tōnā | Dēlos. Virg. G. 3, 6.

REM. 4. The cæsural pause between the fourth and fifth feet was considered as peculiarly adapted to pastoral poetry, particularly when the fourth foot was a dactyl, and was hence termed the bucolic cæsura; as,

Sāt vitū- | -li ēt tēnē- | -ris mū- | -gitibūs || āērā | cōmplēt. Nemes.

NOTE 1. The cæsura after the arsis is sometimes called the masculine or syllabic cæsura; that in the thesis, the feminine or trochaic, as a trochee immediately precedes. When a cæsura occurs in the fifth foot it is usually the trochaic cæsura, unless the foot is a spondee; as,

Frātinūs | in sil- | -vis pūl- | -chērrimā, | pīnūs in | hōrtis. Virg. E. 7, 65.

(a.) It is to be remarked that two successive trochaic cæsuras in the second and third feet are, in general, to be avoided, but they are sometimes employed to express irregular or impetuous motion; as,

Una tu- | -râsqû Nô- | -tâsqû rî- | -tint crê- | -bêrquê prô- | -cêlita. Virg. A. 1. 36.

(b.) Successive trochaic cæsuras are, in like manner, to be avoided in the third and fourth feet, but are approved in the first and second, in the fourth and fifth, and in the first, third and fifth. See Virg. A. 6, 651: 1, 94: and 6, 522.

NOTE 2. In the principal cæsura of the verse poets frequently introduce a pause in the sense, which must be attended to in order to determine the place of the cæsural pause. For in the common place for the cæsura in the third foot there is often a cæsura of the foot; while, in the fourth foot, a still more marked division occurs. In this case, the latter is to be considered as the principal cæsura, and distinguished accordingly; as,

Belli | ferrâ- | -tôs pês- | -tôs, || pâr- | -tâsqû rê- | -frêgit. Hor. S. 1, 4, 61.

II. The Priapæan is usually accounted a species of hexameter. It is so constructed as to be divisible into two portions of three feet each, having generally a trochee in the first and fourth place, but often a spondee and rarely a dactyl; in the second, usually a dactyl; and an amphimacer and more rarely a dactyl in the third; as,

Ô cò- | -lônâ || quâ cûpis || pônâ | lûdêrê | lóngô. Catull. 17, 1.

It is, however, more properly considered as choriambic metre, consisting of alternate Glyconics and Pherecratics. See § 316, IV. V. Thus,

Ô cò- | -lônâ, quâ | cûpis
Pônâ | lûdêrê lôn- | -go.

NOTE. A regular hexameter verse is termed Priapæan, when it is so constructed as to be divisible into two portions of three feet each; as,

Têrtiâ | pâre pâ- | -tri datâ || pâre datâ | têrtiâ | matri. Catull. 62, 64

See above, 6.

§ 311. III. A pentameter verse consists of five feet.

REMARK 1. It is generally, however, divided, in scanning, into two hemistichs, the first consisting of two feet, either dactyls or spondees, followed by a long syllable; the last, of two dactyls, also followed by a long syllable; as,

Natû- | -rê sêquit- | -tûr || sêminâ | quâsqû sû- | -m. Prop. 3, 7, 20.
Cârminî- | -bûs vi- | -vê || têmpûs in | ômnê mē- | -is. Ovid.

1. According to the more ancient and correct mode of scanning pentameter verse, it consists of five feet, of which the first and second may each be a dactyl or a spondee; the third is always a spondee; and the fourth and fifth are anapæsts; as,

Natû- | -rê sêquit- | -tûr || sêm- | -inâ quâ- | -quê sûm.
Cârminî- | -bûs vi- | -vê || têm- | -pûs in ôm- | -nê mēis.

2. The cæsura, in pentameter verse, always occurs after the penthemimeris, i. e. at the close of the first hemistich. It very rarely lengthens a short syllable.

3. The pentameter rarely ends with a word of three syllables. In Ovid, it usually ends with a dissyllable.

REM. 2. This species of verse is seldom used, except in connection with hexameter, a line of each recurring alternately. This combination is called elegiac verse. Thus,

Flêbilis indignô, Elêgêû, sôlvê cûpillôs.

Ah nimis ex vêrô nunc tibi nômén êrit! Ovid. Am. 3, 9, 3.

§ 312. IV. The tetrameter a priore, or Alcmanian dactylic tetrameter, consists of the first four feet of a hexameter, of which the fourth is always a dactyl; as,

Gärrälä | pär rä- | -mä, ävis | öbströpít. Sen. Oed. 454.

V. The tetrameter a posteriore, or spondaic tetrameter, consists of the last four feet of a hexameter; as,

Ibimä, | Ö söel- | -i, cöml- | -täsque. Hor. Od. 1, 7, 26.

REMARK. The penultimate foot in this, as in hexameter verse, may be a spondee, but in this case the preceding foot should be a dactyl; as,

Mänsö- | -räm cöhl- | -bönt Ar- | -chytä. Hor. Od. 1, 28, 2.

VI. The dactylic trimeter consists of the last three feet of a hexameter; as,

Grätö | Pjrrhä súb | äntro. Hor. Od. 1, 5, 3.

REMARK. But this kind of verse is more properly included in choriambic metre. See § 316, V.

VII. The trimeter catalectic Archilochian consists of the first five half feet of a hexameter, but the first and second feet are commonly dactyls; as,

Pälvís ét | ämbrä sä- | -mus. Hor. Od. 4, 7, 16.

VIII. The dactylic dimeter, or Adonic, consists of two feet, a dactyl and a spondee; as,

Risät Ä- | -pöllo. Hor. Od. 1, 10, 12.

IX. The Æolic pentameter consists of four dactyls preceded by a spondee, a trochee, or an iambus. Thus

— — | — — — | — — — | — — — | — — —

X. The Phalæcian pentameter consists of a dactylic penthimimeris and a dactylic dimeter; as,

Visö- | -bät géli- | -dä || sidärä | brümme. Boëthius.

REMARK. A trochee is sometimes found in the first place and an iambus in the first and second places.

XI. The Tetrameter Meiurus, or Falscan consists of the last four feet of a hexameter, except that the last foot is an iambus instead of a spondee; as,

Ut növä | frögé grä- | -vis Cérés | éat. Boëthius.

XII. The Tetrameter Catalectic consists of the tetrameter a priore wanting the latter half of the concluding dactyl; as,

Ömne höml- | -näm gönds | In tär- | -ris. Boëthius.

ANAPÆSTIC METRE.

§ 313. I. The anapæstic monomëter consists of two anapæsts; as,

Utläks- | -ö cänds. Sen.

II. The anapæstic dimeter consists of two measures, or four anapæsts; as,

Phārētrē- | -quē grāvēs | dātē sē- | -vā fērō.... Sen.

REMARK 1. The first foot in each measure of anapæstic metre was very often changed to a dactyl or a spondee, and the second foot often to a spondee and, in a few instances, to a dactyl.

REM. 2. Anapaestic verses are generally so constructed that each measure ends with a word, so that they may be written and read in lines of one, two, or more measures.

LAMBIC METRE.

§ 314. I. 1. The iambic trimeter, or senarius, consists of three iambic measures, or six iambic feet ; as,

Phàsë- | -lūs ũ- | -lē, ¶ quēm | vidē- | -tīs hōe- | -pītēs.... Catull. 4. 1.

2. The cæsure commonly occurs in the third but sometimes in the fourth foot.

3. The pure iambic measure was seldom used by the Latin poets, but to vary the rhythm spondees were introduced into the first, third, and fifth places. In every foot, also, except the last, which was always an iambus, a long syllable was often changed into two short ones, so that an anapest or a dactyl was used for a spondee, and a tribrach for an iambus, but the use of the dactyl in the fifth place was very rare; as,

Quô, quô | soeîlê- | -tî rûi- | -tîs? Nût | cûr dêx- | -têris.... Hor. Epod. 7, 1.

Álliti- | -bűs át- | -quē cāni- | -bűs hōmāi- | -cīdam Hēc- | -tōrēm.... Id. Epod. 17, 12.

4. Sometimes, also, a proceleusmatic, or double pyrrhic, was used in the first place for a spondee. The writers of comedy, satire, and fable, admitted the spondee and its equivalents (the dactyl and anapaest) into the second and fourth places, as well as the first, third, and fifth.

5. The following, therefore, is the scale of the Iambic Trimeter:—

6. In the construction of the Iambic Trimeter an accent should fall on the second syllable of either the third foot or both the second and fourth feet; as,

Ibīs | Lībūr- | -nīs īn- | tēr āl- | -tā nā- | -vīum |

Utrùm- | -ně jás- | -sí pěr- | -sěquē'- | -măr ô- | -tĭum.

II. The scazon, or choliambus (lame iambic), is the iambic trimeter, with a spondee in the sixth foot, and generally an iambus in the fifth; as,

Cur in | thă- | -trăm, Căto | sǎvǎ- | -rǎ, vǎ- | -nistI?

An Idē | ō tăn- | -tūm vên- | -ērās, | ūt ǝx- | -irēs? Mart Ep. 1, 1, 8.

This species of verse is also called Hipponactic trimeter, from its inventor Hippodax.

III. The iambic tetrameter or quadrātus, called also from the number of its feet octonarius, a measure used by the comic poets, consists of four iambic measures, subject to the same variations as the iambic trimeter (I); as,

Nānc hīc | diēs | illūm | vitam ūf- | -fērt, ill- | -de mō- | -rēs pōe- | -tūlat. Ter. A. 1, 2, 18.

REMARK. The cæsura regularly follows the second measure.

IV. The iambic tetrameter catalectic or Hipponactic, is the iambic tetrameter, wanting the last syllable, and having always an iambus in the seventh place, but admitting in the other places the same variations as the trimeter and tetrameter; as,

Dēprēn- | -et nū- | -vis in | mūri, | vēsā- | -niēn- | -tē vēr- | -to. Catull. 25, 18.

V. The iambic trimeter catalectic or Archilochian, is the iambic trimeter (I.), wanting the final syllable. Like the common iambic trimeter, it admits a spondee into the first and third places, but not into the fifth; as,

Vocā- | -tūs ūt- | -quē nōn | vocā- | -tūs ūt- | -dit. Hor. Od. 2, 18, 40.
Trāhūnt- | -quē sic- | -cās māch- | -ināe | cārt- | -nas. Id. Od. 1, 4, 2.

VI. The iambic dimeter consists of two iambic measures, with the same variations as the iambic trimeter (I); as,

Fōrti | séquē- | -mūr pōe- | -tōre. Hor. Epod. 1, 14.
Cāndi- | -et trāc- | -tāvīt | dāpēs. Id. Epod. 8, 8.
Vidē- | -rē prōpē- | -rāntēs | dōmum. Id. Epod. 3, 62.

REMARK. The iambic dimeter is also called the Archilochian dimeter.

The following is its scale:—

VII. The iambic dimeter hypermeter, called also Archilochian, is the iambic dimeter, with an additional syllable at the end; as,

Rēds- | -gīt in | vērs- | tīmō- | -rēs. Hor. Od. 1, 37, 15.

REMARK. Horace always makes the third foot a spondee.

VIII. The iambic dimeter acephalous is the iambic dimeter, wanting the first syllable; as,

Nōn | ēbūr | nūque ūt- | -rēm.... Hor. Od. 2, 18, 1.

REMARK. This kind of verse is sometimes scanned as a catalectic trochaic dimeter. See § 315, IV.

IX. The iambic dimeter catalectic, or Anacreontic, is the iambic dimeter, wanting the final syllable, and having always an iambus in the third foot; as,

Ut tī- | grīs ōr- | -bā gnā- | -tis. Sen. Med. 863.

X. The Gallianbus consists of two iambic dimeters catalectic, the last of which wants the final syllable.

REMARK 1. It was so denominated from the Galli or priests of Cybele, by whom it was used.

REM. 2. In the first foot of each dimeter the anapaest was generally preferred to the spondee. The catalectic syllable at the end of the first dimeter is long, and the second foot of the second dimeter is commonly a tribrach; as,

Süpër Əl- | -tə vəc- | -təs A- | -tys | cöləri | rətə mə- | -ria. Catull, 68, 1.

REM. 8. The cæsura uniformly occurs at the end of the first dimeter.

TROCHAIC METRE.

§ 315. 1. Trochaic verses bear a near affinity to iambics. The addition or retrenchment of a syllable at the beginning of a pure iambic verse, renders it pure trochaic, and the addition or retrenchment of a syllable at the beginning of a pure trochaic line, renders it pure iambic, with the deficiency or redundancy of a syllable in each case at the end of the verse.

I. The trochaic tetrameter catalectic consists of seven feet, followed by a catalectic syllable. In the first five places and very rarely in the sixth, it admits a tribrach, but in the seventh a trochee only. In the even places, besides the tribrach, it admits also a spondee, a dactyl, an anapaest, and sometimes a proceleusmatic; as,

Jūsēds | ēst in | ērmīs | Irē : | pārūs | Irē | jūsēds | ēst. Auct. P. Vēn.

Romă | lăas | Ipeă | făcit | cūm sã- | -binis | nupți- | -as. Id.

Dănăi | dēs, oǎ- | -itē; | vēstrās | hīc dī- | -ēs quā- | -rīt mǎ- | -nūs. Sen.

The following is its scale:—

[illegible]

REMARK 1. The pure trochaic verse was rarely used, and the dactyl very rarely occurs in the fourth place. The caesural pause uniformly occurs after the fourth foot, thus dividing the verse into a complete dimeter and a catalectic dimeter. The comic writers introduced the spondee and its equivalent feet into the odd places.

REM. 2. The complete trochaic tetrameter or octonarius properly consists of eight feet, all trochees, subject, however, to the same variations as the catalectic tetrameter; as,

Ypse | sūmmis | sāxis | fixūs | āspē- | -ris, ē- | -viscē- | -rātūs. Enn.

II. The Sapphic verse, invented by the poetess Sappho, consists of five feet—the first a trochee, the second a spondee, the third a dactyl, and the fourth and fifth trochees; as,

Intē- | -gēr vī- | -cē, | scēlō- | -risquē | pūrūs. Hor. Od. 1, 22, 1.

1. Sappho, and, after her example, Catullus, sometimes made the second foot a trochee.

2. Those Sapphics are most harmonious which have the cæsure after the fifth semi-foot.

NOTE 1. In the composition of the Sapphic stanza, a word is sometimes divided between the end of the third Sapphic, and the beginning of the Adonic which follows; as,

Lābi- | -tūr ri- | -pā Jōvē | nōn prō- | -bānte uzōrīūs | āmnia. Hor. Od. 1, 2, 19.

354 PROSODY.—VERSIFICATION—CHORIAMBIC METRE. § 316

It has been thought by some that such lines should be considered as one Sapphic verse of seven feet, the fifth foot being either a spondee or a trochee.

NOTE 2. This verse is sometimes scanned as epichoriambic, having an epitrite in the first place, a choriambus in the second, and ending with an iambic syzygy catalectic; thus,

Intēgēr vi- | -tē, scēlērīs- | -quē pūrū.

III. The Phalæcian verse consists of five feet—a spondee, a dactyl, and three trochees; as,

Nōn ēst | vivērē, | sēd vā- | -lārē | vitā. Mart.

REMARK 1. Instead of a spondee as the first foot, Catullus sometimes uses a trochee or an iambus. This writer also sometimes uses a spondee in the second place.

REM. 2. The Phalæcian verse is sometimes called hendecasyllabic, as consisting of eleven syllables; but that name does not belong to it exclusively.

IV. The trochaic dimeter catalectic consists of three feet, properly all trochees, and a catalectic syllable, but admitting also in the second place a spondee or a dactyl; as,

Nōn ē | -būr nē- | -que āūrē- | -um. Hor. Od. 2, 18, 1.

Lēnīs | -āc mōdī- | -cūm flū- | -ēns

Āūrā, | -nēc vēr- | -gēns lā- | -tus. Sen. Oed. 887.

NOTE. This measure is the same as the acephalous iambic dimeter (see § 314, VIII.), and it is not important whether it be regarded as iambic or trochaic.

CHORIAMBIC METRE.

§ 316. (a.) In a pure choriambic verse each metre except the last is a choriambus, and the last an iambic syzygy.

NOTE. A spondee and iambus, i. e. a third epitrite, are sometimes used in place of the iambic syzygy.

(b.) An epichoriambic verse is composed of one or more choriambi with some other foot, especially a ditrochee or a second epitrite, joined with it.

I. The choriambic pentameter consists of a spondee, three choriambi, and an iambus; as,

Tū nē | quēscērīs, | scīrē nēfās, | quēm mīhī, quēm tibi., Hor. Od. 1, 11, 1.

II. The choriambic tetrameter consists of three choriambi, or feet of equal length, and a Bacchius; as,

Omnē nēmūs | cūm flūvīe, | omnē cānāt | prōfūdum. Claud.

2. In this verse Horace substituted a spondee for the iambus contained in the first choriambus; as,

Ts dēōs ē- | -rō, sībārīn | cūr prōpērēs | āmāndō. Hor. Od. 1, 8, 2.

3. Some scan this verse as an epichoriambic tetrameter catalectic, beginning with the second epitrite.

III. 1. The Asclepiadic tetrameter (invented by the poet Asclepiades) consists of a spondee, two choriambi, and an iambus; as,

2. This form is invariably observed by Horace; but other poets sometimes, though rarely, make the first foot a dactyl.

3. The caesural pause occurs at the end of the first choriambus.

4. This measure is sometimes scanned as a dactylic pentameter catalectic. See § 311, III. Thus,

Mācō- | -nās, itā- | vīs | ēditē | rēgībūs.

IV. 1. The choriambic trimeter, or Glyconic (invented by the poet Glyco), consists of a spondee, a choriambus, and an iambus; as,

Sic tē | divā pētēs | Cypri... Hor. Od. 1, 3, 1.

2. The first foot is sometimes an iambus or a trochee.

3. When the first foot is a spondee, the verse might be scanned as a dactylic trimeter. Thus,

Sic tē | divā pē- | -tēs Cypri.

V. 1. The choriambic trimeter catalectic, or Pherecratic (so called from the poet Pherecrates), is the Glyconic deprived of its final syllable, and consists of a spondee, a choriambus, and a catalectic syllable; as,

Grātō, | Pŕrthā, sūb āu- | -trō. Hor. Od. 1, 5, 3.

2. The first foot was sometimes a trochee or an anapest, rarely an iambus.

3. When the first foot is a spondee, this measure might be scanned as a dactylic trimeter. See § 312, VI.

4. The Pherecratic subjoined to the Glyconic produces the Priapean verse. See § 310, II.

VI. 1. The choriambic dimeter consists of a choriambus and a Bacchius; as,

Lŕdā dīc | pŕr ānnēs. Hor. Od. 1, 8, 1.

2. This verse is by some called the choriambic dimeter catalectic. Cf. § 316, (a.)

IONIC METRE.

§ 317. I. The Ionic a majore, or Sotadic, (from the poet Sotades), consists of three greater Ionics and a spondee.

1. The Ionic feet, however, are often changed into ditrochees, and either of the two long syllables in those feet into two short ones; as,

Hās, cūm gēmi- | -nā cōmpēdē, | dēdicāt cā- | -tēnās,
Sātūrnē, tī- | -bī Zōilūs, | ānnūlōs pri- | -ōrēs. Mart.

2. Hence the following is its scale:—

NOTE. The final syllable, by § 301, note, may be short.

II. 1. The Ionic a minore consists generally of verses of three or four feet, which are all smaller Ionics; as,

Pŕr ālēs, | tībī tēlās, | ōpŕŕŕēs- | -quē Mīnŕrvŕ... Hor. Od. 3, 12, 4.

2. In this verse, as in the anapaestic, no place is assigned to the pause; because, since the metres, if rightly constructed, end with a word, the effect of a pause will be produced at the end of each metre.

COMPOUND METRES.

§ 318. Compound metre is the union of two species of metre in the same verse.

I. The dactylo-iambic metre or Elegiambus consists of a dactylic penthemimeris (§ 312, VII.), followed by an iambic dimeter (§ 314, VI.); as,

Scribēre | vērseū- | -lōe || kmo- | -rē pār- | -cūsām | grāvī. Hor. Epod. 11, 2.

II. The iambico-dactylic metre or Iambelegus consists of the same members as the preceding, but in a reversed order; as,

Nivē- | -quē dē- | -dūcūt | Jōvēm : || nūc mārē, | nūc silā- | -ae. Hor. Epod. 12, 2.

NOTE. The members composing this and the preceding species of verse are often written in separate verses.

III. The greater Alcaic consists of an iambic penthemimeris, i. e. of two iambic feet and a long catalectic syllable, followed by a chor-iambus, and an iambus; as,

Vidēs | ūt āl- | -tā || stēt nivē cān- | -didum. Hor. Od. 1, 9, 1.

REMARK 1. The first foot is often a spondee.

REM. 2. The cæsura uniformly occurs after the catalectic syllable.

REM. 3. This verse is sometimes so scanned as to make the last two feet dactyls.

IV. The dactylo-trochaic or Archilochian heptameter, consists of the dactylic tetrameter a priore (§ 312), followed by three trochees; as,

Solvitūr | acri- | -hī- | -ēms grā- | -tā vīcē || vērīs | ēt fā- | -vōnt. Hor. Od. 1, 4, 1.

REMARK. The cæsura occurs between the two members.

V. The dactylo-trochaic tetrameter or lesser Alcaic, consists of two dactyls, followed by two trochees, i. e. of a dactylic dimeter followed by a trochaic monometer; as,

Lēvī | pārōnū- || -rē | sūxī. Hor. Od. 1, 17, 12.

COMBINATION OF VERSES IN POEMS.

§ 319. 1. A poem may consist either of one kind of verse only or of a combination of two or more kinds.

2. A poem in which only one kind of verse is employed, is called carmen monocōlon; that which has two kinds, dicōlon; that which has three kinds, tricōlon.

3. When the poem returns, after the second line, to the same verse with which it began, it is called distróphon; when after the third line, tristróphon; and when after the fourth, tetrastróphon.

4. The several verses which occur before the poem returns to the kind of verse with which it began, constitute a stanza or strophe.

5. A poem consisting of two kinds of verse, when the stanza contains two verses, is called dicōlon distróphon, (see § 320, 3); when it contains three, dicō- ion tristrophon, (Anson. Profess. 21); when four, dicolon tetrastrophon, (§ 320, 2) and when five, dicolon pentastrophon.

§. A poem consisting of three kinds of verse, when the stanza contains three verses, is called tricolon tristrophon, (§ 320, 15); when four, tricolon tetrastrophon, (§ 320, 1).

HORATIAN METRES.

§ 320. The different species of metre used by Horace in his lyric compositions are twenty. The various forms in which he has employed them, either separate or in conjunction, are nineteen, arranged, according to the order of preference given to them by the poet, in the following

SYNOPSIS.

1. Two greater Alcaics (§ 318, III.), one Archilochian iambic dimeter hypermeter (§ 314, VII.), and one lesser Alcaic (§ 318, V.); as,

Vidēs, ut altā stēt nivē cāndidūm
Sōrāctē, nēc jam sustinēant onūs
Silvā laborāntēs, gēlūquē
Flūminā cōstitērūt acūtō. (Lib. 1, 2.)

REMARK. This is called the Horatian stanza, because it seems to have been a favorite with Horace, being used in thirty-seven of his odes.

2. Three Sapphics (§ 315, II.) and one Adonic (§ 312, VIII.); as,

Jām satīs tērris nivis atquē dirē
Grāndiūs misit pātēr, et, rubēntē
Dextērā sacris jaculātūs āroes,
Terruit urbem. (Lib. 1, 2.)

3. One Glyconic (§ 316, IV.) and one Asclepiadic (§ 316, III.); as,

Sic tē Divā pōtēns Cypri,
Sic frātēs Hēlēnē, lācidā stētra... (Lib. 1, 3.)

4. One iambic trimeter (§ 314, I.) and one iambic dimeter (§ 314, VI.); as,

Ibis Liburnis intēr altā nāvium,
Amicō, prōpugnacūla. (Epod. 1.)

5. Three Asclepiadics (§ 316, III.) and one Glyconic (§ 316, IV.); as,

Scribēta Viriō fortis, et hōstium
Victōr, Mæonii cārminis aliti,
Quām rēm cūmq; ferox nāvibūs sūt equis
Milēs, tē duos, gēsserit. (Lib. 1, 6.)

6. Two Asclepiadics (§ 316, III.), one Pherecratic (§ 316, V.), and one Glyconic (§ 316, IV.); as,

Diānam, tēnērē, diētē virginēs:
Intōndūm, pūerī, diētē Cynthium,
Lātōnamquē sūprēmo
Dilēctām pēnitās Jōvi. (Lib. 1, 21.)

7. The Asclepiadic (§ 316, III.) alone; as,

Mæonās stāvis editis rēgibus. (Lib. 1, 1.)

8. One dactylic hexameter (§ 310, i.) and one dactylic tetrameter a posteriore (§ 312, v.); as,

Laudabunt illi claram Rhodon, aut Mitylenen,
Aut Ephesum, bimarisve Corinthi... (Lib. 1, 7.)

9. The choriambic pentameter (§ 316, i.) alone; as,
Tu ne quæsieris, scire nefas, quem mihi, quem tibi... (Lib. 1, 11.)

10. One dactylic hexameter (§ 310, i.) and one iambic dimeter (§ 314, vi.); as,

Nox erit, et cælis fulgebant lunc æreno
Inter minora sidera. (Epod. 15.)

11. The iambic trimeter (§ 314, i.) containing spondees; as,
Jam, jam efficeis dō mātis scientiam. (Epod. 17.)

12. One choriambic dimeter (§ 316, vi.) and one choriambic tetrameter (§ 316, ii.) with a variation; as,

Lydā, dic, p̄r omnes
Tū dēos oro, Sybārīn eār pr̄p̄rās amādo... (Lib. 1, 8.)

13. One dactylic hexameter (§ 310, i.) and one iambic trimeter without spondees (§ 314, i.); as,

Alt̄rū jam t̄rītār bellū cīvīlībūs m̄tas;
Sūls ēt īp̄k̄ Rōmā vīrībūs rūt. (Epod. 16.)

14. One dactylic hexameter (§ 310, i.) and one dactylic penthemimeris (§ 312, vii.); as,

Diff̄ḡrē nivēs: rōd̄sūt jam grāmīnā cāmp̄s,
Arbōribusq̄ cōmēs. (Lib. 4, 7.)

15. One iambic trimeter (§ 314, i.), one dactylic trimeter catalectic (§ 312, vii.), and one iambic dimeter (§ 314, vi.); as,

P̄t̄tī, nūhīl mē, sicut̄ ant̄ea, jūvat
Scrib̄rē vēraicūlos,
Amorē p̄rēcūlūm gr̄vī. (Epod. 11.)

NOTE. The second and third lines are often written as one verse. See § 318, 1.

16. One dactylic hexameter (§ 310, i.), one iambic dimeter (§ 314, vi.), and one dactylic penthemimeris (§ 312, vii.); as,

Horridā tēp̄stās cōblūm cōtrāxit; ēt imbrēs
Nivēsque dēducūt Jōvem:
Nūc mārē, nūc silūm... (Epod. 12.)

NOTE. The second and third lines of this stanza, also, are often written as one verse. See § 318, ii.

17. One Archilochian heptameter (§ 318, iv.) and one iambic trimeter catalectic (§ 314, v.); as,

Solvītār acris h̄m̄s gr̄tā vīcō v̄rīs ēt p̄vōnt,
Trāhūtque siccas m̄chīnās cōrīnas. (Lib. 1, 4.)

18. One iambic dimeter acephalous (§ 314, viii.) and one iambic trimeter catalectic (§ 314, v.); as,

Nōn eār n̄que cūrēum
M̄cā rēnidēt īn dōmō l̄cūnar. (Lib. 2, 18.)

19. The Ionic a minore (§ 317, ii.) alone; as,
M̄l̄c̄r̄arū ēst n̄que am̄rī d̄rē l̄dūm, n̄que d̄l̄c̄r... (Lib. 3, 12.)

GRAMMATICAL FIGURES.

§ 322. Certain deviations from the regular form and construction of words, are called grammatical figures. These may relate either to Orthography and Etymology, or to Syntax.

I. FIGURES OF ORTHOGRAPHY AND ETYMOLOGY.

These are distinguished by the general name of metaplasms.

1. Prosthesis is the prefixing of a letter or syllable to a word; as, gnātus, for nātus; tētūli, for tūli. These, however, are rather the ancient customary forms, from which those now in use were formed by aphæresis.

2. Aphæresis is the taking of a letter or syllable from the beginning of a word; as, st, for est; rābōnem, for arrābōnem.

3. Epenhesis is the insertion of a letter or syllable in the middle of a word; as, ālītūm, for ālītum; Māvors, for Mars.

4. Syncope is the omission of a letter or syllable in the middle of a word; as, delm, for deōrum; medm factūm, for meōrum factōrum; sæcla, for sæcula; flæst, for flucisti; rēpostus, for rēpōsitus; aspri, for aspēris.

5. Crasis is the contraction of two vowels into one; as, cōgo, for cōāgo; nīl, for nihil.

6. Paragoge is the addition of a letter or syllable to the end of a word; as, med, for me; claudier, for claudē.

7. Apocope is the omission of the final letter or syllable of a word; as, mēn', for mēne; Anlōni, for Anlōnia.

8. Antihesis is the substitution of one letter for another; as, ollī, for illī; optāmus, for optīmus; afficio, for adfficio. O is often thus used for u, especially after r; as, vollus, for vultus; servom, for servum. So after qu; as, æquom, for æquum.

9. Metathesis is the changing of the order of letters in a word; as, pistris, for pristis.

II. FIGURES OF SYNTAX.

323. The figures of Syntax are ellipsis, pleonasm, enallage, and hyperbaton.

1. (a.) Ellipsis is the omission of some word or words in a sentence; as,

Attunt, scil. hōmīnes. Dārius Hyetaspis, scil. filius. Ōmo, scil. ēgo. Quid multa? scil. dicam. Ex quo, scil. tempore. Fērīna, scil. caru.

(b.) Ellipsis includes asyndeton, zeugma, syllipsis, and prolepsis.

(1.) Asyndeton is the omission of the copulative conjunction; as, abūt, excessit, evāsi, erupit scil. et. Cic. This is called in pure Latin disolutio.

(2.) (a.) Zeugma is the uniting of two nouns or two infinitives to a verb, which, as to its meaning, is applicable to only one of them; as, Pācem an bellum gērens: (Sull.) where gērens is applicable to bellum only, while pācem requires agere. Semperne in sanguine, ferro, fūgā versābimur? (Id.) where the verb does not properly apply to ferro.

(b.) Nēgo is often thus used with two propositions, one of which is affirmative; as, Nēgant Casīrem mansurum, postulātūque interpositū esse, for dicuntque postulātū... Cic. See § 209, Note 4.

(c.) When an adjective or verb, referring to two or more nouns, agrees with one, and is understood with the rest, the construction is also sometimes called zeugma, but more commonly syllipsis; as, Et gēnus, et virtus, nisi cum re, vilior algā est. Hor. Cāper tibi saluus et hōdī. Virg. Quamvis ille niger, quamvis tu candida esses. Id.

(3.) Syllipsis is when an adjective or verb, belonging to two or more nouns of different genders, persons, or numbers, agrees with one rather than another, as, Attōnti nōritāte pācent Raucis, timidusque Phlēmōn. Ovid. Prōcumbit ōterque prōnus hūmā, i. e. Deucālūm et Pyrrha. Id. Sustulimus mānus et ego et Balbus. Cic. So, Ipse cum frātre dēlesse jussi sūmus. Id. Prōptisq; dmi-cālō et liēris. Curt. See §§ 205, R. 2, and 209, R. 12, (3.) and (7.)

(4) Prōlepsis is when the parts, differing in number or person from the whole, are placed after it, the verb or adjective not being repeated; as, Prīncipes utrinque pugnam rēbunt, ab Sabinis Mettius Curtius, ab Rōmānis Hostus Hostilius. Liv. Bōni quōniam convēnīmus ambo, tu cālūmos inflāre, ego dicere verus. Virg.

2. (a.) Pleonasm is using a greater number of words than is necessary to express the meaning; as,

Sic ore locūta est. Virg. Qui māgis vēre vincere quam dū impērare mālīt. Liv. Nōmo ūnus. Cic. Forte fortunā. Id. Prūdēns sciens. Ter.

(b.) Under pleonasm are included parecon, polysyndeton, hendīdyds, and periphrasis.

(1.) Parecon is the addition of an unnecessary syllable or particle to pronouns, verbs, or adverbs; as, egomet, agētum, fortasseum. Such additions, however, usually modify the meaning in some degree.

(2.) Polysyndeton is a redundancy of conjunctions; as, Una Eurusque Nōtusque runt creberque procellis Africus. Virg.

(3.) Hendīdyds is the expression of an idea by two nouns connected by et or utque, instead of a noun and a limiting adjective or genitive; as, Pātoris libāmus et auro, for aureis pāteris. Virg. Libro et silvestri subēre clausum for libro subēris. Id. Cristis et auro. Ovid. Met. 8, 82.

(4.) Periphrasis or circumlocutio is a circuitous mode of expression; as, Tū mēri fietus ōnium, i. e. agni. Virg.

3. (a.) Enallāge is a change of words, or a substitution of one gender, number, case, person, tense, mood, or voice of the same word for another.

(b.) Enallāge includes antimeria, heterōsis, antiptōsis, synēsis, and anacoluthon.

(1.) Antimeria is the use of one part of speech for another, or the abstract for the concrete; as, Nostrum istud vivere triste, for nostra vita. Pers. Alnus eras. Id. Conjūgium vidēbit? for conjūgem. Virg.

(2.) Heterōsis is the use of one form of noun, pronoun, verb, etc., for another as, Ego quōque una pereō, quod mihi est cārus, for quā mihi sum cārior. Ter.

Rōmānus pratio victor, for Rōmā nī victōres. Liv. Many words are used by the poets in the plural instead of the singular; as, colla, corda, ōra, etc. See § 98. Me truncus illapsum cērebro sustūlerat, for sustūlisset. Hor. See § 259, R. 4.

(3.) Antiphrasis is the use of one case for another; as, Cui nunc cognōmen Iūlo, for Iūlus. Virg. § 204, R. 8. Uxor invicti Iōvis esse nescis, for te esse uzōrem. Hor. § 210, R. 6.

(4.) Synthesis, or synthesis, is adapting the construction to the sense of a word, rather than to its gender or number; as, Sūbeunt Tēgēa jūventus auxiliō tantī. Stat. Concursus pōpuli mirantium quid rei est. Liv. Pars in crūce acti. Sall. Ubi illic est scēlus, qui me perdidit? Ter. Id mea minime refert, qui sum nātū mazimus. Id. See § 205, R. 3, (1.) and (3.), and § 206, (12.)

(5.) Anacoluthon is a disagreement in construction between the latter and former part of a sentence; as, Nam nos omnes, quibus est ālcunde ālquis objectus lābos, omne quod est intērea tempus, priusquam id rescitum est, lucro est. Ter. In this example, the writer began as if he intended to say lucro habēmus, and ended as if he had said nōbis omnibus, leaving nos omnes without its verb.

4. (a.) Hyperbāton is a transgression of the usual order of words or clauses.

(b.) Hyperbāton includes ānastrōphe, hystēron prōtēron, hypoallage, synchysis, tmēsis, and pārenthēsis.

(1.) Anastrōphe is an inversion of the order of two words; as, Frangra per et rēnos, for per transtra. Virg. Collo dare brāchia circum, for circumdare. Id. Nox erit ūna sūper, for sūpērit. Ovid. Et faciū āre, for ārefaciū. Lucr.

(2.) Hystēron prōtēron is reversing the natural order of the sense; as, Mōriāmur, et in mēdia arma ruāmus. Virg. Vālet atque vivit. Ter.

(3.) Hypoallage is an interchange of constructions; as, In nōva fert āstimus mūtātas dicere formās corpōra, for corpōra mūtāta in nōvas formās. Ovid. Dare classibus Austros, for dare classes Austris. Virg.

(4.) Synchysis is a confused position of words; as, Saxa vōcant lālī, mōdiis gēs in fluctibus, āras, for que saxa in mēdiis fluctibus, lālī vōcant āras. Virg.

(5.) Tmēsis or diacope is the separation of the parts of a compound word; as, Septem subjecta triōni gēs, for septentriōni. Virg. Qua me cūmque vōcant terra. Id. Per mihi, per, inquam, grātum fēctis. Cic.

(6.) Pārenthēsis or diālysis is the insertion of a word or words in a sentence interrupting the natural connection; as, Tigrē dum rēdeo, (brēvis est via), pasce cāpellas. Virg.

REMARK. To the above may be added archaism and Hellenism, which belong both to the figures of etymology and to those of syntax.

(1.) Archaism is the use of ancient forms or constructions; as, aulāt, for aulx; sēnātī, for sēnātūs; fuit, for sit; prōhibesso, for prōhibuero; impetrassere, for impetrātūrum esse; fārter, for fāri; nēnu, for non; endo, for in;—Opēram ābūtūtur, for opēra. Ter. Quid tibi hanc cūrātio est rem? Plaut.

(2.) Hellenism is the use of Greek forms or constructions; as, Hēlēna, for Hēlēna; Antiphō, for Antipho; aurās (gen.), for aurā; Pallīdos, Pallidī, for Pallādīs, Pallādēm; Trōāsin, Trōādās, for Trōādibus, Trōādēs;—Abstīnēto trārum. Hor. Tempus dēistēre pugnæ. Virg.

§ 324. (1.) To the grammatical figures may not improperly be subjoined certain others, which are often referred to in philological works, and which are called

TROPES AND FIGURES OF RHETORIC.

(2.) A rhetorical figure is a mode of expression different from the direct and simple way of expressing the same sense. The turning of a word from its original and customary meaning, is called a trope.

1. (a.) A metaphor is the transferring of a word from the object to which it properly belongs, and applying it to another, to which that object has some analogy; as, Ridet ager, The field smiles. Virg. Ætas aurea, The golden age. Ovid. Naufragia fortune, The wreck of fortune. Cic. Mentis oculi, The eyes of the mind. Id. Virtus animi gloriæ stimulis concitat. The harshness of a metaphor is often softened by means of quasi, tamquam, quidam, or ut ita dicam; as, In unâ philosophiâ quasi tabernaculum vitæ suæ collocarunt. Id. Optimum quoddam . . . tamquam adipatæ dictionis genus. Id.

(b.) Catuchræsis or abûsio is a bold or harsh metaphor; as, Vir grægis ipse cæper. Virg. Eurus per Siculus equitavit undas. Hor.

2. Metonymy is substituting the name of an object for that of another to which it has a certain relation; as the cause for the effect, the container for what is contained, the property for the substance, the sign for the thing signified, and their contraries; the parts of the body for certain affections; the possessor for the thing possessed; place and time for the persons or things which they comprise, etc.; as, Mortales, for hominēs. Virg. Amor duri Martis, i. e. belli. Id. Fruges Cereæ appellamus, vinum autem Libærum. Cic. Cæpio vigiliam meam tibi tradere, i. e. meam curam. Id. Hausit patetram, i. e. vinum. Virg. Vina coronant, i. e. patetram. Id. Necte ternos colores, i. e. tria fila diversi coloris. Id. Cedant arma togæ, i. e. bellum paci. Cic. Sæcula mitescent, i. e. hominēs in sæculis. Virg. Pivat Pæciuius vel Nestora totum. Juv. Doctrinâ Græcia nos superabat, for Græci superabant. Cic. Pagi centum Suevorum ad ripas Rhēni considerant, for pagorum incolæ. Cæs. Tempora amicorum, for res adversæ. Cic. Claudius lege prædicatori vernalis pepenit, for Claudii prædium. Suet. Vici ad Janum medium sedentes, for Janii vicum. Cic.

3. Synecdöche is putting a whole for a part, a genus for a species, a singular for a plural, and their contraries; also the material for the thing made of it a definite for an indefinite number, etc.; as, Fontem ferebant. Id. Tectum, for dömus. Id. Armato milite complent, for armatis militibus. Id. Ferrum, for gladius. Id. Qui Corinthiis operibus abundant, i. e. vasis. Cic. Urbeni urbem, mi Rufe, cõle, i. e. Römam. Cic. Centum puer artium, i. e. multarum.

4. Irony is the intentional use of words which express a sense contrary to that which the writer or speaker means to convey; as, Salve bone vir, curasti probe. Ter. Egrégiam vëro laudem, et spolia ampla refertis, atque puerque tuus. Virg.

5. Hýperbóle is the magnifying or diminishing of a thing beyond the truth; as, Ipse arduus, atque pulsat sidera. Virg. Ociòs Euro. Id.

6. Métalepsis is the including of several tropes in one word; as, Post aliquot aristas. Virg. Here aristas is put for messes, and this for annos.

7. (a.) Allegory is a consistent series of metaphors, designed to illustrate one subject by another; as, O nâvis, refèrent in mâre te novi fluctus. Hor.

(b.) An obscure allegory or riddle is called an cænigma; as, Dic, quibus in terris tres piteat celi spatium non amplius ulnas. Virg.

8. Antidömäsia is using a proper noun for a common one, and the contrary; as, Irus est subito, qui modo Cræsus erat, for pauper and direx. Ovid. So, by periphrasis, pötor Rhodânâ, for Gallus. Hor. Eversor Carthaginiis, for Scipio. Quint. Eloquentiæ princeps, for Cicero. Id. Tydidēs, for Diönædes. Virg.

9. Litötes is a mode of expressing something by denying the contrary; as, Nim laudo, I blame. Ter. Non innocia verba. Virg.

10. Antiphräsisis is using a word in a sense opposite to its proper meaning, as, Auri sacra fâmes. Virg.

11. Euphemism is the use of softened language to express what is offensive or distressing; as, Si quid accidisset Cæsari, i. e. si mortuus esset. Vell.

12. Antânacrläsis or punning is the use of the same word in different senses as, Quis neget Enëre natum de stirpe Nêronem? Sustulit hic matrem, sustulit ille patrem. Epigr. Amâri iucundum est, si curêtur ne quid insit amâri. Cic.

13. Anáphóra or épánáphóra is the repetition of a word at the beginning of successive clauses; as, Nihilne te nocturnum præsidium pálati, nihil urbis vigília, nihil timor pópuli, etc. Cic. Te, dulcis conjux, te, sólo in litóre sæcum, te, véniente die, te, decedente, canébat. Virg.

14. Epistróphe is the repetition of a word at the end of successive clauses; as, Pænos pópulus Rómæmus justitiâ vicit, armis vicit, libérâtiâ vicit. Cic. In pure Latin this figure is called conversio.

15. Symploce is the repetition of a word at the beginning, and of another at the end, of successive clauses, and hence it includes the anaphóra and the epistróphe; as, Quis légem túti? Rullus: Quis májorem pópuli partem suffragiis privávit? Rullus: Quis cômitiis præfuit? Idem Rullus. Cic.

16. Epánalepsis is a repetition of the same word or sentence after intervening words or clauses. See Virg. Geor. II. 4—7.

17. Anádiplosis is the use of the same word at the end of one clause, and the beginning of another; as, Séquitur pulcherrimus Astur, Astur è quo fídens. Virg. A. 10, 180. Nunc etiam audes in hórum conspectum vénire, vénire audes in hórum conspectum? Cic. This is sometimes called épánastrophe.

18. Epánadiplosis is the use of the same word both at the beginning and end of a sentence; as, Crescit amor nummi, quantum ipsa pécunia crescit. Juv.

19. Epánados or régressio is the repetition of the same words in an inverted order; as, Crúdélis máter mágis, an puer impróbús ille? Impróbús ille puer, crúdélis tu quóque, máter. Virg.

20. Epizeuxis is a repetition of the same word for the sake of emphasis; as, Exultáte, exultáte eum ab inféris. Cic. Ah Córýdon, Córýdon, quæ te dementia cepit? Virg. Ibimus, ibimus, utcumque præcédés. Hor.

21. Climax is a gradual amplification by means of a continued anadiplosis, each successive clause beginning with the conclusion of that which precedes it; as, Quæ reliqua spes manet libertátis, si illis et quod libet, licet; et quod licet, possunt; et quod possunt, audent; et quod audent, vobis molestum non est? Cic. This, in pure Latin, is called gradatio.

22. Incrementum is an amplification without a strict climax; as, Fáctus est, tinciri civem Rómænum; scélus, verberári; própe parricidíum, necári; quid dicam in crácem tolli? Cic.

23. Polyptóton is the repetition of a word in different cases, genders, numbers, tenses, etc.; as, Jam clipeus clipeis, umbóne répellátur umbo; ense minax ensis, pède pes, et cuspidé cuspis. Stat.

24. Pareyménon is the use of several words of the same origin, in one sentence; as, Abesse non pótést, quin ejusdem hóminis sit, qui impróbos próbet, próbos impróbare. Cic. Istam pugnam pugnâbo. Plaut.

25. Párvonómia is the use of words which resemble each other in sound; as, Amor et melle et felle est fécundissimus. Plaut. Civem bonurum artium bonarum partium. Cic. Anantes sunt ámentes. Ter. This figure is sometimes called agnominatio.

26. Hómæpiphéron or alliteration is the use in the same sentence of several words beginning with the same letter; as, O Tite, tâte Tâti, ubi tanta, tyranne, túlisti. Enn. Neu patria vâldas in viscéra veritáte vires. Virg.

27. Antithesis is the placing of different or opposite words or sentiments in contrast; as, Hujus oratiónis difficiélius est exitum quam principium invenire. Cic. Cæsar bénéficiis ac múnificentiâ magnus habébâtur; integritate vitæ Cato. Sall.

28. Oxymóron unites words of contrary significations, thus producing a seeming contradiction; as, Concordia discors. Hor. Quum tácent, clamunt. Cic.

29. Synónymia is the use of different words or expressions having the same import; as, Non féram, non pátiar, non sin un. Cic. Prómillo, récipio, spondeo. Id.

30. Pārābōla or Simile is the comparison of one thing with another; as, Rē pante te, tamquam serpens e lātībālīs, dēcātīs ēminentībūs, inflāto collo, tīmīdīs ceruicībūs, intālīstī. Cic.

31. Erōtēsīs is an earnest question, and often implies a strong affirmation of the contrary; as, Crēdītīs āvēctos hostes? Virg. Hec! quā me aquōra possunt accipere? Id.

32. Epānorthōsis or Obrectio is the recalling of a word, in order to place a stronger or more significant one in its stead; as, Filiū unicū adolescentū habeo: ah! quid dixi? me habere? Imo habui. Ter.

33. Apōsiōpēsis, Rētūcentia, or Interruptio, is leaving a sentence unfinished in consequence of some emotion of the mind; as, Quos ego—sed mōtus pręstat compōnere fluctus. Virg.

34. Prōsōpōia or personification represents inanimate things as acting or speaking, and persons dead or absent as alive and present; as, Qua (patria) lēcum, Quālinā, sic agit. Cic. Virtus simit aut pōnit sēcūres. Hor.

35. Apostrophe is a turning off from the regular course of the subject, to address some person or thing; as, Vi pōtūtur; quid non mortālīs pectōra cōgis, aurī sacra fāmes! Virg.

36. Pārāleipsis is a pretended omission of something, in order to render it more observed. See Cic. Cat. 1, 6, 14.

37. Epiphōnēma or Acclāmatio is an exclamation or grave reflection on something said before; as, Tantā mōtis erat Rōmānam condere gentem. Virg.

38. Epiphōnēsis or Exclāmatio shows some violent emotion of the mind; as, O tempōra! O mōres!

39. Apōria, Dūpōrēsis, or Dūbitatio, expresses a doubt in regard to what is to be said or done; as, Quos accēdam, aut quos appellem? Sall.

40. Prōlepsis is the anticipation of an objection before it is made, or of an event before it occurs; as, Vērūm anceps pugna fūerat fortūna. Fuisset: Quē mētui mōrtūra? Virg.

§ 325. To the figures of rhetoric may be subjoined the following terms, used to designate defects or blemishes in style:—

1. Barbarism is either the use of a foreign word, or a violation of the rules of orthography, etymology, or prosody; as, rigōreus, for rigidus or sēvērus; dommīnus, for dōmīnus; davi, for dēū.

2. Solecism is a violation of the rules of syntax; as, Vēnus pulcher; vos invēdēmus.

3. Neoterism is the use of words or phrases introduced by authors living subsequently to the best ages of Latinity; as, murdrum, a murder; constabularius, a constable.

4. Tautology is a repetition of the same meaning in different words; as, Jam vos faciē, et prēlia, et hostem poscitis. Sil.

5. Amphibōlia is the use of equivocal words or constructions; as, Gallus, Gaul, or a cock. Aio te, Æaciā, Rōmānos vincere posse. Quint.

6. Idiotism is a construction peculiar to one or more languages; thus, the ablative after comparatives is a Latinism. When a peculiarity of one language is imitated in another, this is also called idiotism. Thus, Mitte mihi verbum, instead of Fac me certiorē, is an Anglicism.

ROMAN MODE OF RECKONING.

I. OF TIME.

1. The Roman Day.

§ 326. (1.) With the Romans, as with us, the day was either civil or natural. Their civil day, like ours, extended from midnight to midnight. The natural day continued from sunrise to sunset, as, on the other hand, the night extended from sunset to sunrise. The natural day and night were each divided into twelve equal parts or hours, which were consequently of different length, according to the varying length of the days and nights in the successive seasons of the year. It was only at the equinox that the diurnal and nocturnal hours of the Romans were equal to each other, as each was then equal to the twenty-fourth part of the civil day.

(2.) In the Roman camp the night was further divided into four watches (vigiliæ), consisting each of three Roman hours, the second and fourth watches ending respectively at midnight and at sunrise

2. The Roman Month and Year.

(1.) The calendar of the Romans, as rectified by Julius Cæsar, agreed with our own in the number of months, and of the days in each, according to the following table:—

Jānuārius . 31 days.	Maius . . 31 days.	September 30 days.
Februārius 28 or 29.	Iūnius . . 30 "	Octōber . . 31 "
Martius . . 31 days.	Quintilis 31 "	Nōvember 30 "
Aprīlis . . . 30 "	Sextilis . 31 "	Dēcember 31 "

In early times the Roman year began with March, and the names Quintilis, Sextilis, September, etc., indicated the distance of those months from the commencement of the year. Quintilis and Sextilis were afterwards called Julius and Augustus in honor of the first two emperors. The Romans, instead of reckoning in an uninterrupted series from the first to the last day of a month, had in each month three points or periods from which their days were counted—the Calends, the Nones, and the Ides. The Calends (Cālendæ), were always the first day of the month. The Nones (Nōnæ), were the fifth, and the Ides (Idus), the thirteenth; except in March, May, July, and October, when the Nones occurred on the seventh day, and the Ides on the fifteenth.

(2.) They always counted forward, from the day whose date was to be determined, to the next Calends, Nones, or Ides, and designated the day by its distance before such point. After the first day of the month, therefore, they began to reckon so many days before the Nones; after the Nones, so many days before the Ides; and after the Ides, so many before the Calends, of the next month.

Thus, the second of January was denoted by quarto Nōnas Jānuārias, or Jānuārii, scil. die ante: the third, tertio Nōnas; the fourth, pridie Nōnas; and the fifth, Nōnis. The sixth was denoted by octavo Idus; the seventh septimo Idus; and so on to the thirteenth, on which the Ides fell. The fourteenth was denoted by undevigésimo Calendas Februarias, or Februarii; and so on to the end of the month.

(3.) The day preceding the Calends, Nones, and Ides, was termed pridie Calendas, etc., scil. ante: in designating the other days, both the day of the Calends, etc., and that whose date was to be determined, were reckoned; hence the second day before the Calends, etc., was called tertio, the third quarto, etc.

(4.) To reduce the Roman calendar to our own, therefore, when the day is between the Calends and the Nones or between the Nones and the Ides, it is necessary to take one from the number denoting the distance of the given day from the Nones or the Ides, and to subtract the remainder from the number of the day on which the Nones or Ides fell in the given month.

Thus, to determine the day equivalent to IV. Nonas Januariæ, we take 1 from 4, and subtract the remainder, 3, from 5, the day on which the Nones of January fell (i. e. $4-1=3$, and $5-3=2$): this gives 2, or the second of January, for the day in question. So VI. Idus Aprilis: the Ides of April falling upon the 13th, we take ($6-1$, i. e.) 5 from 13, which leaves 8 (i. e. $6-1=5$, and $13-5=8$): the expression, therefore, denotes the 8th of April.

(a.) In reckoning the days before the Calends, as they are not the last day of the current month, but the first of the following, it is necessary to subtract two from the number denoting the distance of the given day from the Calends of the following month, and to take the remainder from the number of days in the month.

Thus, XV. Cal. Quintiles is $15-2=13$, and $30-13=17$, i. e. the Roman date XV. Cal. Quint. is equivalent to the 17th of June.

(b.) To reduce our calendar to the Roman, the preceding method is to be reversed. Thus when the given day is between the Calends and the Nones or between the Nones and the Ides, (unless it be the day before the Nones or the Ides), we are to add one to the number denoting the day of the month, according to our reckoning, on which the Nones or Ides fell. But if the day is after the Ides, (unless it be the last day of the month), we must add two to the number of days in the month, and then subtract the number denoting the day of the month as expressed in our reckoning. The remainder will be the day before the Nones, Ides or Calends.

Thus to find the Roman date corresponding to the third of April, we have $5+1-3=3$; the required date, therefore, is III. Non. Apr.—To find the proper Roman expression for our tenth of December we have $13+1-10=4$; the date, therefore, is IV. Id. Dec.—The Roman expression for the 22d of August, in pursuance of the above rule, is found thus, $31+2-22=11$, and the date is XI. Cal. Sept.

(5.) In leap year, both the 24th and 25th of February were called the sixth before the Calends of March. The 24th was called dies bisextus, and the year itself annus bisextus, bissextile or leap year.

(a.) The day after the Calends, etc., was sometimes called postidie calendas, etc.

(b.) The names of the months are properly adjectives, though often used as nouns, mensis being understood

(6.) The correspondence of our calendar with that of the Romans is exhibited in the following

TABLE.

29	IV. "	IV. "	III. "
30	III. "	III. "	Pridie Cal.
31	Pridie Cal.	Pridie Cal.

(7.) In leap-year the last seven days of February were reckoned thus:—

23. VII. Calendas Martias.	27. IV. Cal. Mart.
24. bisexto Cal. Mart.	28. III. " "
25. VI. Cal. Mart.	29. pridie Cal. Mart.
26. V. " "

(a.) Hence in reducing a date of February in leap-year to the Roman date, for the first 23 days we proceed according to the preceding rule in 4, (b.), as if the month had only 28 days. The 24th is marked as bisexto Cal. Mart., and to obtain the proper expression for the remaining five days we regard the month as having 29 days. Thus the 27th of February in leap-year is $29+2-27=4$, and the proper Roman expression is IV. Cal. Mart.

(b.) On the other hand, to reduce a Roman date of February in leap-year to our date we reverse the above process, and during the Nones and Ides and until the VII. Calendas Martias we reckon the month to have only 28 days:—bisexto Cal. Mart. is set down as the 24th, and for the remaining days designated as VI. V. IV. III. and pridie Cal. Mart. we reckon the month to have 29 days. Thus III. Cal. Mart. is $3-2=1$, and $29-1=28$, and the given day is equivalent to the 2nd of February.

(8.) The Latins not only said tertio, pridie, etc., Clendas, etc., but also ante diem tertium, etc., Clendas, etc.; and the latter form in Cicero and Livy is far more common than the former, and is usually written thus, a. d. III. Cal., etc.

(9.) The expression ante diem was used as an indeclinable noun, and is joined with in and ex; as, Consul Látinas férias in ante diem tertium Idus Sezátiis edixit. The consul appointed the Latin festival for the third day before the Ides of August. Liv. Supplicatio indicta est ex ante diem quintum Idus Octóbres. Id. So, Ad pridie Nónas Máias. Cic.

(10.) The week of seven days (hebdómas), was not in use among the Romans under the republic, but was introduced under the emperors. The days of the week were then named from the planets; dies Sólis, Sunday; dies Lúnæ, Monday; dies Martis, Tuesday; dies Mercúrii, Wednesday; dies Jovis, Thursday; dies Vénéræ, Friday; dies Sáturni, Saturday.

(11.) The term mundína (from nóvem—dies) denotes the regular market day at Rome when the country people came into the city; but it is not used for the purpose of denoting the period of eight days intervening between two successive market days.

(12.) The year at Rome was designated by the names of the consuls for that year. Thus Virgil was born, M. Licinio Crasso et Cn. Pompeio Magno consúlibus, i. e. in the year of the consulship of Crassus and Pompey. But in Roman authors events are often dated from the year in which Rome was founded, which, according to Varro, was in the 753d year before the birth of Christ. This period was designated as anno urbis condítæ, and by abbreviation, a. u. c., or simply u. c., and sometimes by a. alone, before the numerals.

Thus the birth of Virgil was a. u. c. 684. To reduce such dates to our reckoning, if the given number is less than 754, we subtract it from the latter number, and the difference is the required year before Christ. The birth of Virgil therefore is 754—684=70 before Christ.—But if the number of the Roman year exceeds 754, we deduct 754 from the given number, and the remainder is the year after Christ. For example, the emperor Augustus died a. u. c. 767, and the corresponding year of our era is 767—754=14.

II. TABLES OF MONEY, WEIGHT, AND MEASURE.

OF THE AS.

§ 327. The Romans used this word (As) to denote, I. The copper coin, whose value (in the time of Cicero) was about one cent and a half of our money. II. The unit of weight (libra), or of measure (jūgèrum). III. Any unit or integer considered as divisible; as, of inheritances, interest, houses, etc.; whence ex asse hères, one who inherits the whole. The multiples of the As are, Dispondius (duo pondus); for the As originally weighed a pound), i. e. 2 Asses; Sestertius (sesqui tertius), i. e. 2½ Asses; Tressis, i. e. 3 Asses; Quadrussis, i. e. 4 Asses; and so on to Centussis, i. e. 100 Asses. The As, whatever unit it represented, was divided into twelve parts or uncia, and the different fractions received different names, as follows:

The Uncia was divided in the following manner:—

ROMAN COINS.

These were the Tēruncius, Sembella, and As or Libella, of copper; the Res tertius, Quinarius (or Victoriatus), and Dênarius, of silver; and the Aureus, of gold.

N. B.—The marks denoting a Sestertius nummus are IIS., LLS., HS., which are properly abbreviations for 2 1-2 asses. Observe, also, that when a line is placed over the numbers, centena millia is understood, as in the case of the numeral adverbs; thus, H. s. MC. is milles centies HS.; whereas HS. MC. is only 1100 Sestertii.

ROMAN CALCULATION OF INTEREST.

The Romans received interest on their loans monthly, their highest rate being one per cent. (centesima), a month, i. e. 12 per cent a year. As this was the highest rate, it was reckoned as the as or unit in reference to the lower rates, which were denominated, according to the usual division of the as, sēmāsses, trientes, quadrantes, etc., i. e. the half, third, fourth, etc., of the as or of 12 per cent. according to the following table:—

REMARK 1. The Romans reckoned their copper money by asses, their silver money by sestertii, and their gold money by aurei and sometimes by Attic talents.

REM. 2. The as, as the unit of money, was originally a pound of copper, but its weight was gradually diminished, until, in the later days of the republic, it amounted to only 1-24th of a pound.

REM. 3. (a.) The dēnārius was a silver coin, originally equal in value to ten asses, whence its name; but, after the weight of the as was reduced, the dēnārius was equal to eighteen asses.

(b.) The sestertius, or sesterce, was one fourth of the dēnārius, or two asses and a half (semistertius). The sestertius was called emphatically nummus, as in it all large sums were reckoned after the coining of silver money.

(c.) The aureus (a gold coin), in the time of the emperors, was equal to 25 dēnārii, or 100 sesterces.

REM. 4. In reckoning money, the Romans called any sum under 2000 sesterces so many sesterti; as, decem sesterti, ten sesterces; centum sesterti, a hundred sesterces.

REM. 5. Sums from 2000 sesterces (inclusive) to 1,000,000, they denoted either by mille, millia, with sestertiūm (gen. plur.), or by the plural of the neuter noun sestertium, which itself signified a thousand sesterces. Thus they said quadraginta millia sestertiūm, or quadraginta sestertia, to denote 40,000 sesterces. With the genitive sestertiūm, millia was sometimes omitted; as, sestertiūm centum, scil. millia, 100,000 sesterces.

REM. 6. To denote a million, or more, they used a combination; thus, décies centēna millia sestertiūm, 1,000,000 sesterces. The words centēna millia, however, were generally omitted; thus, décies sestertiūm, and sometimes merely décies. See § 118, 5. So, centies, 10 millions; millies, 100 millions.

REM. 1. Some suppose that sestertium, when thus joined with the numeral adverbs, is always the neuter noun in the nominative or accusative singular. The genitive and ablative of that noun are thus used; as, Decies sestertii dote, With a dowry of 1,000,000 sesterces. The Quinquagies sestertio, 5,000,000 sesterces. Id. But this usage does not occur in Cicero.

DIFFERENT AGES OF ROMAN LITERATURE.

§ 329. 1. Of the Roman literature for the first five centuries after the foundation of the city, but few vestiges remain. The writers of the succeeding centuries have been arranged in four ages, in reference to the purity of the language in the period in which they flourished. These are called the golden, silver, brazen, and iron ages.

2. The golden age is reckoned from the time of Livius Andronicus, about A. U. C. 514, to the death of Augustus, A. U. C. 767, or A. D. 14, a period of a little more than 250 years. The writers of the early part of this age are valued rather on account of their antiquity, and in connection with the history of the language, than as models of style. It was not till the age of Cicero, that Roman literature reached its highest elevation. The era comprehending the generation immediately preceding, and that immediately succeeding, that of Cicero, as well as his own, is the period in which the most distinguished writers of Rome flourished; and their works are the standard of purity in the Latin language.

3. The silver age extended from the death of Augustus to the death of Trajan, A. D. 118, a period of 104 years. The writers of this age were inferior to those who had preceded them; yet several of them are worthy of commendation.

4. The brazen age comprised the interval from the death of Trajan to the time when Rome was taken by the Goths, A. D. 410. From the latter epoch commenced the iron age, during which the Latin language was much adulterated with foreign words, and its style and spirit essentially injured.

5. The body of Latin writings has been otherwise arranged by Dr. Freund, so as to be comprised in three main periods,—the Ante-classical, Classical, and Post-classical. The ante-classical extends from the oldest fragments of the language to Lucretius and Varro; the classical from Cicero and Cæsar to Tacitus, Suetonius, and the younger Pliny inclusive; the post-classical from that time to the fifth century of our era. The classical Latinity is subdivided into (a.) Ciceronian, (b.) Augustan, (c.) post-Augustan, and to the language of the fourth and fifth centuries he has given the title of late Latin.

Andrews' Series of Latin School Books.

PUBLISHED BY CROCKER AND BREWSTER, 51 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON.

THE LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS prepared by Prof. E. A. ANDREWS, exclusive of his Latin-English Lexicon, founded on the Latin-German Lexicon of Dr. Freund, constitute two distinct series, adapted to different and distinct purposes. The basis of the First Series is Andrews' First Latin Book; of the Second, Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar.

FIRST SERIES.

This Series is designed expressly for those who commence the study of Latin at a very early age, and for such as intend to pursue it to a limited extent only, or merely as subsidiary to the acquisition of a good English education. It consists of the following works, viz.:-

1. Andrews' First Latin Book; or Progressive Lessons in Reading and Writing Latin. This small volume contains most of the leading principles and grammatical forms of the Latin language, and, by the logical precision of its rules and definitions, is admirably fitted to serve as an introduction to the study of general grammar. The work is divided into lessons of convenient length, which are so arranged that the student will, in all cases, be prepared to enter upon the study of each successive lesson, by possessing a thorough knowledge of those which preceded it. The lessons generally consist of three parts:—1st. The statement of important principles in the form of rules or definitions, or the exhibition of orthographical or etymological forms; 2d. Exercises, designed to illustrate such principles or forms; and 3d. Questions, intended to assist the student in preparing his lesson. In addition to the grammatical lessons contained in this volume, a few pages of Reading Lessons are annexed, and these are followed by a Dictionary comprising all the Latin words contained in the work. This book is adapted to the use of all schools above the grade of primary schools, including also Academies and Female Seminaries. It is prepared in such a manner that it can be used with little difficulty by any intelligent parent or teacher, with no previous knowledge of the language.

2. The Latin Reader, with a Dictionary and Notes, containing explanations of difficult idioms, and numerous references to the Lessons contained in the First Latin Book.

3. The Viri Romæ, with a Dictionary and Notes, referring, like those of the Reader, to the First Latin Book. This series of three small volumes, if faithfully studied according to the directions contained in them, will not only render the student a very tolerable proficient in the principles of the Latin language and in the knowledge of its roots, from which so many words of his English language are derived, but will constitute the best preparation for a thorough study of the English grammar.

SECOND SERIES.

NOTE.—The "Latin Reader" and the "Viri Romæ," in this series, are the same as in the first series.

This Series is designed more especially for those who are intending to become thoroughly acquainted with the Latin language, and with the principal classical authors of that language. It consists of the following works:—

1. Latin Lessons. This small volume is designed for the younger classes of Latin students, who intend ultimately to take up the larger Grammar, but to whom that work would, at first, appear too formidable. It contains the prominent principles of Latin grammar, expressed in the same language as in the larger Grammar, and likewise Reading and Writing Lessons, with a Dictionary of the Latin words and phrases occurring in the Lessons.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS

2. Latin Grammar. Revised, with Corrections and Additions. A Grammar of the Latin Language, for the use of Schools and Colleges. By Professors E. A. ANDREWS and S. STODDARD. This work, which for many years has been the text-book in the department of Latin Grammar, claims the merit of having first introduced into the schools of this country the subject of grammatical analysis, which now occupies a conspicuous place in so many grammars of the English language. More than twenty years have elapsed since the first publication of this Grammar, and it is hardly necessary to say that its merits—placing it in a practical view, preëminently above every other Latin Grammar—have been so fully appreciated that it has been adopted as a Text Book in nearly every College and Seminary in the country. The present edition has not only been thoroughly revised and corrected (two years of continuous labor having been devoted to its careful revision and to the purpose of rendering it conformable in all respects to the advanced position which it aims to occupy), but it contains at least one third more matter than the previous editions. To unite the acknowledged excellencies of the older English manuals, and of the more recent German grammars, was the special aim of the authors of this work; and to this end particular attention was directed:—1st. To the preparation of more extended rules for the pronunciation of the language; 2d. To a clear exposition of its inflectional changes; 3d. To a proper basis of its syntax; and 4th. To greater precision in rules and definitions.

3. Questions on the Grammar. This little volume is intended to aid the student in preparing his lessons, and the teacher in conducting his recitations.

4. A Synopsis of Latin Grammar, comprising the Latin Paradigms, and the Principal Rules of Latin Etymology and Syntax. The few pages composing this work contain those portions of the Grammar to which the student has occasion to refer most frequently in the preparation of his daily lessons.

5. Latin Reader. The Reader, by means of two separate and distinct sets of notes, is equally adapted for use in connection either with the First Latin Book or the Latin Grammar.

6. Viri Romæ. This volume, like the Reader, is furnished with notes and references, both to the First Latin Book and to the Latin Grammar. The principal difference in the two sets of notes found in each of these volumes consists in the somewhat greater fulness of those which belong to the smaller series.

7. Latin Exercises. This work contains exercises in every department of the Latin Grammar, and is so arranged that it may be studied in connection with the Grammar through every stage of the preparatory course. It is designed to prepare the way for original composition in the Latin language, both in prose and verse.

8. A Key to Latin Exercises. This Key, in which the exercises in the preceding volume are fully corrected, is intended for the use of teachers only.

9. Cæsar's Commentaries on the Gallic War, with a Dictionary and Notes. The text of this edition of Cæsar has been formed by reference to the best German editions. The Notes are principally grammatical. The Dictionary, which, like all the others in the series, was prepared with great labor, contains the usual significations of the words, together with an explanation of all such phrases as might otherwise perplex the student.

10. Sallust. Sallust's Jugurthine War and Conspiracy or Cataline, with a Dictionary and Notes. The text of this work, which was based upon that of Curtius, has been modified by reference to the best modern editions especially by those of Kritz and Gerlach; and its orthography is, in general, conformed to that of Pottier and Planche. The Dictionaries of Cæsar and Sallust connected with this series are original works, and, in connection with the Notes in each volume, furnish a very complete and satisfactory apparatus for the study of these two authors.

11. Ovid. Selections from the Metamorphoses and Heroides of Ovid, with Notes, Grammatical References, and Exercises in Scanning. These selections from Ovid are designed as an introduction to Latin poetry. They are accompanied with numerous brief notes explanatory of difficult phrases, of obscure historical or mythological allusions, and especially of grammatical difficulties. To these are added such Exercises in Scanning as serve fully to introduce the student to a knowledge of Latin prosody, and especially of the structure and laws of hexameter and pentameter verse.

12. Virgil. The Eclogues and Georgics of Virgil, with Notes and a Metrical Key. The text of this edition is, in general, that of Heyne as revised by Wagner. Particular attention has been given to the orthography and punctuation. The orthography has been made to conform to the standard of prevalent usage, discarding the forms is for es, in the terminations of some accusatives plural, cum for quum, and the like, as they tend to embarrass the learner, while they give but a very imperfect idea of the peculiarities of the author's orthography, as will be seen by examination of the Orthographia Virgiliana, at the end of this edition. The notes are very numerous, and in their preparation the editor has drawn freely from the best commentaries on Virgil, both German and English, including those of Heyne, Wagner, Forbiger, Ladewig, Martyn, Keightley, Bryce, Conington and others. The notes contain many references to the Grammar, which will be found useful.

In announcing the Revised Edition of ANDREWS AND STODDARD'S LATIN GRAMMAR, the Publishers believe it to be quite unnecessary to speak of the merits of the work. The fact that in the space of about Twenty Years, SIXTY-FIVE EDITIONS, numbering above Two Hundred Thousand Copies, have been required for the purpose of meeting the steadily increasing demand for the work, sufficiently evinces the estimation in which it has been held. In preparing this Revised and Enlarged Edition, every portion of the original work has been reconsidered in the light of the experience of twenty years spent by the present editor in studies connected with this department of education, and with the aid of numerous publications in the same department, which, during this period, have issued from the European press. The results of this labor are apparent on almost every page, in new modifications of the old materials, and especially in such additional information in regard to its various topics as the present advanced state of classical education in this country seemed obviously to demand. The publishers commend this new edition to the attention of Teachers throughout the country, and express the hope that in its present form it will be deemed worthy of a continuance of the favor which it has so long received.

The following are extracts from a few of the many letters the Publishers have received from teachers from all parts of the country in commendation of this work:—

The revised edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar is without doubt the best published in America. I have no doubt that the time is near at hand when this series of works will, by all lovers of the classics, be considered as the 'National Series.' The pronunciation is now by the same class considered the American Standard. I will nail with joy the day when every college and school in our country shall have adopted Prof. Andrews' series as the foundation of true classic knowledge. As such I consider it, and for that reason have I used it since I first knew its existence.—Martin Armstrong, Potomac Seminary, Romney, Va.

Allow me to say, after a careful examination, that, in my judgment, it is the best manual of Latin Grammar to be found in the English language. In revising it the author has preserved the happy medium between saying too much and too little, so desirable for a Latin text-book for this country. In philosophical arrangement, simplicity of expression, and for brevity and fullness, it must entitle the author to the first rank in American classical scholarship. I shall use it in my classes, and recommend it to all teachers of Latin in this country.—N. E. Cobleigh, Professor of Ancient Languages and Literature, in Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS.

I have examined the new series of Latin Grammars prepared from the last edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and I have been struck by the skill and care with which the new series has been prepared. The new series is a work of great merit, and I have no doubt that it will be found to be a valuable addition to the Latin school books of the country. — W. H. Allen, New Haven, Conn.

Stoddard's Latin Grammar has been a standard work in American schools for many years, and its reputation is well known. The new series of Latin Grammars, prepared by Andrews and Stoddard, is a work of great merit, and I have no doubt that it will be found to be a valuable addition to the Latin school books of the country. — W. H. Allen, New Haven, Conn.

As regards the new series of Latin Grammars I consider, decidedly the best Latin Grammar ever published. — Rev. J. N. Norton, North Haven, Conn.

Such a work as Andrews and Stoddard's Revised Latin Grammar needs no recommendation. It speaks for itself. — A. A. Keen, Professor of Greek and Latin, Tufts College, Medford, Mass.

I have examined the revised edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and I have been struck by the skill and care with which it has been prepared. The new series is a work of great merit, and I have no doubt that it will be found to be a valuable addition to the Latin school books of the country. — W. H. Allen, New Haven, Conn.

I have examined Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and say, without hesitation, that the new series of the Latin language can be more easily and systematically acquired from it than any work I have ever seen. The arrangement and simplicity of its terms are such as to make it easily comprehended by the beginner, while, at the same time, its copiousness is sufficient for the most advanced student. The author has evidently noted and profited by the defects in this respect of most of the Latin Grammars now in use. — C. W. Field, Macon, Ga.

The superior merits of the original work are too well known and appreciated to need any commendation from me. I have had some means of knowing how great pains and labor Dr. Andrews has bestowed upon this final revision and improvement of the work, and, therefore, was not unprepared to find its acknowledged excellence materially increased, and I do not hesitate to say, that its value has been greatly enhanced, and that it has been brought as near as practicable to the present state of philological science. — John D. Philbrick, Superintendent of Public Schools, City of Boston.

I have looked the Grammar through with much care and a great degree of satisfaction, and I unhesitatingly pronounce it superior to any Latin Grammar in method and manner of discussion, and happily adapted to the wants of both teachers and pupils. — J. W. Hunt, Principal of New England Christian Institute, Andover, N. H.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS.

We have lately introduced the Revised Edition, and regard it as a great improvement upon former editions. We shall use it exclusively in future.—E. Flint, Jr., Principal of Lee High School.

After a due examination, I am happy to state that the Author has admirably accomplished the objects which he aimed at in making this last revision. He has added much that is in the highest degree valuable without materially changing the arrangement of the original work. The work appears to me well adapted to the daily use of our Classical Schools, and I shall hereafter direct my classes to use it.—C. L. Cushman, Principal of Peabody High School, South Danvers, Ms.

The Revised Grammar seems to me greatly improved and to be every thing a scholar could wish.—Z. B. Sturgis, Charlestown, Indiana.

I have subjected the Revised Edition to the test of actual use in the recitation room, and am persuaded that in its present form it decidedly surpasses every other Latin Grammar in point of adaptation to the wants of students in our Academies, High Schools and Colleges.—William S. Palmer, Central High School, Cleveland, Ohio.

I think Andrews' Series of Latin Works the most systematic and best arranged course I have ever seen,—and believe if our pupils would use them altogether, we should find them much better scholars. I shall use them wholly in my school.—A. C. Stockin, Principal of Monmouth Academy, Maine.

The examination of the Revised Edition has afforded me very great pleasure, and leads me to express the deep and sincere conviction that it is the most complete Grammar of the Latin language with which I am acquainted, and best adapted for ready consultation upon any subject connected with the study of Latin Authors. The paper, the typography, and the binding,—the whole style of publication—are such as to commend the good taste and judgment of the Publishers.—J. R. Boyd, Principal of Maplewood Young Ladies Institute, Pittsfield, Mass.

I find the Revised Edition to be just what is needed for a Latin Grammar,—clear, comprehensive, yet concise, in the subject matter. I shall introduce it as a permanent textbook.—B. F. Duke, Principal of Clyde High School, Wayne Co., N. Y.

I have carefully examined your Revised Edition throughout, particularly the Corrections and Additions. It now appears to me all that can be desired. It seems like parting with a familiar friend to lay aside the old edition, with its many excellencies, and adopt the new, but I shall cheerfully make the sacrifice for the greater benefit that will accrue to those commencing the study of Latin from time to time.—J. H. Graham, Principal of Northfield Institution, Vermont.

I thought before that the old edition was entitled to the appellation of "The Latin Grammar," but I perceive its value has been much increased by the numerous emendations and additions of Prof. Andrews. The Grammar is now fitted to be a complete hand-book for the Latin scholar during his whole course.—E. W. Johnson, Canton Academy, Canton, N. Y.

I unhesitatingly pronounce the Revised Edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar the best Grammar of the Latin Language, and shall certainly use my influence in its behalf.—H. E. J. Clute, Edinboro', Pa.

After a thorough examination, I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best Latin Grammar for the purposes of the recitation room that I have ever examined. In its present form it ought certainly to displace a large majority of the Grammars in common use. Its rules of Syntax are expressed with accuracy and precision, and are in fact, what all rules ought to be, reliable guides to the learner.—James W. Andrews, Principal of Hopewell Academy, Penn.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, in the arrangement and adaptation to the learner, has excelled all others, and the revised edition is certainly a great improvement, and I do believe is better adapted to the wants of the student than any other. The whole seems to be critically revised and corrected. Prof. Andrews was truly the student's benefactor.—M. L. Severance, North Troy, Vermont.

It gives me great pleasure to bear my testimony to the superior merits of the Latin Grammar edited by Professor Andrews and Mr. Stoddard. I express most cheerfully, unhesitatingly, and decidedly, my preference of this Grammar to that of Adam, which has, for so long a time, kept almost undisputed sway in our schools.—Dr. C. Beck, Cambridge.

I know of no Grammar published in this country, which promises to answer so well the purposes of elementary classical instruction, and shall be glad to see it introduced into our best schools.—Charles K. Dillaway, Boston.

Your new Latin Grammar appears to me much better suited to the use of students than any other grammar I am acquainted with.—Prof. Wm. M. Holland, Hartford, Ct.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS

I have adopted the Latin Grammar of Andrews and Stoddard in the school under my charge, believing it better adapted, upon the whole, for elementary instruction than any similar work which I have examined. It combines the improvements of the recent German works on the subject with the best features of that old favorite of the schools, Dr Adam's Latin Grammar.—Henry Drisler, Professor of Latin in Columbia College.

A careful review of the Revised Edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, shows that this favorite text-book still continues to deserve the affections and confidence of Teachers and Pupils, incorporating as it does the results of Prof. Andrews' own constant study for many years with the investigations of English and German Philologists. No other Grammar is now so well fitted to meet the wants of the country as the rapid demand for it will show beyond doubt.—A. S. Hartwell, University of St. Louis.

This Grammar of the Latin Language, now universally pronounced the very best, is greatly improved by the corrections, revisions and additions of this revised edition. We do not believe a text-book was ever written which introduced so great an improvement in the method of teaching Latin, as this has done. We wish the revised edition the greatest success, which we are sure it merits.—Rhode Island Schoolmaster.

I have examined your revised edition with considerable care, and do not hesitate to pronounce it a great improvement upon the old editions, and as near perfection as we are likely to have. I have no doubt it will come into general use.—A. Williams, Professor of Latin, Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa.

I have been much interested in the Revised Edition. The improvement is very striking, and I shall no longer think of giving it up and putting Zumpt in its place. I am much pleased with the great improvement in the typography. You have given to our schools a book fifty per cent better in every respect, and I trust you will have your reward in largely increased sales.—William J. Rolfe, Master of Oliver High School, Lawrence, Ms.

I can with much pleasure say that your Grammar seems to me much better adapted to the present condition and wants of our schools than any one with which I am acquainted, and to supply that which has long been wanted—a good Latin Grammar for common use.—F. Gardner, Principal of Boston Latin School.

The Latin Grammar of Andrews and Stoddard is deserving, in my opinion, of the approbation which so many of our ablest teachers have bestowed upon it. It is believed that, of all the grammars before the public, this has greatly the advantage, in regard both to the excellence of its arrangement, and the accuracy and copiousness of its information.—H. B. Hackett, Prof. of Biblical Literature in Newton Theological Seminary.

The universal favor with which this Grammar is received was not unexpected. It will bear a thorough and discriminating examination. In the use of well-defined and expressive terms, especially in the syntax, we know of no Latin or Greek grammar which is to be compared to this.—American Quarterly Register.

These works will furnish a series of elementary publications for the study of Latin together in advance of any thing which has hitherto appeared, either in this country or in England.—American Biblical Repository.

I cheerfully and decidedly bear testimony to the superior excellence of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar to any manual of the kind with which I am acquainted. Every part bears the impress of a careful compiler. The principles of syntax are happily developed in the rules, whilst those relating to the moods and tenses supply an important deficiency in our former grammars. The rules of prosody are also clearly and fully exhibited.—Rev. Lyman Coleman, Manchester, Vt.

This work bears evident marks of great care and skill, and ripe and accurate scholarship in the authors. We cordially commend it to the student and teacher.—Biblical Repository.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar is what I expected it would be—an excellent book. We cannot hesitate a moment in laying aside the books now in use, and introducing this.—Rev. J. Penney, D. D., New York.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar bears throughout evidence of original and thorough investigation and sound criticism. It is, in my apprehension, so far as simplicity is concerned, on the one hand, and philosophical views and sound scholarship on the other, far preferable to other grammars; a work at the same time highly creditable to its authors and to our country.—Professor A. Packard, Bonaville College, Maine.

I do not hesitate to pronounce Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar superior to any other with which I am acquainted. I have never seen, any where, a greater amount of valuable matter compressed within limits equally narrow.—Hon. John Hall, Principal of Ellington School, Conn.

We have no hesitation in pronouncing this Grammar decidedly superior to any now in use.—Boston Recorder

VALUABLE CLASSICAL WORKS.

Dr. Robinson's Gesenius.

Robinson's Hebrew Lexicon. Sixth Edition, Revised and Stereotyped. A Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament, including the Biblical Chaldee. Translated from the Latin of William Gesenius, late Professor of Theology in the University of Halle-Wittenberg. By EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Biblical Literature in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. A new edition, with corrections and large additions, partly furnished by the author in manuscript, and partly condensed from his larger Thesaurus, as compiled by Roediger. These corrections and additions were made by Dr. Gesenius, during an interval of several years, while carrying his Thesaurus through the press, and were transcribed and furnished by him expressly for this edition. They will be found to be very numerous, every page having been materially corrected and enlarged, and a large number of articles having been re-written. It is printed on a new type, the face and cut of which is very beautiful, and has been highly commended and approved.

Dr. Robinson had already been trained to the business of lexicographical labor, when he began the translation of the present work. He is, in an uncommon degree, master of his own native tongue. He has diligence, patience, perseverance—yes, the iron diligence of Gesenius himself. For aught that I have yet been able to discover, all that can reasonably be expected or desired, has been done by the translator; not only as to rendering the work into English, but as to the manner and the accuracy of printing. The work will speak for itself, on the first opening. It does honor, in its appearance, to editors, printers, and publishers. I have only to add my hearty wish, that its beautiful white pages may be consulted and turned over, until they become thoroughly worn with the hands of the purchasers.—Prof. Stuart, in the Biblical Repository.

There is no lexicon in English that can be put on a level with Robinson's. I recommend the present as the best Lexicon of the Hebrew and Biblical Chaldee which an English scholar can have.—Rev. Dr. Samuel Davidson, of London.

Gesenius' Lexicon is known wherever Hebrew is studied. On the merits of this work criticism has long ago pronounced its verdict of approval.—London Jewish Chronicle.

This is a very beautiful and complete edition of the best Hebrew Lexicon ever yet produced. Gesenius, as a Hebrew philologist, is unequalled.—London Clerical Journal.

This is decidedly the most complete edition of Gesenius' Manual Hebrew Lexicon.—London Journal of Sacred Literature.

Robinson's Harmony of the Gospels, in Greek.

A Harmony of the Four Gospels, in Greek, according to the text of Hahn. Newly arranged, with Explanatory Notes, by EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Biblical Literature in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. Revised Edition.

This work of L. A. Robinson confines itself to the legitimate sphere of a Harmony of the Gospels; and we do not hesitate to say that in this sphere it will be found to be all that a Harmony need or can be. The original text is printed with accuracy and elegance. It is a feast to the eyes to look upon a page of so much beauty. Its arrangement is distinguished for simplicity and convenience. No one will ever be able to comprehend the relations of the Gospels to each other, or acquire an exact knowledge of their contents, unless he studies them with the aid of a Harmony. The present work furnishes in this respect just the facility which is needed; and we trust that among its other effects, it will serve to direct attention more strongly to the importance of this mode of study.—Prof. Hackett, of Newton Theological Seminary.

Palmer's Arithmetic.

Arithmetic, Oral and Written, practically applied by means of Suggestive Questions. By THOMAS H. PALMER, Author of the Prize Essay on Education, entitled the "Teacher's Manual," "The Moral Instructor," etc.

Robinson's Harmony of the Gospels, in Engl

A Harmony of the Four Gospels, in English, according to the common version; newly arranged, with Explanatory Notes. EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D.

The object of this work is to obtain a full and consecutive account of the facts of our Lord's life and ministry. In order to do this, the four gospel narratives have been so brought together, as to present as nearly as possible true chronological order, and where the same transaction is described by more than one writer, the different accounts are placed side by side, so as to fill and supply each other. Such an arrangement affords the only full and complete survey of all the testimony relating to any and every portion of our Lord's story. The evangelists are thus made their own best interpreters; and shown how wonderfully they are supplementary to each other in minute as well as in important particulars, and in this way is brought out fully and clearly the fundamental characteristics of their testimony, unity in diversity. To Bible classes, Sabbath schools, and all who love and seek the truth in their closets and in their families, this work will be found a useful assistant.

I have used "Robinson's English Harmony" in teaching a Bible Class. The result on my own mind, is a conviction of the great merits of this work, and its adaptation to the part the highest life and interest to Bible Class exercises, and generally to the diligent study of the Gospel. It is much to be desired that every one accustomed to search the Scriptures should have this invaluable aid.—Rev. Dr. Skinner, New York.

Robinson's Dictionary of the Bible.

Robinson's Bible Dictionary. A Dictionary for the use of Schools and Young Persons. By EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D. Illustrated with Engravings on wood, and Maps of Canaan, Judea, Asia Minor, and the Peninsula of Mount Sinai. Idumea, etc.

Elements of Astronomy.

The Elements of Astronomy; or The World as it is, and as it Appears. By the author of "Theory of Teaching," "Edward's Lessons in Grammar," etc. Revised in manuscript by George P. Bond, of the Cambridge Observatory, to whom the author is also indebted for suggestions in the passage through the press.

Scott's Family Bible.

Scott's Family Bible. Boston Stereotype Edition. 6 vols. royal 8vo., containing all the Notes, Practical Observations, Marginal References, and Critical Remarks, as in the most approved London edition, with a line engraved likeness of the Author, Family Record, etc.

This Edition is the only one that has, or can have, the benefit of the Author's Additions and Emendations of the Author. The extent of these may be judged from the fact that upwards of Four Hundred Pages of letter-press have been added; and as they consist chiefly of Critical Remarks, their importance to the Biblical student is at once apparent. The Preface to the entire work contains an elaborate and compendious view of the evidences that the Holy Scriptures were given by inspiration of God. Prefixed to each Book, both in the Old and New Testament, is an Introduction, or statement of its purport and intent. There are also copious Marginal References, with various Table Chronological Index, and a copious Topical Index.

 Orders solicited.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS

2. Latin Grammar. Revised, with Corrections and Additions. A Grammar of the Latin Language, for the use of Schools and Colleges. By Professors E. A. ANDREWS and S. STODDARD. This work, which for many years has been the text-book in the department of Latin Grammar, claims the merit of having first introduced into the schools of this country the subject of grammatical analysis, which now occupies a conspicuous place in so many grammars of the English language. More than twenty years have elapsed since the first publication of this Grammar, and it is hardly necessary to say that its merits—placing it in a practical view, preëminently above every other Latin Grammar—have been so fully appreciated that it has been adopted as a Text Book in nearly every College and Seminary in the country. The present edition has not only been thoroughly revised and corrected (two years of continuous labor having been devoted to its careful revision and to the purpose of rendering it conformable in all respects to the advanced position which it aims to occupy), but it contains at least one third more matter than the previous editions. To unite the acknowledged excellencies of the older English manuals, and of the more recent German grammars, was the special aim of the authors of this work; and to this end particular attention was directed:—1st. To the preparation of more extended rules for the pronunciation of the language; 2d. To a clear exposition of its inflectional changes; 3d. To a proper basis of its syntax; and 4th. To greater precision in rules and definitions.

3. Questions on the Grammar. This little volume is intended to aid the student in preparing his lessons, and the teacher in conducting his recitations.

4. A Synopsis of Latin Grammar, comprising the Latin Paradigms, and the Principal Rules of Latin Etymology and Syntax. The few pages composing this work contain those portions of the Grammar to which the student has occasion to refer most frequently in the preparation of his daily lessons.

5. Latin Reader. The Reader, by means of two separate and distinct sets of notes, is equally adapted for use in connection either with the First Latin Book or the Latin Grammar.

6. Viri Romæ. This volume, like the Reader, is furnished with notes and references, both to the First Latin Book and to the Latin Grammar. The principal difference in the two sets of notes found in each of these volumes consists in the somewhat greater fulness of those which belong to the smaller series.

7. Latin Exercises. This work contains exercises in every department of the Latin Grammar, and is so arranged that it may be studied in connection with the Grammar through every stage of the preparatory course. It is designed to prepare the way for original composition in the Latin language, both in prose and verse.

8. A Key to Latin Exercises. This Key, in which the exercises in the preceding volume are fully corrected, is intended for the use of teachers only.

9. Cæsar's Commentaries on the Gallic War, with a Dictionary and Notes. The text of this edition of Cæsar has been formed by reference to the best German editions. The Notes are principally grammatical. The Dictionary, which, like all the others in the series, was prepared with great labor, contains the usual significations of the words, together with an explanation of all such phrases as might otherwise perplex the student.

10. Sallust. Sallust's Jugurthine War and Conspiracy or Cataline, with a Dictionary and Notes. The text of this work, which was based upon that of Curtius, has been modified by reference to the best modern editions especially by those of Kritz and Gerlach; and its orthography is, in general, conformed to that of Pottier and Planche. The Dictionaries of Cæsar and Sallust connected with this series are original works, and, in connection with the Notes in each volume, furnish a very complete and satisfactory apparatus for the study of these two authors.

11. Ovid. Selections from the Metamorphoses and Heroides of Ovid, with Notes, Grammatical References, and Exercises in Scanning. These selections from Ovid are designed as an introduction to Latin poetry. They are accompanied with numerous brief notes explanatory of difficult phrases, of obscure historical or mythological allusions, and especially of grammatical difficulties. To these are added such Exercises in Scanning as serve fully to introduce the student to a knowledge of Latin prosody, and especially of the structure and laws of hexameter and pentameter verse.

12. Virgil. The Eclogues and Georgics of Virgil, with Notes and a Metrical Key. The text of this edition is, in general, that of Heyne as revised by Wagner. Particular attention has been given to the orthography and punctuation. The orthography has been made to conform to the standard of prevalent usage, discarding the forms is for es, in the terminations of some accusatives plural, cum for quum, and the like, as they tend to embarrass the learner, while they give but a very imperfect idea of the peculiarities of the author's orthography, as will be seen by examination of the Orthographia Virgiliana, at the end of this edition. The notes are very numerous, and in their preparation the editor has drawn freely from the best commentaries on Virgil, both German and English, including those of Heyne, Wagner, Forbiger, Ladewig, Martyn, Keightley, Bryce, Conington and others. The notes contain many references to the Grammar, which will be found useful.

In announcing the Revised Edition of ANDREWS AND STODDARD'S LATIN GRAMMAR, the Publishers believe it to be quite unnecessary to speak of the merits of the work. The fact that in the space of about Twenty Years, SIXTY-FIVE EDITIONS, numbering above Two Hundred Thousand Copies, have been required for the purpose of meeting the steadily increasing demand for the work, sufficiently evinces the estimation in which it has been held. In preparing this Revised and Enlarged Edition, every portion of the original work has been reconsidered in the light of the experience of twenty years spent by the present editor in studies connected with this department of education, and with the aid of numerous publications in the same department, which, during this period, have issued from the European press. The results of this labor are apparent on almost every page, in new modifications of the old materials, and especially in such additional information in regard to its various topics as the present advanced state of classical education in this country seemed obviously to demand. The publishers commend this new edition to the attention of Teachers throughout the country, and express the hope that in its present form it will be deemed worthy of a continuance of the favor which it has so long received.

The following are extracts from a few of the many letters the Publishers have received from teachers from all parts of the country in commendation of this work:—

The revised edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar is without doubt the best published in America. I have no doubt that the time is near at hand when this series of works will, by all lovers of the classics, be considered as the 'National Series.' The pronunciation is now by the same class considered the American Standard. I will null with joy the day when every college and school in our country shall have adopted Prof. Andrews' series as the foundation of true classic knowledge. As such I consider it, and for that reason have I used it since I first knew its existence.—Martin Armstrong, Potomac Seminary, Romney, Va.

Allow me to say, after a careful examination, that, in my judgment, it is the best manual of Latin Grammar to be found in the English language. In revising it the author has preserved the happy medium between saying too much and too little, so desirable for a Latin text-book for this country. In philosophical arrangement, simplicity of expression, and for brevity and fulness, it must entitle the author to the first rank in American classical scholarship. I shall use it in my classes, and recommend it to all teachers of Latin in this country.—N. E. Cobleigh, Professor of Ancient Languages and Literature, in Laurence University, Appleton, Wis.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS.

I have reason to believe that the improvements, introduced into the last edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar by my respected and lamented friend Dr. Andrews, a little before his death, add very decidedly to the value of a work, which has done more to give the knowledge of that language to the youth of this country than any, perhaps than all others.—Theodore W. Woolsey, President of Yale College, New Haven.

No book, probably, has done more to improve classical training in American schools than Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar. Its use is almost universal; and where it has not itself been adopted as a manual, it has made grammars of similar excellence necessary. The last edition, the sixty-fifth, was carefully revised by the lamented Dr. Andrews, not long before his death, by whom it was greatly enlarged by the incorporation of much valuable information, derived mainly from the last edition of the Latin Grammar of Professor Zumpt. It will therefore be found to be much improved as a repository of the principles and facts of the Latin language.—Thomas A. Thacher Professor of Latin in Yale College, New Haven.

It is unnecessary to commend a Latin Grammar, which has been for twenty years in common use in our Colleges, and has generally superseded all others. The Revised Edition contains the results of the labors of Dr. Andrews, during all that time, on various Latin Classics, and on his great Latin Lexicon; and cannot, therefore, but be greatly improved.—Edward Robinson, D. D., LL. D., Prof. of Biblical Literature in Union Theol. Seminary, New York City.

I regard Andrews' and Stoddard's new Latin Grammar, as an exceedingly valuable work. It evidently contains the results of the Author's careful and long continued investigation, and from its fullness, clearness, and accuracy, will undoubtedly become the Standard Latin Grammar of this Continent. In Western New York, we have for a long time been using the earlier editions, and they have rapidly won upon the public regard. This new edition will give it a stronger claim upon our favor. It must rapidly supersede all others. I can unhesitatingly recommend the New Grammar as the best in use.—Lewis H. Clark, Principal of Solus Academy, Wayne Co., N. Y.

I have looked over the new edition of the Grammar with great interest. It is now eighteen years since I introduced it into this college, and I have never felt inclined to change it for any other. The revision, without changing its general character, has added greatly to its fullness and completeness. It is now fully equal to Zumpt's in these respects, and far superior to it in adaptation to the class room. There is no other school grammar that can pretend to compare with it. I have introduced the new edition here and have no idea I shall ever wish to substitute another. The services of Prof. Andrews in the cause of classical learning in the United States cannot be over estimated.—M. Starrs, Professor in Hanover College, Indiana.

I am willing to say that I am decidedly in favor of Andrews' Latin Series.—Geo. Galesville University, Wisconsin.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar I consider decidedly the best Latin Grammar ever published.—Ransom Norton, North Livermore, Maine.

Such a work as Andrews and Stoddard's Revised Latin Grammar needs no recommendation, it speaks for itself.—A. A. Keen, Professor of Greek and Latin, Tufts College, Medford, Ms.

I have examined the revised edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and think it a complete success. I see it has all of Zumpt's merits and none of his defects, and welcome its advent with great pleasure.—James M. Whiton, Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn.

I have examined Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and say, without hesitation, that the principles of the Latin language can be more easily and systematically acquired from it than any work I have ever seen. The arrangement and simplicity of its terms are such as to make it easily comprehended by the beginner, while, at the same time, its copiousness is sufficient for the most advanced student. The author has evidently noted and profited by the defects in this respect of most of the Latin Grammars now in use.—C. W. Field, Mauch Chunk, Pa.

The superior merits of the original work are too well known and appreciated to need any commendation from me. I have had some means of knowing how great pains and labor Dr. Andrews has bestowed upon this final revision and improvement of the work, and, therefore, was not unprepared to find its acknowledged excellence materially increased, and I do not hesitate to say, that its value has been greatly enhanced, and that it has been brought as near as practicable to the present state of philological science.—John D. Philbrick, Superintendent of Public Schools, city of Boston.

I have looked the Grammar through with much care and a great degree of satisfaction, and I unhesitatingly pronounce it superior to any Latin Grammar in method and manner of discussion, and happily adapted to the wants of both teachers and pupils.—J. W. Simonds, Principal of New England Christian Institute, Andover, N. H.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS.

We have lately introduced the Revised Edition, and regard it as a great improvement upon former editions. We shall use it exclusively in future.—E. Flint, Jr., Principal of Lee High School.

After a due examination, I am happy to state that the Author has admirably accomplished the objects which he aimed at in making this last revision. He has added much that is in the highest degree valuable without materially changing the arrangement of the original work. The work appears to me well adapted to the daily use of our Classical Schools, and I shall hereafter direct my classes to use it.—C. L. Cushman, Principal of Peabody High School, South Danvers, Ms.

The Revised Grammar seems to me greatly improved and to be every thing a scholar could wish.—Z. B. Sturgis, Charlestown, Indiana.

I have subjected the Revised Edition to the test of actual use in the recitation room, and am persuaded that in its present form it decidedly surpasses every other Latin Grammar in point of adaptation to the wants of students in our Academies, High Schools and Colleges.—William S. Palmer, Central High School, Cleveland, Ohio.

I think Andrews' Series of Latin Works the most systematic and best arranged course I have ever seen,—and believe if our pupils would use them altogether, we should find them much better scholars. I shall use them wholly in my school.—A. C. Stockin, Principal of Monmouth Academy, Maine.

The examination of the Revised Edition has afforded me very great pleasure, and leads me to express the deep and sincere conviction that it is the most complete Grammar of the Latin language with which I am acquainted, and best adapted for ready consultation upon any subject connected with the study of Latin Authors. The paper, the typography, and the binding,—the whole style of publication—are such as to commend the good taste and judgment of the Publishers.—J. R. Boyd, Principal of Maplewood Young Ladies Institute, Pittsfield, Mass.

I find the Revised Edition to be just what is needed for a Latin Grammar,—clear, comprehensive, yet concise, in the subject matter. I shall introduce it as a permanent textbook.—B. F. Duke, Principal of Clyde High School, Wayne Co., N. Y.

I have carefully examined your Revised Edition throughout, particularly the Corrections and Additions. It now appears to me all that can be desired. It seems like parting with a familiar friend to lay aside the old edition, with its many excellencies, and adopt the new, but I shall cheerfully make the sacrifice for the greater benefit that will accrue to those commencing the study of Latin from time to time.—J. H. Graham, Principal of Northfield Institution, Vermont.

I thought before that the old edition was entitled to the appellation of "The Latin Grammar," but I perceive its value has been much increased by the numerous emendations and additions of Prof. Andrews. The Grammar is now fitted to be a complete hand-book for the Latin scholar during his whole course.—E. W. Johnson, Canton Academy, Canton, N. Y.

I unhesitatingly pronounce the Revised Edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar the best Grammar of the Latin Language, and shall certainly use my influence in its behalf.—H. E. J. Clute, Edinboro', Pa.

After a thorough examination, I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best Latin Grammar for the purposes of the recitation room that I have ever examined. In its present form it ought certainly to displace a large majority of the Grammars in common use. Its rules of Syntax are expressed with accuracy and precision, and are in fact, what all rules ought to be, reliable guides to the learner.—James W. Andrews, Principal of Hopewell Academy, Penn.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, in the arrangement and adaptation to the learner, has excelled all others, and the revised edition is certainly a great improvement, and I do believe is better adapted to the wants of the student than any other. The whole seems to be critically revised and corrected. Prof. Andrews was truly the student's benefactor.—M. L. Severance, North Troy, Vermont.

It gives me great pleasure to bear my testimony to the superior merits of the Latin Grammar edited by Professor Andrews and Mr. Stoddard. I express most cheerfully, unhesitatingly, and decidedly, my preference of this Grammar to that of Adam, which has, for so long a time, kept almost undisputed sway in our schools.—Dr. C. Beck, Cambridge.

I know of no Grammar published in this country, which promises to answer so well the purposes of elementary classical instruction, and shall be glad to see it introduced into our best schools.—Charles K. Dillaway, Boston.

Your new Latin Grammar appears to me much better suited to the use of students than any other grammar I am acquainted with.—Prof. Wm. M. Holland, Hartford, Ct.

NEW SERIES OF LATIN SCHOOL BOOKS

I have adopted the Latin Grammar of Andrews and Stoddard in the school under my charge, believing it better adapted, upon the whole, for elementary instruction than any similar work which I have examined. It combines the improvements of the recent German works on the subject with the best features of that old favorite of the schools, Dr Adam's Latin Grammar.—Henry Drisler, Professor of Latin in Columbia College.

A careful review of the Revised Edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, shows that this favorite text-book still continues to deserve the affections and confidence of Teachers and Pupils, incorporating as it does the results of Prof. Andrews' own constant study for many years with the investigations of English and German Philologists. No other Grammar is now so well fitted to meet the wants of the country as the rapid demand for it will show beyond doubt.—A. S. Hartwell, University of St. Louis.

This Grammar of the Latin Language, now universally pronounced the very best, is greatly improved by the corrections, revisions and additions of this revised edition. We do not believe a text-book was ever written which introduced so great an improvement in the method of teaching Latin, as this has done. We wish the revised edition the greatest success, which we are sure it merits.—Rhode Island Schoolmaster.

I have examined your revised edition with considerable care, and do not hesitate to pronounce it a great improvement upon the old editions, and as near perfection as we are likely to have. I have no doubt it will come into general use.—A. Williams, Professor of Latin, Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa.

I have been much interested in the Revised Edition. The improvement is very striking, and I shall no longer think of giving it up and putting Zumpt in its place. I am much pleased with the great improvement in the typography. You have given to our schools a book fifty per cent better in every respect, and I trust you will have your reward in largely increased sales.—William J. Rolfe, Master of Olver High School, Lawrence, Ms.

I can with much pleasure say that your Grammar seems to me much better adapted to the present condition and wants of our schools than any one with which I am acquainted, and to supply that which has long been wanted—a good Latin Grammar for common use.—F. Gardner, Principal of Boston Latin School.

The Latin Grammar of Andrews and Stoddard is deserving, in my opinion, of the approbation which so many of our ablest teachers have bestowed upon it. It is believed that, of all the grammars before the public, this has greatly the advantage, in regard both to the excellence of its arrangement, and the accuracy and copiousness of its information.—H. B. Hackett, Prof. of Biblical Literature in Newton Theological Seminary.

The universal favor with which this Grammar is received was not unexpected. It will bear a thorough and discriminating examination. In the use of well-defined and expressive terms, especially in the syntax, we know of no Latin or Greek grammar which is to be compared to this.—American Quarterly Register.

These works will furnish a series of elementary publications for the study of Latin together in advance of any thing which has hitherto appeared, either in this country or in England.—American Biblical Repository.

I cheerfully and decidedly bear testimony to the superior excellence of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar to any manual of the kind with which I am acquainted. Every part bears the impress of a careful compiler. The principles of syntax are happily developed in the rules, whilst those relating to the moods and tenses supply an important deficiency in our former grammars. The rules of prosody are also clearly and fully exhibited.—Rev. Lyman Coleman, Manchester, Vt.

This work bears evident marks of great care and skill, and ripe and accurate scholarship in the authors. We cordially commend it to the student and teacher.—Biblical Repository.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar is what I expected it would be—an excellent book. We cannot hesitate a moment in laying aside the books now in use, and introducing this.—Rev. J. Penney, D. D., New York.

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar bears throughout evidence of original and thorough investigation and sound criticism. It is, in my apprehension, so far as simplicity is concerned, on the one hand, and philosophical views and sound scholarship on the other, far preferable to other grammars; a work at the same time highly creditable to its authors and to our country.—Professor A. Packard, Bowdoin College, Maine.

I do not hesitate to pronounce Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar superior to any other with which I am acquainted. I have never seen, any where, a greater amount of valuable matter compressed within limits equally narrow.—Hon. John Hall, Principal of Ellington School, Conn.

We have no hesitation in pronouncing this Grammar decidedly superior to any now in use.—Boston Recorder

VALUABLE CLASSICAL WORKS.

Dr. Robinson's Gesenius.

Robinson's Hebrew Lexicon. Sixth Edition, Revised and Stereotyped. A Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament, including the Biblical Chaldee. Translated from the Latin of William Gesenius, late Professor of Theology in the University of Halle-Wittenberg. By EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Biblical Literature in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. A new edition, with corrections and large additions, partly furnished by the author in manuscript, and partly condensed from his larger Thesaurus, as compiled by Roediger. Robinson's Harmony of the Gospels, in Greek.

A Harmony of the Four Gospels, in Greek, according to the text of Hahn. Newly arranged, with Explanatory Notes, by EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Biblical Literature in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. Revised Edition.

This work of E. Robinson confines itself to the legitimate sphere of a Harmony of the Gospels; and we do not hesitate to say that in this sphere it will be found to be all that a Harmony need or can be. The original text is printed with accuracy and elegance. It is a feast to the eyes to look upon a page of so much beauty. Its arrangement is distinguished for simplicity and convenience. No one will ever be able to comprehend the relations of the Gospels to each other, or acquire an exact knowledge of their contents, unless he studies them with the aid of a Harmony. The present work furnishes in this respect just the facility which is needed; and we trust that among its other effects, it will serve to direct attention more strongly to the importance of this mode of study.—Prof. Hackett, of Newton Theological Seminary.

VALUABLE CLASSICAL WORKS.

Robinson's Harmony of the Gospels, in English

A Harmony of the Four Gospels, in English, according to the common version; newly arranged, with Explanatory Notes. By EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D., LL. D.

The object of this work is to obtain a full and consecutive account of all the facts of our Lord's life and ministry. In order to do this, the four gospel narratives have been so brought together, as to present as nearly as possible the true chronological order, and where the same transaction is described by more than one writer, the different accounts are placed side by side, so as to fill out and supply each other. Such an arrangement affords the only full and perfect survey of all the testimony relating to any and every portion of our Lord's history. The evangelists are thus made their own best interpreters; and it is shown how wonderfully they are supplementary to each other in minute as well as in important particulars, and in this way is brought out fully and clearly the fundamental characteristics of their testimony, unity in diversity. To Bible classes, Sabbath schools, and all who love and seek the truth in their closets and in their families, this work will be found a useful assistant.

I have used "Robinson's English Harmony" in teaching a Bible Class. The result, in my own mind, is a conviction of the great merits of this work, and its adaptation to impart the highest life and interest to Bible Class exercises, and generally to the diligent study of the Gospel. It is much to be desired that every one accustomed to searching the Scriptures should have this invaluable aid.—Rev. Dr. Skinner, New York.

Elements of Astronomy.

The Elements of Astronomy; or The World as it is and as it Appears. By the author of "Theory of Teaching," "Edward's First Lessons in Grammar," etc. Revised in manuscript by George P. Bond, Esq., of the Cambridge Observatory, to whom the author is also indebted for superintending its passage through the press.

Scott's Family Bible.

Scott's Family Bible. Boston Stereotype Edition. 6 vols. royal 8vo., containing all the Notes, Practical Observations, Marginal References, and Critical Remarks, as in the most approved London edition, with a fine engraved likeness of the Author, Family Record, etc.

This Edition is the only one that has, or can have, the benefit of the final Additions and Emendations of the Author. The extent of these may be judged from the fact that upwards of Four Hundred Pages of letter-press were added; and as they consist chiefly of Critical Remarks, their importance to the Biblical student is at once apparent. The Preface to the entire work contains an elaborate and compendious view of the evidences that the Holy Scriptures were given by inspiration of God. Prefixed to each Book, both in the Old and New Testament, is an Introduction, or statement of its purport and intent. There are also copious Marginal References, with various Tables, a Chronological Index, and a copious Topical Index.
